After these thynges, in the reygne of Artaxerxes kyng of Persia, came Esdras the sonne of Saraias, the sonne of Ezechias, the sonne of Helchias, the sonne of Salum, the sonne of Sadoc, the sonne of Achitob, the sonne of Amarias, the sonne of Ozias, the sonne of Meraioth, the sonne of Zaraias, the sonne of Sabi, the sonne of Boccan, the sonne of Abisue, the sonne of Phinees, the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron the chefe preest. This Esdras came vp from Babylon, as a cunnynge scribe in the lawe of Moses, which was geuen by the God of Israel, & the kyng honoured him, for he found grace in his sight in all his requestes. There went vp also certayne of the children of Israel, & of the preestes & Leuites, & singers, & porters, & Nethinims vnto Hierusalē, in the seuenth yeare of Artaxerxes the kyng. And they came vnto Hierusalē in the fyfth moneth of the seuenth yeare of the kyng. For vpon the first day of the first moneth was the begynnynge of the goynge vp from Babylon, & vpon the first day of the fyfth moneth came they vnto Hierusalē, according vnto the good hande of their God vpon them. For Esdras had prepared his hart to seke the lawe of the Lorde, & to do it, & to teache in Israel the ordynaunces & lawe. Now this is the copie of the letter that kyng Artaxerxes gaue vnto Esdras the preest & scribe, euen vnto the writynge of the commaundementes of the Lorde, & of his ordynaunces vpon Israel. Artaxerxes kyng of kynges vnto Esdras the preest & scribe of the lawe of the God of heauen, perfect peace, & now. I haue made a decree, that all they of the people of Israel, & of their preestes & Leuites in my realme, which of their owne myndes & willyngly will go vp to Hierusalē, shall go with thee. Forasmuch as thou art sent of the kyng & his seuen counsellers, to enquire in Judea & Hierusalē, according vnto the lawe of God which is in thy hande, & to carye the gyftes of the kyng & his counsellers vnto the God of Israel, whose habitacion is in Hierusalē, & all the golde & syluer that thou canst get in all the countrey of Babylon, with the offrynges of the people, & of the preestes, offrynge willyngly vnto the house of their God at Hierusalē. Take heede therefore that thou buye with this money bullocks, rammes, lambes, & their meate offrynges & drynke offrynges, & offer them vpon the aulter of the house of your God at Hierusalē. And whatsoeuer shall seme good vnto thee & thy brethren to do with the residue of the golde & syluer, that do after the will of your God. And the vessell that are geuen thee for the seruice of the house of thy God, those deliuer before the God of Hierusalē. And whatsoeuer more shall be nedefull for the house of thy God, which thou shalt haue occasion to bestowe, bestowe it out of the kynges treasure house. And I kyng Artaxerxes haue made a decree vnto all the treasurers that are beyonde the water, that whatsoeuer Esdras the preest & scribe of the lawe of the God of heauen shall require of you, that it be done with diligence, vnto an hundreth talentes of syluer, & vnto an hundreth measures of wheate, & vnto an hundreth measures of wyne, & vnto an hundreth measures of salte, & oyle without any more commaundement. Whatsoeuer is commaunded by the God of heauen, let it be done with diligence for the house of the God of heauen, lest there come wrath vpon the realme of the kyng & his children. Also we certifie you, that ouer all the preestes & Leuites, singers, porters, Nethinims & seruauntes of this house of God, it shall not be lawfull to laye toll, custome, or tribute vpon them. And thou Esdras, after the wisedome of thy God, ordeyne iudges & rulers, that they may iudge all the people that are beyonde the water, all such as know the lawes of thy God, & teache them that know them not. And whosoeuer will not do the lawe of thy God, & the lawe of the kyng with diligence, vpon him shall iudgement be executed, whether it be vnto death, or vnto bannishment, or vnto a fyne of money, or vnto prison. Then Esdras the scribe answered & sayde: Blessed be the Lorde God of our fathers, which hath put such thynges in the kynges hart, to glorifie his house which is at Hierusalē, & hath honoured me before the kyng & his counsellers, & before all the kynges mighty princes. Therefore was I strengthened, according vnto the hande of the Lorde my God vpon me, & gathered together the chefe men of Israel, that they shulde go vp with me.

The.vij.Chapter.

These are the princes of their kynredes, & this is the genealogie of them that went vp with me from Babylon, in the reygne of Artaxerxes the kyng. Of the sonnes of Phinees, Gerson. Of the sonnes of Ithamar, Gamelus. Of the sonnes of Dauid, Hattus the sonne of Sechenias. Of the sonnes of Pharos, Zacharias, & with him were reckened an hundreth & fyftie men. Of the sonnes of Phaath Moab, Eliaonias the sonne of Zaraias, & with him two hundreth men. Of the sonnes of Zathoe, Sechenias the sonne of Jezelus, & with him thre hundreth men. Of the sonnes of Adin, Obeth the sonne of Jonathan, & with him two hundreth & fyftie men. Of the sonnes of Helam, Jesias the sonne of Gotholias, & with him seuentie men. Of the sonnes of Saphatias, Zaraias the sonne of Michael, & with him seuentie men. Of the sonnes of Joab, Abdias the sonne of Jezelus, & with him two hundreth & eyghtene men. Of the sonnes of Banid, Salimoth the sonne of Josaphias, & with him an hundreth & threscore men. Of the sonnes of Babi, Zacharias the sonne of Bebai, & with him xxviij. men. Of the sonnes of Asgad, Johanan the sonne of Acatan, & with him an hundreth & ten men. Of the sonnes of Adonicam, which were the last, these are their names, Eliphalet, Jeuel, & Samaias, & with them lxx. men. Of the sonnes of Beguai, Uthi & Zabud, & with them lxx. men. Then gathered I them together vnto the water that runneth vnto Ahaua, & there we pitched our tentes three dayes, & I sought among the people & the preestes, & found there none of the children of Leui. Then sent I vnto Eliezer, Ariel, Semeias, & vnto Elnathan, & vnto Jarib, & vnto Elnathan, & vnto Nathan, & vnto Zacharias, & vnto Mesollam, princes, & vnto Joribus & Elnathan, men of learnynge, & I sayde vnto them, that they shulde go vnto Jadeus the chefe in the place of the treasure, & that they shulde speake vnto Jadeus & his brethren the Nethinims in the place of the treasure, that they shulde bringe vnto vs men to minister in the house of our God. And they brought vs, according vnto the good hande of our God vpon vs, a man of learnynge of the children of Mooli the sonne of Leui, the sonne of Israel, & Asebebias & his children & brethren, xviij. men. And Asebia, & Hanan, & Osaias of the children of Merari, his brethren & their children, xx. men. Also of the Nethinims, whom Dauid & the princes had appoynted for the seruice of the Leuites, Nethinims ij.C.& xx. all these were named by their names. Then I proclaymed a fast there at the water of Ahaua, that we might humble our selues before our God, & seke of him a right way for vs, & for our children, & for all our substaunce. For I was ashamed to desire of the kyng footemen & horsmen, to helpe vs against the enemy in the way, because we had spoken vnto the kyng, & sayde: The hande of our God is vpon all them that seke him, to their profite, but his power & his wrath is vpon all them that forsake him. We fasted therefore & prayed vnto our God for this, & he was intreated of vs. Then I separated twelue of the princes of the preestes, Eserebias, Asebias, & ten of their brethren with them, & weyed vnto them the golde & the syluer, & the vessell of the house of our God, which the kyng & his counsellers, & princes, & all Israel that were found there, had geuen. And I weyed vnto their hande vi.hundreth & l. talentes of syluer, & syluer vessell an hundreth talentes, & an hundreth talentes of golde, xx. golden vessell of the treasure, & two vessell of fyne shynynge brasse, precious as golde. And I sayde vnto them: You are holy vnto the Lorde, & the vessell are holy, & the golde & the syluer is a free offrynge vnto the Lorde God of our fathers. Be watchfull therefore, & kepe them, vntyll you weye them before the princes of the preestes & Leuites, & the princes of the kynredes of Israel in Hierusalē, in the chambers of the house of the Lorde. So the preestes & Leuites receyued the weyght of the golde & the syluer, & the vessell, to bringe them vnto Hierusalē, vnto the house of our God. Then we departed from the water that runneth vnto Ahaua, the twelfth day of the first moneth, to go vnto Hierusalē, & the hande of our God was vpon vs, & he delyuered vs from the hande of the enemy, & from the hande of them that laye in wayte by the way. And we came vnto Hierusalē, & there we were three dayes. And vpon the fourth day was the golde & the syluer weyed in the house of our God, into the hande of Marmoth the sonne of Uri the preest, & with him was Eleazar the sonne of Phinees, & with them were Josabad the sonne of Jesus, & Noadias the sonne of Banui, Leuites, by their nombre & weyght. And all the weyght was written at that houre. They that were come out of the captiuitie offered vnto the God of Israel, for all Israel, twelue bullocks, xcvi. rammes, lxxii. lambes, twelue goates for sinne offrynges, all these were a burnt offrynge vnto the Lorde. And they gaue the kynges commaundementes vnto the kynges officers, & vnto the gouernours beyonde the water, & they helped the people & the house of God.

The.viij.Chapter.

Now after these thynges, when these were done, the princes came vnto me, & sayde: The people of Israel, & the princes, & the preestes & Leuites, haue not separated themselues from the vnclennesse of the nacions of the londes, & from their abhominacions, of the Chanaanites, Hethites, Pherezites, Jebusites, Ammonites, Moabites, Egyptians, & Idumeans. For they & their children haue taken of their doughters vnto them & vnto their children, & the holy seede is mingled with the nacions of the londes, & the princes & rulers haue bene chefe in this trespace. And when I hearde this thynge, I rente my garmentes & my cote, & pulled of the heare of my head & beard, & sate me downe sorowfull. Then gathered vnto me all they that were moued at the wordes of the God of Israel, because of the trespace of them that were come out of the captiuitie, & I sate sorowfull vntyll the euenynge sacrifice. Then arose I from my humblynge, with my garmentes & my cote rente, & fell vpon my knees, & spred out my hādes vnto the Lorde my God, & sayde: O my God, I am ashamed & confounded to lyfte vp my face vnto thee my God, for our synnes are multiplied ouer our heades, & our trespace is grown vp vnto heauen, euer since the dayes of our fathers vnto this houre we are in great trespace, & for our synnes haue we, our kynges, & our preestes, bene deliuered into the hande of the kynges of the londes, vnto the sworde, vnto captiuitie, vnto robbynge, & vnto confusion of face, as it is this day. And now for a litle season hath mercy bene shewed vs from the Lorde our God, that he hath left vs a remnaunt, & hath geuen vs a place in his holy place, that our God may lyghten our eyes, & geue vs a litle reuiuynge in our bondage. For we are bondmen, & in our bondage our God hath not forsaken vs, but hath caused vs to fynde grace before the kynges of Persia, that they shulde geue vs reuiuynge, to exalte the house of our God, & to set vp the desolacion of it, & that they shulde geue vs a wall in Juda & Hierusalē. And now what shall we say, O our God, after this? For we haue forsaken thy commaundementes, which thou hast commaunded by the hande of thy seruauntes the prophetes, saynge: The londe which you go in to possesse it, is a londe vncleane with the vnclennesse of the nacions of the londes, & with their abhominacions, which haue filled it from one ende vnto another with their vncleannesse. Now therefore geue not your doughters vnto their sonnes, neither take their doughters vnto your sonnes, & seke not their peace nor their wealth for euer, that you may be strong, & eate the good of the londe, & leaue it for an heritage vnto your children for euer. And after all that is come vpon vs for our euyll workes & our great trespace, seynge that thou our God hast holden back thy wrath from vs lesse than our synnes haue deserued, & hast geuen vs such deliuerance as this, shall we then turne backe to breake thy commaundementes, & to make affinitie with the people of these abhominacions? Shalt not thou be angry with vs vntyll thou consume vs, so that there shall be no remnaunt nor deliuerance? O Lorde God of Israel, thou art righteous, for we are left a remnaunt, as it is this day. Behold, we are before thee in our trespaces, for we cannot stande before thee because of this. Then as Esdras prayed, & made confession, weepynge & fallynge downe before the house of God, there gathered vnto him out of Israel a very great congregacion of men, women, & children, for the people wepte very sore. Then answered Jechonias the sonne of Jehiel, one of the children of Elam, & sayde vnto Esdras: We haue trespaced against our God, & haue taken strange wyues of the people of the londe, but yet now there is hope in Israel concernynge this thynge. Now therefore let vs make a couenaunt with our God, that we will put away all the wyues, & such as are borne of them, according vnto the counsell of my lorde, & of them that feare the commaundement of our God, & let it be done according vnto the lawe. Arise, for this matter belongeth vnto thee, & we will be with thee, be of good courage, & do it. Then arose Esdras, & made the princes of the preestes & Leuites, & all Israel, to sweare that they shulde do according vnto this worde, & they sware. Then Esdras arose before the house of God, & went into the chamber of Johanan the sonne of Eliasib, & when he came thyther, he dyd eate no bread nor drynke water, for he mourned because of the trespace of them that were come out of the captiuitie. And there was a proclamacion made throughout all Juda & Hierusalē, vnto all the children of the captiuitie, that they shulde gather themselues together vnto Hierusalē, & that whosoeuer came not within two or three dayes, according vnto the counsell of the princes & auncient men, all his substaunce shulde be forfeited, & he himself shulde be separated from the congregacion of the captiuitie. Then gathered all the men of Juda & Benjamin together vnto Hierusalē within three dayes, the twentieth day of the ninth moneth, & all the people sate in the open stretes before the temple, trembelynge because of the matter, & for the great rayne. Then Esdras the preest stode vp, & sayde vnto them: You haue trespaced, & haue taken strange wyues, to encrease the synnes of Israel. Now therefore confesse your synnes before the Lorde God of your fathers, & do his pleasure, & separate your selues from the people of the londe, & from the strange wyues. Then answered all the congregacion, & sayde with a loude voyce: Thou hast spoken right, as we ought to do. But the people are many, & it is a great rayne, & we cannot stande without, neither is this a worke of one or two dayes, for we are many that haue trespaced in this matter. Let our princes therefore be appoynted ouer all the congregacion, & let all them that haue taken strange wyues in our cyties come at certayne houres, & with them the auncient men of euery cyte, & the iudges thereof, vntyll the wrath of our God be turned from vs for this matter. Then Jonathan the sonne of Asahel, & Jezias the sonne of Thecue stode vp vpon this matter, & Mesollam & Sabbatheus the Leuite helped them. And they of the children of the captiuitie dyd so. And Esdras the preest chose vnto him men, princes of the kynredes, all by their names, & they were sette apart the first day of the tenth moneth, to examine the matter. And the matter of the men that had taken strange wyues was finished vnto the first day of the first moneth. And there were found of the children of the preestes that had taken strange wyues, of the children of Jesus the sonne of Josedec, & his brethren, Maasias, & Eliezer, & Jarib, & Godolias. And they gaue their hādes that they wolde put away their wyues, & offer a ramme for their trespace. And of the children of Emmer, Hanani, & Zabdeus. And of the children of Haram, Maasias, & Helias, & Semeias, & Jehiel, & Ozias. And they brought out their children, & their wyues, & there were slayne two hundreth & twentie. And of the children of Phaisur, Elioenai, Maasias, Ismael, Nathanael, Ocidelus, Saloas. And of the Leuites, Jozabdus, & Semeis, & Colius, which was called Calitas, & Phatheus, & Judas, & Jonas. And of the singers, Eliasibus, & Bacchurus. And of the porters, Sallumus, & Tolbanes. Of Israel, of the children of Phoros, Jezelus, & Hieremoth, & Helias, & Melchias, & Maasias, & Helias, & Banaias, & Mattanias, & Zacharias, & Jezrihel, & Johanan, & Melchias, & Elioenai, & Eliasibus, & Mattanias, & Jeremoth, & Zabdeus, & Hedeus, & Johannes, & Banaias, & Bedeias, & Cheluhus, & Vanias, & Meremoth, & Eliasibus, & Mattanias, & Mathanias, & Sabateus, & Zabbateus, princes of the people. And of the children of Elam, Mattanias, & Zacharias, & Jezrihel, & Abdeus, & Jeremoth, & Hedias. And of the children of Zamoth, Eliadas, Eliasimus, Othonias, Jarimoth, & Sabathus, & Zardeus. And of the children of Nebo, Jeiel, Mathanias, Zabadias, Ardeus, Joel, Banaias. All these had taken strange wyues, & they put away their wyues, & their children.

The.ix.Chapter.

Now when Esdras the scribe was departed from the house of God, & went into the chamber of Johanan the sonne of Eliasib, & came thyther, he dyd eate no bread nor drynke water, for he mourned because of the trespace of them that were come out of the captiuitie. wan. All these ministred in the Sanctuary, & were seruauntes of Salomon: euen.iij.C. & lxxij.

These folowing are they, that went vp frō Thelmelar Thelarsa (whose Princes were Carmelā & Careth) & might not shewe forth their kynes and kyndredes, how they were of Israel: The sonnes of Dalaras, the sonnes of Suben, the sonnes of Nechodaicus. Of the preistes, that exercysed the office of the Preisthode, & were not foūde: The sonnes of Obia the sonnes of Achilos, the sonnes of Addin, which maried one of the daughters of Phargelen, & were named after hym. The writing of the same kyndred was sought in the regiſter of their generacō, but it was not foūde: & therfore were they forbidden to exercise the office of the preisthode. Vnto the saide Nehemias & Atharas, that they shou'de haue no portiō in the Sanctuary, tyll there rose vp an hye preist, that were wel instruct in ſ playne clearnes & truth. Of all Israell (beſyde ſeruauntes & maydēs) there were.xlij.M.iij.C & xxl. Of whō were there of ſeruaūtes and maydens.vij.M.iij.C.& xxxvij. Of ſynging men & ſyngyng women there were.ij.C.and.lxij. Fourthūdreth & xxxvj. Camels. Seuē thousande.& xxxvj. horses. Two hundreth thousand & xv. Mules. Fyue.M.& xxxv. Asses.

E Their heades also & the rulers in the trybes, when they came to Jerusalem, & wouide buylde & set vp the temple of God agayn in hys place, they gaue (after their abilite) vnto the temple, to the treasure and to the ſeruice of the Sanctuary.xx.M. poundes of golde, & M. of syluer, and an.C. preistes garmēres. And so dwelt the preistes and the Leuytes, & the people that went out to Jerusalem, and in the countrie there about, the ſingers also & the porters, euery one of Israell in his owne lande.

1.Esd.ii.a So when the seuenth moneth came, and when the chyldren of Israel were euery man at hys bulynes, they came all with one consent into the court, which was before ſ East dore. And there stode Jesus the sonne of Josedec & hys brethē the preistes, and Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel and his brethern, settinge vp an auter, to offre burnt sacrifices vpon it, as it is writē in the law of Moyses.

There came people also of other countries & the Heathē out of all landes to set vp the auter in his place, and offred sacrifices & brent offringes vnto the Lorde in the mornynge. And so they helde the feast of tabernacles, as it is commaunded in the law. And daily offred they as accordyng was, and made the sacrifices appointed, the offeringes also of the Sabbathes and of the new Mooncs, and all holy feastes. And all they that vowed offringes vnto the Lord, began at the new Moone of the.vij. moneth to offre vnto God, for the temple of the Lord was not yet buylded. And they gaue vnto the Masons & Carpenters, money, meate, and drinke with cheerfulnesse, vnto them of Sydon also & Tyre they gaue ſ carres, that they should carye Cedre trees frō Libanus to be ſoptes & beames, & that they ſhould make ſyppes in the hauen of Joppe, accordyng as it was appointed and ordeyned by Cyrus kyng of the Persians.

And in the ſeconde yeare they came into the temple of God at Hierusalem. In the ſecond moneth begānne Zorobabell the sonne of Salathiel, & Jesua the sonne of Josedec & their brethren the preistes and Leuites, and al they that were come vnto Hierusalem out of the captiuitie of Babilon, and layed the foundacion of the temple, in the newe Moone of the ſecond moneth in the ſeconde yeare that they were come into Jewry and Jerusalem. And they appointed the Leuytes (that were aboue.xx. yeare olde) vnto the ſeruyce of the Lorde: ſo Jesua and hys sonnes and hys brethren all the Leuytes stode together, and performed the law and ordinaunce in the house of the Lorde.

And the preistes stode, and had their garmentes and trompettes, and the Leuytes, the sonnes of Asaph had Cymbals, gruing thākes and prayses vnto the Lord, accordyng as Dauid the kynge of Israell had ordayned. And they ſange that they dyd ſynge vnto the Lorde, was after this maner: * O ſing vnto the Lorde, for he is gracious, and hys goodnes vpon Israel endurith for euer. And all the people blew out with trompettes, & ſong with loude voyce, praysinge the Lorde together in the rearynge vp of the house of the Lorde. * There came also from amonge the E preistes and Leuytes the rulers and elders, 1.Esd.iij.a according to the trybes and kyndredes (ſuche as had sene the house afore) to the buyldinge of this temple with great crye & great mournynge, many also with trompettes & greate ioye: In ſo much, that the trompettes might not wel be heard for the weppynge & mournyng. For the common people blew goodly vpon the trompettes.

* Then came the enemyes of the trybes of 1.Esd.iiij.a Juda and Ben Jamin, too knowe what that trompettynge and noyſe of shawmes might be. And they perceyued that it was they which were come agayne out of captiuitie, and wolde buylde the temple vp a new vnto the Lorde God of Israel. So they wente too Zorobabell and Jesua, and to the rulers of the vyllages, and ſayde vnto them: Shall we buylde with you also? For we (sirs) ſe haue hearde youre Lorde, and we walke after the same maner, from the dayes of Asbazareth the kynge of Assiria, whiche brought vs hyther. Then Zorobabell and Jesua and the Rulers of the vyllages of Israell ſayde vnto thē: It is not mete, that ye ſhould buylde the temple of oure God with vs: we oure selfes alone will buylde vnto the Lorde, lyke as Cyrus the kynge of the Persians hathe commaunded vs.

But the Heathen in the lande layed them

selues agaynste those that were in Iewry, helde vp the buyldyng frō them, layed wayte vpon them priuyly, stopped sich as brought any thyng to them, forbad them to buylde, & hyndered those that made them passage, that the buyldyng should not be sustened: thus cōtynued so longe as kynge Cyrus lyued: & so they put of the buyldynge for the space of.ii. yeares, butill the raygne of kyng Darius.

Aggeus and Zacharye prophecye. They buylde the temple with out let by ꝓhibicion, by the commaundement of Darius.

The.vi. Chapter.

A NOwthstandyng in the seconde yeare of the raygne of Darius, Aggeus & Zacharye the sonne of Addo prophecyed vpon them in Iewry & Hierusalē, in the name of the God of Israel. Then Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel & Jesua the sonne of Josedec stode vp & begāne to buylde the house of the Lorde at Hierusalē, when the Prophetes of the Lorde helped the. At the same time came Sysinnes the vndersheriff in Syria & Phenices, with the landlordes & hys companyons, & sayde vnto them: Who hath bidde & cōmaunded you to buylde the house, to make the rofe & all other thinges agayn? And who are the workemē, that buylde the? Neuertheles the eldres of the Jewes had sache grace of the Lorde, that they wolde not be let (though they were prouoked thereto) but buylded on still, butill the time that kyng Darius were certified therof & an answere receyued from him. The letter that these men sent vnto kinge Darius, was after this maner.

Sysinnes the vndersheriff in Syria & Phenices, and the landlordes with their companyons, which are head rulers in Syria and Phenices, sende their salutacion vnto Darius the kynge. We certefye our Lorde the kynge, that we came into the lande of Jewry & went to Hierusalem: where we founde the buylding the great house of God, & the temple, with great coste & fare & with goodly timbre for the walles: yea, thei make great halte with the worke, and helpe one another, and it goeth forth prosperously in their handes, & with great diligence and worshyp to & made. Then asked we the eldres, who hadde cōmaunded the to make vp the house and the buylding, and this we dyd to the intent that we might certefye the perfectly, & write vnto the, the names of those that were the rulers of the worke. So thei gaue vs this answere we are the seruauntes of the Lorde, whyche made heuē and earth & as for this house, it hath bene buylded & set vp afore tyme by the great & mighty kynge of Israel. But when oure fathers prouoked God vnto wrath and synned agaynste the God of Israel, he gaue thē ouer into the power of Nabuchodonosar kynge of Babylon the kyng of the Caldees, whiche brake downe the house, & burnt it, and caried awaye the people prisoners vnto Babylon. * Neuertheles, in the fyrst yere that kynge Cyrus raygned at Babylon, Cyrus the kynge wrote & commaunded to buylde vp this house agayne: & all the ornamentes that Nabuchodonosor caried awaye frō Jerusalē vnto Babylō, & appropriated vnto his owne temple, these brought Cyrus forth agayne, & deliuered them to Zorobabel & to Salmanasar the vndersheriff, commaundynge them that they should bring these same ornamentes agayn to Hierusalem into the temple, and to beginne from the tyme forth, to buylde the temple agayn in hys owne place. Then Salmanasar layed the foundacion of the Lordes house at Hierusalem, & euer sence haue they buylded, and yet is it not ended. And therfore O kynge, if thou thinkest it good, lette it be sought in the kynges archarpes and rolles of kyng Cyrus: & be fulfilled then, that it is done with the cōsayl and consent of kyng Cyrus, and if oure Lorde the kynge be so mynded, let him write vnto vs therof.

* Then cōmaunded kyng Darius, to sche in the kynges archarpes: and so at Ecbathanis a litle cytye in Medea there was founde such a writynge: In the fyrst yeare of the raygne of Cyrus, the same kyng Cyrus cōmaunded that the house of the Lord at Jerusalē should be buylded agayne (and ordeyned to be made there cōtinually vnto the Lord) whose heygth shalbe.x. cubites, & the breedth.x. cubites, & iii. square with thre newe stones, with a lyst of tymbre of the same coūtre, yea, with a newe lyst, and the expēces therof to be geuē of the house of kynge Cyrus. And the ornamentes of gold & siluer, that Nabuchodonosar tobe out of the house of the Lord at Jerusalē, shalbe set agayn in the temple at Jerusalē, where they were afore. Sysinnes also the vndersheriff in Syria & Phenices, the princes and their cōpanyons, & the other that be head rulers in Syria and Phenices, shall not medle nor haue any thyng to do with that place.

I Cyrus haue cōmaunded also, that they shal buylde the house of the Lord whole vp, and haue ordeyned the, to helpe those that be come oute of captiuite: tyll the house of the Lorde be fynished: and out of the tribute and tayinge that is yearly rayled vp in Syria & Phenices, diligently to geue them a certayne summe to the offrynge of the Lorde: and the same to be deliuered vnto Zorobabel the officer: that he therwith shall may ordeyne oxen, rammes, lambes, & corne, salt, wyne and oyle and that cōtynually euery yeare: after the expences which the preestes that be at Hierusalē, shew to be made daily: this shalbe geuē vnto the without ceasse that they may offer sacrifices vnpleasaūt vnto the hyest God, for the kynge and for his seruauntes, and to praye for their lyues. Let it be proclaymed also on euery syde, that whosoeuer transgreth or neglecteth this commaundement of the kynge, shalbe hāged vpō a galowe (made of his owne good) and al his goodes shalbe confiscated vnto the to the kyng. The Lord therfore (whose name is there called vpon) rote out and destroy al the kynges and people, that vndertake by violence to hynder the same, or too deale vncontrously with the house of the Lord at Hierusalem. I Darius the kynge haue ordeyned, that these thynges shalbe done wyth all dylygence.

The temple is fynished and dedicate: and the feast of vnleuened bread is holden.

The .vii. Chapter.

THen Sisines the vnderstrieke in Celosyria, & Phenices, & the other landlordes with their cõpanõs, obeyed the thynges that kynge Darius had ordeyned, were dilygent in the holy workes, and were frlow helpers with the olde rulers of the Jewes. And so the worke of the Sanctuary wet forth & prospered, when Aggeus & Zacharye prophecied. And they perfourmed all thynges thorow the cõmaundement of the Lord God of Israel, & after the decree of Cyrus, Darius, and Artaxerses kynges of Persia.

And thus was oure house fynyshed vnto the .xxiii. daye of the moneth Adder in the .vi. yeare of kynge Darius. And the chyldren of Israel the preestes and the Leuites, and the other that were come out of captiuitie, & suche as were ioyned vnto them, dyd accordynge as it is written in the boke of Moyses. And in the dedication of the temple they offred an hundred oxen, an hundred rammes, .iij. hundred lambes, and .xii. goates for the synnes of all the people of Israell, after the number of the tribes of Israell. The preestes also and the Leuytes stode arayed in the preestly garmentes, after the tribes, ouer all the workes of the Lorde God of Israell accordynge to the boke of Moyses, and the porters by al the doores.

And the chyldre of Israel (with those that were come out of captiuitie) helde the Passeouer the .xiii. daye of the fyrst moneth, when the preestes and the Leuytes were sanctified. They that came out of captiuitie, were not all sanctified together: but the Leuites were all sanctified together. And so all they that came out of captiuitie, killed the easter lãbe, for their brethren, for the preestes & for themselues. And the chyldren of Israel that came out of captiuitie, and escaped from all the abhominacions of the heathẽ, sought the Lord, and kepte the feast of vnleuened bread seuen dayes longe, eatyng and drynking and were merye before the Lord: that the Lord had turned the deuyce of the kynge of Assyria, and comforted their handes to the workes of the Lorde God of Israel.

Esdras exhorteth the people to assemble and come to gether, and then readeth vpon the same. They kepe the feast of tabernacles.

The .viii. Chapter.

AFter all this, when Artaxerses the kynge of the Persians raygned, there went vnto hym Esdras the sonne of Saraias, the sonne of Azarias, the sonne of Helchiah, the sonne of Sallum, the sonne of Sadoc, the sonne of Achitob, the sonne of Amarias, the sonne of Azarias, the sonne of Boccus, the sonne of Abisa, the sonne of Phineas, the sonne of Eleazar, the sõne of Aarõ the fyrst preest. This Esdras went vp from Babylon (for he had good vnderstandyng in the lawe of Moyses, that was geuẽ of the Lord God of Israel, to be taught & done in dede.) And the kyng fauoured him, & did him great worshyp and honour, after all hys desyres. There wente vp with hym also certayne of the chyldren of Israell, of the preestes, of the Leuytes, of the synggers, porters and mynysters of the temple at Hierusalem.

In the .vii. yeare of the raygne of kynge Artaxerses, in the .v. moneth, that is in the .vii. yeare of the raygne, they went from Babylon in the new moone of the .v. moneth, and came the hye waye to Hierusalem after hys commaundement, lyke as the Lord had prospered their iourney. For in these Esdras gat great instruccion, that he shoulde leaue none of the thynges behynde, which are in the lawe & commaundemẽtes of God. And he taught whole Israel all righteousnes & iudgement.

Then came the Secretaries of kyng Artaxerses, and delyuered the wrytynges (that were come from Artaxerses the kyng) to Esdras the preest and reader of the lawe of the Lorde: And this is the coppe of the letter.

Kynge Artaxerses sendeth his gretyng vnto Esdras the preeste and reader of the lawe of the Lord: Of frendshyp and good will I haue ordeyned and charged, if there be any of the Jewes, of the Preestes and Leuites in my realme, whiche desyreth and is content to go with the vnto Hierusalem, that he may do it. Therefore if any be minded to beare the cõpany, let them come together, and goo wyth the (lyke as I am content and my .vii. frẽdes my counsaylers:) to se what they do at Jerusalem & in Jewry, & kepe the thynges accordyng as thou hast in the lawe of the Lorde: & to bryng the gyftes vnto God the Lorde of Israell, that I & my frendes haue promysed to Jerusalem, & all the syluer & golde that is in the countrye of Babylõ, vnto the Lorde to Jerusalem, with the thynge that is geuen for the people in the Lordes temple at Jerusalem: Yea, that the same syluer & golde may be gathered, and oxen, rammes, shepe and goates & other that belonge to these thynges: & that they maye offer sacrifyces vnto the Lorde, vpon the aulter of their Lorde, whyche is at Hierusalem.

And whatsoeuer thou & thy brethren wyll do wyth the syluer & golde, that do after thy mynde, and after the cõmaundemente of the Lorde thy God: and likewyse with al the holy vessels, belles, that are geuen for the seruice of ꝯ house of the Lord thy God: ꝯ other thynges whatsoeuer to ouerlaye for the to the vnuse of the temple, ꝯ shalbe geuē the of the kynges treasure: ꝯ loke what thou with thy brethren wilt do with the golde and siluer, that do after the wil of the Lorde. And I kyng Artaxerxes haue commaunded the keepers of the treasures in Syria and Phenices, that whatsoeuer Esdras the priest ꝯ reader of the law of the Lord doth write, it shalbe geuen hym: vntil an. C. talentes of siluer, and of golde in lyke maner: Of corne also an. C. measures, and vntil an hundreth bellels of wyne, ꝯ other plentyous thynges without number. Let all thynges be done after the lawe of the hyest God, that the wrath of God aryse not in the realme of the kyng and of his sonnes. I cōmaunde you also, that ye requyre no taxe nor tribute of the preestes, lruptes, syngers, and ministers of the temple, nor of the wayters: that no man haue auerhoute to make Lawe thynge against them. As for the (O Esdras) set thou iudges ꝯ arbiters in the whole lande of Syria and Phenices, after the wysdome of God: ꝯ learne all suche as are ignorant in the lawes of God thy Lorde, and let all them that offende against the law, be punished: whether it be with death, with paine to be chastened in money, or to be banished.

Then sayd Esdras the wayter, * Blessed be the God of our fathers, that hath geuē so good a mynde and will into the herte of the kynge, to magnifye hys house that is at Jerusalem, and hath made me to be accepted in the sight of the kynge, of his counsayl, of hys frendes ꝯ of hys nobles. And so I was stedfast in my mynde, according as the Lorde my God helped me, and I chose out men of Israel to go vp with me. * And these are the heades (after their kynredes and houses of their fathers) that went vp with me frō Babilō, out of the kyngdome of Artaxerxes: Of the sonnes of Phares, Gersomus. Of the sonnes of Ithamath, Amerus. Of the sonnes of David, Attus, the sonne of Cecilia.

Of the sonnes of Phares, Zacharye ꝯ with hym there turned agayne an hundred and fyftye men. Of the sonnes of the captayne of Moabilon, Zarai, and with hym. ij. C and Lxvj. Of the sonnes of Zathoes, Jechonias Zechelye, and with hym. ij. C. and Lxxx. Of the sonnes of Balamasalus, Barbele and lxx. with hym. Of the sonnes of Zaphetia, Zarias Michel, ꝯ with hym. lxxx. Of the sonnes of Joab, Abdias Jehels, and with hym. ij. C. ꝯ xij. men. Of the sonnes of Banis, Salimoth the sonne of Josephia, and with hym an. C. ꝯ lx. men. Of the sonnes of Bere, Zacharias Bebei, and with hym. ij. C. and xxviij. men. Of the sonnes of Elioē, Johannes Eliehoenai, ꝯ with hym. C. ꝯ ij. men. Of the sonnes of Adonicā, thole that were the laste, and these are their names: Eliphalam the sonne of Gethel and Semeias, and with hym. lxx. men. All these called Jagether by the water Thia, where we pitched ouer tentes thre dayes, and there I mustered them.

As for the sonnes of the preestes and Leuites, I founde none there. Then sent I vnto Eleazar, and Esebum, and Maleam, and Maloham, and Nathan, and Zamea, and Jaribmathan, Enaugan, Zachary, Mosollamum (these were the leders and men of experience) and I sent them worde, that they shuld come vnto Loddeus, which was by the place of the treasury, and commaunded them that they shuld speake vnto Loddeus and to his brethren, ꝯ to thole that were in the treasury, to sende vs such men, as might execute the Preestes office in the house of the Lorde oure God. And with the mighty hande of oure Lorde God, they brought vnto vs men of good experience, from amonge the sonnes of Mooslus, the sonne of Leui, the sonne of Israel, Sebebeiam ꝯ the sonnes and his brethren Albin and Anna, of whome there were xviij. From among the chyldē of the sonnes of Canaanea, and their sonnes were xx. and. And of them that serued in the temple, whome David had ordeyned, and the principall men that ministred for the worke vnto the Leuites in the temple, ij. C. and xx. men, whole names are all tolemed vp in writynge.

Then commaunded I a fastinge vnto the people ꝯ before the Lorde, that I myghte helpe of him a prosperous iourney ꝯ a good waye for vs, yea for vs, for oure chyldē and for the cattel, because of the layinges awaye and I durst not require of the kynge men of horse and of fote, to ouerye vs safely against oure enemies, for we had saide vnto the kyng that the power of the Lorde our God shuld be with them, that seke him with their whole herte. And therfore we besoughte God oure Lorde earnestly because of these thynges, and he was mercifull vnto vs, and hearde oure prayer. And I separated from amōg the rulers of the people, and frō the Preestes of the temple xij. men, ꝯ Sebeia ꝯ Asama, and ten men of their brethē with them. And I weyed them the golde and the siluer, ꝯ all the priestly ornamentes of the house of our God, which the kyng, ꝯ his counsail, ꝯ his princes, ꝯ whole Israel had geuē. And whē I had weyed it, I gaue the an. C. ꝯ L talētes in siluer, ꝯ C. talentes of siluer bellel, an. C. talentes of golde, ꝯ of golden bellel xxxv. tymes twēty, and bellels of other metall (yea of good metall) ryche, glysteringe as the golde, ꝯ I spake vnto them: ye also are holy vnto the Lord, ꝯ the bellels are holy, and the gold and the siluer is proffred vnto the Lord the God of our fathers. Be diligent now and kepe it, vntil the time that ye deliuer it to the rulers of the people, to the Preestes, to the Leuites, and to the principall men of the cities of Israel in Jerusalem, and in the chambre of the house of oure God.

So the preestes ꝯ the Leuites, which receyued of me the golde, the siluer and the bellels, brought brought it to Jerusalē into the temple of the Lorde. And from Thia we brake vp the.xii. daye of the fyrst moneth, tyll we came to Jerusalē. And when the thyrd daye was paste, the weyed golde & syluer was deliuered in ỹ house of the Lord the fourth day, vnto Meremoth the sonne of Jos the Preest, and with hym was Eleazar the sonne of Phineas, and with thē were Jozabdus the sonne of Jesue Medias & the sonne of Banus, & certayne of the Leuytes, to the nombre & to the waygħt: and the waygħt of them was written vp the same tyme. As for those that were come out of captiuitie, they offred sacrifyce vnto the Lorde the God of Israel: twelue oxen for all Israel. lxxxvi. rammes. lxxii. shepe. xii. goates for synne. xii. boue for a thankofferyng, all to the sacrifice of the Lorde. And the kynges commission deliuered they vnto the stewardes and debyters of the kynge, and to the vnderstewardes in Celosyria and Phenice.

Now when these thynges were done, the rulers came vnto me, and sayd: The generation of Israel, the Princes, the Preestes and Leuites, the straūge people and indwellers of the lande, haue not put awaye their vnclenesse, from the Cananites, Hethites, Pherezites, frō the Moabites, Egyptians, & Edomytes. For both they and their sonnes haue mingled them selues with the daughters of them, & the holy sede is myxte with the outlandyssh heathen, and euen the beginning of their rayne haue the rulers and heades ben partakers of their wickednesse.

*1.Esd.17.a. * As soone as I had hearde these thynges immediatly I rente my holy garmentes, and pulled out ỹ heere of my heade & my beard, & sat me downe sorrowful & heuy. So all they that were moued thorow the word of ỹ God of Israel, came vnto me: & I sat styll full of heuinesse vntill the euenyng sacrifice. Then rose I vp frō fasting, hauinge rente clothes and the holy garment, kneled downe vpō my knees, helde out my handes vnto the Lorde, & sayde: O Lorde, I am confounded & ashamed before thy face, for our synnes are become many vpon ouer heades, and our wickednesses are exalted vnto the heauē: for euen the tyme of our fathers we are in great synne vnto this daye. And for the synnes of vs and our fathers, we with our brethē & with our Preestes haue ben deliuered vnto the kinges of the earth, vnto ỹ swerde, & into captiuitie, and became a spoyle with rebukyng and shame vnto this daye. And now O Lord God, how great is the mercy that we haue gotē of the? in that thou hast left vs a rote & a name in ỹ place of thy sanctuary, too discouer ouer light in the house of the Lorde our God and geuen vs meate at all tymes of our misfortune. And when we were in captiuitie, we were not forsaken of the Lord ouer God: but he made the kynges of Persia gracious and fauourable vnto vs, so that they gaue vs bitayles & meate, gyft and tribute to buylde vp the temple of our Lord God agayne, to repayre the wasted places of Sion, and too dwell in Jewry and Jerusalem. And nowe O Lorde, what shall we saye, hauyng all these thynges in possession? For we haue broken thy commaundementes, whych thou gauest vnto vs by the hāde of thy seruauntes the prophetes, sayinge: The lande that ye go vnto, ỹ that is geuen you for an heritage to haue in possession, is defiled with the vnclennes and filthines of the heathen, & with their abhomination haue they poluted it altogether. Therefore shall ye not ioyne youre daughters vnto their sonnes, nor mary youre sōnes vnto their daughters: Moreouer, ye shall neuer seke to make peace with thē, that ye maye increase & eate the best in the lande, & that ye maye deuide the inheritaunce of the lande vnto your chyldren for euermore. As for the thyng that now happeneth vnto vs, it commeth all for our wicked workes and greate synnes, yet hast thou geuen vs suche a roote, that we are come agayn into our owne lāde: and we are so wicked that we haue broken thy statutes & commaundementes agayne, & mingled oure selues with the vnclennes of the outlandyssh heathen. O Lorde, art thou angry with vs? wilt thou: rote vs cleane out? that our rote & name remayne nomore. O Lord God of Israel thou art true, for our rote endureth yet vnto this present daye. And beholde, now are we before the in our synnes, now can we not stande before the in them.

*1.Esd.22. * And whē Esdras with this prayer had knowleged the synne, weping, and lyeng flat vpon the grounde before the temple, there gathered vnto hym from Jerusalem a greate multitude of men and wome, of yonge and mayde, for there was a very great weping and mourning in the congregacion. So whē Jechonias the sonne of Jehiel one of the children of Israel cryed, he sayde vnto Esdras: we haue synned agaīst the Lord, because we haue maried outlandyssh women of the heathen. Now art thou ouer all Israel. We will sweare an othe therfore vnto the Lorde, that we shall put awaye all oure wyues, whyche we haue taken of the heathē, with their children: like as it is, poynted the by oure fore elders. Stande vp then, open thou it, and declare it playnly vnto vs, accordynge to the lawe of the Lorde: for the matter belongeth vnto the, and we will helpe the, quyt the stif manly. So Esdras arose, and tooke an othe of the rulers of the Preestes, and of the Leuites, and of Israel, to do after these thynges: and they sware.

¶ After Esdras had seen the letter, the people came always more thronged together: & then returned every man orderly vnto his owne dwellyng.

The. ix. Chapter.

THen Esdras rose vp fro me the 1 1.Esd.23.a. court of the temple without, and went into the chamber of Jonathas the sonne of Dalabus,

and

and remayned there, ¶ ate no meate, nor dishe vpnke, for the multitude of the wickednes of the people. And there was made a proclamacion in all Jewry and at Hierusalē, for all suche as were gathered at Hierusalē out of captiuitie, that whosoeuer came not to Jerusalem within two or iii. dayes (according to the iudgement of the olde lawes of coun-sayl) his goodes should be taken from hym, and be excluded from the congregacō of the captiuitie. And in the dayes were all they of the tribe of Juda and Ben Jamin gathered together at Hierusalem, the.xx. daye of the.ix moneth. And ¶ whole multitude sat trēbling in the courte of the temple, for it was wynter.
Do Esdras arose vp, and sayde vnto them:
Ye haue done vnrighteously, in that ye haue taken outlandyshe wyues to mariage, ¶ so to increase the sinnes of Israel. And now knowelege the same, and geue prayse vnto the Lord God of oure fathers, and perfourme his wil
B departing from the Heythen of the lande, and from the outlandish wyues. Then cryed the whole multitude with loude voyce, ¶ sayde: Lyke as thou hast spoken, so will we do: but for so much as the people are many, and the wynter here, we may not stande without the house: agayne, this worke is not a thynge, that can be finished in a daye or two, for we be many ¶ haue sinned in these thinges: Or-deine therefore, that the rulers of ¶ multitude ¶ all they that dwell with vs, ¶ as many as haue outlandish wyues, the priestes also and iudges of every place may stande in the time appointed, vntil they lowle vp the wrathe of the Lorde in this behalfe.

Then Jonathas the sonne of Ezeli, ¶ Ozias and Thecam tooke vpon the charge of this matter, and Bozmanus, ¶ Leuis, and Sabthens helped them therto. After this, all they stode vp ¶ were come out of captiuitie. And Esdras the priest chose vnto hym the princi-pall men frō amonge the fathers accordyng
C to their names, ¶ in the new moone of ¶ tēth moneth they satte together, to examen this matter. And so the matter was a determyning (concerning the men that had outlandish wiues) vntil the new moone of ¶ first moneth. And of the priestes that had wyues them selfe with outlandish wyues, there were founde: Of the sonnes of Jesu the sonne of Josedec and his brethren, Maseas, Eleazar, Joribus ¶ Joadius, which offred them selues to put away their wyues, ¶ to offer a ramme for their ignorance. And of the sonnes of Hemmeri, Malthas, ¶ Elles, ¶ Jedeth Azarias. Of ¶ sonnes of Phoera, Limalias, Dalmaus, Nathanes, Julia, Jebdus, ¶ Talleus. And of the Leuites Jolabdus, Semeia, ¶ Colaia, Calitas, Fa-theas, Colnas, ¶ Elianas. Of the syngers of the Sanctuary, Eliasib, Zacharias. Of the porters, Sallumus ¶ Tolbanes. And of Israel, of the children of Foas, Ely, ¶ Remias, ¶ Beddias, ¶ Melchias, Mechelias, Eleza-rus, Jemmathias, and Banuas. And of the children of Jolamus, Elamias, Zathui, Jerimoth, Jabdias, Edumeth, ¶ Elias. And of the sonnes of Jathoes, Eliadis, Eliase- D
mus, and Zozias, Lathmoth, Sabbas ¶ Tabubias. And of the sonnes of Zebra, Johannes, Amarias, Zabdias, ¶ Emmanis. And of the sonnes of Banuas, Olamorus, Malachus, Jedeus, Jasub, Jadeus and Jerimoth.
And of the sonnes of Addis, Oaelis, ¶ Mo-sias, ¶ Lalias, ¶ Naamas, Mathanias, Matha-thias, Besi, Baanus and Maneles.

And of the sonnes of Oan, Dozes, Afras Melchias, Banaas, Banus, Ben Jamin, Malchus, and Warras. And of the sonnes of Asom, Carimeus, Mathathias, Banuus, Eliphalath, Manasses, Semei. Of the son-nes of Baanus, Jeremy, Moodias, Abasmas, Jahel, Banaas, Jedeias, Jasu, Maramot, Eliasib, Mathaneus, Ebasis, Ozias, Dirius, Semedias, Zambris ¶ Joseph. Of the sonnes of Nobreus, Jachus, Mathithias, Sabadius, Zetheda, Sedeni, Jaseus, ¶ Ba-seas. All these had taken outlandyshe wome E to mariage, ¶ they put the away with their children. The priestes ¶ Leuytes, ¶ all they ¶ were of Israel, dwelt at Jerusalē ¶ thorout all the lande, in the new moone of the.vij moneth, ¶ the children of Israell were in their dwellinges. And the whole multitude came together vpō the floor at the Eastside of the holy porte of the temple. And they spake vnto Esdras the hye priest ¶ reader, that he wolde bringe the law of Moyses, which was geue of the Lorde God of Israel. So Esdras the hye priest brought the lawe vnto the whole multitude, ¶ mē ¶ women, ¶ to all parsons, that they might heare the lawe ¶ in the new 6. Esd.viij.¶
moone of the.vij. moneth. And he read in the Esd.viij.a.
floor that is before the holy porte of the temple from the morning early vnto the noone tyde, before men and women. And they applied their myndes all vnto the lawe.

And Esdras the priest ¶ reader of the law F stode vp vpō a scaffolde of wood, which was made therfore: ¶ vpon his right hande there stode by hym Mathathias, Semeia, Anania, Azarias, Urias, Ozechias, ¶ Baalamus:
Vpon his lefthand stode Faldeus, Misael, Malachias, Aboichus, Hadus, Zabadias ¶ Zacharye. The rolle Esdras the boke before the whole multitude, for he was the principall, ¶ had in moost honour of them all. And when he had read out the lawe, they stode all straight vpon their fete. So Esdras praised the Lorde the moost hye God, the almyghty God of Hoastes. And al the people answered
Amen: and holde vp their handes, fell downe flat vpon the earth, ¶ praised the Lord. And Jesus, Bonnas, Sarebias, Jabdinus, Acou-bus, Sabbatheus, Calitas, Maias, Jonatas, Ananias, ¶ Phalias the Leuites tok their handes vpwarde, ¶ bowed their face to the ground, ¶ prayed the Lord: Thole were they which taught the law of the Lord, ¶ read the lawe of the Lord in the congregacō, ¶ euery man set thole before that vnderstode the lawe. Then spake Athanates vnto Esdras the hye preest & reder, & to the Leuites that taught the multitude saying. This day is holy vnto the Lorde, and all they that had hearde the lawe, wepte. Do Esdras sayd, Departe your way then, and eat the best, and drinke the sweetest, & sende gyftes vnto them that haue nothinge, for this daye is holy vnto the Lorde, & be not ye sory. Then went they their waye euery-chone, eate and dronke, and were merry, & sent rewardes vnto them that had nothinge, that they also might eate with gladnesse: for they were exceadingly reioyced thorow the wonders that were shewed vnto them in the lawe: And so they were all gathered together at Hierusalem to holde the feast, according to the commaunt of the Lorde God of Israel.

The people is reproued for their vnthankefulnesse. God will haue another people & their will not be refused.

The.I.Chapter.

THe seconde boke of the pro-phete Esdras the sone of Sa-raias, the sone of Az-arias, the sone of Helchias, the sone of Sallum, the sone of Sadoc, the sone of Achitob, the sone of Amerias, the sone of Azarias, the sone of Maraioth, the sone of Saaijas, the sone of Vsi, the sone of Boccas, the sone of Abisu, the sone of Phinees, the sone of Eleazar, the sone of Aaron, of the tribe of Leui, which was purseuer in the lande of Mardes, in the tyme of Artexerxes kynge of Perlia.

And the worde of the Lord came vnto me saying: go thy waye, & shewe my people their synfull dedes, & their children their wickednesse, which they haue done agaynste me, & they may tell their children childre the same for the synnes of their fathers are declared in them. And why? they haue forgotten me, & haue offred vnto straunge goddes. Am not I euen he, that brought them out of the lande of Egipt, from the house of bondage? But they haue prouoked me vnto wrath, and despised my counsaile. Pull thou out then the heere of thy head, and cast al euel vpon them, for they haue not bene obedient vnto my lawe. B

It is a people without learninge & nurture. Howe longe shall I forbeare the, vnto whome I haue done so much good? & many kynges haue I destroyed for their sakes: Dume.xxi.b. * Pharao with his seruauntes & al his power Iosu.bij.d. haue I smytten downe and slayne: All the na- 18. cions haue I destroyed and rooted out before the, & in the East haue I brought two landes and people to naught, euen Tyre and Sydo and haue slayne all their enemyes. Speake thou therfore vnto the, sayinge: Thus sayeth the Lorde: * I led you thorow the sea, & haue Exo.xiiij.c geuen you sure stretes ouer the begynninge. * I gaue you Moises to be your captayne, Exo.iij.b. and Aaron to be the preest: I gaue you light Dume.xxiij.a in a pyller of fyre, and greate wonders haue I done amonge you: yet haue ye forgotte me sayeth the Lorde.

Thus sayth the almighty Lorde: * I gaue Exo.xvj.b you quayles to eate, and tentes for your succour: Neuertheles ye murmured, and ascribed not the victory of youre enemyes vnto my name: yea, the same dayes do ye yet mourne. Where are the benefites, that I haue done for you? When ye were hongrye in the wyldernes, dyd ye not crye vnto me: Why hast thou brought vs into thys wyldernes, to kyll vs? It had bene better for vs, to haue serued the Egiptes, then to dye in this wildernesse. Then had I pitye vpon your mournynges, and gaue you Manna to eate. * Ye Sapien.xvi.a ate angels foode. When ye were thyrstye, Dume.xx.b. dyd not I brew the hard stone, & caused water to flowe thereout? For the heate I couered you with the leaues of the trees. A good pleasaunt fat lande gaue I you: I cast out the Cananites, the Pherezites and Philistines be- C fore you. * What shall I do more for you, Esai.v.a. sayeth the Lorde?

Thus sayth the almighye Lorde: When ye were in the wyldernes, in the water of the Amorites, beyng a thyrst, and blaspheming my name, I gaue you not hyre for your blasphemyes, but cast a tree into the water, and made the ryuer swete. What shall I do vnto the, O Iacob? Thou Juda wouldest not obey me. I will turne me too another people, and vnto those will I geue my name, that they maye kepe my statutes. Seynge ye haue forsaken me, I will forsake you also. When ye desyre me too be gracyous vnto you, I shall haue haue no mercy vpō you. * When ye call vpō me, I will not heare you. For ye haue defyled youre handes with bloude, and youre fete are swyft to commit manslaughter. Ye haue not forsaken me (in a maner) but youre owne selfes (saith the Lorde.

Thus saith the almighty Lorde: haue I not prayed you, as a father hys sonnes, as a mother her daughters, & as a nurse her yōge babes, that ye wolde be my people, & I shuld be youre God, that ye wold be my children and I should be youre owne father? * I gathered you together, as an henne gathereth her chickens vnder her wynges. But nowe what shall I do vnto you? I shall caste you

D out fro my face? * When ye offre vnto me, I shal turne my face from you: for youre solempne feast dayes, youre new moones, and youre circumcision haue I forsaken. I sent vnto you my seruauntes & Prophetes, whome ye haue taken and slayne, and teare their bodyes in peces, whose bloude I will require of youre handes, (saith the Lorde.

Thus saith the almyghty Lorde: youre house must be desolate. I will cast you out as the wynde doth the stubue: youre children shall not be fruteful, for they haue despysed my commaundements, and done the thynge that is euell before me. Youre houses wyll I geue vnto a people that shall come, and they that neuer herde me shal beleue in me: & they vnto whome I neuer shewed token, shall do the thynge that I commaunde the. They haue sene no Prophetes, yet shall they call their fyrmes to remembraunce, and knowlege the. I reporte me vnto the grace, that I wil do for the people which is to come, whose children retayle in gladers: and though they haue not sene me with bodely eyes, yet in spirite they beleue the thyng that I saye. And nowe brother, beholde what great washynge, and lo the people that cōmeth from the East, vnto whome I will geue the rule of Abakuk, Isaac and Jacob, of Oseas, Amos, and Micheas, of Joel, Abdy, Jonas, Nahum, & Habacuck, of Sophony, Aggeus, Zachary, & Malachy, whiche is called also an aungel (or messenger) of the Lorde.

* The Greeke hath fower more, but other not open. The quarters are taken.

❧ The.ij.Chapter.

But what shal I now do vnto you? I am a wyddowe & forsakenge youre waye, O my children, and all the mercy of the Lorde. As for me, O father, I call vpō the for a witnesse ouer the mother of these children, whiche wolde not kepe my cōmaundement: that thou bringe them to confusion, and their mother too a sporte, that she beare no more. Let their names be rooted oute amonge the Heathen, let them be put out of the earth, for they haue thought scorne of my ceremonie.

Wo be vnto the Assur, thou that hydest the vnrighteous by the. Thou wycked people, remember what I did vnto Sodome & Gomorre, whose lande is turned to pitch and asshes. Euen so also wyll I be vnto all them, that heare me not, (saith the almyghty Lorde. Thus (saith the Lord vnto Esdras) Tel my people, that I wyl geue them the kyngdome of Herodias, which I wolde haue geue vnto Israel. Their glory also wil I take vnto me, and geue them the euerlastyng tabernacles, which I had prepared for them.

The tree of lyfe shalbe vnto them a swete B swellynge ointemente: they shall neyther labour nor be werry. Go ye youre waye, and ye shall receyue it. Praye for youre selues a fewe dayes, that they may dwell therin. Loke in the kyngdome prepared for you, therefore watche. Take heauen and earth to witnesse, for I haue broken the euell in peces, & created the good, for I liue (saith the Lorde. Mother embrace thy children, and bringe them vp with gladnesse: make their fete as fast as a pyne, for I haue chosen the, (saith the Lorde.

And those that be dead wyll I reyse vp agayne from their places, and bringe them out of the graues, for I haue knowen my name in Israel. Feare not thou mother of the children, for I haue chosen the, (saith the Lorde. And for thy helpe I shall sende the my seruauntes Esaye and Jeremy, after whose counsel I haue sanctified & prepared for the xij. trees with diuerse frutes, and as manye welles, flowynge with mylke and honye, and seuen mountaines, whereupon there grewe rose and lilies, wherin I wil fill my * chil- D: rather, thy children.

Execute iudge for the widowe, be iudge for the fatherlesse, geue to the poore, defende the comfortlesse, clothe the naked, heale the wounded and sicke, laugh not a lame man to scorne, defende the cripell, and let the blynde come into the sight of my clearnes. Kepe the olde and yong within thy walles, wherseuers thou findest the dead, take them, and bury them, and I shal geue the the first place in my resurrection. Be glad (O my people) and take thy rest, for thy C quietnes is come. Feede thy children O thou good nource, stable (I) their fete. As for the seruauntes whome I haue geuen the, there shal not one of them perysh, for I will seke them from the number, yea out of the felde.

For when the daye of trouble & heuynes cometh, other shall wepe and lamentable, but thou shalt be merry and pleasaunt. The Heathen shalbe geloue, but they shalbe able to do nothinge agaynste the, sayth the Lorde. My handes shall couer the, so that thy children shall not se the fyre euerlastynge. Be ioyfull O thou mother with thy children, for I wyll delyuer the, sayeth the Lord. Remembre thy dead children, for I shall bringe them out of the earth, and shewe mercy vnto them, for I am merciful, sayeth the Lord almyghty.

Embrace thy children, vntill I come, and shewe mercy vnto them, for my welles runne ouer, and my grace shall not fayle.

I Esdras receyued a charge of the Lorde vpon the mount Oreb, that I should go vnto Israel. But whē I came vnto Israell they set me at naught, and despised the commaundement of the Lorde. And therfore I say vnto you, O ye heathen that heare and vnderstande: Loke for youre shepeherde, he shall geue you euerlastynge reste: for he is nye at hande, that shal come in the ende of ꝑ world. Be readye to the rewarde of the kyngdome, for the euerlastynge lyghte shall shyne vpon you for euermore. Flye the shadowe of this worlde, receyue the ioyefulnes of youre glory. I testifye my sauioure openly: O receyue the gift that is geuen you, and be glad, geuynge thankes vnto hym, that hathe called you vnto the heauenly kyngdome.

Aryse vp, & stande fast: beholde the numbre of those that be sealed in the feaste of the Lorde, which are departed from the shadowe of the worlde, & haue receyued glorious garmentes of the Lorde. Take thy numbre O Sion, and shut vp thy purified, which haue fulfilled the lawe of the Lorde. The numbre of thy children whome thou wagedest for, is fulfilled: beseche the power of the Lord, that thy people which haue bene called frome the beginning, maye be hallowed.

I Esdras sawe vpon the mounte Sion a great people, whome I coulde not numbre, and they all prayse the Lord with songes of thankesgeuynge. And in the middest of them there was a yōg man of an hye stature, more excellente then all they, & vpon euery one of their heades he set a crowne, & was euer hyghar & hyghar, which I marueled at greatly. So I asked the Aungel, & sayde: Syr, what are these? He answered & sayd vnto me: These be they, that haue put of the mortall clothynge, and put on the immortall, haue confessed and knowleged the name of god. Now are they crowned, & receyue ꝑ rewarde.

Then sayde I vnto the aungel: what yōg persoune is it, that' crowneth them, and geueth them the palmes in their handes? So he answered and sayde vnto me: It is the sonne of God, whome they haue knowledged in the worlde. Then began I greatly to commende them, that stoode so stiffe for the name of the Lorde. And so the Aungel sayde vnto me: Go thy waye, and tell my people, what maner of thynges and howe greate wonders of the Lorde thy God, thou haste seue.

The numbrynge of the children which shall be for the people are reysed. Esdras complayneth that God taketh the Babilonyans sone from them which are yonger then they.

The .iii. Chapter.

A IN the thyrde yeare of the fall of the cytye, I was at Babylō, and laye troubled vpō my bed, & my thoughtes came vp ouer my herte: for I sawe the desolacion of Sion, & the plenteous wealth of them that dwelt at Babylon: & my spirite was sore moued, so that I begā to speake fearful wordes to the most hyest, & sayde, O Lord Lord, thou spakest at the beginning, whē thou platedst the earthe (and that thy self alone) and gauest commaundemēt vnto the people, and a body vnto Adam, which was a creature of thy handes, & hast breathed in hym the breth of lyfe, and so he lyued before the, and thou ledddest hym into Paradyse, whiche garden of pleasure thy ryghtehande had planted, or euer the earth was made. And vnto hym thou gauest commaundemente too loue thy wayes, whiche he transgressed, and immediatly thou appoyntedest death in hym, and in hys generacions. Of hym came nacions, tribes, people and kynredes out of numbre. And euery people walked after their owne wyll, and did wyer thynges before the, and as for thy commaundementes, they despised them.

B But in processe of tyme thou broughtest the water floude, vpō those that dwelt in the worlde, and destroyedst them. And lyke as the death was in Adam, so was the water floude also in these. Neuertheles out of the thou lefte, namely Noe with his household, of whome came all ryghteous men. And it happened that when they that dwelte vpon the earthe, began to multiplye, and hadde gotten many children, and were a great people, they beganne too be more vngodly then the fyrst.

Now when they al lyued so wickedly before the, thou diddest chose the a man from amonge them, whose name was Abraham. Hym thou louedest, and vnto hym only thou shewedest thy wil, and madest an euerlasting couenaunt with hym, promysynge hym, that thou woldest neuer forsake hys sede. And vnto hym thou gauest Isaac, vnto Isaac also thou gauest Jacob and Esau. As for Jacob thou choosest chose hym, and putte backe Esau. And so Jacob became a great multitude.

C And it happened that whē thou ledddest hys sede out of Egipt, thou broughtest them vp to the mount Sinai, bowynge downe the heauens, ferynge fast the earthe, mouynge the grounde, makynge the depthes to shake, and troublynge the worlde. And thy glory went thorow foure portes of fyre, and earth quakes, & wyndes, & colde, that thou myghtest geue the lawe vnto the sede of Jacob,

and bp lygnes vnto the generacion of Israell.

And yet takest thou not away from them that wycked hert, that thy law might bryng forth fruite in them. For the first Adam bare a wycked herte, and transgressed, and was ouercome, & so be all they that are borne of hym. Thus remayned weakenes with the lawe in the hert of the people, with the wickednes of the rote: so that the good departed away, and the euell abode styll. So the tymes passed away, & the peares were brought to an ende. Then diddest thou raise the vp a servaunt called David, whom thou commaundedest to bylde a cite vnto thy name, and to offer vp encrese & sacrifice vnto the therin. This was done vnto many peares. Then the inhabyters of the cite forsoke the, and in all thynges did euen as Adame and all hys generacions had done: for they also had a wicked herte.

And so thou gauest thy cite ouer into the handes of thine enemies. Are they of Babylon then better and more righteous then the people, that they shall therefore haue the dominacion of Syon? For when I came ther, & sawe their vngodlynes, and so greate wyckednesse, that it couldre not be numbred: yea when my soule sawe so many euell doers (in .xxx. peares) my herte fayled me, for I sawe, how thou sufferest them in such vngodlynes, & sparest the wycked doers: but thyne owne people hast thou rooted out, & preserued thine enemyes, and thys hast thou not shewed me.

I can not perceyue howe this happeneth. Do they of Babylon then better, then they of Syon? Or is there ape other people, that knoweth the, saue ape the people of Israell? Or what generacion hath so beloued thy couenaunces as Iacob? And yet their reward appeareth not, & their labour hath no frute. For I haue gone here and there ouer the heathen, & I se that they be ryche & wealthy, and thinke not vpon thy commaundementes. Weygh thou therfore our wyckednesse now in the balaunce, and there also that dwell in the worlde, and so shall thy name be no where founde but in Israel. Or when is there a people vpon earth, that hath not synned before the? Or what people hath so kepte thy commaundementes? Thou shalt fynde, that Israel by name hath kepte thy preceptes, but not the other people and Heathen.

* The Aungell reproueth Esdras, bycause he lamenteth more the goodnesse and mercifulnesse of God.

The.v.Chapter.

So the aungell that was sente vnto me (which name was Vriel) gaue me an answere, and sayde: Thy herte hath taken to much vpon it in this worlde, & thou thinkest to comprehende the way of the hyest. Then sayde I: Yea, my Lorde. And he answered me, and sayde: I am sent to shewe the the wayes, and to set forth the fourdetymes, before thou departest & thou maiest not see, I will shewe the also the waye, that thou mayest vse it: and I shall shewe the from whence the wicked herte cometh. And I sayde: Tell on my Lorde. Then sayde he vnto me: Go thy waye, weyghe me the weyghte of the fyre, or measure me the blast of the wynde, or call me agayne the day that is paste. Then answered I and sayde: What man borne is able too do that? Why requyrest thou suche of me? And he sayde vnto me: If I shoulde aske the, howe depe riuerlynges are in the sea! Or howe greate water spunges are vpon the firmament? Or howe great water spunges are in the begynninge of the depe? Or whiche are the ouer gouerners of paradise? Peraduenture thou wouldest saye vnto me: I neuer went downe yet into the depe nor hell, neyther dyd I euer clymme vp into heauen. Howebeit vnto none haue I asked the but onely of fyre and wynde and of the daye, where thorowe thou hast trauayled, and from the whiche thou canste not be seperated: and yet canst thou geue me no answer of them.

He sayde moreouer vnto me: Thyne owne thynges, and suche as are growen vp with the canst thou not knowe: how shoulde thy vessell then be able to comprehende the waye of the hyest, and howe ouerwardely the corrupte worlde, to vnderstande the corruption that is euident in my sight? Then sayd I vnto him: It were better that we were not at all, then that we shoulde lyue in wickednesse, & suffer, and not to knowe wherfore. He answered me, & sayde: I went on a wood, & the trees tooke counsell a bowte and sayd: Come let vs go, and fight agaynste the sea, that it maye departe awaye before vs, and that we maye make vs yet more woodes.

The flouddes of the sea also in lyke maner toke ther counsell, and sayde: Come, let vs go vp, and fight agaynst the trees of the wood, that we maye make ouer lande the water. The thought and counsell of the wood was but vayne and nothynge worth, for the fyre came and consumed the wood: The thought of the flouddes of the sea came lykewyse to nought also, for the sande stode vp and stopped them.

If thou were iudge nowe betwene these two, whome wouldest thou iustifye, or whom wouldest thou condemne? I answered & sayde: Verely it is a folysh thought that they both haue deuised. For the grounde is grete vnto the wood, and the sea also hath hys place to bere hys floudes. Then answered he me, & sayde: Thou hast geuen a right iudgement why iudgest thou not thy selfe also? For like as the grounde is geuen vnto the wood, and the sea hys floudes: euen so they that dwell vpon earth, may vnderstande nothynge, but that whiche is vpon earth: and he that dwelleth aboue the heauen, may onely vnderstande the thynges that are aboue the heauen. Then answered I, & sayde: I beseche the, O Lorde, let me haue vnderstandynge: for it was not my mynde to be curious of thy hye thynges but of such as we haply mete with all, namely, wherfore that Israel is blasphemed of the Heathe, & for what cause the people (whō thou ouer hast foūd) is geue ouer, to be punished of vngodly nacions & why the law of our fathers is brought to naught, & the written coūmaundes come to none effect, and we passe away out of the worlde as the grashoppers, & ouer lyfe is a verye frare, & we are not worthy to optayne mercy. What will he do then vnto hys name, whyche is called vpon ouer vs? Of these thynges haue I asked question.

C Then answered he me, & sayd: The more thou searchest, the more thou shalte marueil, for the worlde hasteth faste to passe awaye, & can not comprehende the thynges, that are promysed for the righteous in time to come, for thys worlde is full of vnrighteousnes & weakenes.

But as concernynge the thynges wherof thou askest me, I will tell the. The euell is sowne, but the destruccion therof is not yet come. If the euell sowne that is sowne, be not turned vpside downe, & if the place where the euell is sowne, passe not awaye, then can not the thynge come that is sowne with good. For the graine of euell sede hathe bene sowne in the hert of man from the begynnyng, and how much vngodlynes hath he brought vp vnto thys tyme? and how muche shall he yet bring forth, vntill the corne into the barne? Ponder now by thy self, when the graine of euell sede is sowē downe, howe greate a barne shalle fylle? I answered and sayde: Howe & when shal these thynges come to pas? Wherfore are ouer yeares few & euell? And he answered me, & sayde: Make not thou to muche hast vpon the hyrst, for thy haltynes to be about hym is but vayne, thou makest to much a do. Dyd not the soules also of the righteous aske question of these thynges in their habitacions, & sayinge: How long shal I haue of this fashion? When cometh the fruit of my hāre, and my rewarde? And vpō this Jeremiel the Archangell gaue them answere, and sayde: Euen when the number of the seades is fylled in yo? for he hath weyed the worlde in the balaunce: in measure & number hath he measured the tyme, and nombred it not, vntyll the same measure be fulfylled. Then answered I and sayde: O Lorde Lorde, now are we all full of synne, and for ouer lake perauenture it is not, that the barne of the righteous shall not be filled, because of the synnes of them that dwell vpon the earth.

D So he answered me, and sayde: Go thy waye to a woman with childe, and aske of her, when she hath fulfylled her .ix. monethes if her childeb mayde beare the byrth any longer within her. Then saide I: No Lorde, that can she not. And he sayde vnto me: In the secrete places of soules are ighe the graue chamber of a woman. For ighe as a woman that trauayleth, maketh haste, when the time and necessitie of the byrth is at hande: Euen so doth she & haste to deliuer it that is coūmitted vnto her. Loke what thou desyrest to se, it shalbe shewed the from the beginninge. Then answered I, and sayde: If I haue founde fauoure in thy syght, and it be possible, and if I be mete therfore, shewe me then, whether there be more too come then is past, or more past then is for to come. What is past, I knowe: but what is for too come, I knowe not.

Ouerlyke he.

And he sayde vnto me: Stande vp vpon the right syde, and I shall expounde the symylitude vnto the. So I stode, and behelde, an whote burninge ouen went ouer before me: and it happened that when the flamme was gone by, the smoke had the vpper hāde. After thys there went ouer before me a watery cloude, and sent doune much rayne with a stourme: & when the stourme rayne was past the droppes remayned still. Then sayde he vnto me: Ighe as the rayne is more then the droppes, and as the fyre exceadeth the smoke euen so the measure of the thynges that are past, hath the vpperhande. Then went the droppes and the smoke aboue: and I prayed and sayde: May I liue (thynkest thou) vntyll that tyme? Or what shall happen in those dayes? He answered me, and sayde: As for the tokens wherof thou askest me, I may tell the of them in a parcelles as touching & thy lyfe, I maye not shewe the, for I am not sent therefore.

Some vnto my lyfe.

Christ and the Iewish rulers together. The.ij.Chapter.

NEuertheles, as concernynge the tokēs, marke this: Behold, the dayes shall come, that they which dwel vpon earth, shalbe taken in a greate number, & the waye of the truth shalbe hyd, and the lande shalbe barren from fayth: but vnfayth shall haue the vpperhande, ighe as thou hast seue now, & as thou hast hearde long ago. And the lande that thou seyst nowe too haue rule, shalt thou both se waste. But if god graūt the to liue, thou shalt se after the thyrde trūpet that the sunne shall sodenly ryse again in the nyght, and the moone thre times in the daye, and bloude shall droppe out of wood, and the stone shall geue hys voyce, and the people shalbe troubled: and he shall rule whome they hope not that dwel vpon earth, and the foules shall flye, and the Sodomytysh sea shall cast out fysh, and make a noyse in the nyght, whiche many shall not knowe, but they shall all heare the voyce therof.

Ouerlyke more the thou maist feele, as hearest long ago.

There shalbe a confusiō also in many places, and the fyre shalbe oft sent againe, and the wylde beastes shall go their waye, and monstruous women shall beare monsters, & salt waters shalbe founde in the swete: and

fyrste shal fight ag̃ yͤ selfe same: then shall all wyld and vnderlandysshe be fyld and put all yͤr into their secret places, & shalbe fought ag̃ym, and yet not be founde: then shal vnrighteousnes and vnstedfastnes haue ꝓ̃per hande vpon earth. One lande also shall ask another, and saye: Is righteousnes gone thorow the? And it shal saye: No. At the same tyme shall men hope, but nothynge obteyne: they shall labour, but their workes shall not prospere.

B To shewe the suche tokens I haue shewed, and if thou wilt praye ag̃ayne, and wepe as now, and fast seuen dayes, thou shalte heare yet greater thynges. Then I awaked, and a fearfulnesse wente thorow all my body, and my spirite was feble and ouerfall, so that I almost forgotte my selfe. Do the Angel that was sente to talke with me, helde me, comforted me, and set me vp vpon my fete.

And in the seconde night it happened, that Salathiel the Capytayne of the people came vnto me, saying: Where hast thou bene? and why is thy countenaunce so heuy? Knowest thou not, that Israel is committed vnto the, in the lande of their captiuite? Vp then, and eate, & forsake vs not, as the shepherde that leaueth his flocke in the handes of wycked wolues. Then sayde I vnto hym: Go thy wayes fro me, and come not nye me: and he harde it, and as I sayde, so went he his way fro me. And so I fasted seuen dayes, mourninge and weppinge, lyke as Esdras the Angell commaunded me. And after seuen dayes it happened, that the thoughtes of my herte were very greuous vnto me ageyne, and my soule receyued the spirite of vnderstandynge, and I begane to talke with the most hyest ag̃ayne, and sayde: O Lorde Lorde, of euery wood of the earth and of all the trees therof, thou hast chosen the one onely vyneyarde: & of all landes of the whole worlde thou hast chosen the one parte: and of all floures of the grounde thou hast chosen the one lylye: and of all the depthes of the sea thou hast fylled the one ryuer: and of all buylded cyties thou hast halowed Syon vnto thy selfe: and of al the foules that are created, thou hast named the one doue: & of all the catell that are made thou hast prouyded the one sheepe: and among all the multitudes of folkes thou hast gotte the one people, and vnto thys people whome thou loued best, thou gauest a lawe, that is passed of all.

And nowe, O Lorde, why hast thou geuen thy one people ouer vnto many? & vpon the one roote thou hast prepared other, and why hast thou scatred thy one onely people among many? which vnto them haue not, yea, which haue euer withstande thy promyses, & neuer beleued thy commaundementes? And though thou wroughtest sorowe vnto thy people, yet shouldest thou punysh them with thyne owne handes.

C Now when I had spoken these wordes, the Angell that came vnto me the nyghte afore, was sente vnto me, and sayde vnto me: Heare me, and herken vnto the thyng that I shall tell the more. And I sayde: Speake on my Lorde. Then sayde he vnto me: Thou art sore layed and troubled for Israels sake. Louest thou the people better then he y made them? And I sayde: Nay Lorde, but of very greefe and compassion haue I spoken. For my synnes powre me many times, because I wolde haue experience of the wayes of the moste hyest, and to serue out part of his iudgement. And he sayde vnto me, that thou myghtest not. And I sayde, wherefore Lorde? Wherevnto was I borne then? Or why was not my mothers chyldebedde then my graue? So had I not seene the misery & trouble of Israel, and the example of my people of Israell.

And he sayde vnto me: Gather me the thinges that are not yet come: gather me together the droppes, that are fallen downe: make me the floures grene agayne, that are withered: open me the thynge that is closed: bringe me forth the windes, that are shut vp: shewe me the ymage of a voyce, & then shall I declare the thynge, that thou labourest to knowe. And I sayde: O Lorde, Lorde, who maye knowe these thinges, but he that hath not his conuersynge with men? As for me, I am vnhable: howe maye I then speake of these thinges wherof thou askest me? Then sayde he vnto me: Lyke as thou canst do none of these thynges that I haue spoken of, euen so canst thou not fynde oute my iudgemente, or in the ende the loue & I haue promysed vnto my people. And I sayde: Beholde O Lorde, yet are thou ouer vnto the that haue no ende: & what shall they do that haue bene before me, or we that be nowe, or they that shall come after vs? And he sayde vnto me: I will lykene my iudgemente vnto a ryng. Lyke as there is no slacknesse of the last, euen so is there no swyftnesse of the fyrst. So I answered and sayde: wolde God we were made (that haue bene made) and that be nowe, and that are for to come) so that thou myghtest sette the iudgemente the sooner? Then answered he me, and sayde: The creature may not haste aboue the maker, neyther may the vessell holde tyghter as ouer, that shalbe created.

And I sayde, Seyng hast thou sayde thys vnto thy seruante, that thou yonge maker hast made the creature by yonge as ouer, and the creature bare of corne to mayne it seme all a beast there that be passed as ouer. And he sayde vnto me: Aske the chyldebed of a woman, & saye vnto her, If thou bringest forth chyldren, why doest thou it not together, but one after another? Praye her therfore that she bringe forth ten chyldren at ones. And I sayde she cannot, for nature do it ouer after another.

Then sayde he vnto me: Euen so haue I geuen a chyldebed vnto the earth, the fruit & Bbb.iij. he haue be sowen vpō vp prouyde of tyme. For like as a yonge chylde may not bryng forth the thynges that belonge vnto the aged, euen so haue I ordeyned the worlde whiche I made.

And I aūswered and sayde: Seyng thou hast now geuen me a waye, I will speake before the: for oure mother of whom thou hast tolde me, as yet yonge, & now she trauayleth ope vnto age. He aūswered me, and sayde: Aske a woman that beareth chyldē, & she shall tell the. Saye vnto her: wherfore are not they (whō thou hast now brought forth) like those that were before the, but lesse of stature? And she shall aūswere the: They that be borne in the youth of strength, are of one fashion: and they that are borne in the tyme of age (when the chyldbed fayleth) are otherwise. Cōsyder now thy self, how that ye are lesse of stature, then they were before you, & so are they that come after you, lesse then ye, as the creatures which now begynne to be olde, & haue passed ouer the strength of youth. Then sayd I: Lorde I beseche the, if I haue founde fauoure in thy sight, shewe thy seruaunte, by whome doest thou vpset thy creature?

The Aungel instructeth Esdras, and geueth him aunswere to his questions.

The.vi. Chapter.

2 [A]Nd he sayd vnto me: In the begynning when the grouūd was made: before the worlde stode, or euer the wyndes blewe, before it thondred & lightened, or euer the foūdacions of Paradyse were layed, before the fayre floures were seene, or euer the mouyable powers were stablished, before the vnnumerable multitude of aungels were gathered together, or euer the hye towelles of the ayre were lifted vp, afore the measures of the firmamēt were named, or euer the chymneys in Sion were hote, & oure the present peres were sought out, & or euer the inuencions of the now synne, were put afyde, before they were sealed that now gather fayth for a treasure: then did I cōsider & pōder all these thynges, & they all were made thorow me, & thorow none other: by me also they be ended, & by none other. Then aūswered I & sayde: which shal be the partynge asunder of the tymes? Or when shalbe the ende of the fyrst, and the begynnyng of it that foloweth? And he sayde vnto me: From Abraham vnto Jsaac, when Jacob and Esau were borne of hym, Jacobs hande helde fyrst the hele of Esau: for Esau is the ende of this worlde, and Jacob is the begynnyng of it that foloweth. The handes of man betweene the hele and the hād. Other question (Esdras) aske thou not.

I aūswered then, and sayde: O Lorde, Lorde, if I haue founde fauoure in thy sight, I beseche the, shewe thy seruaunte the ende of thy tokens, wherof thou shewedest me parte the laste nyght. So he aūswered and sayde vnto me: Stande vp vpon thy fete, and heare the perfecte voyce and sounde. Then shall come a greate noyse, but the place where thou standest shall not be moued. And therefore when thou hearest the wordes, be not afrayed: for of the ende shall the woorde and foundacyon of the earth be vnderstande. And why? the worde therof trembleth and quaketh, for it knoweth, that it muste be chaūged at the ende. And it happened, that when I had hearde it, I stode vp vpon my fete, and herkened: & beholde there was a voyce that spake, & the sounde of it was lyke the sounde of many waters, and it sayde. Beholde, the dayes come, that I will begynne to drawe nye, and to vyset them that dwell vpō earth, and will begynne to make inquisicion of the, what they be that haue hurt equyte with vnrighteousnes, and when the lowe estate of Sion shalbe fulfilled: and when the worlde, that shall vanysshe away, shalbe ouerstaled, then will I do these tokens.

The bokes shalbe opened before the firmament, and they shall se all together, and the chyldre of a yeare olde shal speake with their voyces: the women with chylde shall brynge forth vntymely chyldren of three or foure monethes olde, and they shall lyue, and be rayled vpō sodenly shall the sowne places appeare as the bulwarke, the full store houses shall sodenly be founde emptye, and the trōpet shall geue a sounde, whiche when euery man heareth, then shalbe hastely afrayed. At that time shall frendes fight one agaynst another lyke enemyes, and the earthe shall stande in feare with them.

The springes of the welles shall stande styll, and in thre houres they shall not renne. Whosoeuer remayneth vnto all these thinges that I haue tolde the, shall escape, and se my saluacyon, and the ende of youre worlde. And the people that are vncleane, shall se it, they that haue not tasted deathe from their byrthe: and the herte of the inhabiters shalbe chaunged, and turned into another meaning: for euell shalbe put oute, and vnclennes shalbe quenched. As for fayth, it shall flourish, corrupcion shalbe ouercome: and the truth, whiche hath bene so longe without fruite, shalbe declared. And it happened when he talked with me, that I loked downeryght vpon hym, before whom I stode, and these wordes sayd he vnto me: I am come to shewe the, the time of the nyght for to come.

3 If thou wilt praye yet more, and fast lenger dayes agayne, I shall tell the more thynges, & greater then before: for thy voyce is herd before the Hyest: for he hath seene all thy righteous dealyng, he hath seene all thy chastysyng, whiche thou hast had ouer thyne owne people: therfore hath he sente me to shewe the all these thynges, and to saye vnto the: Be of good comforte, and feare not, and haste not vnto the tymes that are paste for thynke vayne thynges, and make not hast of the latter tymes.

And it happened after these, that I wepte

agayne, and lasted fourty dayes in lyke maner, that I might fulfill the .xij. workes, which he tolde me. In the eyght night was my hert vexed within me agayne, and I began to speake before the Lorde: for my spirite was greatly set on fyre, and my soule was in distresse. And I sayde: O Lorde, thou spakest but vnto thy creature from the beginninge (euen the fyrste daye) and sayedest: Let heauen and earth be made, and thy worde was a perfect worke. And then was there the spirite, and darkenesse were yet on euery syde, & silence: there was no mans voyce as yet beside the. Then commaundedst thou a fayre lyghte to come forth out of thy treasures, y thy worke might appeare and be seue.

D Vpon the seconde daye thou mayedst the spirite of the firmamente, and commaundedst it to parte asunder, and to make a diuysyon betwixte the waters, that the one part might remayne aboue, and the other beneth. Vpon the thyrde day thou broughtest to passe, that the waters were gathered in the fourth part of the earth: fiue partes hast thou vsed vp, and kepte them, to thentent that men myght sowe and occupye husbandrye therin. As soone as thy woorde went forth, the worke was made. For immediatly there was great innumerable fruite, and many diuerse pleasures and desyres of temptacion, flowres of chaungeable colours and smell, and this was done the thyrde daye.

Vpon the fourth daye thou commaundest that the Sunne shoulde geue his shyne, and the Moone her lighte: the starres biddest thou set in order, and gauest them a charge: too do seruice euen vnto man, that was for too be made. Vpon the fyfte daye thou sayedst vnto the seuenth parte (where the waters were gathered) that they should bring forth diuerse beastes, foules and fyshes. And so it came to passe, that the bonme water and without soule, brought forth liuing beastes, at the commaundement of God, that all people might prayse thy wonderous workes. Then dyddest thou preserue two soules, the one thou calledst Enoch, and the other Leuiathan, and biddest separate the one from the other: for the seuenthe parte (namely, where the water was gathered together) might not holde the bothe. Vnto Enoch thou gauest one parte, which was dryed vp the thyrde daye, that he shoulde dwel in the same parte, wherein are a thousande hylles. But vnto Leuiathã thou gauest the seuenth parte, namely the moyst, and hast kepte him too deuoure what thou wilt, and whan. Vpon the fyfte daye thou gauest commaundement vnto the earth, that before the it shoulde bring forth beastes, cattell and all that crepe, and besides them) Adam also, whome thou madest Lord of all the creatures: Of hym come we all, and the people also, whome thou hast chosen specially vnto thy selfe. All this haue I sayde vnto, and spoken before the, that I might shew, how that the worlde is made for oure sakes. As for the other people which also come of Adam thou hast sayde that they are nothinge, but lyke a sperle, and hast likened the abundaunce of them vnto a droppe (that falleth) fro the rule of the bouket.

And now, O Lorde, the Heathen which haue euer more reputed as nothinge, haue begonne to be lordes ouer vs, and too deuoure vs: but we thy people (whome thou hast called the fyrst borne, thy onely begotten, & thy feruent louer) are geuen into their handes & power. If the worlde nowe be made for oure sakes, why haue we not the inheritaunce in possession with the worlde? How longe shall thys endure?

¶ The.xiij. Chapter.

AN it happened after that I had spoken out these wordes, there was sent vnto me an Angel, which had bene vp me also the nyghtes afore, and he sayd vnto me: Vp Esdras, and heare the wordes that I am come to tel the. And I sayde: speake on Lorde my God. Then sayde he vnto me: The sea is set in a wyde place, that it might be depe and great: but the entraunce is narow and small like a ryuer. For who wolde go into the sea, to take vpon it, and to rule it? If he went not thorow the narow, how myght he come into the broder?

Item another: A cyte is buylded and set vpon a brode feld, and is full of all goodes: the entraunce is narow and sodeyne, like as if there were a fyre at the right hande, and a depe water at the left, and as it were one pipe one strate paith betwixt them both, so small that there coulde but one man go there.

If this cyte now were geuen to an heyre, and he myght not thorow the parilous way, how wolde he receyue his enheritaunce? And I sayde: It is so Lorde. Then sayde he: Euen so is Israel also a portion. And why? for their sakes haue I made the worlde: & when Adã transgressed my statutes, then was the thing iudged that was done. Then were the entraunces of the worlde made narow, full of sorow and trauayle. They are but few and euell, full of perils and labours. For the entraunces of the fore worlde were wyde and sure, and brought immortall fruite.

If they now which are entred into thys worlde, maye not comprehende these thynges, much lesse maye they comprehende y vnderstande the secrete thynges. Why inquirest thou the selfe thyng, seynge thou art but a corruptible man? And what wouldest thou heare, where as thou arte but mortall? And why hast thou not enquired in to thyne herte the thynge that is for to come, but that is passed?

Then sayde I, O Lorde Lorde, thou hast E ordeyned in thy lawe, y the righteous shoulde

where

where they are, but that the vnfaythfull and vngodly should perish. Neuertheles the righteous shall suffre straite thynges * and hope for wyde: for they that haue lyued vngodly and suffred straite thynges, shall not se the wyde.

* Or rather, shall the righteous suffer straight thynges while they trust for thinges pleasaūt & wyde?

And he sayde vnto me: There is no iudge aboue God, and none that hath vnderstandynge aboue the Lyest. For there be many that perish, because they despyse the lawe of God that is set before them. For God hath geuen strayte commaundement vnto suche as come, that they know what they do, & howe they should lyue: and if they kepte thē they shoulde not be punished.

Neuertheles they were not obedient vnto hym, but spake agaynste hym: ymagined vayne thynges, & purposed to synne, & sayde moreouer that there was no God, and that God regarded it not. The wayes haue they not knowen, the lawe haue they despysed, & denyed the promyses in the Statutes & ordynaunces haue they not bene faythfull & stedfast, and haue not performed the workes.

And therfore Esdras vnto the fol, pirsty: and to the emptye, emptynesse. Beholde, the tyme shall come, that these tokens whiche I haue tolde the, shall come too passe, and the bryde shal appeare: the earth that now paseth away, shalbe shewed: and whosoeuer is deliuered from the foresayde euils, shall se my wolders. For my sonne Iesus shalbe openly declared, with those that be with him: and they that remayne, shal be merry in fourty hundred yeares.

After these same yeares shall my sonne Christ dye, and all men that haue lyfe, & the worlde shalbe turned into the olde spēce. Ind, dayes, lyke as in the fore iudgemētes, so that no man shall remayne. And after seuē dayes, the worlde that yet awaketh not, shalbe raysed vp, and shall dye corrupte. And the earthe shall restore those that haue slepte in her, and so shall the dust those that dwell in silence, & the secrete places shall deliuer those that be committed vnto them. And the most Lyest shal be openly declared vpō the seate of iudgemēt & all misery shal vanish awaye, and long sufferynge shalbe gathered together. But the iudgement shall continue, the trueth shall remayne, & faith shall waxe strong, the worke shall followe, & the rewarde shall be shewed, the righteousnesse shall watche, and the vnrighteousnesse shall beare no rule.

Then sayde I: Abraham prayed fyrst for the Sodomites, and Moyses for the fathers that synned in the wilderness, and he that came after him for Israel, in the time of Achas and Samuel: and Dauid for the destruction, and Salomon for them that came into the Sanctuary, and Helias for those that receyued rayne, and for the dead, that he myghte lyue: and Ezechias for the people in the time of Sēnacherib: and diuerse other in like maner, whiche haue prayed for many.

Euen so now seynge the corrupte is growen vp, and wickednes increased, & the righteous haue prayed for the vngodly, wherefore shall it not be so now also?

He answered me, and sayde: This present worlde is not the ende, there remayneth much honoure in it, therefore haue they prayed for the weake. But the daye of dome shalbe the ende of this tyme, and the begynninge of the immortalite for to come, wherein all corruption vanisheth, all vnrighteousnes is lowred all mysdeleyse taken awaye, righteousnes growne, and the veryte sprunge vp. Then shall no man be able to saue hym that is destroyed, nor to oppresse him that hath gotten the victory. I answered then, and sayde: This is my spirite and laste sayinge: that it had bene better, not to haue geuen the earthe vnto Adam: or elis when it was geuen hym, to kepe hym that he shoulde not synne. For what profyte is it, for men now in this present tyme to lyue in heuynes, and after death too lyke for punishment? O thou Adam, what hast thou done? For though it was thou that synned, thou art not fallen alone, but we all that come of the. For what profyte is it vnto vs, if there be promysed vs an immortall time, where as we medle with deadlye workes? and that there is promysed vs an euerlastynge hope, where as we oure selues are cruell and vayne? and that there are layed vp for vs dwellinges of health and freedom, where as we haue lyued euell? and that the worshippe of the Lyest is kepte too defende them, which haue led a pacient lyfe, where as we haue walked in the moste wicked wayes of all? And that there shalbe shewed a paradyse, whose fruite endureth for euer, wherein is freedome and medecine, where as we shall not go wrōg for we haue walked in vnpleasaūt places: And that the faces of them whiche haue abstayned, shall shyne about the starres, where as oure faces shalbe blacke and darke: For whyle we lyued and did vnrighteously, we considered not, that we shoulde suffre therfore after death.

Then answered he me, and sayde: This is the consideracion and thought of the battayl, whiche man hath vpon earthe: that if he be ouercome, he shall suffre as thou hast said. But if he get the victory, he shall receyue the thynge that I saye. For this is the lyfe, whereof Moyses spake vnto the people, whyle he lyued, saying: Chose the lyfe, that thou mayest lyue. Neuertheles they beleued him not, neyther the prophetes after hym. Do not me whiche haue spoken vnto them, that heuines should not reach vnto them to their destruction lyke as sore is for to come ouer those, that haue suffred theym selues too be enuironed in saluacion.

I answered then & sayde: I know Lorde, that the Lyest is mercyfull, in that he hathe mercy vpon them, whiche are not yet in the worlde, and vpon those also that walche in thys lyue: and that he is paciēt and long sufferynge towarde thoſe that haue ſynned in their vnderſtandynge that he is liberall to graue where as it requyreth: and that he is of great mercy, ſo, he multiplyeth his louynge kyndneſſe towarde thoſe that are paſſed, & that are paſt, and to them whyche are for to come. For yf he multiplye not his mercyes, the worlde ſhall not be made lyuynge, with thoſe that dwell therin: He graueth alſo, for yf he gaue not of his goodneſſe, that they whyche haue done euell, myght be ſaued, the ten thouſande parte of men ſhoulde not be made lyuynge. And yf the iudge ſhoulde not ſpare them that be ſaued with his woorde, and yf he ſholde deſtroye the multytude that ſynneth, there ſhoulde be very fewe left in an immeaſurable multytude.

Eſdras prayeth God rather to take vpon hym ſome more then on the bodies of the people.

The. viij. Chapter.

2 AND he anſwered me, ſayinge: The moſte hyeſt made thys world for many, but the world to come for fewe. I will tell the a ſimilitude, Eſdras: As when thou aſkeſt the earthe, it ſhall ſaye vnto the, that it geueth much moulde, where of earthē veſſels are made, but lyttle of it that goeth cleuerth of. Euen ſo is it with the worke of this world. There be many created, but fewe ſhall be ſaued. Then anſwered I and ſayde: Then ſaluate vp the water (thou louer) and bringe the vnderſtandynge, for thou art agreed to helpe and to geue eare, and nothing to prophecye: for thou haſte no lenger ſpace geuen the, but onely to lyue. O Lorde, wylt thou not geue thy ſeruaūt leue, that we may praye before the, and that thou mayeſt geue vnto vs ſeede, and buylde vp our vnderſtandynge, that there maye come fruite of it: and that earthy our whyche is corrupte, and beareth the ſtate and place of a man, maye lyue?

For thou art alone, & we al are one workemanſhippe of thy handes, lyke as thou haſte ſayde, and lyke as the body is faſhioned vnto in the childebed, and thou geueſt the membres, and thy creature is preſerued in fyre & water: ſo moreouer both the worke ſuffer thy creature, whyche is faſhioned in her: but the thyng that preſerueth and is thus preſerued, ſhall both be kept together: and whē tyme is, the childebed deliuereth the thyng, that is bre and groweth in her.

For thou haſt commaūded the barē to geue mylke vnto the frute, that the thynge whych is created and faſhioned, maye be norſhed for a tyme: and thou thou diſpoſeſt & ordeyneſt it with the mercy, bringeſt it vp with thy righteouſneſſe, nurtreſt it in thy lawe, and reformeſt it with thy vnderſtandyng, mortifyeſt it as thy creature, and makeſt it lyuynge as thy worke. Kepynge then that thou preſerueſt him, which with ſo great labours is created and faſhioned, ſhoulde thy creature maintenance, then ſhoulde lightly entre, alſo, that thy thynge whych is made, myght be preſerued.

And then I ſpake vnto all men in great rage, as thou knoweſt: but of thy people, for whoſe ſake I am ſorye: and of the vnmercifulnes for whoſe ſake I mourned: of Iſrael, for whome I am vnkynde: & for Jacob, for whoſe ſake I am greued: therfore beginne I to praye before the, for my ſelfe and for them, for I ſe the fall of vs, ruine of vs, that dwell vpon earth. But I haue herde the myſteries of the iudge, which is to come: therfore heare my voyce, and vnderſtande my wordes, & I ſhal ſpeake before the. Or rather, which I ſhall ſpeake.

This is the begynnynge of the wordes of Eſdras, before he was receyued: O Lorde, thou that dwelleſt in euerlaſtyng rest, whoſe eyes are lyfte vp in the ayre, whoſe ſtoole is exceedyng hye, whoſe glory & maieſty maye not be comprehended, before whom the hoſtes of heauen ſtande with trembling, whoſe beckynge is turned in ſwyfte and fyre, whoſe worde is true, whoſe talkynge is ſtedfaſte, whoſe commaundemente is ſtrange, whoſe ordinaūce is fearfull, whoſe lake dryeth vp the deepthes, whoſe wrath maketh the mountaynes to melt awaye, and whoſe truth beareth witnes: O heare the prayer of thy ſeruaūt, and marke with eyne eares the petycions of thy creature.

For whyle I lyue, I will ſpeake and ſo longe as I haue vnderſtandynge, I wil anſwere. O take not vpon the ſynnes of thy people, whyche ſerue in the truth. Haue no reſpecte vnto the wicked ſtuffe of the Heathen, but to the teares of thoſe that kepe thy teſtimonies with ſorowe. Thynke not vpon them that haue walked fylthyly before the, but vpon them, which with will haue feared thy name.

Lette it not be thy will to deſtroye them, whyche haue lyued lyke beaſtes, but to take vpon them that haue clearly taught thy lawe. Take thou no indignacion at them, whyche are worſe then beaſtes: but loue them, that alwaye put their truſt in thy righteouſneſſe & glorye: for we & our fathers haue all the ſame ſyckneſſe and infyrmitie, but because of vs ſynners thou ſaye be called mercyfull.

For yf thou haſt mercy vpō vs, thou haſt C be called mercyfull, where as the haue no workes of righteouſneſſe: for the righteous whyche haue layed vp many good workes together, ſhall out of their owne treaſure receyue. For what is man, that thou ſhouldeſt take diſpleaſure at hym? Or what is the corruptible mortall generacion, that thou ſhouldeſt be ſo rough towarde hym?

For of a truth there is no man amonge them that be borne, but he hath done wyckedly, and among the faythfull there is none whyche hath not done amyſſe. For in thys (O Lorde) thy righteouſneſſe and thy goodneſſe wre shalbe prayed and beleued, if thou be mercifull vnto them, whych are not ryghte in good workes.

Then answered he me and saide: Some thynges hast thou spoken a right, and accordyng vnto thy wordes it shall be. For I will not destroy consyder the workes of the, which haue synned before thy face, before the subgetement, before destruccion, but I will strength ouer the worke of thought of the righteous. I will remember also the pylgrymage, the holy martyrdom and the ernestes. Ryght as I haue spoken now, so shall it come to passe. For as the husbandes man soweth much seede vpon the ground, and planteth many trees, and yet alwaye the thynge that is sowen or planted is not al kepte safe, neyther doth it al take rote: Euen so is it of them that are sowen in the worlde, they shall not all be preserued.

I answered then and saide: If I haue found grace, then let me speake. Ryght as the husbandes mans seede perisheth, if it receyue not rayne in due season, or if there come to much rayne vpon it: Euen so perysheth man also, which is created with thy handes, and is lykened vnto thyne owne ymage and to the selfe, for whose sake thou hast made all thynges, and lykened him vnto the husbandes mans seede. Be not wroth at vs, O Lorde, but spare thy people, and haue mercy vpon thyne owne inheritaunce: O be mercifull vnto thy creature.

Then answered he me and saide: Thinges present are for the present, and thinges to come for such as be to come. For thou wanteste yet much, seynge thou mayest loue my creature aboue me: I haue oft times sente vnto vnto the, but neuer to the vnrighteous. Ye and also thou art manyfolous before the Hyest, in that thou hast humbled thy selfe, as it becometh the, and hast not reputed thyne owne selfe, that thou art had in such honour amog the righteous. Therfore shal great wretched vre and misery come vpon them, that in the latter tymes shall walke in the worlde, for they haue walked in great pryde.

But vnderstand thou for thy selfe, and seke out glory for such as be like vnto thou as paradyse opened, the tree of lyfe is planted, the tyme to come is prepared, plenteousnes made ready: a cyte is buylded for you, and rest is prepared, yea, perfyte goodnes and wysdome. The rote of euell is sealed from you, for weakenes and misery is hyd fro you, and into hell fyreh conueyed is forgetfulnes. Treasures are committed vnto you, and the vnbe is shewed for vnnethes of vnrighteous. And therfore after thou hast ouercome, ouercomynge the vnrighteousnes of them that perysshe. For they haue taken vnrighte, before the Hyest, thoughte scorne of hys lawe, and forsaken hys wayes.

Moreouer, they haue troden vnder foote righteous, and layde in their hertes, that there is no God ouer, and that nothyng shall dye hereafter. Ye lyke as the thynge that I haue spoken of, remaine ready for you: Euell is sowen and paine prepared for them. For it is not his will that shulde come to nought: but they which he created haue defiled the name of him that made them, and are vnthankfull vnto him, which prepared life for them. And therfore is my iudgement nowe at hande. Thus thynges haue I not shewed vnto all men, but vnto Esdras onely vnto the, and to such as be lyke the.

Then answered I and saide: Beholde O Lorde, vnto hall thou shewed me the multytude of the tokens, which thou wilt begynne to do at the last but at what tyme and when thou hall not shewed me.

Then sayde he vnto vnto them vnto him.

The.xi. Chapter.

HE answered me then and saide: Measure thou the vnne thing by thy selfe, what thou fyndest that some parte of the tokens come to passe, whyche I haue told the before so that thou vnderstandest, that it is the very same tyme, wherein the Hyest will begynne to lyfte the worlde, whyche he made. And when there shalbe suche earthquake and vproare of the people in the worlde, then shalt thou wel vnderstande, that the moulde spake of thole thynges, from the dayes that were before the, euen fro me the beginnynge.

For lyke as all that is made in the worlde, hath a beginnynge and ende, and the ende is manyfest: Euen so the tymes also of the Hyest haue playne beginnynges in wonders and syngnes, and the ende in workynge and in token. And every one that shalbe saued, and shall be able to escape by his workes and by fayth, wherein ye haue beleued, shall be preserued from the fayre perils, and shall se my saluacion in my lande and myghin my borders for I haue halowed me from the worlde. Then shall they be in confusion, whiche vnto haue abused my wayes: and they that haue cast them out despytefully, shall vexed in payne.

For such as in their lyfe haue receyued benefytes, and haue not knowen me, and they that haue abhorred my lawe, whyle they had yet fredome, and when they shulde yet haue repentaunce and conuersion, and vnderstode not, but despised it: the same shall knowe it after death in payne. And therfore be thou no more curyous, howe the vngodly shalbe punished, but howe the righteous shalbe saued, and whose the worlde is, and for whome the worlde, and when it is. Then answered I and sayde: I haue called before and nowe I speake, and will speake also hereafter, that there be many more of them vnlyke people, then shalbe saued, lyke as the flowde is greater then the droppes.

And he answered me saying: Lyke as the fielde is, so is also the fruite and the flowers by, by and to see the unknowe edifice: both as the wonderment to perceive also the wonders on the foundacion: unto whom he sayde, Go thy way hence, for it was the ordre of the warre, that when I prepared for them that are aboute, or ouer the warre vnto warre, whose so they shoulde stande, there vnto there are call that vnderstande me. 9 Dote whom euery one vnto, and the one

Or rather, but also to the warre subiecte to make preparacion: and the enemie that ordeth not, and the warre to make, the warre corrupte. So I considered the warre, & behelde, there vnto great diuersite of people that he ordeth the warre, whose multitude was like vnto the sea: And I sawe certayne of them greatly, and some lesser out of a figure, as it were heep of the grasse, and a plante from amongst them a certayne mighty and high, and I sawe all these many generacions. Let the vnderstander perceyue and see and that, whereby are greatest vp in heapes, and a great the olde ordre my grape and vnpurchase be kepte: euen vnto the ende. my plante: for with great labours haue I made it vp.

Moreouer if thou wilt take heed the yere shalt haue vnto me (that thou shalt not fall vnto it) goe thy heape then into the lesse of flowers, where no hande is layde vpon, and eate only all of the flowers of the field, nether eate flesh, drinke no wine, but eate flowers only. Praye vnto the Lord continually, so that I come, and talke with the.

So I went my waye and came into the lesse which is called Ardath (like as he commaunded me) and there I sat among the flowers, and eate of the brethen of the field, and the swete of the lesse satisfyed me. After I came before I sat vpon the grasse, & my heart began to worke vnto me (as me seemed) and I opened my mouth, & began to talke before the Lord, and sayde: O Lord, thou that shewest thy self here vnto vs, thou hadst declared vnto vpwarde thy self here vnto our fathers in the wylderness, in a place where no man vseth to be, in a hard place when they came out of Egipt, and thou spakest saying: Heare me O Israell, and marke my wordes thou seed of Jacob. Behold, I sowe my lawe in you, and it shall bring fruite in you, and ye shalbe honoured in it for ever. But our fathers which receyued the lawe, kepte it not, and obserued not the ordinances and statutes, and the fruite of the lawe was not destroyed: it might not for why? it was thyne. But they that receyued it, perished, because they kepte not the thynge that was sowen in them.

For it is a custome when the grounde receyueth seede, or the sea a shippe, or a bottle meate and drynke, that when it perisheth or is broken whereon a thyng is layde, so whereon any thyng is put, the thynges also perishe and are broken, which are layde on or put therein. But loke for it hath not happened so vnto vs that haue receyued the lawe, perishe in synne, and euen here vnto also receyueth the lawe, not vnfruitefulnesse the lawe perfectly not, but remayneth in her labours.

And when I considered these thynges in my first office thus saying, I lifted vp my eyes vnto vpwarde, and loked vpon the mighte of the I sawe a woman, bewayle mourning loud, vnder great lamentation, & weepe with heare vnto her clothes were rent in peces, and she putte ashes vpon her heade.

Then let I my thoughtes go, that I was in, & towards me lokt a fyre, & lefte behynde me vnto all them: whye art thou so sory & lamentable vnto? And the Lorde vnto me: Heare me bowe I may tell & take pet mine lamentacion I am sore sorye in my minde, throughly sorye heare. And I Lorde vnto her: what ayleth thee? Or what hath heare any thing to the tell me. Be the Lorde I haue bene barrenfull & heare, & haue had no childdren. xxx. yeares. And xxx. yeares I do nothing els say & night & all heare me, but make my prayer to the Lorde. After xxx. yeares God heard me the handmayden, I dyd had my mekery, & heard my trouble, & gaue me a sonne, & I dyd ioye of him, & mine my husbande also & all my neighbours, & we gaue great honour vnto the mighte. And I nourished him with great diligence. And when he grewe vp, & came to the time, that he should haue a wyfe, I made a feaste.

Where see the Reader that opposites haue two contrary togethers.

And it happened that when my sonne went into hys chamber, he fell downe, & dyed: then extinguished we all the lightes, and all my neyghbours rose vp to comfort me. Then take I my self vnto the fifth daye at nighte, when that had all rested, that they might comfort me, I rose vp by nighte, & fled, & am come hyther vnto this lande, as thou seyst: and am purposed not to come in the cytye, but to remayne here, and neyther to eate nor drynke, but continually to mourne and to fast, vntill I dye.

Then let I my cogitacions & thoughtes fall, that I was in, and spake to her as before hand. Then saw the woman, that there was some hyghnesse and strengthe, and vnder her growth vnto a lyon: hyghe flood came mighte in all wonderfull and huge, and heare she as shone bryghter then snow and as redde: heyght her all more in heapes, and make some mourning that we be all comforted. And for the greatnesse that thou takest, as but for our sonne. Remember the woman, and the Lorde will the, that it is the vnlawfull mighte (by reason) to continue, for the fall of so many that greate hyghe.

For lo the beginning all mine my heart of her, & where shall mine vnto? and beforne, they troubles all mothe all mine habitacion, and many of them shalbe eaten vnto.

Why therefore should thy understande mine mourninge, thou fye, that hath lost so greate a multitude: and not thou, which mine sorye but for one. But if thou speakest after vnto me: My mournynge is not lyke the mournyng of the earth, for I have lost the fruite of my body, which I bare with heuines: but the earth is according to the maner of the earthe, and the present multitude goeth agayne into her, as it is come to passe: Then sayde I vnto the: lyke as thou hast bone with trauayle & sorowe, euen so the earth also from the begynnynge geueth her fruite vnto man, for hym that made her. And therfore withholde thy sorowe and heuynes by thy selfe, & take what happeneth vnto the, bearre it stronglye. For if thou iudgest the matter and ende of God to be righteous and good, & treparest hys counsayl in time, thou shalt be commended therin. Go thy wayes then into the cytye to thy housbande.

B And she sayde vnto me that wil I not do, I will not go into the cytye, but here will I dye. So I conered more with her, and sayd: Do not so, but be counsailed, and folowe me: for how many sorowes hath Sion? Be of good comforte because of the sorowe of Hierusalē. For thou seyst that our Sanctuary is layed waste, our aulters broken, our temple destroied, oure playenge of instrumentes and synging layed doune, the thanke[s]gyuynge put to syleuce, oure myrth is banished away, the light of oure candelstyche is quenched, the Arche of the couenaunte is taken from vs, all oure holy thynges are defyled, and the name that is called vpon oure he, is dishonoured: oure children are put too shame, oure preestes are burnt, oure Leuites are carped away into captiuite, oure virgins are defyled, and oure wyues rauysshed, our righteous men spoyled, and oure children destroyed, oure yonge men are brought in bondage, and our stroge warriers are become weake: & vpon which seale is the greatest of all: is lowred vp from her worshippe: for she is deliuered into the handes of them that hate her.

And therfore shake of thy great heuynes, and put awaye the multitude of sorowes: that the myghtye maye be mercyfull vnto the, and that the Lorde maye geue the reste from thy labours and trauayle. And it happened, that when I was talkynge with her, her face dyd shyne and glysser, so that I was afraied of her, and mused what it might be. And immediatly she cast out a great voyce, very fearfull, so that the earthe shoke at the voyce of the woman: and I lokyd, and behold the woman appeared vnto me nomore: but there was a cytye buylded, and a place was shewed from the grounde and foundacion.

Then was I afraied, & cryed with loude C voyce, and sayd: where is Uriel the Aungel, which came to me at the fyrste? For he hath caused me to come in many considerations & hye thoughtes, and myne ende is turned too corruption, and my prayer to rebuke. And as I was speakynge these wordes, he came vnto me, and lokyd vpon me, and I laye as one that had bene dead, and myne vnderstandynge was altered, and he toke me by the right hande, and comforted me, and set me vp vpon my fete, & sayde vnto me: what ayleth the? and why is thyne vnderstanding troubled? and the vnderstandynge of thy hert, & wherfore art thou sorye? And I sayd: Because thou hast forsaken me: and I have done according vnto thy wordes, I went into the felde, and there have I sene thinges, that I am not able to expresse. He sayde vnto me: Stande vp and be manly, and I shall geue the counsayl vpon.

Then sayd I: Speake on to me my Lord, forsake me not, lest I dye in vayne: for I have sene that I knew not, and herde that I do not knowe. Or shall my vnderstandyng be deceyued, and my mynde? But now I beseche the, that thou wylt shew thy seruaunte of this wonder. He answered me then & sayde: heare me, and I shall enfourme the, & tell the wherfore thou art afraied, for the Lorde hath opened many secrete thynges vnto the.

He hath sene that thy waye is righte, and that thou takest sorowe continually for thy people, and makest greate lamentacyon for Sion: and therfore vnderstande the occasyon why he thou sawest a lytle whyle ago after this maner: Thou sawest a woman mournynge, and thou hast comforted her: Ouer the ies now sayst thou the shewes of the woman nomore, but thou thoughtest there was a cytye buylded: and lyke as she tolde the of the fall of her sonne, so is this the answere: The woman whome thou sawest, is Sion: and where as she tolde the, that she hath bene thyrty yeares barrayne and bare, those are the .iij. yeares, wherin there was no offering made in her.

But after .iij. yeares Salomon buylded D her, & offred, and then bare the barre a sonne. And where as she tolde the, that she mayshed him with labours, that was the dwelling of Hierusalem. But where as the sonne dyed in her chamber, that is the fall of Jerusalē. And thou sawest her lyckenesse, how she mourned for her sonne: & what els happened vnto her, I have shewed the. And now God seith, that thou art sory in thy mynde, & sufferest for thy heyre for her, and so harye he shewed the her sicknesse, and the sorowes of her hertye.

And therfore I bad the remayne in the felde where no house is buylded. For I knew that the Lorde wolde shew this vnto the, therfore I commanded the too goo in too the felde, where no foundacion nor buyldynge is. For in the place where the Lorde will shewe hys cytye, there shall be no mans buylding. And therfore feare not, and let not thyne herte be afraied, but go thy waye in, and se the glorious and large buyldynge, and how greate it is, and how greate thou thynckest it after the measure of thyne eyes, & then shalt thou heare as much as thine eares maye comprehende. For thou art blessed about many other and art called with the hyest, as the fewe. But to morow at nyght thou shalt remayne here, and so shall the Lorde shewe the visions of hys thoughtes, whyche he will do vnto them, that dwell vpon earth in the laste dayes. So I slepte thesame nyght lyke as he commaunded me.

In this Chapter and in the xi. next ensuing, he discribeth of foure beastes and of the interpretacion thereof.

The.xi.Chapter.

A Then sawe I a vision: and behelde, there came vp from the sea an Egle, which had .xii. wynges & three heades: And I sawe, and behelde, he spred his wynges ouer all the earth, & all the windes of the ayre blew in them, and so they were put together agayne. And I behelde, & out of his fethers there grew other litle contrary fethers. The heades rested, the head in the myddest was greater then the other, yet rested it with the residue.

Moreouer I sawe, that & Egle flew with his wynges, and rayned vpon earth, & ouer all them that dwel vpon the earth: and I sawe that all thynges vnder heauen were subiecte vnto him, & no man spake agaynste him, no not one creature vpon earth. I sawe also that the Egle stode vp vpon his clawes, & gaue a voyce with his fethers, and a voyce saying after this maner: watch not al together, slepe euery man in his owne place, and watch for a tyme, but let the heades be preserued at the laste. Neuertheles I sawe, that the voyce went not out of his heades, but frō the middest of his body. And I numbred his contrary fethers, and behelde, there were eyght of them. And I loked, and behelde vpon the right side there arose one fether, and raygned ouer all the earth. And it happened, that whē it raygned, the ende of it came, and the place B thereof appeared no more. So the next following stode vp, and raigned, and had a great tyme: and it happened, that when it raygned the ende of it came also, lyke as the fyrste, so that it appeared nomore.

Then came there a voyce vnto it, & sayde: Heare thou that hast kept in the earth so lōg, this I saye vnto the, before thou be gathered to appeare nomore: There shall none after the attayne vnto thy tyme. Then arose the third, & raigned as the other afore, & appeared nomore also. So wist it with al & residue one after another, for that euery one raigned, & the appeared nomore. Then I loked, & behelde, in processe of time the fethers that followed were set vp vpō the right syde, that they might rule also: some of them ruled, but within a while they appeared nomore: for some of the were set vp, but ruled not. After this I loked, and behelde the .xii. fethers appeared nomore, & two wynges: & there was nomore vpon the Egles body, but .ii. heades that rested, & six fethers. Then sawe I also, that the six fethers were parted in two, & remained vnder & head that was vpō the right side, for the foure ottomed in their place. And I loked, & behelde, that they were vnder the wynges, thought to set vp the litle, & to haue the rule. Then was there one set vp, but shortly it appeared nomore, & the seconde was lesser & more straunge then the first. And I beheld, & lo, the two thought also by the litle to raigne: & whē they so thought, behelde, there waked out of the heades that were at rest, namely, it that was set betwixt for that was & greatest of the two heades. C Anō this I sawe, that the two heades were filled with them, & the head was turned with them that were by them, and eate vp the two vnderwynges, that vnder them raygned. Of what greatnes then two heades.

But this head put the whole earth in feare & hard rule ouer, ouer all those that dwelt vpō earth with much labour, & he had the gouernaūce of the worlde, ouer all the floudes that haue bene. After this I loked, & behelde, the head & was in the middest, sodenly appeared nomore, like as the wynges: for there came two heades, which ruled vpon earth, & ouer those that dwelt therin. And I beheld, & lo, the head vpō D the right syde, deuoured it that was vpō the left side. And I herde a voyce, which said vnto me: Looke before the, & consider the thyng that thou seest. Then I sawe, & behelde, as it were a lyō & raueth, rysing fiercely out of & wood & he sent out a mans voyce vnto the Egle, & spake, & sayde thou, I wil talke with the, and the Lorde shal say vnto the: Art not thou & halfe the residue of the .iiij. beastes, whō I made to raigne vpō earth & in my world, that the ende of their tymes might come thereby?

And the fourth came, & ouercame all the beastes that were past, & had power ouer the world with great fearfulnes, & ouer & whole copasse of the earth with the most wicked labour, & so long time dwelt he vpon the earth with deceat, & the earth hast thou iudged not with truth. For thou hast troubled the meke, thou hast hurte the peaceable & quiete, thou hast loued lyers, & destroyed the dwellinges of the that brought forth fruite, & hast cast downe the walles of such as did the no harme. Therfore is thy wrōgeous dealyng & blasphemye come vp vnto the Lorde, & the proude vnto the mighty. The Lorde also hath loked vpon the proude tymes, and behelde, they are ended, & their abhominacions are fulfilled. And therfore appeare no more thou Egle, and thy horrible wynges, and thy wicked fethers, & thy vngracious heades, & thy sinfull clawes, & all thy vayne body: that the earth may be refreshed, and come again to her self, when she is deliuered frō thy violēce, and that she may hope for the iudgemente and mercy of hym that made her.

The.xii.Chapter.

A And it happened whil the Lorde spake these wordes vnto the Egle, I sawe, & behelde, the head that was left had vanyshed, & appeared nomore: neither did & two wynges appeare any more come to hī, but were set vp to raygne: and their kyngdome was small and full of vprore. And I sawe, and behelde, they appeared no more, & the whole body of the Aegle was brente, and the earthe was in great feare. Then awaked I out of the traunce of my mynde, & from great feare and sayde vnto my spirite: Lo, thou hast geuen me, in that thou searchest out the waie of the Hyest: in yet am I weery in my mynde and very weake in my spirite, & litle strength is there in me, for the great feare that I vnderwent this nyght. Therfore will I now beseche the Hyest, that he will comforte me vnto the ende: and I sayde, Lorde Lord, if I haue founde grace before thy sight, and if I am iustified with the before many other, and if my praier be come vp before thy face, comforte me then and shewe me thy seruaunt the interpretacio and playne difference of this horrible syghte, that thou mayest perfectly comforte my soule: for thou hast iudged me worthy, to shewe me the last of tymes.

And he sayde vnto me: this is the interpretacion of this sight. The Aegle whome thou sawest come vp frō the sea, is the kyngedom whiche was seene in the vision of thy brother Daniel, but it was not expounded vnto him, for now I declare it vnto the. Beholde, the dayes come, that there shall ryse vp a kyngdome vpon earth, & it shalbe feared above all the kyngedomes that were before it. In the same kyngedome shall xii. kynges raygne, one after another. For the seconde shall begynne to raygne, and shall haue more tyme then the other, & this do the xii. wynges signifye, which thou sawest. As for the voyce & spake, & that thou sawest go out frō & braches but not frō the body, it betokeneth, that after the tyme of that kyngedome there shall arise great stryuynges, and it shalbe feared about

And it happened after the seuē dayes, that I dreamed a dreame by night. And beholde there arose a wynde from the sea, that it moued all the waues therof. And I loked, and beholde, this man flewe with the cloudes of heauen: & when he turned his countenaunce to behold, all thinges trembled that were seene vnder him. And whersoeuer the voyce went out of his mouth, all they burnt that herde him, like as the earth when it feeleth the fyre.

Or rather, It became a mā with thousandes.

After these I sawe, & beholde, there was gathered together a multitude of men out of number frō the fower wyndes of the heauē, to fyght against the man, that came out frō the sea. And I loked, and beholde, he graued him selfe a great mountayne, and flewe vp vpon it. But I wolde haue seene the boudes or place, wherevnto the hyll was graued, and I coulde not.

Or rather he hewē out.

I sawe after these, that all they which came to fyght against him, were sore afrayed, & yet durst they fight. Neuertheles when he sawe the fearefulnesse & violence of the people, he neither lift vp his hande nor helde forthe any weapō: but onely (as I sawe) he sent out of his mouth as it were a blast of fyre, and out of his lippes the vapour of the flame: & out of his tunge he cast out sparkes and stormes, and they were all myxte together: the blast of fyre, the vapour of the flamewes, and the great storme, and fell with a rushe vpon the people, which was prepared to fight and burne vp euery whit. So that of the vnnumerable multitude there was nothinge seene, but onely dust and smoke. Whē I sawe this, I was afrayed.

D Afterwarde sawe I the same man come downe frō the mountayne, and calling vnto him another peaceable people: & there came much people vnto him. Some were glad, some were sory, some of them were bounde, & some other bringing were slayne. Then was I sore troubled, and sayde: Thou hast shewed me wonderfull & olde tokens concerning these thinges, and hast graunted all the wonders frō the beginning vnto thy seruaunt: all the whiche thou hast counted me worthy, that thou mightest receyue my prayer: shewe me nowe yet the interpretacion of this dreame. For thus I consider in my vnderstanding: Wo betyde them that shall be lefte in those dayes: and muche more wo betyde them that are not left behynde: for they that were not left, were in heynous

Note vnderstande I the thynges that are layed vp in the latter dayes, which shall happen vnto them, and to those that are not left behynde. Therefore are they come into great perilles, and many vexations, like as these dreames declare. Yet is it easier, & he whosoeuer falleth into these, them to passe as maye one a cloude out of the worlde, and not to se the thinges that shall happē in the latter.

Then answered he me, and sayde: The interpretacion of the fyghte shall I shewe thee, and I will open vnto thee, the thing that thou hast required. As for those shall speaches of them that are lefte behynde, and these is the interpretacion. He that taketh vengeaūce vpon all in that time, shall kepe him selfe. They that be fallen into perilles, are suche as haue vnbeleue & sayth vnto the vnrighteous. Because they see that they which do righteously, are more blessed, then they that be vnrighteous.

Then is the messynge of the tokens. Where as thou sawest a man commynge vp from the depe of the sea, he same is he whom God the Hyest hath kepte a great season, whiche by his owne selfe shall deliuer his creatures, & he shall order them that are left behynde. And where as thou sawest, that out of his mouth there came a blast of wynde, fyre & storme, & how that he spilt vp neither sworde nor weapon, but that the ruffyng in of him destroyed the vnnumerable multitude, that came to fyghte against him: it signifieth, that the dayes come when God will deliuer them that are vpon C earth, & in a trauayle of mynde shall be come vpon them, that dwell in the earth. And one shal vndertake to fyghte against another, one citie against another, one place against another, one people against another, and one realme against another. When these thinges shall come to passe, then shall the tokens come, that I shewed the before: & then shall my sonne be declared, whome thou sawest ryse vp as a man. And whē all the people heare his voice, euery man shall in their owne lande leaue the battayle that they haue one against another, & an vnnumerable multitude shall be gathered together, as they that be willinge to come & to ouercome him by fightynge. But he shall stande vpon the toppe of the mount Sion.

Neuertheles Sion shall come, & shalbe shewed, beynge prepared & builded for all men, like as thou sawest the hyll graued forthe without any handes. But my sonne shall rebuke the people that are come for their wyckednesse, with the tourmēt, and for their vnthankefulnesse and their purpose wherewith they shalbe punyshed, are lyckewyse vnto the fyrmēt: and without any labour, shall he destroye them, euen by the lawe, whiche is compared vnto the fyre.

And where as thou sawest, that he gathered another peaceable people vnto him: vnto nine the ten tribes, which were caryed away captyue out of their owne lande, in the time of Osee the kyng, whome Salemanasar the kynge of Assiria toke captyue, and caryed them ouer the water, and so came they into another lande.

But they gaue them this counsell, that they shoulde leaue the multitude of the heathen, & to go forth into a further countrey, where as D neuer mankynde dwelte: that they myght there kepe their statutes, which they neuer kepte in their owne lande. And so they entred in at the narowe passages of the water of Euphrates, and God shewed tokens for them, & helde tyll the floude tyll they were paſſed ouer. For there was that countre there was a great wast, namely of a yeare & a halfe iourney, for the ſame regyon is called Arareth. Then dwelt they there vnto the latter tyme: & when they come forth agayne, the hyeſt ſhall holde ſtill the ſpringes of the ſtreame agayn, that they may go thorow, therfore ſawest thou the multitude with peace. And they that be left behynde of thy people, are thoſe that be founde within my border. Now when he deſtroyeth the multytude that is gathered together, he ſhall defende hys people that remayne, and then ſhall he ſhewe them great wonders.

Then ſayde I: O Lorde Lorde, ſhewe me thys: wherfore haue I ſene the man comyng vp from the depe of the ſee. And he ſayde vnto me: Lyke as thou canſt not ſeke out or know theſe thynges that are in the depe of the ſea, ruf ſo maieſt thou not ſe my ſonne or thoſe that be with hym, but in the tyme of the daye. Thys is the interpretacion of the dreame which thou ſaweſt, therfore thou only arte here lyghtened: for thou haſt forſaken thyne owne lawe, and applyed thy diligence vnto myne, and ſought it. & thy life haſt thou ordred in wyſedome, & haſte called vnderſtandynge thy mother, & therfore haue I ſhewed the the treaſure of the Hyeſt. After the dayes I will brewe the maze, and talke with the at more large, yea heare and vnderſtonde thynges mych I declare vnto the.

Then went I forth into the felde, geuyng prayſe & thankes greatly vnto God, becauſe of hys wonders which he dyd in tyme, & becauſe he gouerneth the ſame, and ſuche as is in tyme, and there I ſat three dayes.

God reproueth Esdras in the buſh, & telleth him what he ſhall do.

The.xiij. Chapter.

AND the thyrde day I ſat vnder an oke tree, then came there a voyce vnto me out of the buſh, and ſayde: Esdras, Esdras! And I ſayde: here am I Lorde, and ſtode vp vpon my feete. Then ſpake he vnto me: In the buſhe dyd I appeare vnto Moyſes, and talked with hym, when my people ſerued in Egipt. And I ſent hym, and led my people out of Egypte, and brought hym vpon the mount Syna, where I helde hym by me a longe ſeaſon, and tolde hym my wonderous workes, and ſhewed hym the ſecretes of the tymes and the ende, and commaunded hym, ſayenge: Theſe wordes ſhalt thou declare, and not hyde them. And now I ſaye vnto the, that thou laye vp in thyne hert the dreames that thou haſt ſene, and the interpretacion whyche I haue ſhewed the: for thou ſhalt be receyued * of all, thou ſhalt be taken and remayne with my ſeruaunt, & with ſuche as be lyke the, vntyll the tymes be ended. For the worlde hath loſt hys youth, and the tymes begyn to waxe olde. For the tyme is deuyded into twelue partes, & ten partes of it are gone all redy, and halfe of the tenth parte: yet remayneth there two, whych is after the halfe of the tenth parte.

Therfore prepare & order thy houſe, and reſtourne thy people: comforte ſuche of them as be in trouble: and tell now of the deſtruccion: let go from the mortall thoughtes, caſt away the burthens of man: put of the weake nature: laye vp in ſome places the thoughtes that are moſt deare vnto the, and helpe them to flye from theſe tymes. For ſuche euel and wyckednes as thou haſt now ſene happen, ſhall they do yet much worſe. For the weaker that the worlde & the tyme is, the more ſhall ſynne and wyckednes increaſe, in them that dwell vpon earth. For the truth is fled farre away and leſynge * is harde at hande. For nowe * Or rather is hasteth the vyſyon to come, that thou haſte ſene. tarry.

Then anſwered I and ſayde: Beholde Lord, I will go as thou haſt commaunded me and reſtourne the people whyche are preſent. But they that ſhall be borne afterwarde, who will reproue or rebuke them? Thus * the worlde is ſet in darkenes, and they that dwell therin, are without light: for thy lawe is brended, becauſe * no man knoweth the thynges that are done of the, or that ſhalbe done. If I haue founde grace before the, ſende the holy Ghoſte into me, and I ſhall write all that hath bene done in the worlde ſens the begynnynge, whyche was written in thy lawe, that men maye fynde the path, & that they which will lyue in the latter dayes, maye lyue. * Or rather in the.ij. * Or rather wherein.

And he anſwered me, ſayenge: Go thy waye, gather thy people together, and ſaye vnto the, that they ſeke the not in.xl. dayes, but ſeke thou gather the many boke rees, * and take with the Esra, Dabria, Selemia, Ethanus and Aſiell, theſe ſyue, whyche are redy to write ſwyftly, and come hyther, & I ſhall lighte a candle of vnderſtandynge in thyne hert, which ſhall not be put out, tyll the thynges be performed which thou ſhalt begynne to write. And then ſhalte thou declare ſome thynges openly vnto the perfecte, and ſome thynges ſhalt thou ſhewe ſecretly vnto the wyſe. To morowe this houre ſhalt thou begynne to wryte. * Or rather by and by.

Then went I forth (as he commaunded me) and gathered all the people together, & ſayd: Heare theſe wordes O Iſrael. Our fathers from the begynning were ſtrangers in Egipte, from whence they were delyuered, & receyued the lawe of lyfe, whych they kepte not, which ye alſo haue tranſgreſſed after them. Then was the lande and the lande of Iewry parted amonge you by lot to poſſeſſe. But your fathers & ye your ſelues alſo haue done wyckedneſſes, and haue not kepte & wayes which the Hyeſt commaunded you. And for ſo much as he is a righteous iudge, he toke from you in ſpace the thynge that he had geuen you. And now are ye here and your brethren amonge you. Therfore if ſo be that ye wyll

For after death shall the iudgement come, when we shall lyue agayne: and then shal the names of the righteous be manifest, and the workes of the ungodly with their wonders shall be declared. Let no man therefore come vnto me, nor aske any question at me these.xl. dayes.

So I tooke the fyue men (as he commaunded me) and we went into the felde, and remayned there. The next daye a voyce called me saying: Esdras, open thy mouth, & drinke that I geue the. Then opened I my mouth, & beholde, he reached me a full cuppe, whych was full of water, but the colour of it was lyke fyre. And I tooke it and dranke. And when I had dronke it, my hert had vnderstanding and wysedome grewe in my breste: for my spirite was kepte in remembraunce, and my mouth was opened and shut nomore. The hyest gaue vnderstanding vnto the fyue men, that they wrote the hye thynges of the nyght, which they vnderstode not. But in the nyght they ate breadcan for me, I spake in the daye, and held not my tonge by nyghte. In xl. dayes, they wrote two hundred and fourty bokes.

And it happened when the.xl. dayes were fulfylled, that the hyest spake saying: The firste that thou hast written, speake openly, that the worthy and vnworthy maye reade it. But kepe the.lxx. laste, that thou mayest shewe it onely vnto suche as be wyse amonge thy people. For in them is the springe of vnderstandyng, the fountayne of wysedome, and the streame of knowlege. And I dyd so.

The gentlenesse that god vseth toward people that knowe, which God commaundeth others to shewe vnto them.

The.xiij.Chapter.

BEholde, speake thou in the eares of my people the wordes of god, here, whyche I will put in thy mouth, sayeth the Lorde: and cause them to be written in a letter, for it is the truethe. Feare not the imaginations against the, ne yet the vnfayethfulnes of them trouble the, that speake against the. For all the vnfayethfull shall dye in their vnfayethfulnes. Beholde (sayeth the Lorde) I will bringe plages vpon the worlde, the swerde, honger, death and destruccion, for wickednes hath the vpperhand in all the earth, and their shamefull workes are fulfylled.

Therfore sayeth the Lorde: I will holde my tonge awaye vnto their vnchristenesse, which they do so vngodlye vse: I will suffre them in the thynges that they deale with all so wickedly. Beholde, the innocent blonde of the troubled crieth vnto me, and the sowles of the righteous complayne continually: and therfore (sayeth the Lorde) I will surely auenge, and requyre vnto me all the innocent blonde from among them.

Beholde, my people, is lyke as a flocke of shepe to be slayne. I will not suffre them more to dwell in Egypte, but will bringe the out with a mighty hande & a stretched out arme, & smyte it with plages as afore, and will destroye all the lande of Egypte. Shal mourne and the fountaynes of it shalbe full of shepe with the plage and pore swarme, that God shall bringe vpon it.

They that till the grounde, shal mourne: for their frutes shall be destroyed through the blasting and hayle, and an horrible flame.

Wo vnto the worlde and them that dwell therin, for the swerde and their destruccion hasteth vpe, and one people shall ryse vp to fyghte against another, and swerdes in their handes. For men shall be vnlouelye, & some shall go violent vnto other: they shall not regarde their kynge and rulers, the wayes of their voyages and handlynges in their power. A man shall desyre to go into the cyties, and shall not be able. For because of their pryde the cyties shalbe disquyet in fear the houses shall shake, & men shalbe afeared. A man shall haue no pytie vpon his neyghbour, but one shall prouoke another vnto hat tapt to spoyle their goodes because of the hunger of bread, & because of the great trouble.

Beholde, I gather and call together all the kynges of the earth which are from the west, sayeth from the South, from the East and Lybanus to turne vnto them, and reward the thynges that they haue geuen them. Lyke as they do yet this daye vnto my chosen, so will I do also, and recompense them in their bosome. Thus sayeth the Lorde God: My ryghte hand shall not spare the synners, and my swerde shall not cease ouer them, that shedde the innocent blonde vpon earth. The feare is gone out from hym vnto all, and hath vtterlye the foundacions of the earth, and the synners lyke the floude that is kyndled. Wo vnto the them that synne, and kepe not my commaundements, sayeth the Lorde. I will not spare them. Go your ways ye children from me, perysshe out my sanctuary: for the Lord knoweth all them that synne against hym, and therfore deliuereth he them vnto death and destruccion. For now are the plages come vpon the worlde, and ye shall remayne in them. For God shall not deliuer you, because ye haue synned against hym.

Beholde, an horryble vision cometh from the East, where generacions of Duagla shal come out, and the people of the Arabes with many charettes, and the multytude of them shalbe as the wynde vpon earth, that al they which shall heare them, shall feare and be afeared: and as the wylde beare out of the wood, so shal they go out, & with great power shall they come, and lyke fyghters with them, and shall make the pastures of the lande of the Alpanes.

And then shall the Dragon heare the hyperborite, and remayninge there both and Cccc.iii. shall shall turne about swearynge together in greate power, to persecute them. But they shalbe afrayed, & kepe silence at their power, and shal se: ye out of the tide of the Assyrians shal beliege them, & consume one of the and in their hoost shall be feare & drede, and stryfe amonge their kynges.

Beholde cloudes from the East, and from the North vnto the South, and they are very horrible to loke vpon, full of wrath & storme.
They shall smyte one vpō another, and they shall smyte at the great starre vpon earth, & their starre, and the bloude shalbe frome the swerde vnto the belly, and the smoke of man vnto the Camels spiter: * And there shalbe great fearfulnes and trembleyng vpō earth, & they that se the wrath, shalbe afrayed, and a trembleynge shall come vpon them.

* Or rather, the slaughter that be such that & bloude shalbe kelp depe, and the floud of mans bloude to the camels grathe.

And then shall there come greate tapnes from the South and from the North, & part from the West, and from the stormy wynde
from the East, and shall shat the vp agayne,
and the cloude which he rapsed vp in wrath,
and the starre to cause feare toward the East & West wynde, shalbe destroyed: & the great cloudes shalbe spit vp, & the mighty cloudes full of wrath, and the starre, that they maye make all the earth afrayed & them that dwell therin, and that they maye poure oute ouer all places an horrible starre, fyre & hayle and sterynge swerdes, and many waters: that all fieldes maye be full, and all ryuers, and they shall brake doune the cities & walles, moun-taines and hylles, al trees, wood, & the grasse of the medowes, and all their fruite. And they shall go strayght vnto Babilon, & make her afrayed, they shal come to her & beliege her:
the starre and all wrath shall they poure out vpon her.

Then shall the dust and smoke go vp vnto
the heauen, and all they that be about her, shall bewayle her: and they that remayn vnder her, shall do seruyce vnto them that haue put her in feare. And thou Asia that cōforteste thy selfe also vpon the hope of Babilon, and art a worshippe of her personne: Wo be vnto
the thou wretch, because thou hast made thy selfe lyke vnto her, & hast decked thy daughters in whoredome, that they might trimme and pleasse thy louers, whiche haue alwaye delyred to commyt whoredome with the: thou hast folowed the abhominable cyte in al her workes and murmures.

Therfore sayeth God: I will sende plagues
vpon the, wyt dothedde, pouerte, hūger, warre, and pestilence, to waste thy houses with destruccion and death, and the glory of thy power shall be dryed vp as a flour, whē the heat ariseth that is sent ouer the. Thou shalt be sycke as a poore wife that is plaged wyth of women: so that the mighty and towers shal not be able to recyue the. Wouldst I so hate the (sayeth the Lorde)? If thou haddest not alwayes stirred my choler, & stryuynge the stroke of thy handes, & sayde ouer thine death, why thou wast vnmercyfull saith the beauty of thy countenance.

The rewarde of thy whoredome shalbe recompensed the in thy bosome, therefore shalt thou recyue * rewarde. * Some copies no rewarde.

Lyke as thou hast done vnto my chosen (sayeth the Lorde) euen so shall God do vnto the, and shall deliuer the into the plage. Thy chyldren shall dye of honger, and thou shalte fall thorow the swerd. Thy cities shalbe broken doune, and all thyne shal perish with the swerde in the feldes. They that be in the moūtaynes shall dye of honger, & eate their owne flesh, and drynke their owne bloude for very hōger of bred and thirst of water. Thou vn-happy shalt come thorow the sea, and receyue plages agayne.

In the passage they shall caste doune the flayne cytie, & shall rote oute one parte of thy lande, & consume the portion of thy glorye.
They shall treade the doune lyke stubble, & they shall be thy fyre and shall consume the:
thy cytyes and thy lande, thy wood & thy fru-tefull trees shall they burne vp with the fyre.
Thy chyldren shall they carry awaye captyue
and loke what thou hast, they shall spoyle it, and marre the beautye of thy face.

The heathen shalbe punished.

The.xvi.Chapter.

WO be vnto the Babilon & Assiria: wo be vnto the Egipte & Syria: gyrde your selues with clothes of sacke & heere, & mourne for your chyldren, be sory, for your destruccion is at hande. A swerde is sent vpon you, & who will turne it backe? A fyre is kyndled amōg you, & who wil quenche it?
Plages are sent vnto you, & what is he that will dryue the away? Maye any man dryue awaye an hongry Lyō in the wood? Or may any man quench the fyre in the stubble, whā it hath begōne to burne? Maye one turne againe the arowe, that is shot of a strōg archer?
The mighty Lorde sendeth the plages, and what is he that will dryue them awaye? The fyre is kyndled & gone forth in hys wrath, & what is he that will quench it? He shall caste lightninges, & who shal not feare? He shall thunder, and who shall not be afrayed? The Lord shal threaten, and who shall not vtterly be beaten to poulder at hys presence? The earth quaketh, & the foundacions therof: the sea ariseth vp with waues frō the depe, & the flouders of it are vnquyete & the fishes therof also before the Lord, & before the glory of his power. For stronge is hys right hande that bolteth the bowe, hys arrowes that he sha-teth, are sharpe, & shal not mysse, whē they be-gynne to be shot into the endes of the world.

Beholde, the plages are sent, and shall not turne agayne, tyll they come vpō earth. The fyre is kyndled, and shall not be put out, tyll
it cōsume the foundacions of the earth. Lyke as an arrowe whiche is shot of a mighty archer, returneth not backwarde: euen so the plages

plages that shall be sent vpon earth, shal not turne agayne. Wo is me, wo is me, who wil delyuer me in those dayes? The beginninge

D rather * of sorowes and great mournynge: the begynninge of darth and great death: the beginninge of warres, and the powers shall shake earth, and lo of in feare the beginninge of euils, and they shal tremble euery one. What shall I do in these thynges, when the plages come? Beholde, honger, and plage, trouble and anguysh are sent, as scourges for amendement. But for all these thynges they shall not turne from their wyckednesse, nor be alwaye myndefull of the scourges.

C Beholde, victayles shalbe so good chepe vpon earth, that they shall thynke them selfe to be in good case: and euen then shall mischefe growe vpon earth, warres, dauth and great disquyetnes. For many of them that dwell vpon earth shall perish of honger, and the other that escape the honger, shall the swerde destroye: and the dead shalbe caste out as dounge, and there shalbe no man to admonysh them. For the earth shalbe wasted, and the cytyes shalbe caste doune: there shalbe no man left to tyll the earth and to sowe it. The trees shall growe fruyt, and who shall pluckе the of and gather them? The grapes shall be ripe, and who shall treade them? For all places shalbe desolate of men, so that one man shall desyre to se another, or to heare hys voyce. For of one whole cyte there shalbe ten left, & two in the felde, whiche shall hyde the selues in the thycke bushes, and in the clyfes of stones: lyke as when there remayne three or foure olyues vpon the olyue tree, or as when a vyneyarde is gathered, there are left some grapes, of them that diligently sought thorowe the vyneyarde.

D Euen so in those dayes there shalbe that or foure left, for the that searche their houses with the swerde. And the earth shalbe lefte waste, and the felde shall waxe olde: and her wayes and all her pathes shal growe full of thornes, because no man shall transacte there thorow. The daughters shall mourne, hauinge no bydegromes: the woman shall make lamentacion, hauinge no housbandes, their daughters shall mourne, hauynge no helpe of their bydegroume. In the warres shall they be destroyed, and their housbandes shall perishe of honger. O ye seruauntes of the Lorde, heare these thinges, and marke the. Beholde, the worde of the Lorde, O receyue it: beholde, the plages draw nye and are not slacke in comyng. Lyke as a trauayling woman whanne after the xi. moneth hyr nyeth fourth a sonne, when the houre of the byrthe is come, an houre two or three afore that the paynes come vpon her body, * and when the chylde

D rather help. cometh to the byrth, they tary not the twynkelynge of an eye: Euen so shall not the plages be slacke to come vpon earth, & the world shall mourne, and sorowes shal come vpon it on euery syde.

O my people, heare my worde, make you ready to the battayll, and in all euell be euen as pylgrems vpon earth. Be that selleth, let hym be as he that flyeth his wayfarand: he that byeth, as one that wil lese. Whoso occupyeth marchaundyse, as he that vseth not: and he that buyldeth, as he that shall not dwell therein: he that sowyth, as one that shall not reape: he that pruneth the vyneyarde, as he that shall not gather the grapes: they that marry, as they that shall get no chyldren: and they that marry not, as the wyddowes: and therfore they that laboure, labour in vayne. For straungers shall reape their fruyte, and spoyle their goodes, marthaw their houses, and take their chyldren captyue, for in captyuite an honger shall they get chyldren. And they that occupye their merchaundyse with robbery, how log they dech their cytyes, their houses, their possessions, and persones: the more will I punyshe them for their synnes, sayeth the Lord. Lyke as an whore enuyeth an honest woman, so shall ryghteousnes hate iniquyte, when she decketh her self, and shall accuse her to her face, when he commeth that defendeth, which shall make inquysicion for all synne vpon earth. And therfore be not ye lyke therunto, nor to the workes therof: for or euer it be longe, iniquyte, shalbe taken away out of the earth, and ryghteousnes shall reygne amonge you.

Let not the synner saye, that he hath not synned: for coles of fyre shall burne vpō hys head, which sayeth before the Lord God and hys glory: I haue not synned. Beholde, the Lorde knoweth all the workes of men, their imaginacions, their thoughtes and their hertes. For he spake but the worde: let the earth be made, and it was made: let the heauen be made, & it was made. In his worde were the starres made, and he knoweth the numbre of them. He searcheth the grounde of the depe, and the treasures therof: he hathe measured the sea, and what it conteyneth. He hath shut the sea in the myddest of the waters, & with hys woorde hath he hanged the earth vpō the waters. He spreadeth out the heauen lyke a bawte, vpon the waters hathe he founded it. In the desertes and depe wylderues hathe he made sprynges of water, and pooles vpon the toppes of the mountaynes, that the floodes might powre doune from the steep rockes to water the earth. He made man, and putte hys herte in the myddest of the body, & gaue hym breth, lyfe and vnderstandynge, yea, and the spirite of the almyghty God, which made all thinges, and hath searched the ground of all the secretes of the earth.

He knoweth youre imaginacions and inuencions, and what ye thynke when ye synne and wolde hyde your synnes. Therfore hath the Lord searched and sought out all your workes, and he shall destroye you all. And when your synnes are brought forth, ye shalbe ashamed before men, & your owne sinnes

shalbe poure accusers in that daye. What wyll ye do? O: how will ye hyde your syn-nes before God and hys Aungels? Behold, God hym selfe is the iudge, feare hym, leaue
of from your synnes, & forget your wycked trouthlesse, and medle nomore with them: so shall God wade you forthe, and deliuer you from all trouble. For behold, the brute of a great multitude is kyndled ouer you, & they shall take awaye certayne of you, & fede the pole with the Idols: & they that consent vnto them, shalbe had in derision, laughed to scorn
and troden vnder fote.

Or rather, shall hyt them to fede Idoles withall.

For vnto the places there shalbe a place,
and in the next cities a great insurrection vpo thole that feare the Lorde. They shall be like mad men, they shall spare no man: they shall spoyle and waste suche as feare the Lorde, their goodes shall they take from them, and shatte them out of their houses. Then shall it be knowen who are my chosen, & they shalbe tryed as the gold in the fyre. Heare O ye my beloued, saieth the Lorde: beholde, the dayes of trouble are at hande, but I will deliuer
you from the same. Be not ye afrayed, dyfpayre not, for God is your captayne.

Who so keepeth my commaundements and precepts (saieth the Lorde God) let not your synnes weygh you downe, and let not your wycked trouthlesse be lyft vp. Wo be vnto them that are subdued vnto their synnes, and stycke in their wickednesse: for a fylde is hedged in with busshes, and the path therof cou-ered with thornes,
that no man
maye tra-uayle therein: and so to be taken, and cast in the fyre, & burnt.

The ende of the iiii. boke of Esdras.

The boke of Tobias.

Tobias beynge taken prysoner, for whych cause the lande of Israhel, the cyte and chyefe of Tobias, and the maners of hym in hys youth. He taketh Ebi-nam to wyfe, by whome he hath a sonne named Tobias. He sendeth Gabel for money. He is his one farme to Rages, but after the death of Shemaliasar that reigned egipte.

The.I.Chapter.

Tobias was of the tribe & cite of Nephtali, which syeth in the hygh countrey of Galile aboue Naason & way towarde the West, hauyng the cite of Ne-

Though he was taken prysoner in ye dayes of Salmanasar kyng of the Assirians, neuer-theles beyng in captiuite, he forsoke not the waye of truth: In so muche that whatsoeuer
he might get, he parted it daply with hys felow prysoners and brethren, that were of his kynred. And though he were yonger then all in the tribe of Nephtali, yet did not he behaue hym selfe childishly in hys workes. And whe all the other went to the golde calues, which Jeroboam the kynge of Israel had made, he hym selfe alone fled all their companies, and gat him to Hierusalem vnto the temple of the Lorde, and there worshipped the Lorde God of Israel, faythfully offeringe of all his first frutes and tythes, so that in the thyrde yeare
he minystred all the tythes vnto the straun-gers and couerters. These & suche lyke thin-ges did he accordyng to the law of God, whe
he was yet but yonge.

But when he was a man, he tooke vnto hys owne tribe a wyfe called Anna, and of her he begat a sonne, whome he called after hys owne name, and taught hym from his youth vp, to feare God, and to refrayn from all synne.

Now

Dwyse when he with his wyfe, hys sonne & with all his howse was come to captyuite vnto Ninive, what time as they al ate of the meates of the heathen, he kept hys soule, & was neuer defyled in their meates. And for so much as he was myndefull of the Lord in all his dede, God gaue him fauour in the sight of Salmanasar the kynge, whych gaue him power to go where he wolde, and so had he libertie to do what hym lyst.

C He went Tobias vnto al them that were in prison, and comforted theym, & gaue them wholsome exortacions. And when he came to Rages a cytye of the Medes, hauynge x. tal. talentes of syluer (of the rewardes wherwith the kyng had honoured hym) & satte among a greate company of people of hys kynred, one Gabelius (which was of his owne tribe) beynge in necessitie, he gaue hym the sayde weyght of syluer vnder an hand wrytyng.

After a longe season when Salmanasar the kynge was dead, and Sennacherib hys sonne reygned in hys stede, which hated the childre of Israel. Tobias wet dayly throwe out all hys kynred, and comforted them, and gaue of hys goodes to euery one of them, as much as he might: he fed the hungry, clothed the naked, and buryed the dead and slayne, & that diligently.

And when Sennacherib the kyng came a- D gayne and fled out of Jewry (what tyme as God punished hym for his blasphemye) & in his wrath slewe many of the children of Israel Tobias buried their bodies. But whē it was tolde the kynge, he commaunded to slaye him, and take awaye all his goodes. Therefore Tobias with hys sonne and with hys wyfe fled hys waye, and was hyd naked, for there were many that loued hym. But after.xl. dayes the kynge was slayne of hys owne sonnes. Then came Tobias agayne to hys house, and all hys goodes restored vnto hym.

Tobias loued God of his hertes so dere God to a louer as God. he so reyoyced of his kyndred. He feared God more then the kynge. He boldely stirred by the gouernaūce and holy comē of God, his brethren vnto vertue.

The.ij.Chapter.

A After these thynges vpon a fes- tyual daye of the Lord, Tobias made a good feast in hys house, and sayd vnto his sonne: Go thy waye and bryng hyther some of oure tribe, suche as feare God, that they maye make merye with vs. And when he was gone, he came agayne, and tolde hys father, that one of the children of Israel laye slayne vpon the strete. And immediatly he leapt from his table, left the feast, came lytinge to the dead corse, tooke hym and bare hym priuely in to hys house, that when the Sonne was downe, he myght lykly burye hym. And when he had hyd the corse, he eate hys meate with mournyng and feare, remē- bryng the woordes, that the Lorde sayeth by the prophet Amos: yeares hys feastes shalbe turned to sadnesse and heuynes.

But when the Sonne was downe, he wēt B his waye & buryed hym. Then all his neyghbours reproued hym, saying: It is not longe, sens it was commaunded to slaye the because of thys matter, and hadst scarce escaped the daunger of death, and buryest them the dead agayne? Neuertheles Tobias fearynge God more then the kynge, toke the bodyes of the slayne, hyd them in hys house, and buried them at mydnyght.

It happened vpon a daye, that he had bu- C ried the dead, and was wery, came home, & layed hym downe by the walle & slept. And whyle he was a slepe, there fell some hote dong out of the swallowes nest, so that he was blynde. This thyng did God suffer to happē vnto hym, that they whych came after, myght haue an example of hys pacience, like as of holy Job. For in so muche as he euer feared God frō his youth vp, and kept hys commaūdements, he was not angry against God, that the plage of blyndnes chaūced vnto hym, but remayned stedfast in the feare of God, & thanked God all the dayes of hys lyfe.

For lyke as vnto Job was laid in despi- D tion of kynges, euen so was he laughed to scorne of hys elders and kinsfolkes, whyche sayd vnto hym: where is thy hope, for the whych thou hast done almes and buryed the dead? But Tobias rebuked them, and spake: Saye not so, for we are the children of holy men, and loke for the lyfe, whyche God shall geue vnto them, that neuer turne their beleue from him. Anna his wyfe went dayly to the weruynge worke, and toke what wages she could get with the labour of her handes, she brought it. And it happened that she toke a kyd and brought it home.

And when her husbande herde it crye, he sayde: looke that it be not stolen, restore it agayne to the owners: for it is not lawful for vs, to eate or to touche any thynge of theft. Then was hys wyfe angrye, & sayde: Now se is thy hope become vayne openly, and thy almes deades are manyfest. Wyth theft and suche lyke woordes dyd she vexe hym in the tethe.

The grefe of Tobias. Anna the daughter of Raguel is blamed of her fathers brethren. The prayer and lamētynge of Tobias: and also his mourning and sadnes of hert. The prayers of Tobias and of Sara are heard.

The.iij.Chapter.

Then Tobias toke it heuyly, and A with teares begonne to make his prayer saying: O Lord thou arte righteous, and all thy iudgementes are true, yea, all thy wayes are mercy, faythfulnes and iudgement. And now O Lorde be mynderfull of me, and take no vengeaunce of my sinnes, neyther remember my misdedes, neither the misdedes of my elders. For we haue not bene obedient vnto thy commaundementes, therefore are we spoyled, brought into captiuitie, into death, into derision & shame vnto all nations among whom thou hast scatred vs. And now O Lorde, thy iudgementes are great, for we haue not done accordinge to thy commaundementes, neyther haue we walked innocently before the. And now O Lord, deale with me accordinge to thy will, and commaunde my spirite too be receyued in peace, for more expedient were it for me to dye, then to lyue.

B At the same tyme it happened, that Sara the daughter of Raguell at Rages a cytye of the Medes was slaundred of one of her fathers handmaydes, namely, that she shulde haue had seuen housbandes, whiche as soone as they were gone in vnto her, were slayne of the deuel called Almodeus. Therfore when she reproued the mayden for her faulte, she answered her, sayinge: God let vs neuer se sonne nor daughter of the mare vpon earthe, thou kyller of thy housbandes. Wilt thou slay me also, as thou hast slayne seuen men? At this woord went Sara into an hye chamber of her house, and the dayes & the nightes she neyther eate nor dranke, but continued in prayer, and besoughte God with teares, that he wolde deliuer her from this rebuke.

Vpon the thirde daye it chaunced, that when she had made an ende of her prayer, she prayed the Lord saying: Blessed be thy name O God of our fathers, which when thou art wroth, shewest mercy, & in the time of trouble thou forgeuest the synnes of them, that call vpon the. Vnto the O Lorde turne I my face, vnto the lyft I vp myne eyes. I beseche the O Lorde, louse me out of the bondes of this rebuke, or els take me vtterly awaye frō of the earth. Thou knowest Lorde, that I neuer had desyre vnto man, & that I haue kept my soule cleane from all vnchastly lust. I haue not kept company with those that walke their tyme in sporte, neyther haue I made my selfe partaker with them that walke in lighte behauioure. Neuertheles an housbande haue I consented to take, not for my pleasure, but in thy feare.

D Vnto prouidence either I haue bene vnworthy of them, or els were they vnmete for me, for thou happly hast kept me to another housband. For why? the counsayl is not in the power of man. But whosoeuer feareth the and letteth the a right, is sure, that if hys lyfe be tempted and proued, it standeth in the tryenge: and if he endure in patience, he shall haue a rewarde and be lyfte crowned: and if he be in trouble, that God (no doubte) shall deliuer him: & if hys lyfe be in chastenynge, that he shall haue leaue to come vnto thy mercy.

For thou hast no pleasure in our dampnacion: and why? after a storme thou makest the weather faire and styll: after weping and heynous thou geuest great ioye. Thy name O God of Israel, be prayed for euer. At the same tyme were both their prayers hearde in the sight of the magestye of the hyest God. And Raphael the holy Aungell of the Lorde was sent to helpe them both, whose prayers came together before God.

Tobias thinkinge to dye geueth a godly exhortacion and monicion to his sonne.

The.iiii.Chapter.

A SO when Tobias thought his prayer to be herde, & he mighte dye, he called vnto him his sonne Tobias, and sayde vnto him: My sonne, heare the woordes of my mouth, and lay them in thine hert as a foundacion. When God taketh awaye my soule, burye thou my body, and hold thy mother in honoure all the dayes of her lyfe. For thou oughtest too remembre, what and how greate perels she suffred for the in her woombe. And when she also hath fulfil'ed the tyme of her lyfe, burye her beside me. Haue God in thy thought all the dayes of thy life, and beware, leste at any tyme thou consente vnto synne, and leste thou lette slippe the commaundementes of the Lorde our God.

Geue almes of thy goodes, and turne neuer thy face from the poore, & so shal it come B to passe, that the face of the Lorde shall not be turned awaye from the. Be mercifull after thy power. If thou hast much, geue plenteously: if thou hast litle, do thy diligēce gladly to geue of that litle. For so gatherest thou thy selfe a good rewarde in the daye of necessitie. For almes deliuereth * from death, and suffereth not the soule too come in darkenes. A ꝛ̄e almes (sayth great comforte is almes before the hye God, from death vnto all them that do it. * Some mis

My sonne, kepe the well from all whoredome, and (beside thy wyfe) se that no faulte be knowen of the. Let neuer pryde haue rule in thy mynde nor in thy woorde, for in pryde begynneth all destruction. C

Whatsoeuer woorketh any thynge for the, immediatly geue hym his hyre, and lose that thy hyred seruauntis wages remayne not by the ouer nyght. Loke that thou neuer do vnto another man, the thynge that thou woldest not another man shoulde do vnto the. Gyue thy bred with the hongry and poore, and couer the naked with thy clothes. Set thy bred and wyne vpon the buriall of the righteous, and do not thou eate and drinke therof with the synners. Aske euer counsayll at the wyse.

Be all wayes thankeful vnto God, and beseche him, that he will addre thy wayes, and that whatsoeuer thou desirest or takest in hande, it may remayne in him. I certefie the also my sonne, that (when thou wast yet but a babe) I deliuered ten talentes of syluer vnto Gabelus, at Rages a cytie of the Medes, and his handwritting haue I by me. And therfore seke some meanes, how thou mayest come by him, and receyue of him the sayde weyghte of syluer, and geue him his handwritynge again.

My sonne, be not afrayed: truth it is, we liue

lyade here a paure lyfe: but greate good shall the haue, yf we feare God, and departe from all synne, and do well.

The obedyence of yonge Tobias to his father, wherby he fore vnto Rages. An Aungell accompanyeth them in the iourney.

The.v.Chapter.

Then answered Tobias his father, and sayde: father, all that thou hast commaunded me, will I do, and that diligently. But how I shal receyue this money I can not tell. Neyther doth he knowe me, nor I hym. What token shall I geue hym? And as for the way that he, I neuer knewe it. Then his father answered him, and sayde: I haue his handwritynge by me, whiche when thou shewest hym, immediatly he shall paye the. But go thy waye now, & get the some faythfull man to go with the for an hyre, that thou mayest receyue the money, whyle I am yet lyuing. Then went Tobias out, and vpō the ryuer he founde a fayre yongman standyng, gyrded vp, as it were on ready to take his iourney. And he knewe not that it was an Aungel of God, but saluted him, and sayde: Frō whence arte thou, thou good yongeman? He answered: Of the chyldren of Israel.

And Tobias sayde vnto hym: knowest thou the waye, that leadeth vnto the countre of the Medes? He answered: I knowe it well, and all those stretes haue I gone often tymes, and haue lodged without brother Gabelus, that dwelleth in Rages a cyte of the Medes, which lieth vpon the mount Ecbathanis. Tobias sayde vnto hym: I praye the, tarye for me, till I haue tolde my father these thinges. Then went Tobias in, & tolde his father al. At the which his father maruayled, & prayed y he wolde come in vnto him.

Brother Gabelus.

Now when the aungel came in, he saluted hym, and sayde: Ioye be with the for euermore. And vnto Tobias sayde: what ioy can I haue that lyue here in darkenes, & se not the light of heauen? The yongman sayde vnto hym: Be of good chere, God shall helpe the shortly. And Tobias sayde vnto hym: Canst thou bringe my sonne to Gabelus, vnto the cyte of Rages in Medea? And when thou comest agayne, I shall paye the thy hyre. And the Aungell sayde vnto hym: I shall leade thy sonne, & bringe him to the agayne. Then Tobias answered hym: tell me I praye the, of what house, or of what tribe art thou? The Aungell Raphael sayde vnto hym: Askest thou after the houred of an hyrelyng, or lykest thou a gyde for the sonne to go with hym? But that I make the not careful, I am Azarias the sonne of greate Ananias. And Tobias answered: thou art come of a great houred: but I praye the, be not displeased, that I desyred to knowe thy houred. The Aungell sayde vnto hym: thy sonne shall I leade faythfully, and bringe hym whole to the agayne.

Then answered Tobias, and sayde vnto hym: go on your waye, and God be in your iourney, and his Aungell leade you alonge. And when they had prepared all thinges, that they wolde take with them in their iourney: Tobias had his father & his mother fare well, and they went on their waye both together. Now when they were gone, his mother began to wepe, and sayde: The staf of our age haste thou taken awaye, and sente him from vs.

Wolde God that money had neuer bene, for the which thou hast sent him awaye. If we had bene content with oure pouerte, we had bene greate ryches vnto vs, that we sawe oure sonne here. Then sayde Tobias vnto her: wepe not, oure sonne shall come vnto vs agayne safe and sounde, & thine eyes shall se him. For I trust, that a good Aungel of God shall leade him compasse, and bringe wel all the thinges that he doth: so that he shal come to vs agayne with ioye. At these wordes his mother left of from weppynge, and helde her tonge.

Yonge Tobias is returned from the ryuer by the Aungel. The Aungell ordereth Tobias to take fish to his vse.

The.vi.Chapter.

So Tobias went on his waye, & a dogge followed him, and the fyrst nyght they abode by the water of Tigris. Then wente he out to wasshe his fete, & behelde, there came forth an horrible fyshe to deuoure him. Of whome Tobias was afrayed, and cried with a loude voice, sayeng: Loude, he cometh vpon me. And the Aungell sayde vnto him: Take him by the chyrbalde, & drawe him to the. And he did so, & drewe him vpō the lande. And the fyshe began to leape at his fete.

Then sayde the Aungell vnto him: Take out the bowels of this fyshe, & lay the hert, the gall and the lyuer, kepe them by the. For these thinges are necessary and good for medicine. Tobias dyd so, and rosted the fyshe, and they take him with them in their iourney: the reste that they salted, for as much as was sufficient for them, tyll they came to Rages.

Then Tobias asked the Aungel, & sayde vnto him: I praye the brother Azarias, tell me, where to are these thinges good of the fyshe, that thou hast bidden me kepe?

The Aungel answered him & sayde: If thou layest a pece of the hert vpon the coales the smoke therof dryueth awaye all maner of euyll spirites, whether it be frome man or frō woman, so that frō thence forth y same shal come nomore vnto the. The gall is good to anoynte or to strike the eyes withall, where as there is any blemish in them, so shall they be whole.

And Tobias sayde vnto him: brother where wilt thou that we remayne? The Aungell answered & sayde: There is one husband of thine, one Raguell by name, whyche hathe a daughter called Sara, & hath neyther sonne nor daughter but her. All the good he hath vnto the,

and thou must marye hys daughter: ¶ therefore delyre her of her father, and he shal geue her the to wyfe. Then answered Tobias ¶ sayde: As I vnderstãde, she hath bene maried vnto seuen housbãdes, and they all are dead: And I haue herde saye, that the deuell sleweth. I am afrayed therfore, lest such thinges happē vnto me also: which if it came to passe (seynge I am the onely sonne of my father ¶ my mother) I should bringe thē in their age with sorowe to their graues.

D Then sayd the aungel Raphael vnto him Heare me, and I will tell the what they be of whome the deuell hath power. Namely, they that receyue mariage of suche a fashion, that they shut God out from the ¶ frō their hert, ¶ geue thē selues to their awne lust, euē as it were an horse ¶ Mule, wherin haue no vnderstanding: vpō such hath the deuell power. But when thou takest her, ¶ arte come into the chamber, withholde thy selfe from her three dayes, ¶ geue thy diligence vnto nothynge but vnto prayer with her.

And in the first nyght roste the lyuer of the fish, ¶ the deuell shalbe driuen away. The seconde nyght shalt thou be receyued into the compayny of the holy patriarkes. The thirde nyght shalt thou optayne the blessing of God so that wholy children shalbe borne of you. After the third nyght take the mayden in the feare of God, and more for the desire of children, then for any fleshly lust: that in the sede of Abraham thou mayest optayne the blessynge in children.

Yonge Tobias and the Aungell come to the house of Raguel. He requyreth Raguels daughter to wyfe and obteyneth her.

The.viij. Chapter.

3 Then went they into Raguel, which receyued them ioyfully. And whē Raguell lokyd vpon Tobias, he sayde vnto Anna his wyfe: How lyke is this yongemā vnto my systers sonne. And when he had spoken thus, he sayd: where be ye good brethren? They sayd: Of the tribe of Nephthali, out of the captyuite of Ninive. Then sayde Raguel vnto them: know ye my brother Tobias? They sayde: yea, we know him well. And when he had spoken moche good of him, the Aungel sayd vnto Raguel: Tobias of whome thou askest, is the yongmans father. Then Raguel bowed him self downe, and wept, tooke him about the necke and kyssed him, ¶ sayde: Gods blessyng haue thou my sonne, for thou arte the sonne of a good vertuous man. And Anna his wife and Sara his daughter wept also.

B Now when they had talked together, Raguel had kylled a wether, and to make a feaste. And when he prayed them to sitte downe too dynner, Tobias sayd: I will neyther eate nor dyncke here, vnto the daye, except thou fyrste graunte me my petycion, and promyse me to geue me thy daughter Sara. When Raguel herde this, he was astonyed, for he knewe, what had happened vnto the other husbandes, that went in vnto her: and he begane too feare that it shoulde chaunce vnto him also in lyke maner.

And whyle he stode so in doute, ¶ gaue the yongeman no answere, the Aungell sayde vnto him: Feare not to geue him thy daughter, for vnto this man that feareth God, belongeth thy daughter to wife, therfore might none other haue her.

Then sayd Raguel: I doute not, but God C hath accepted my prayers and teares in his sight: and I trust he caused you to come vnto me for the same intent, that this daughter of myne might be maried in her owne kynred, accordynge to the law of Moyses. And now doute thou not, but I wil geue her vnto the: So he take the right hande of his daughter, and gaue her into the right hand of Tobias, and sayd: The God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob be with you, ioyne you together, ¶ fulfyll his blessinge in you. And they take a letter ¶ made a writing D of the mariage. And then made they merry, ¶ prayed God. And Raguell called Anna his wyfe vnto him, and bad her prepare another chamber, and thyther he brought Sara his daughter, and she wepte. Then sayde he vnto her: Be of good cheare my daughter, the Lorde of heauen geue the ioye, for the heuynesse that thou hast suffred.

The aungel bondeth the deuel. Tobias exhorteth his wyfe to prayer, and they praye three dayes before they lye together.

The.ix. Chapter.

NOw after that they had supped A they brought the yongeman into her. She thought Tobias vpō the wordes of the Aūgel, ¶ tobe out of his bagge a peece of the lyuer of the fish, ¶ layed it vpō the hote coales. So the aūgell Raphael take holde of the deuel, ¶ sent him awaye, ¶ bounde him in the wildernes of the hyer Egipt. Then spake Tobias vnto the virgin, ¶ sayde: Vp Sara, let vs make our prayer vnto God to daye, to morow, ¶ ouermorow: for these three nyghtes wil we receyue our selfe with God: ¶ when the third holy nyght is pas, we shal ioyne together in the duty of mariage. For we are ꝑ children of holy me, ¶ we may not come together as the heathē, that know not God.

Then rose they vp both together, ¶ be- B sought God earnestly, that he wold preserue them. And Tobias sayde: O Lorde God of oure fathers, prayse be thou of heauen and earth, of the sea, welles, ¶ flouds, and of all the creatures that be therin. Thou madest Adā of the mould of the earth, ¶ gauest him Eua for an helper. And now Lorde thou knowest that it is not because of voluptuousnes, that I take this syster of myne to wyfe, but onely for the loue of children, in whome thy name be blessed for euer. And Sara sayd: haue mercy vpon vs (O Lorde) haue mercy vpon vs, and let vs both come whole ¶ sounde to a good age.

And

C And about the eche crowe, it happened, that Raguel called hys seruauntes, and they wente with hym, to make a grane. For he sayde: it is chaunced vnto hym peraduenture as it did vnto the other seuen men, that went in vnto her. Now when they hadde made the grane, Raguell came agayne to hys wyfe, & sayde vnto her: Lende one of thy maydens, to loke if he be dead, that I maye burye hym afore it be light daye. So she sente a mayden to se, which when she came into the chamber, she founde them whole and sounde, slepyng together. And so she came agayne, & broughte good tidinges. Then Raguel and Anna hys wyfe prayed the Lorde, and sayde: Prayed be thou O Lorde God of Israel, for it is not happened vnto vs, as we thoughte. For thou haste delte mercifully with vs, & put awaye from vs the enemye that persecuted vs, and hast shewed mercy vnto poore two beloued. O Lorde, cause them to magnifye the more perfectly, and to offre the the sacrifice of thy people, & of their healthe: that all people maye know, that thou only art God in all y earth.

D And immediatly Raguel commaunded hys seruauntes, to fyll the grane, that they hadde made, with earth, afore it was lighter: & bade hys wyfe prepare a feast, & to make redy all thynges that were needfull for meate, for such as went by the waye. He caused two fat bulles also, and foure wethers to be slayne, and meates to be prepared for all his neyghbours & frendes. And Raguel charged Tobias, to remayne with hym two weekes. As for all the good that he had, he gaue Tobias the one half of it, & made hys wrytyng, that the halfe which remayned, shoulde fall vnto Tobias after their death.

The Aungell geeth too Gabelus, at the desyre of Tobias: which deliuereth the letter, and receyueth the money.

The.ix.Chapter.

A Then Tobias called vnto him the Aungel, whom he thought to haue bene a man, and sayde vnto him. Brother Azarias, I praye the herken vnto my wordes: If I shoulde geue my self to be thy seruaunt, I shal not deserue thy prouydence. Neuertheles I beseche the that thou wilt take the beastes & the seruauntes, & go vnto Gabelus in Rages the citie of Medes, & deliuer him his handwrytynge, & receyue the money of him, and praye hym to come to my mariage. For thou knowest thy self, that my father telleth the dayes: and if I tary one daye to long, he wilbe sory in his mynde. Now seist thou how earnestly Raguell hath required me, so that I can not saye hym nay.

Then tolde Raphael foure of Raguels seruauntes, & two Camels, and went vnto Rages the cytye of Medes: and when he had founde Gabelus, he gaue hym hys handwrytyng, & receyued all the money. He tolde hym also of Tobias the sonne of Tobi, howe all thynges had happened, & caused him to come with him to the mariage. Now whē he came into the house of Raguel, he founde Tobias sitting at the table: and he leaped vp, and they kyssed one another, & Gabelus wepte & prayed God, & sayde: the blessyng of the God of Israel haue thou, for thou art the sonne of a right honest & iuste man, & of one that feareth God, & geueth greate almes. And likewise haue thy wyfe, and your children, that ye maye be your children & your children children, vnto the thyrde & fourthe generation, & that your sede may be blessed of the God of Israel, whiche reigneth world without ende. And when they all had sayde Amen, they wēt to the feaste, but with the feare of the Lorde before they the feast of the marryage.

Tobias and hys wyfe are sente for the ryuerens of their sonne. Raguel buildeth agayne Tobias wife hys wyfe.

The.x.Chapter.

NOwe whyle yonge Tobias made longe tarying, by reason of the mariage, his father was full of care & sorowe, & thoughte what shoulde be the cause, that my sonne tarryeth so long? Or why should he be kepte so long there? Peraduenture Gabelus is dead, and no man will geue hym the money. Thus began he to be very sorowful he & Anna his wyfe with him, and beganne to weepe both together, because their sonne was not come agayne vnto thē at the day appoynted. As for his mother, she wepte with dissolutable teares, & sayde: Wo is me, my sonne: Oh what euyll dyd we to sende the awaye into a straunge coūtre, thou lighte of our eyes, thou staffe of oure age, thou comforte of oure lyfe, thou hope of our generation: Seyenge all the thinges y we haue are only in the, we should not haue sent the awaye from vs.

Then Tobias comforted her, and sayde: holde thy tonge, & be not dyscomforted, oure sonne is whole and sounde: the man that we sent hym with, is faythful enough. Neuertheles she wyste in no wyse be comforted: but daylye went out, loked about, & went about all the streetes, whereby she thought he shoulde come agayne: that (if it were possible) she myght se hym comynge a farre of.

But Raguel sayde vnto his sonne in lawe: O tarye here, and I shall sende a messenger vnto thy father Tobias, to wryte him that thou art in good healthe. Tobias sayde vnto hym: I am sure, that my father & my mother make euery daye, and that their houres are long.

So when Raguel prayed Tobias with many wordes, & would in no wyse haue him, he deliuered Sara vnto him, & the halfe part of all his goodes: as seruauntes & handmaydes, as sheepe, as Camels, as beues, & much money & so sent hym awaye from hym with peace and ioye, and sayde: The holy Aungell of the Lorde be with you in your iourney, and bringe you safe & sounde, that ye maye fynde all thinges in good safe with your children, & that myne eyes may se your children

abour I dye. So the elders embraced their daughter, kyssed her, & let her go, rehearsinge her to honour her father & mother in law, to love her husbande, too rule well her household, to kepe her house in good ordre, and to shew her selfe laureitte.

Yonge Tobias lourneye hoe with a housholde in the native ware, commeth before with the Aungell. The lourneye of his mother lokinge after her sonne. He is wylfull towarde of his father and mother. So is cometh by harde after.

The.xi. Chapter.

2 AS they now were going, home warde agayn, upon the.xi. day they came to Charra, whyche lyeth in the half waye towarde Ninive. And the Aungel sayde: Brother Tobias, thou knowest howe thou hast left thy father: therfore if it please the, we two will go before, and let the household with thy wyfe & the cattell come softly after ba. And when Tobias was content & they shoulde go before, Raphaell sayde unto hym: Take of the gall of the fish with the, for it shalbe necessary. So Tobias tooke of the gall, & they went their waye. But Anna the mother of Tobias sat daylye by the way syde upon the toppe of an hyll, frō whence she might se farre about her. And while she was waiting ther for his comming, she loked afarre of, & anone she perceyued her sonne comminge, & ranne & tolde her husbād, saying: Behold, thy sonne cometh. And Raphael sayde unto Tobias: As soone as thou commest into the house immediatly worshippe the Lorde thy God, & geue thākes unto him: then go to thy father, & kysse hym, and strike his eyes ouer with the gall of the fysh, that thou hast brought with the. For be sure, that his eyes shal strayght way be opened, & thy father shall se the light of heauen, & shal reioyse at the sight of the. Then the dogge that had bene with them in their iourney, rāne before, and came as a messenger, & wagged with his tayle for gladnesse.

E So the blynde father arose, and beganne to renne, and stombled with his feete, & gaue a seruaunt his hande, ranne to meet his sonne comming, and kissed hym, he & his wife, and beganne to wepe for ioye.

Now when they had worshipped & thanked God, they sat downe. Then toke Tobias of the fysshes gall, and anoynted his fathers eyes, and tarped half an houre, and then beganne the blemish to go out of his eyes, like as it had bene the white shyne of an egge: which Tobias toke, and drew frō his eyes, and immediatly he receyued his sight.

Then they praysed God, he and his wife D & all they that were with him. And Tobias sayde: O Lord God of Israel, I geue the prayse & thanke, for thou hast chastned me, & made me whole. And lo, now do I se my sonne Tobias. After seuen dayes came Sara his sonnes wyfe also whole and sounde with all the houshold and cattell, with exceding muche money of his wyues, and with the money that he had receyued of Gabelus: & he tolde his father and his mother all the benefytes, whiche God had done for him, by the man that led him. Achior also and Sabath, Tobias systers sonnes came, and were glad, and reioyced with him, by reason of all the good that God had shewed unto him. And so for the space of seuen dayes they made merry, & were right ioyful euerychone.

Yonge Tobias exhorteth his wife & his father the goodnes that the Aungell did him. He offereth unto the Aungel half the goodes that he brought with him.

The.xij. Chapter.

THen Tobias called his sonne A unto him, & sayde: What maye we geue the holy man, that wil walke with the? Tobias answered his father, & sayde: Father, what reward shall we geue him? Or what thynge can deserue his benefytes? He hath bene my gyde, & brought me safe agayne: he receyued the money frō Gabelus, he caused me to get my wyfe, he drone the euel spirite frō her, he hath ben an occasiō of gladnesse to her father & mother: he deliuered me, that I was not deuoured of the fish, he hath made the to se the light of heauen, yea, we all haue receyued great good of him. How should we worthily deserue these thinges unto him? But I praye the my father, that thou wilte desire him, & happly he will vouchsafe, to take with him the halfe of all that we haue brought.

So the father and the sonne called him, B tooke him aside, & beganne to pray him, that he wolde be cōtēt to take in good worth, the half parte of all that he had brought hyre. Then sayde he secretly unto them: Prayse the God of heauen, and geue thankes unto him before all men liuyng, for he hath shewed his mercyes unto ba. It is good to hyde the kynges Some wil vnto you. secrete, but to shewe & too prayse the workes of God, it is an honorable thynge. Prayer is good with fastyng, & to geue almes is better, then to houlde up treasures of golde. For almes deliuereth from death, cleanseth synne, and causeth to synde euerlastynge lyfe. But they that do synne & unrighteousnes, are the enemyes of their owne soules.

Wherfore I tell you the truth, and will C hyde nothing from you. When thou prayedest with teares, and buryedest the dead, and lefte thy dyner, and hyddest the dead in thy house upon the day tyme, that thou mightest burye them in the night, I offred thy prayer before the Lorde. And because thou waste accepte and beloued of God, it was necessarye, that tentation shoulde trye the. And nowe hathe the Lorde sent me to heale the, and to deliuer Sara thy sonnes wyfe frome the euell spirite. For I am Raphael an Aungell, one of the seuen that stande before God.

When they hearde this, they were sore D frayed, and trembled, and fell downe upon their faces unto the grounde. Then sayd the Aungel: Peace be with you, feare not. Where

as I

so I have ben with you, it is the will of God great people and thankes vnto hym.

You thought that I dyd eate and drinke with you, but I vse meate that is inuisible, &
dronke that can not be seene of men.

Nowe therefore is the tyme that I muste come again vnto hym that sent me: but be ye thankefull vnto God, and tell out all hys wonderous workes.

And when he had spoken these wordes, he was taken awaye out of their sighte, so that they sawe hym nomore. Then fell they downe flat vpon their faces by the space of thre hou-res, and prayed God: and whē they rose vp they tolde all hys wonderous workes.

Tobias the elder geueth thankes vnto God.

The.xiij.Chapter.

2 Then olde Tobias opened hys mouth & prayed the Lord, and sayde: Great art thou O Lord for euermore, & thy kingedome muste without ende: for thou scourgest & healest, thou leadest vnto hel, and bringest out again, & there is none that may escape thyne hande. O geue thākes vnto the Lorde, ye children of Israel, & praise hym in the sight of the heathen. For among the heathē which haue him not hath he scattered you, to thintent that ye should shewe forth hys mar-uelous workes, & cause the for to knowe, that there is none other God almighty but he.
He hath chastened vs for our mysdedes, & for hys owne mercy sake shall he saue vs.

Consider then, howe he hath dealte with you, & praise him with feare & drede, & mag-nifye the euerlasting kynge in your workes.
3 I will praise him eue in the lande of my captiuite, for he hath shewed his maiestie vnto a synfull people. Turne you therefore O ye synners, and do righteousnes before God, & be ye sure, that he will shewe hys mercy vpō
you. As for me and my soule, we will reioice in God. O praise the Lord all ye his chosen holde the dayes of gladnesse, & be thankefull vnto hym. O Hierusalē thou cite of God, & Lorde hath punished the for the workes of thyne owne handes. O praise the Lorde in thy good thinges, & geue thākes to the euerlasting God, that he may buylde vp his tabernacle agayne in the, that he maye call a-gayne vnto the, all suche as be in captiuitye, and that thou mayest haue ioy for euermore.
With a fayre lighte shalte thou shyne, and all the endes of the worlde shall honour the.
The people shall come vnto the from farre,
they shall bringe giftes, & worship the Lorde in the, and thy lande shall they haue for a sanctuary, for they shal call vpon the great name in the.

Cursed shall they be that despyse the, and 4 all that blaspheme the, shalbe condemned:
but blessed shall they be that buylde the vp.
As for the thou shalte reioyce in thy children,
for they al shalbe blessed, and gathered together vnto the Lorde, Blessed are they al that loue the, & be glad of thy grace. Praysē thou the Lorde, O my soule, for the Lorde euer God hath delyuered hys cyte Hierusalem from all her troubles. I will counte my self happy, if my sede remayne to se the clearnes of Hierusalem.

The gates of Hierusalem shalbe buylded with Saphyre & Smaragde, & all the compasse of her walles with precious stones. All her streetes shalbe paued with whyte marble stone, and in all her streetes shall Alleluya be songe. Prayse be the Lord, which hath exalted her, that his kyngedome maye be vpon her for euermore, Amen. And so Tobias made an ende of his talkynge.

Tobias geueth vnto his sonne counsayle, that he shoulde remoue vnto Rages, after the deathe of his father and mother.

The.xiiij.Chapter.

3 And after that Tobias had goteten his sight again, he lyued fyftie yeares, and sawe his children children. Now whē he was an C.y.ii. yeare olde, he dyed and was buried honestly in Ninive. For when he was fyue & fifty yeares of age, he lost the light of his eyes, & when he was fyue score yeare olde, he got his sight again. The residue of his life led he in ioye, & increased well in the feare of God, & departed in peace.

But in the houre of his death he called vn-
5 to him his sonne Tobias, & seuē yōge sonnes of his sonnes children, and sayde vnto them: The destruction of Ninive is at hand, for the worde of the Lorde can not fayle,
and our brethren that are scattered out of the lande of Israel, shal come thether agayne. And the whole lande of it that hath bene waste, shalbe filled: and the house of God that was burnt in it, shalbe buylded agayne, and all suche as feare God shall returne thether: the heathen also shall forsake their Idols, & come to Hierusalem, & dwell there, and all the kynges of the earth shalbe glad of her, and worship the Lord God of Israel.

And therfore my children, heare youre fa-6 ther: Serue the Lorde in sapchfulnes, & be ware hys will, and do the thynge that pleaseth him. Commaunde your children that they ryght, geue almes, be myndeful of God, and ware to be thankefull vnto him in truth and with all their power. Depart me therfore my children, and abide not here: but in what bay soeuer ye haue buryed youre mother besyde me, get you fro hence. For I se, that the wyckednesse of it shal bring it to destruction and ende.

After the death of his mother, Tobias de-7 parted straight from Ninive, with his wyfe & children, & with his children children, & came again to his father and mother in law, and founde the whole & in a good age, & take the care of them. And he closed their eyes, & was heyre vnto all Rageles goodes, & sawe the fyfth generacion and children children. And whē he was xxij. yeare of age, he wed in the Dddd.iij. feare

feare of the Lord, and his kynsfolkes buryed him. And all his posterite continued in a good life, and holy conuersacion: so that they were loued and accepted bothe of God and men, & of all the people of the lande.

The ende of the boke of Tobias.

The boke of Judith.

The buyldynge of Ephortanis. The warre of Nabuchodonosor ageynst Arphaxat. The messangers of Nabuchodonosor are refused.

The.j.Chapter.

In the twelfth yeare of kynge Arphaxat, whiche reygned ouer the Medes in Ecbatane, and buylded a noble strong cite whiche he called Ephartane. The walles of it made he of fyre stoone, foure squared, fourty cubites hye, and .xx. cubites brode. He made towres therupon of an hundreth cubites hye. But upon the foure corners euery side was twenty fote brode. He made the gates in the height, like as the towres. This kynge trusted in his mighty hoost, and in his glorious charettes.

So in the twelft yeare of his raygne it happened, that Nabuchodonosor the kynge of the Assyrians (which reygned in the great cite of Ninine) fought ageynst Arphaxat, & ouercame him in the great felde called Ragau, beside Euphrates and Tigris and Jadason in the felde of Ecrath the kynge of the Elimeis.

Then was the kyngedome of Nabuchodonosor exalted, and his hert was lifte vpp he sente vnto all them that dwelt in Cilicia, in Damascus in Libanus, & vnto the bracke that dwelt in Carmel and Cedar, and to such as dwelt in Galile in the greate felde of Esdrelon, to al them that were in Samaria, and beyonde the water of Jordane vnto Hierusalem and the whole lande of Jesse vnto the mountaynes of Ethiopia. Vnto all these did Nabuchodonosor the kynge of the Assyrians sende messangers. But they all with one assent wolde not agree vnto hym, and sente the messangers agayne emptye, and putte their shame without honoure. Then Nabuchodonosor the kynge tooke indignacion at al those landes, and swore by his throne and by his kyngdome, that he wolde be auenged of all those countreys.

Nabuchodonosor in fury of mynde reuengeth, & besieged all the westlie. The preparacion and purueyance of his seruaunt.

The.ij.Chapter.

In the.xviij. yeare of kynge Nabuchodonosor, vppon the.xxij. day of the fyrst moneth, it was counsell in the courte of Nabuchodonosor the kyng of the Assyrians, that he wolde defende hym self. So he called vnto hym all the elders of his Captaynes, and men of warre, and opened the his secrete counsail, and tolde them, that his purpose was, to bringe the whole earth vnder his dominion. Now when they were all content with this sayinge, Nabuchodonosor the kynge called Holofernes the chefe Captayne of his warres, and sayd vnto him: Go thy wayes forth agaynste all the kyngdomes of the West, and spetially ageynst those that haue despised my commaundement. Thou shalt spare no realme, all strong cytes shalt thou bringe in subiection vnto me.

Then Holofernes called together all the Captaynes & rulers of all the power in Assyria, & mustred the soudyers vnto the hoste (like as the kyng commaunded hym) in number, an hundreth and twenty thousand fightinge men vpon foote, and twelf thousande archers vpon horsebacke. All his ordinaunce sent he before with an vnnumerable multitude of Camels, so that the hoste was well prouyded for with Oxen, and small cattell, and that without number. He caused corne to be prepared out of all Syria for his hoost. Much golde and syluer also toke he out of the kynges house. So he toke his iourney, he and all his hoost, with charettes, horsmen, and archers: of whome there were soo many, that they couered the grounde of the lande, like the grashoppers.

And when he was gone past the borders of the Assyrians, he came towarde the greate mountaynes of Angi, which lye vpō the left syde of Cilicia: and so he went vp into all their castels, and wanne euery strong holde. He toke worthy cite of Melothes, he brake it downe, & spoyled all the children of Thesis and the Ismaelites, whiche laye towarde the wildernes, and vppon the southside of the lande of Chelon. He went ouer Euphrates also, and came into Mesopotamia, and brake brake downe all the hye cytees that were there from the broke of Mambre tyll a man come to the sea: and he take the borders in frō Cilicia vnto the coastes of Japhet towarde the South. He carped stroke all the Madianytes, and spoiled all their goodes: and wheresoeuer with stode hym, he smote them with the swerde. After this he went downe into the felde of Damascus in the tyme of harueste, & burnt vp all the corne and all the trees, and caused the vynes to be cut downe. And the feare of hym fell vpon all them that dwelt in the earth.

Nabuchodonosor sendeth vnto Holofernes the tyrannye and crueltye of hym.

The.iij.Chapter.

1 SO the kynges and Princes of all cytees and landes sente their Ambassadours, namely, they of Syria and Mesopotamia, Syria Sobal, and Lybia, and Cilicia, whiche came too Holofernes, and sayde: Let thy wrath cease towarde vs: It is better for vs to serue the great kyng Nabuchodonosor with oure lyues, and to be subiecte vnto the, then that we shoulde dye, and be slayne, and receyue greater hurte. All oure cytees and possessions, all mountaynes and hylles, all fieldes, greate & small catell, sheepe, goates, horses, & camels, all oure goodes and householdes, be in thy power, vnder thy subiection be it altogether. We oure selues also and oure children will be thyne owne, come vnto vs a peaceable londe, and vse oure seruyce at thy pleasure.

2 Then came Holofernes downe from the mountaynes with hastines and great power and conquered all stronge walled cytees, and all that dwelt in the lande. And out of al cytees he toke stronge men, and suche as were mete for the warre, to helpe him. There came suche a feare also vpon their countreys, that the inhabitters of all the cytees, the Princes & rulers, and the people together, went forth to mete hym as he came, and receyued hym honourably with garlandes and torches, with daunces, tabrettes and pypes.

3 Neuertheles though they did this, yet might they not swage his rigorous stomake: but he destroyed their cytees, and hewed downe their woodes. For Nabuchodonosor the kynge hadde commaunded hym, that he shoulde rote out al the Goddes of the lande: to the intent that he onely might be called & taken for God, of the nacions which Holofernes with his power brought vnder hym. So went he thorow Syria Sobal, & thorow all Apamia, and all Mesopotamia, came to the Idumees, in the lande of Gabaa & Scythopoly, and toke their cytees, and remayned there xxx. dayes, wherein he caused all the whole multitude of his hoost to be gathered together.

That rightwyse beleue of God, agreable to their olde. They fall and pray.

The.iiij.Chapter.

WHen the children of Israel that dwelt in Iewry hearde this, they were sore afrayed of him. There came such trouble ouer also and feare vpon them, that they ordayned he shoulde do vnto the cytie of Hierusalem & the temple of the Lorde, as he had done to other cytees and their temples. So they sent into all Samaria vnto about vnto Jericho, toke in and occupyed all the toppes of the mountaynes, made fast the townes with walles, and prepared corne for the agaynst the harueste.

2 Eliachim also the Priest wrote vnto all them that dwelt towarde Esdrelon (whiche lyeth ouer agaynst the great lande by Dothan) and vnto all those by whome men myght haue passage vnto them, that they shoulde take in the wayes of the mountaynes, whereby there might be any waye and passage to Hierusalem, and that they shoulde holde diligent watch where any straite way was betwyxt the mountaynes. And the children of Israel dyd as Eliachim the Priest of the Lorde had commaunded them. And all the people cried earnestly, and humbled their soules with fastinges and prayers, they and their wyues. The priestes put on heery clothes, and layde the yonge babes before the temple of the Lord, and couered the aulter of the Lorde with an heery cloth. And with one accorde they cryed vnto the Lord God of Israell, that their children shoulde not be gyuē into a pray, and their wyues into a spoyle, that their cytees shoulde not be layed waste and that their Sanctuary shoulde not be vnhalowed, and so they too be a shame and rebuke vnto the heathen.

3 Then Eliachim the hye priest of the Lord went rounde about all Israel, & spake vnto them, sayinge: Be ye sure, that the Lorde wil heare your petitions, if ye continue stedfast in fastinges and prayers in the sight of the Lorde. Remember Moyses the Seruaunte of the Lorde, which ouerthrew the Amalechites (that trusted in their myght and power, in their hoost, in their shyldes, in their chariottes and horsmen) not with weapons, but with holy prayers. Euen so shall all the enemies of Israel be, if ye continue in this worke, that ye haue begonne. So vpon this exhortacion they continued in prayer before the Lord. In so much that they whyche offred burnt sacrifices vnto the Lorde, offred the offringes vnto the Lorde, beynge arayed in heery clothes and had ashes vpon their heades. And they all besought God frome their whole hert, that he would visit his people of Israel.

Holofernes is aduertised that the Israelites haue stopped their passages. Achior declareth the conquestes of their fathers vnto the Ammonites, for which thyng the enemies vnto Holofernes were very angry with him.

The.v.Chapter.

Then

Od word came to Holofernes the Prynce of the warre of the Assirians, that the chyldren of Israel prepared them selues to make resystaunce, & how they had stopped ꝑ wates betwixt the mountaines Then was he exceadyng wroth, and called all the Princes of Moab, & the Captaines of Ammon, & sayd vnto the: Tell me, what people is this, that he perth in ꝑ mountaines? Or what maner of cities are they? What is their power? Or what maner of host haue they? who is their Captayne? And why do they dispise vs more then al those that dwel in the East, and come not forth to mete vs, ꝑ they myght receiue vs with peace? Then Achior the Captaine of al ꝑ Ammonytes answered and sayde: Sir, if it please you to heare me, I will tel the trueth before the concerning this people that dwel in the mountaines, and there shal no lie go out of my mouth.

B This people is of the generacyon of the Caldees, they dwelt fyrst in Mesopotamia, for they wold not folow the goddes of their fathers that were in the lande of the Chaldees, & so forsake they the customes of their fore fathers (which had many goddes) and worshipped one God, that made heauē and earth, which also cōmaunded them that they shoulde go from thence, and dwell at Haran Now whē there came a dearth into the whole lande, they wente downe to Egypte, & there they dwelt four hūdreth yeares, in the which they multyplied so greatly, that their hoost myght not be numbred. And when the kyng of Egypte oppressed them, & subdued them in bondage of bye cytyes with makynge of clay and bryck, they cried vnto God their Lorde, which punyshed the whole lande of C Egypte with diuerse plages.

Now when the kynge of Egypt let them go their wape, & the plage ceassed, & they folowed after the, to take the, & to bryng them agayne into bys seruyce, whyle they were sprenge asway, the God of heauē opened the see, so ꝑ the waters stode fast vpon both the sydes as a wall, & these went thorowe the bottome of the sea dry shod. In the whiche place when an innumerable people of the Egipcians folowed vpō the, they were so ouerwhelmed ꝑ the waters, that there remayned not one, to tell them that came after, how it happened. So when this people was passed thorow the reed see, they came into the wylderD nes of the mount Synai, where neuer man myght dwell afore, & where the sonne of mā had neuer vysited. There were the bytter waters made swete for them, that they myght drynke, & xl. yeares had they meate frō heauen. Wheresoeuer they were (without bowe & arow, without bucklet or sword) their God fought for the, & caused the to haue the victory. Yea no man was able to hurte this people, except it were so, that they departed vnfaythfully frō the worshyppyng of the Lorde their God. But as oft as they worshipped any other beside their God, he gaue the ouer to be spoyled, to be slayne, & to be put to confusiō. Neuertheles as oft as they were sory for departynge from the worshippe of their God, the same God of heauen gaue them E power & strength to withstād their enemies

Moreouer they slew the kyng of the Cananites, Iebusites, Pherezites, Hethites, Euites & Amorites, & all ꝑ myght in Hesebon, & toke their landes & cities in possessiō: and so long as they synned not in the syght of their God, it wente wel with them, for their God hateth vnryghteousnesse. For in tymes past when they went out of the way which God had geuen the, that they should walke in it, they were destroyed in dyuerse batayles of many nacyons: & many of them were carped awaye prysoners vnto a straunge countre. But now lately they haue turned the selues agayne vnto the Lord their God, & are come together agayne out of the countres where they were scattred abrod: and thus haue they cōquered these mountaynes, & dwell therin: F and as for Jerusalem where their Sanctuary is, they haue it agayne in possessyon.

And therfore my lordes, make dylygent inquysiciō, if this people haue done wyckednesse in the sight of their God, then let vs go vp agaynst the, for doutles their God shall delyuer the into thy handes, & subdue them vnto thy power. But if this people haue not displeased their God, we shall not be able to withstande them, for their God shal defend the, & so shall we be a shame to all the world.

Nowe when Achior had spoken out these wordes, al the Princes of Holofernes were wroth, & thoughte to slaye him, & sayd one to another what is he this, which dare saye, ꝑ the chyldren of Israell are able to withstande Nabuchodonosor the kynge and his hoost? where as they are an vnexpeared people, without strength or vnderstanding of ꝑ feates of warre? That Achior therfore may knowe that he hath deceaued vs, we wyl go vp into the mountaynes: & when the myghty men of the are taken, he also shalbe stryken with the swerde, that all people maye knowe, that Nabuchodonosor is the God of the earthe, and that there is none other without hym.

Achior is commaunded into the handes of the Iewes by Holofernes. He is ryen to a tre, but is loosed of the Iewes. The prayer of the people. Achior is comH fforted of the Iewes.

The.vi.Chapter

O whē they had left of speaking Holofernes toke sore indignacion and sayde vnto Achior. For so much as thou hast prophecyed vnto vs, saying: that the people of Israell shalbe defended of their God, I wyl shewe the, that there is no God but Nabuchodonosor. Yea when we slaye them all as one man, thou also shalt perysshe with them thorowe the swerd of the Assirians, & al Israel shalbe destroyed with the, & thou shalt

shalt thou sele, that Nabuchodonosor is the Lord of the whole earth. The shal the swerd
C of my hyghthode go thorowe thy syde, and than shalte fall downe stycke amonge
the wounded of Israell, and shalte not come to thy selfe agayne, but be vtterly destroyed with them. But if thou thinckest thy prophecy to be true, why dost thou then chaung thy colour? why art thou afrayed? Thinkest thou that my wordes are not able to be performed?
D But that thou maiest knowe, that thou shalt sele these thynges of the beholde, frō this hour forth will I send the vnto ponder people, that whē the punishmēt of my swerd (which thei haue worthely deserued) falleth vpon them, thou mayest be punished with them.

So Holofernes commaunded hys seruauntes to take Achior, and to carye him vnto Bethulya, and delyuer hym into the handes of the chyldren of Israel. Then Holofernes seruauntes tokē hym, and wente thorow the playne felde. But when they drew nye vnto the mountaynes, the slynge casters came out agaynste them: Neuertheles they gat them awaye by the syde of the mountayne, & bound Achior hande and fote to a tree, and so lefte hym bound with withes, and turned againe vnto their Lorde.

So twithstandynge the chyldē of Israell
D wente downe frō Bethulia, came vnto hym, lowsed hym, brought him into Bethulya, set him in the myddeste of the people, and asked him what the matter was, that the Assirians had left hym bounde.

Osias the sonne of Micha of the tribe of Symeon, & Charmim (whyche is also called Gothoniel) were the principall rulers at the same tyme. Nowe when Achior stode in the middest of the Senatoures, & before them all he tolde them, what answere he gaue Holo fernes, to the thynge that he asked hym, and how Holofernes people wolde haue slayne hym for so sayynge, & how Holofernes hym selfe was wroth, & commaunded him for the same cause to be delyuered vnto the Israelytes: that when he ouercame the chyldren of Israell he myght commaunde Achior also to be put to death with dyuerse tormentes, because he sayde: the God of heauē is their defender. And when Achior had playnly tolde out all these thinges, all the people fell downe vpon their faces, praysynge the Lorde, and poured oute their prayers together vnto the Lorde, with a generall complaynte and we pynge, & sayde: O Lorde God of heauen and of earth, beholde their pryde, & loke vpō oure lowlynes, and cōsyder how it standeth with thy saincte, & make it to be knowen that thou forsakest not them, which holde them self by the, and how that thou bringest the lowe, & pursuest them selues, and make their boast in their owne strength. So when the weping & prayer of the people (which they had made the whole daye longe) was ended, they comforted Achior, sayynge: The God of oure fathers, whose power & strength thou hast pursued, shall so rewarde the, that thou shalte rather se their destruccion. When the Lorde oure God then shal geue his seruaunts thys liberte, God be also with the amonge vs: so that it it please the, thou with thyne mayest dwel with vs.

Now when Osias had ended the collacyon
he toke him into his house and made a great supper, called the elders to it, and so they refreshed them selues after the fastynge. And afterwarde was all the people called together, which made their prayers all the nyght longe in the congregation, and besought the God of Israel for helpe.

Iudith in beleged of Holofernes. The people requyreth helpe of God. They of Bethulia wolde geue ouer the cyte for want of water. The prayer of the people with teares and lamentacion.

The.viii.Chapter.

A

THe next daye, Holofernes commaunded his host, to go vp a-gaynst Bethulia. There were an.C. and.xx. thousande fyghtynge men on fote, and two and twentye thousande horsmen, besyde the pur-parynge of them that were women: and came to them on euerye syde out of the countrees and cytyes which he had taken. All these purpared them selues vnto the battayl agaynst
the Israelites, & came on by the hyll syde, vnto
the toppe that lieth ouer against Dothaim
from the place whiche is called Belma vnto Chelmon that lieth towarde Esdraelon.

Now when the chyldren of Israel saw so great multytude of the Assyrians, they fell B downe flat vpō the grounde, strowed ashes
vpon their heades, & prayed with one accord that the God of Israel wold shew his mercy vpon his people. And so they toke their wea pens, & sat betwyxte the mountaynes in the narow place, & kepte the wape daye, & nyght
But whyle Holofernes was goinge about he founde the water spynge, which from the South syde was conueyed into the cyte by a condyte: thys commaunded he to be dyuerte another wape, & to cut their condyte in sunder. There were welles also not farre from the walles, which they vsed secretlye, more for pleasure then for neccessyte.

Then wente the Ammonytes & the Moa bytes vnto Holofernes, & sayde: The chyldē of Israell trusteth neither in speare nor arowe,
but haue taken in, & kepe the mountaynes, & hylles. That thou maiest ouercome the cyte foote without the strykynge of anye battayl, lett men to kepe the welles, that they drawe
no water ouer of them: so shalt thou destroye the without swerde, or at the leaste they shall be so feble, that they muste be fayne to geue fernes well and all his men of warre, and he set an hundreth men at euery wel vnto about

And when this watch had endured three

ty daies, the Cisternes and all that had water, lapkd them that dwelt in the citie of Bethulia, so that in the whole citie they had not drynke ynough for one daye, for the people had water geuen them daylp in a measure. Then came the men and women, yonge persones and childre all vnto Ozias, and sayd all with one voyce: God be iudge betwyxte vs and the, for thou hast dealt euell with vs thou wouldest not speake peaceablye wyth the kynge of the Assirians, therfore hath God solde vs in their handes, and there is no man to helpe vs where as we are brought down before their eyes in thirste & greate destruccion. Therefore gather now together all the people that be in the cytye, that we maye all yelde oure selues willingly vnto the people of Holofernes for better it is that we be captyue and prayse the Lorde wyth oure lyues, then to be slayne and perysshe, and to be laughed to scorne and shamed of euery man whe we se oure wyues and chyldren dye before oure eyes. We take heauen & earth this daye to wytnesse, and the God of oure fathers (which punysheth vs accordynge to these seruyng of oure synnes) and geue you warnyng, that ye geue vp the citie vnto into the power of Holofernes hoaste, that oure ende maye be short wyth the swerde, wherby ye shal endure long for wat of water and for thirste.

E When they had spoke our these wordes, there was a greate weppynge and howlynge in the whole congregacion, and that of euery man, and they cried an whole houre longe vnto God wyth one voyce, sayinge: we haue synned wyth oure fathers, we haue done amysse, we haue dealt wickedly. Thou that art gracious, haue mercy vpon vs, punysshe oure vnrighteousnesse wyth thine owne scourge & geue not those vnto that knowledge the vnto a people whych knoweth the not, least they saye amonge the Heythen: where is their God?

And when they were so weryed with this cryenge and weppynge, that they held their tunges, Ozias stode vp wyth watrye eyes and sayde: O take good hertes vnto you, (deare brethren) and be of good cheare, and let vs wayte yet these fyue dayes for mercye of the Lorde: perade entreate he shall cease, where his indignacion, and geue glorye vnto his name. But if he helpe vs not wythin these fiue daye are past, we shal do as ye haue sayd.

Of the vertuous woman Judith, which represents the congregation because they trusted the Lord. She also exhorts them to encourage & harden the people. Wherein her faithful counsell the enemie of the Jewes.

The.viij. Chapter.

2 AND it happened whē these wordes cam to the eares of Judith a wyddowe, whyche was the daughter of Merari, the sonne of Idor, the sonne of Joseph the sonne of Oziah, the sonne of Elai, the sonne of Jamnia, the sonne of Jeremi, the sonne of Raphaim, the sonne of Achitob, the sonne of Melchia, the sonne of Enam, the sonne of Nathania, the sonne of Salathiel the sonne of Symeon, the sonne of Ruben. And her husbande was called Manasses, whiche dyed in the dayes of the barlye haruest. For whyle he was bindynge the sheues together in the felde, the heate came vpō his head, and he dyed at Bethulia his cyty, & there was he buryed beside his fathers. Now D was Judith his desolate widdowe thre yeares and syx monethes. And in the vpper partes of her house she made her selfe a prayue chāber, where she dwelte, beynge closed in wyth her maydens. She ware a sacke of heare, and fasted all the dayes of her lyfe, except the Sabbathes, & newe mones and the solempne dayes that the people of Israel kepte. She was a verye fayre & beautifull persone. Her husbande also had left her greate ryches, a plenteous houshelde, greate honourable possessions & many cattell. Thus Judith was a woman of a very good report wythouten ye, for she feared the Lord greatly, & there was no body that spake an euell worde of her.

When thys Judyth heard, how Ozias had promised the people, that after the fyfte daye he wolde geue vp the cytye vnto the Assirians, she sent for the elders Chabri and Charmis, and when they came to her, she sayd vnto them: what thyng is this, wherein Ozias hath consented, that if God helpe not within fiue dayes, he wyl geue ouer the citie to the Assirians? What are ye, that ye tempte the Lorde This deuise apeareth no mercye of God, but prouoketh him vnto wrathe and displeasure. Wyll ye set the mercye of the Lorde a time & appointe him a daye after youre will Neuertheles for so muche as the Lorde is C poyente, lett vs rather amende oure selues, pourynge out teares, and beseechyng hym of grace. For God threatneth not as a man, nether wyll he be prouoked vnto wrath as the children of men. And therfore let vs humble fall downe before him, and serue him with a meke spirite, and wyth weppynge eyes saye vnto the Lorde, that he deale wyth vs accordynge to his owne wyll and mercye, that like as oure harte is nowe broke, & brought lowe thorow the payne of them, it maye so be comforted thorow his grace: in so much as we so lowe not the goddes of oure fathers, whyche forsoke their God, & worshipped other gods: therfore the which cause they perysshed wyth the swerde, were spoyled & brought to shame of all their enemyes. As for vs, we knowe none other God but onely him, for whose sake I trust to escape wyth mekenesse. He shall requyre & make inquisicion for oure bloude, from the handes of oure enemies, he shall bringe downe all the Heythen, that ryse vp agaynste vs, and put them to dishonoure, & turn the kynde oure God.

Therfore deare brethren sayenge yeare honourable auctours in the people of God vnto whom all the people haue respect, and

vpon whom the lyfe of the people standeth, lyft vp their hertes with poure exhortacion, that they may call to remembraunce, howe our fathers also in tymes past were tempted that they myght be proued, if they worshipped their God aryght. Thei ought to remember howe our father Abraham beyng tempted, & tried through many tribulacions, was found a louer and frynde of God. So was Isaac, so was Jacob, so was Moses, and all they that pleased God, beyng tried through many troubleous, were found stedfast vnto ayenst they that receyued not their temptacions with the feare of God, but put the selues furth with impacience and murmuryng ayenst God, perished of the destroyer, and were slain of serpentes. And therfour shuld not we vndertake to be auenged for the thyng that is done vnto vs: but to coulude, that all these punishmentes are far lesse then our sins and misdedes. Beleuyng also, that thys correction commeth not of hatred to the seruauntes of God, but to amendement, and not for our destruction.

C Then sayde Ozias and the elders vnto Judith: All that thou speakest, is true, and no man can reprue thy wordes. Pray thou for vs nowe therfour vnto God, for thou art an holy woman, and feareth God. And Judyth sayd vnto them: Beyng ye beware, that my wordes are of God, then proue my counsayl and dyspose, if it be of God, and beleue God that he wyl bring my counsayl to good ende.

Thus haue I deuised: Ye shall stand thys nyght before the Porte, and I wyl go furth with Abra my mayden: Pray ye then our lorde God, that he wyll graciously remembre his people of Israel within fyue dayes, as ye haue sayd. As for the thing that I go in hand withal, aske ye no questions of it, vntil I retorne vnto you my selfe: doo ye nothyng els but praye vnto the Lorde power God for me.

Then Ozias the prynce of the people of Juda sayd vnto her: Go thy wayes in peace the Lorde be with the, that we maye be auenged of oure enemies. And so they went from her ayenst.

The.xi. Chapter

The prayer of Judith for the victorye.

A ND whe they were gone their way, Judith went into her oratory, put on an heery smocke, strewed ashes vpon her heade, fell downe before the Lord, & prayed vnto him, sayenge: O Lorde God of my father Symeon, which gauest him a swerde for a defence ayenst the enemyes, that vsed violence, and wylfulnes and that tamptyed & dyspysed and put her to dyshonestye. Thou that gauest them wrath vnto a praye, and their daughters into captyuite and all their praye for a spoyle vnto thy seruauntes, which were a yele vnto the, helpe me wyddowe, O Lorde my God, I beseche the. For thou hast done all thynges from the begynnyng, and lyke what thou hast taken in hande and deuysed, it came euer to passe. For all thy wayes are prepared, & thy iudgmentes are done in the euerlastyng foreknowledge. O lyke vnto vpon the armies of thy people, lyke as it was thy pleasure somtyme to take vpon the hoost of the Egyptes, whē they beyng armed, perfourmed, the seruauntes, & put their trust in their charettes horsmen, and in the multytude of their men of warre. But thou lokedst vpō them & cast purge a clyche darckenes before them and when they came into the depe, the waters ouerwhelmed them.

Euen so Lorde lette it go with these, that trust in their power and multytude of their men of warre, in their charettes, arrowes & speares, and knowe not, that thou onely are our God, whyche destroyest warres from the beginnyng, and that thou are the Lorde, O lyfte vp thyne arme vnto like as ouer fro the beginnyng, and in the power beyng these power to naught, lest they myght be fall in thy wrath. They make theyr boaste, that they wyl prophane and defyle thy Sanctuary and to waste the tabernacle of thy name and to cast downe the horne of thyne auter with their swerde. Beyng to passe (O Lord) that the pryde of the enemye maye be cut downe with his owne swerde that he maye be take with the snare of his eyes in me & that thou mayest smite him with the lippes of my lore. O geue me a stedfaste mynde, that I maye dispyse him and his strength, & that I maye destroye him.

Thou shalt beyng thyne name in euerlastyng remembraunce, of the hande of a woman ouer thynne hym. For the power (O Lord) standeth not in the power of no, neither hast thou any pleasure in the strēgth of horses. There was neuer proude persone that pleased the, but in the prayer of the humble and meke hath thy pleasure been euermore.

O thou God of the heauens, thou maker of the waters, & Lorde of all creatures, heare me poore woma, callyng vpon the, and putteyng my trust in thy mercy. Remember thy couenaunt O Lorde, and myne lyppes wordes in my mouth, & stablyshe thy dreade in my hert, that the heathē maye confesse thē in thynes, and that all the Hebrew maye knowe and vnderstand, that thou art God, and that there is none other but thou.

The.xi. Chapter.

Judith vnclothed her selfe to go to Holofernes. The wayting that the citizens gaue Judith. Holofernes is in loue with Judith.

AS whan she had left of cryeng vnto the Lorde, she, rose from the place, where she had layen flat before the Lorde, and called her mayden, whom she went into her house, layed the heery cloth from her, out of the garmentes of her widowhode, washed her body, anoynted her selfe with perfyte thynges of swete sauoure, kembed & plaited her heed, set an hoode vpō her heed, & put on

fuche apparell as belongeth vnto a ſtabuelle, ſhoppes vpon hir fete, armelettes, ſpanges, earpendes, fynger rynges, and deute hir ſelfe with all hir beſt araye.

The Lorde gaue hir alſo a ſpecyall beutye and fayrneſſe (for all this decyuynge of hir ſelfe was not done for anye voluptuouſneſſe and pleaſure of the fleſh, but of a rygh te diſcrecion and vertue) therefore dyd the Lorde increaſe hir beutye in that ſhe was exceadinge amyable and well fauoured in all mennes eyes. She gaue hir mayde alſo a bottell of wyne, a pot with oile, pottage cake bread & chefe, and ſo toke hir way.

B Nowe when ſhe came to the porte of the citie, ſhe founde Oſias and the elders of the citie, watchynge ther. Which when they ſaw hir, they were aſtonyed, & marueled greatly at hir beutye, neuertheleſſe they aſked no queſtion at hir, but let hir go, ſayenge: The God of oure fathers geue the his grace, and with his power performe all the deuyſes of thy hert: that Jeruſalem maye triumphe ouer the, and that thy name maye be in the nombre of the holy & righteous. And all they that were ther, ſayd with one voyce: ſo be it, ſo be it. Judith made hir prayer vnto the Lord, and went out at the porte, ſhe & hir mayde.

And as ſhe was goinge downe the mountaine, it hap, ened that aboute the ſpringe of the daye, the ſpies of the Aſſirians met with hir, and toke hir ſayenge: whence commeſt thou? Or whyther goeſt thou? She answerd: I am a doughter of the Hebrues, and am fled from them, for I know, that they ſhal be geue vnto ponto be ſpoyled: becauſe they thoughte ſcorne to yelde the ſelues vnto you that they myght fynde mercy in your ſyght Therfore haue I deuyſed by my ſelfe after this maner: I will go before the prynce Holofernes, and tell hym all their ſecretes, and will ſhew him, how he maye come by them, and wynne them, ſo that not one man of his hoſt ſhall perish.

And when their men had herde hir wordes, & conſydered hir fayre face, they were C aſtonyed (for they wondred at hir excellente beutye, and ſayd vnto hir: Thou haſt ſaued thy life by finding out this deuyſe, that thou wouldeſt come downe to our lorde and be thou ſure that when thou comeſt vnto him, he ſhal intreate the well, and thou ſhalt pleaſe hym as the lyſt. So they brought hir into Holofernes pauylion, and tolde him of hir. Now when ſhe came in before him, immediatlye he was ouercome and taken with hir beutye. Then ſayd the ſeruauntes: who would deſpyſe the people of the Jewes, that haue ſo fayre women? Is it not vp reaſon fight againſte them for their? So when Judith came before Holofernes ſpringe in a canapye, that was wrought of purple, ſylke, golde, ſmaragde and precious ſtones, ſhe lokid ſtil vp on him, and fell downe vpon the earth. And Holofernes ſeruauntes toke hir by agayne, at their lordes commaundement.

The.xi. Chapter

Holofernes requyreth of Judith the cauſe of hir comynge. Judith geueth him a fayre anſwere.

Then ſayed Holofernes vnto hir: Be of good cheer, and feare not in thyne hert, for I neuer hurte man, that would ſerue Nabuchodonoſor the kynge. As for thy people, if they had not deſpiſed me, I ſhould not haue lift vp a ſpere againſt the. But tel me now, what is the cauſe y thou art departed from them, and wherefore art thou come vnto me.

A And Judith ſayde vnto him, Lorde vnderſtande the wordes of thy handmayden: for if thou wilt do after the wordes of thy handmayden, the Lorde ſhall bringe thy matter to a proſperous effecte. As truly as Nabuchodonoſor a lorde of the lande liueth, & as truly as his power liueth, whyche is in the to the puniſhment of all men that go wrong all men ſhall not onely be ſubdued vnto him thorow the, but all the beaſtes alſo of y felde For all people ſpeake of thy prudente actes, and it hath ben here reported, howe thou only art good and myghty in all his kyngedome, and thy diſcretion is commended in all landes.

The thynge is manifeſt alſo, that Achior B ſpake, and it is well knowne, what thou commaundedſt to be vnto him. For this is plain and of a truethe, that oure God is ſo wrothe with vs (by the reaſon of oure ſynnes) that he hath ſhewed by his Prophetes vnto the people, how that for their ſynnes he will delyuer them ouer vnto the enemy. And ſo: ſo muche as the children of Iſraell knowe that they haue ſo diſpleaſed their God, they are ſore afrayed of the.

They ſuffer greate hunger alſo, and for wante of water, they are dered now in a maner. Moreouer they are appoynted to ſlaye all their catell, that they may drynke the bloude of them: and are purpoſed to ſpende all the holy ornamentes of their God (which he hath forbydden them to touche) for come wyne and oyle. Seynge nowe that they do theſe thynges, it is a playne caſe, that they muſt nedes be deſtroyed. Which when I thy handemayden perceyued, I fled from them, and the Lord hath ſent me vnto the, to ſhewe the theſe thynges. For I thy handmayden worſhippe God euen here nowe I ſtryde the, and thy handemayden ſhall go forth, and I wyl make my prayer vnto God, and he ſhal tell me, when he wyll reward them their ſyn then ſhall I come and ſhewe the and bringe the thorow the myddeſt of Jeruſalem, ſo that thou ſhalte haue all the people of Iſrael, as the ſheepe without a ſhepherde: there ſhal not ſo much as one dogg barke againſt the, for theſe thynges are ſhewed me by the prouydence of God: and for ſo much as God is diſpleaſed with them, he hath ſente me to tell the ſame.

These wordes pleaſed Holofernes and al C his hin seruauntes, which marueyled at the swetnesse of her, and sayde one to another: there is not suche a woman vpon earth, in beautye and discretion of wordes. And Holofernes sayde vnto her: God hath done well, that he hath sente the hyther before thy people, that thou mayest geue them into oure handes. And for so much as thy promyse is good, if thy God performe it vnto me, he shal be my God also, and thou shalt be excellent & great in the courte of Nabuchodonosor, and thy name shalbe spoken of in all the lande.

Holofernes commaundeth that Judith be not molested. She desyreth leuenes to go out in the night season to prayer, and obteyneth it. Bagoas is commaunded to let her go when she wil, without offence to the host, and she returneth. Holofernes is troubled.

The.xii.Chapter.

Then commaunded he her to go in, where his treasure laye, and charged that she shoulde haue her dwellyng there, & appoynted what shoulde be geuen her fro his table. Judith answered him, & sayde: As for the meate that thou hast commaunded to geue me, I may not eate of it, lest some offence I displease my God) but will eate of suche as I haue brought with me. Then sayde Holofernes vnto her: If these thinges that thou hast brought with the fayle, what shal we do vnto the? And Judith sayde: As truly as thou lyuest my lord, thy hand mayden shal not spede all the.xii. God haue brought to passe in my handes, the thynges that I haue desyred.

So his seruauntes brought her into the tent, where as he had appoynted. And as she was goynge in, she desyred that she myght haue leue to go forth by night & before daye, to her prayer and to make intercession vnto the Lorde. Then commaunded Holofernes his Chamberlaines, that she shoulde go out & in at her pleasure, to prayse vnto God thre dayes.

And so in the night season she went forthe into the valley of Bethulia, and washed her selfe in the welle water. Then wente she vp, and besought the Lord God of Israel that he wolde prosper her way, for the deliuerance of his people. And so she went in, and remayned close in her tent, tyll she tooke her meate in the euenynge.

Vpon the fourth daye it happened, that Holofernes made a costly supper vnto his seruauntes, & sayde vnto Bagoas his Chamberlayne: Go thy waye, and counsayl this Hebrewesse, that she may be willing to consent to kepe cōpany with me. For it were a shame vnto all the Assyrians, that a woman should so laugh a man to scorne, that she were come from hym vnmolested with all.

Then went Bagoas vnto Judith, & sayde: Let not the good daughter be afrayed, to come in to my lorde, that she maye be honoured before hym, that she maye eate & drynke wyne, & be merye with him. Vnto whome Judith answered: Who am I, that I should lay my lorde wayte? whatsoeuer is good before his eyes, I shall do it: and like what is his pleasure, that shall I thynke well done, as longe as I lyue.

So she stode vp, and decked her selfe with her apparell, and went in, and stode before hym. And Holofernes hert was wholy moued, so that he burst in desyre towarde her. And Holofernes sayde vnto her: Drynke now and sit downe, & be merry, for thou hast founde fauoure before me. Then sayde Judith: Syr, I will drynke, for my soule is merye this daye, then ever it was in all my life. And she tooke and ate & dranke before him, the thynges that her mayden had prepared for her. And Holofernes was merye with her, and dranke more wyne, then ever he did afore in his life.

Holofernes requyreth his deere entertaynment of Judith, & she is brought, and geueth occasion to her owne purpose whom she is desyrous to dispatch out of. Then goeth Holofernes vnto bed, his drowsynesse. Judith speaketh vnto Abra, which maynteyned at the first vnto Holofernes.

The.xiii.Chapter.

Nowe when it was late in the night his seruauntes made haste euery man to his lodgyng. And Bagoas shut the chamber doores and wente his waye, for they were all ouerladen with wyne. So was Judith alone in the chamber. As for Holofernes he laye vpon the bed all drowsen, and of very drunkennes fell a slepe.

Then commaunded Judith her mayden, to stande without before the doore, & to wayte. And Judith stode before the bedde, makyng her prayer with teares, & moued her lippes secretly, & sayde: Strengthe me O Lord God of Israel, & haue respecte vnto the workes of my handes in this houre, that thou mayst set vp thy cyte of Hierusalem, lyke as thou hast promised: O graunte that by the I may performe the thynge, whiche I haue desyred thynke the beleue that I haue in the.

And when she had spoken thus, she wente to the bedstrade, and loused the swerde that hanged vpon it, & drew it out. Then toke she holde of the heery lockes of his heade, and sayde: Strengthen me O Lorde God in this houre: & with that, she gaue him two stroakes vpon the necke, and smote of his head. Then toke she the canapp awaye, & rolled the dead body aside. Immediatly she gat her forthe, & deliuered the heade of Holofernes vnto her mayden, and bad her put it in her male.

And so these two went forthe together after their custome, as though they wolde prayse, and so passed by the poste, and came thorow the valley vnto the porte of the cite. And Judith cryed afarre of vnto the watchemen vpon the walles: Open the gates (sayde she) for God is with vs, which hath shewed his power in Israel. And when they heard her voyce, they called the elders of the cyte together. And they came all vnto her, bothe great and small, yonge and olde, for they thought not that she shoulde have come so soone. So they lighted candels, and gathered about her everychone: but she went up into an hye place, and caused silence to be proclaymed.

C When every man now held hys tonge, Judith sayde: O prayse the Lord our God, for he hath not despised, nor forsaken them, that put their trust in him: & in me hys handmayde he hath performed hys mercy, which he promised unto the house of Israel: yea, in my hande this same night hath he slayne the enemy of hys people.

And with that she toke furthe the heade of Holofernes out of the wallet, and shewed it them, sayinge: Beholde the head of Holofernes the Captayne of the Assyrians, & this is the canapy, wherin he laye in his dronkennes: where the Lorde our God hat slayne him by the hande of a woman.

But as truly as the Lord liveth, his Angell hath kepte me, goyng thither, remaining there, & comming hither again from thence. And the Lord hath not suffred me hys handmayden to be defiled, but without any filthines of sinne hath he brought me again unto you: that with greate victory, so that I am escaped, & ye delyuered. O geue thankes unto him everychone, for he is gracious and hys mercy endureth for ever.

D So they praysed the Lord altogether, and gaue thankes unto him. And to her they sayde: The Lorde hath blessed the in hys power, for through the he hath brought our enemyes to naught. And Ozias the chief ruler of the people of Israel, sayde unto her: Blessed art thou of the Lord the hygh God, about all women upon earth.

Blessed be the Lorde, the maker of heaven and earth, which hath geded the a ryght to wounde and to smyte of the head of the Captayne of oure enemyes. For thys daye he hath made thy name so honorable, that thy prayse shall never come out of the mouthe of men, which shall all waye remember the power of the Lord: seynge thou hast not spared thyne owne selfe, but put the in ieopardy, considerynge the anguyshe and trouble of thy people, & so hast holpen their fal before God oure Lorde. And all the people sayde: Amen, Amen.

Achior also was called, & he came. Then E sayde Judith unto him: The God of Israel unto whom thou gauest witnes, & he woulde be auenged of his enemyes, even he hath thys night throwen my hande smytten of the head of all the vnlaythfull. And that thou mayest se that it is so in, beholde thou is the head of Holofernes, whiche in his presumptuous pryde despysed the God of the people of Israel, & threatened the with destruccion, sayinge: when the people of Israel is taken, I shall cause the also to be stryken with the swerde. When Achior sawe Holofernes head he fell downe upon hys face to the grounde for very anguish & feare, so that he swouned with all. But after that he was come again to him selfe, he fell downe before her, and praised her, sayinge: Blessed art thou of thy God in all the tabernacles of Jacob: for all the people that heare of thy name, shall prayse the God of Israell because of the.

The contents of Judith. Achior being an Heathen man, turneth to God. The Assyrians are afeared of the Jewes.

The.xiij. Chapter.

JUdith sayd unto all the people A Wherfore geue me, & speake up this head upon our walles, and when the Sunne ariseth, take every man hys weapen, & fall out violently: not as though ye woulde go before them, but to renne upo the, with violence. When the spyes in the tente se this, they shal of necessitie be dryuen to fle backward, and to rayse up their captayne to the battayll. So when their capitaynes come into Holofernes pauylion, and fynde the head body wrapped in the bloud, fearfulnes shall fall upon the: & when ye perceyue that they fle, folowe them without all care, for God shal deliuer them unto you, to be destroyed.

Then Achior seynge the power of God which he had shewed unto the people of Israel, fell of from hys Heathenishe belefe, and put hys trust in God, and let him self be circumcised: and so was he numbred among the people of Israel, he & all hys posterite unto thys daye.

Now as soone as it was day, they sticke B up Holofernes head upon the walles, and every man toke his weapen, and so they wet out with an horrible crye. When the spyes sawe that, they came unto Holofernes tent. And they that were within the tente, came before hys chamber, and made a greate rushing to wake him up, because they thought with the rest to have raysed him. For there durst not one of the Assyrians knocke, ne to open.

But when the capitaynes and princes and all the chief in the hoste of the Assyrians hoste came together, they sayde unto the chamberlaynes: Go your wayes in, and wake him up, for the mysse are crepte out of their holes, and dare presume to bide battayl. C

Then went Bagao into hys chamber, stode before the bed, and clapped with hys handes

handes, for he thought he had bene slepynge with Judith.

But when he had herkened perfectly with hys eares, and coulde perceyue no slepynge, he wrote vpon to the bed, and lifte it vp, and then sawe he the dead bodye of Holofernes lyenge there without a head, welterd in hys bloude vpon the earth. Then cried he with a loude voyce, and with wepping rent hys clothes, and went into Judithe tent, and founde her not: And so he lepte out vnto the people and sayde: one woman of the Jewes, hathe brought all Nabuchodonosors people too shame. For lo, Holofernes lieth vpon the grounde and hath no head.

When the chefe of the Assyrians hoste herd that, they rent theyr clothes, & there fell an intollerable feare and tremblynge vpon the, so that theyr myndes were sore afrayed. And there was an exceadynge greate crye in the whole hoost.

The flight of the Assyrians. The pursute of Israel after them. Holofernes beheaded tyche, by the spoyles of the Assyrians. Judith is praysed of Joachim and of the people.

The.xv.Chapter.

NOw when all the hoost herde that Holofernes was headed, theyr myndes and counsayl fell from them: such a feare came vpō them, that they bodertoke to defende the selfe by flyēg away: one spake not to another, but hanged downe their heades, left all behynd the, & made hast to escape frō the Bethulians: for they herde, that they were hastyng to come after with their weapens, & so they fled by the wayes of the felde, & throw all the fote paths of the dales.

And when the children of Israel sawe that they fled, they folowed vpō them, and went downe with trōpettes, blowing & shoutyng a great crye after them. As for the Assyrians, they had no order, and kepte not them selfes together, but fled their waye. Wherthrughe the children of Israel fell vpō them with one cōpany and order, and slewe as many as they myghte get. And Ozias sente messengers vnto all the cytyes and countreys of Israel.

So all the regiōs and euery cytie sent out their best men after them in harnesse, & smote them with the swerde, tyll they came too the vttermost parte of their borders. And the other that were in Bethulia came vnto the tētes of the Assyrians, and toke all that they whyche were fled had lefte behynd them, and so they fonde great good. And they that came again to Bethulia from the battayll, toke with the suche thinges as had bene theirs: there was no numbre of the cattell, and of all costly Jewels, so that from the lowest vnto the hyest, they were all made ryche of the spoyles of them. And Joachim the hye preest of Jerusalem, came too Bethulia with all the elders, that they might se Judith.

Now when she came out vnto them, they begonne all too praise her with one voyce, sayenge: thou wosshippe of the cytye of Jerusalem, thou ioy of Israell, thou honoure of oure people, thou hast done manly, and thy herte is comforted, because thou hast loued clenlynes, & chastite, & hast knowen no man but thyne owne husbande: therfore hath the hande of the Lord comforted the, and blessed shalt thou be for euer. And all people sayde: so be it, so be it.

In thyrty dayes coulde the people of Israel scarse gather vp the spoyles of the Assyrians. But all that belonged vnto Holofernes, and had bene hys specially (whether it were of golde, of siluer, precious stones, clothinge and all ornamentes) they gaue it vnto Judith. And all the people triumphed, both the men, maydens, and yonge people, with pypes and harpes.

The song of Judith for the victory. After the victory obteyned, the people returneth to Jerusalem, to worshippe and prayse God.

The.xvi.Chapter.

THen songe Judith thys songe vnto the Lorde: Begin vnto the Lord vpō tabrettes, synge vnto the Lord vpō the cymbales. O singe vnto hym a newe songe of thankesgeuing, be ioyful & call vpō his name. For the Lord is that destroyeth warres, and the Lord is his name. Which hath pitched hys tentes in the middest of hys people, that he might deliuer vs frō the hāde of all our enemyes. Assur came out of the mountaynes in the multitude of his strēgth. His people stopped the waters brokes, & their holes couered the valleys. He purposed to haue brent vp my lande, and to slaye my youngmē with the swerde.

He wolde haue carped away my children and virgins vnto captiuite, but the almyghtie Lorde hathe hurte hym, and deliuerd hym in too the handes of a woman, which brought hym to confusion. For their mighty was not destroyed of the youngmen. It was not the sonnes of Titan that slew hym, neither haue the greate Gyauntes set them selfes against hym: but Judith the daughter of Merari with her fayre beuty hath discomfyted hym, and brought hym to naught. For she layed away her wyddowes garmentes, and put on the apparel of gladnesse in the rejoysinge of the children of Israell. She anoynted her face, and bounde vp her heere in an hoope, too beguile hym. Her slipper rauished his eyes, her beautye captiuated his mynde, with the swerde smote she of his neck. The Persiās were astomped at her stedfastnesse, and the Medes at her boldnes. Then howled the armies of the Assyrians, when my symple appeared, dyed of thyrst. The sonnes of the daughterre haue peersed them thorow, & slayne them as fugytyue children: they perysshed in the battayll, for the very feare of the Lorde my God. Let vs synge a songe of thankesgeuing vnto the Lorde, & a newe songe of prayse will we synge vnto oure God. And Lorde, Lorde, thou arte a great God, mighty in power, whome no man may ouercome. All the creatures shoulde serue the: for thou spakest but the woorde, and they were made: thou sendest thy spirite, and they were created, and no man can withstande thy voyce. The mountaynes shall moue frō the foundacions with the waters, the stonye rockes shall melte before the lyghte ware. But they that feare the: shalbe great with the in all thynges. Wo vnto the people that ryse vp agaynste my generacion, for the almyghtye Lorde will auenge him selfe of them, and in the daye of iudgement will he vysite thē. For he shall sende fyre & wormes vnto theyr flesshe, that they maye burne and feele for euermore.

After this it happened, that after the victory all the people came to Hierusalem, too geue prayse and thankes vnto the Lorde. And when they were purified, they offred all theyr burnt sacrifices and their promysed offrynges. And Judith offred all Holofernes weapens, and all the Jewels that the people had geuen her, and the vanapp that she tooke from hys bed, and hanged them vp vnto the Lorde. The people was ioyfull, as the victory: and thys ioye by reason of the victory, wyth Judith, endured thre monethes.

So after these dayes euery man wente home agayne, and Judith was in greate reputacion at Bethulia, and right honorably taken in all the lande of Israell. Vnto her bedde also was chastitie ioyned, so that after her husbande Manasses dyed, she neuer knew man: the dayes of her lyfe. Vpō the hye solempne dayes she went out with great worshippe. She dwelt in her husbandes house an hundreth and foure yeare, and lefte her handmayden free, and dyed, and was buryed besyde her husbande in Bethulia. And all the people mourned for her seuen dayes. So longe as she lyued, there was none that troubled Israell, and many yeares also after her death.

The daye wherein this victorye was gotten, was solempnly holde, and reckned of the Jewes in the numbre of the holy dayes, and kepte greatly holde of the Jewes euer sence, vnto thys daye.

The dreame of Mardocheus.

¶ The.xi.Chapter after the Latyne.

MArdocheus the sone of Jair the sonne of Semei, the sonne of Cisei of the tribe of Beniamin, a Jewe; whiche had his dwelling in Hierusalem, a manne of great reputacion, and excellent amōg all the that were in the kynges courte. (Ouer and besyde he was one of the prysoners, whom Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon had caryed awaye from Hierusalem vnto Babylō with Jechonias the kynge of Juda.) In the seconde yeare of the raygne of great Artaxerxes in the fyrste daye of the moneth Nisan, hadde this Mardocheus suche a dreame: He thoughte he herde a greate tempest, horrible thonderclappes, earthquakes, & great vprore in the lande: & that he sawe two great dragons, redy to fight one agaynst another. Theyr crye was great. At the which roaringe & crye all Nacions were vp, to fight agaynst the righteous people. And the same daye was ful of darkenes and derke vncleare, full of trouble and anguyshe, yea, a greate fearfulnes was there in all the lande. The righteous were amased, for they feared the plague and euell that was dreyned ouer them, and were at a poynte with them selues too dye. Soo they cryed vnto God: and whyle they were cryenge, the lyle welle grewe into a greate ryuer and into many waters. And with that it was daye, and the sunne rose vp agayne. And the lowly were exalted, and deuoured the glorious and proude.

Now when Mardocheus had sene thys dreame, he awoke, & mused stedfastly in hys herte, what God wolde do: and so he desired to knowe all the matter, and his mynde was therupon vntill the nyght.

Mardocheus herde the treason buylded agaynste the kynge, and is therfore rewarded of hym.

¶ The.xii.Chapter.

AT the same tyme dwelt Mardocheus with Bagatha & Tares the kynges Chamberlaynes and porters of the palace. But whē he heard their deuice, & had diligētly considered their imaginacion he perceiued that they went about, to lay their cruel hāden vpō the kyng Artaxerxes, so he gotte spyed arteryed the kyng therof. Then caused the kyng to examen the two gelded with rasmiters. And when they had confessed it, they were put to death.

This the kyng caused to be put in the Cronycles for an euerlastynge remembraunce, and Mardochrus wrote vp the same matter. So the kynge commaunded that Mardochrus shoulde do seruice in the court, and for his faythfulnesse of hys, he gaue hym a reward. But Aman the sonne of Amadathu the Agagite, whiche was holden in great honoure & reputacion in the kynges courte wonderfully hurte Mardochrus & his people, because of the two chamberlaynes that were put to death.

The copye of the letters of Assuerus against the Iewes. The prayer of Mardochrus.

The.viii.Chapter.

The great kyng Assuerus which raygneth from India vnto Ethiopia, ouer an hundreth and seuen & twenty landes, sendeth his frendly salutacion vnto all Rulers and debyties of the countrees, whiche be subiecte vnto hys dominion. When I was made Lorde ouer many people, and hadde subdued the whole earth vnto my dominiõ, my mynde was not with crueltye and wronge too exalte my selfe by ꝑ reason of my power: but purposed with equyte alwaye and gentelnes, too governe those that be vnder my iurisdiction, & wholy to set them in a peaceable lyfe, and thereby to brynge my kyngedome vnto tranquillitie, that men might safely go thoroughe out euery syde, and too renue peace agayne, whiche all men desyre. Now when I asked my counsaylers how these thinges might be brought to a good ende, there was one by vs, excellente in wysedome, whose good wyll, trueth, and faythfulnes hathe ofte bene shewed and proued (which was also the principall and next vnto the kynge) Aman by name: which certefyed vs, howe that in all landes there was crepte in a rebellyous folke, that made statutes and lawes agaynst all other people, and haue alwaye despysed the proclaymed commaundementes of kynges: and how that for this cause it were not to be suffred, that suche rule shoulde continue by vs not to be put downe. Seynge now we perceyue the same, that this people alone are cõtrary vnto euery man, vsyng straunge and other maner of lawes, and withstande our statutes & dooynges, and go about to stablyshe shrewd matters, that our kyngdome shoulde neuer come too good estate, and stedfastnes: Therfore haue we commaunded, that all they that are appointed in writing and shewed vnto vs by Aman (whiche is ordeyned & set ouer all our busynes, and the most principall next vnto the kynge, and in maner as a father) shall with their wyues and chyldren be destroyed and rooted out with the swerde of their enemyes and aduersaryes: and that there shalbe no mercy shewed, and no man spared. And this shalbe done the.xiiij. daye of the moneth (called Adar) of this yeare, that they which of olde (& now also) haue ever bene rebellious, maye in one daye with violence be thrust downe into the hell, so the weale publyke thus maner, our empire maye haue peace & tranquilnes.

But Mardochrus thought vpon all the workes and noble actes of the Lorde, & made hys prayer vnto hym, sayeng: O Lord Lord, thou kyng almyght and almyghtye kynge (for all thynges are in thy power, and if thou wylte helpe and beleeue Israel, there is no man that can withstande) for thou hast made heauen and earth, & what wonderous thinge so euer is vnder the heauen: thou arte Lorde of all thynges, and there is no man, that can resist thee O Lorde. Thou knowest all thynges, thou moste Lorde, that it was neyther of malice, nor presumpcion, nor for any desire of glory, that I would not bowe downe my selfe vnto worshippe proude presumptuous Aman (for I would haue bene content, and that with good will, if it might haue done Israel any good, to haue kyst euen hys forestepps) but that I did it, because I wold not set the honoure of a man in the steade of the glorye of God, and because I wolde worshippe none but onely the my Lorde. And thys haue I done of no pryde nor presumpcion.

And therfore O Lorde thou God & king, haue mercy vpon thy people for they imagin how they maye bring vs to naught, yea, their mynde and desyre is to destroye and to ouerthrowe thy people, that hathe euer bene thyne enheritaunce of olde. O despyse not thy portion, which thou hast deliuered & brought oute of Egypte for thyne owne selfe. Heare my prayer, and be mercyfull vnto thy people, whome thou hast chosen for an heritage vnto thy selfe. Turne our complaynte and sorowe into ioye, that we maye lyue O Lorde, and prayse thy name. O Lorde, suffre not the mouthes of them that prayse the, too be destroyed.

All the people of Israel in lyke maner cried as earnestly as they coulde vnto the Lorde, for their deathe and destruccion stode before their eyes.

The prayer of Esther for the deliuerance of her and her people.

The.viii.Chapter.

Queene Esther also beyng in the daunger of death, refused vnto the Lorde, layed away her glorious apparel, & put on the garmentes that serued for sygheng & mournyng. In the steade of precious ointment, she scattered ashes & dõge vpõ her head and as for her body, she humbled it, and brought it very lowe. All the places where she was wonte to haue ioye of, those filled she with the heere, that she plucte out her selfe.

O my Lorde, thou onely art oure kynge, helpe me deſolate woman, whyche haue no helper but the, for my myſery & deſtruccyon is hard at my hande. From my youth vp I haue herde oute of the kynred of my father, that thou tokeſt Iſrael frō among all the people, & ſo haue oure fathers of their fore elders, that they ſhoulde be thye perpetuale inheritaunce, and lyke what thou dydeſt promyſe them, thou haſt made it good vnto them.

Now well Lorde, we haue ſynned before the, therefore haſte thou geuen vs in to the handes of oure enemyes, becauſe we worſhipped their goddes. Lorde thou arte ryghteous. Neuertheles it ſatisfyeth the not, that we are in bytter and heauye captiuite and oppreſſed amōge the, but thou haſte laied their handes vpon the handes of their goddes: ſo that they begynne to take awaye, the thynge that thou with thy mouth haſt ordeined & appoynted to deſtroye thyne inheritaunce, to ſhut and to ſtoppe the mouthes of them that prayſe the to quyeth the glory and worſhype of thy houſe and thyne auter, and to opē the mouthes of the heathē, that they may prayſe the power and vertue of the goddes, and to magnifye the fleſhly kynge forever,

O Lorde, geue not thy ſcepter vnto them that be nothyng, leſt they laugh vs to ſcorne in oure myſerye and fall: but turne their deuyce vpon them ſelues, and punyſh hym, that hath begonne the ſame oure vs, and ſet him to an example. Thynche vpon vs O Lorde, and ſhew thy ſelfe in the time of oure diſtres and of oure trouble, Strength me O thou kynge of Goddes, thou Lorde of all power, geue an eloquente and pleaſaunte ſpeache in my mouth before the Lyon. Turne hys hert vnto the hate of oure enemy, to deſtroye hym, and all ſuch as conſent vnto hym. But helpe vs with thy hande, and helpe me deſolate woman, whyche haue no defence nor helper but only the. Lorde thou knoweſt all thinges thou woteſt that I haue not the glory and worſhyppe of the vnryghteous, & that I hate and abhorre the bed of the vncircumcyſed and of all Heathen.

Thou knowſt and woteſt my neceſſitye, that I hate the token of my pryhemynence & worſhip, which I beare vpō my head, what tyme as I muſt ſhew my ſelfe and be ſene, & that I abhorre it as an vncleane cloth, and that I weare it not when I am quyete and alone by my ſelf. Thou knowſt alſo that I thy handemayden haue not eaten at Amans table, and that I haue had no pleaſure nor delyte in the Kynges feaſte, that I haue not dronche the dauche offeringes, and that I thy handemayden haue had no ioy ſence the day that I was brought hyther, vnto thys daye but only in the O Lorde. O thou God of Abraham, O thou myghtye God aboue all heare the voice of them, that haue none other hope, & helpe me out of the hād of the wicked, and delyuer me oute of my feare.

Queen Hester moueth Hester to go vnto the Kynge and make interceſſion for her people, and ſhe ſeeketh meth how to acquit.

The.v.h. Chapter.

On vpō the third day it happe ned, that Hester laied away the mourning garmentes, & put on her glorious apparell, & decked her ſelfe goodly (after that ſhe had called vpon God, which is the beholder and Sauioure of all thynges) tooke two mayden with her: vpon the one ſhe leaned her ſelfe as one that was tender, the other folowed her, and bare the traine of her veſture. The ſhyne of her bewty made her face roſe coulered. The ſimplycyte of her face was cheerful amiable, but her hert was ſorowful for great feare. She went in thorow all the doores, and ſtode before the kynge. The kynge ſat vpon the throne of his kingdome, and was clothed in his goodly araye, al of gold, & ſet with precious ſtones, and he was verye terrible. He lyfte vp his face, that ſhyne in the clearenes, and loked grymlye vpon her. Then fell the Quene downe, was pale and faynte, leaned her ſelfe vpon the heade of the mayde that went with her.

Neuertheles God turned the kings mind that he was gentle, & bare oute of his feare for feare, and gat her in his armes, and held her vp tyll ſhe came to her ſelfe agayne. He gaue her louynge wordes alſo, and ſayde vnto her: Hester, what is the matter? I am thy brother, be of good cheare, thou ſhalt not dye for oure commaundement toucheth the comons not the, Come nie. And with that he helde vp his golden wande, and layed it vpō her neche, and embraced her frendly, and ſaide talke with me. Then ſaide ſhe: I ſaw the (O Lorde) as an Angell of God, & my hert was troubled for feare of thy maieſty & clearneſſe for excellent and wonderfull arte thou (O Lorde, and thy face is full of ample. But as ſhe was thus ſpeakynge vnto hym, ſhe fell downe againe for feyntnes: for the whyche cauſe the kyng was ſtraped, and all hys ſeruauntes comforted her.

The.vi. Chapter.

The great kynge Artaxerxes, rayneth frō India vnto Ethiopia ouer an hundreth and.xxvii landes ſendeth vnto the Princes & rulers of the ſame landes, ſuche as loue hym, hys frendely ſalutacyon. There bemanye that for the ſondrye frendeſhyppes & benefytes which are diuerſly done vnto them for their worſhyppe, be euer the more proude & hye mynded, & vndertake not only to hurt our ſubiectes (for pitteous bene fites may they not ſuffer, & begin to) penagin ſom thing againſt thoſe that do them good & take not out of the all vnthankefulneſſe awaye

from men but in pryde and presumpcion (as they that be vnmyndefull and vnthankefull for the good deades) they go about to escape the iudgement of God, that seeth all thinges, which (iudgement) hasteth and punissheth all wickednes. It happeneth oft also, that they whiche be set in office by the hyer power, & vnto whome the busynes and cause of the subiectes are committed to be handled, waxe proude, and defyle them selfe with shedding of innocent bloude, whiche bringeth them to intolerable hurt. Whiche also with false and disceatful woordes and with lyenge tales, disceyue and betraye the innocente goodnes of Princes.

Nowe is it profitable and good, that we take hede, make search thereafter, and consider, not only what hath happened vnto vs of olde: but the shamefull, vnhonestie, and nopsome thynges, that the debates haue now taken in hande before oure eyes: and therby to be warre in time to come, that we may make the kyngdome quyete and peaceable for all men, and that we myght some tyme driue it to a thanke: & as for the thyng that now is present before oure eyes, too withstande it, and to put it downe, after the moste frendly maner.

What tyme nowe as Aman the sonne of Amadathu the Macedonian (a straunger verely of the Persians bloude, and farre from oure goodnes) was come in among vs as an alyeaunt, and had optayned the frendshippe that we beare towarde all people, so that he was called our father, & had in hygh honour of euery man, as the next and principal vnto the kynge, he coulde not forbeare hym selfe from hys pryde, hathe vndertaken not onely to robbe vs of the kyngdom, but of our lyfe.

With manyfolde dyuerse also hath he desyred too destroye Mardocheus oure helper and preserver, whiche hathe done vs good in all thinges: and moreouer Hester the kyes partaker of oure kyngdome, with al her people. For hys mynde was (when he had taken the out of the waye, and robbed vs of them) by this meanes to translate the kyngedome of the Persians vnto them of Macedonia. But we fynde, that the Iewes (whyche were accused of the wicked, that they myghte be destroyed) are no euell doers, but vse reasonable and right lawes: and that they be the children of the most hygh lyuyng God, by whō the kyngdome of vs and oure progenitours hath bene well ordred hitherto. Wherfore as for the letters and commaundmentes, that were put forthe by Aman the sonne of Amadathu, ye shall do well, if ye holde the of none effect: for he that set the vp and inuented the, hangeth at Susis before the porte, with all hys howse, and God (which hath al thinges in hys power) hath rewarded hym after his deserynge.

And vpon this ye shall publish and set vp the copy of this letter in all places, that the Iewes maye freely and without hyndrance holde them selues after their owne statutes, and that they maye be holpen, and that vpon the. xiij. daye of the. xij. moneth Adar, they maye be auenged of them, which in the time of their anguyshe and trouble, wolde haue oppressed them. For the God that gouerneth all thynges, hathe turned too ioye the daye, wherein the chosen people shoulde haue perished.

Moreouer, amōg the hyer solemne dayes that ye haue, ye shall holde this daye also with all gladnesse: that now and in tyme too come, this daye maye be a remembraunce to good, for all suche as loue the prosperite of the Persians: but a remembraunce of destruction to thole that be seditious vnto vs.

All cytyes and landes that do not thys, shall horribly perish and be destroyed with the swerde and fyre, and shall not onely be nomore inhabited of men, but be abhorred also of the wylde beastes and foules.

The. J. Chapter.

Set youre affection vpon wisdom, ye that be iudges of the earth. Haue a good opinion of the Lorde, & seke him in the singlenesse of hert. For he will be founde of them that tempte him not, and appeareth vnto such as put their trust in him. As for frowarde thoughtes, they seperate frō God, but vertue, if yt be alowed) reformeth the vnwyse. And vnto wilsdome shall not entre into a frowarde soule, nor dwell in the bodye that is subiect vnto synne. For the holy ghost abhorreth fayned nurture, and withdraweth him self frō the thoughtes that are without vnderstandinge: and when wickednes hath the vpper hande, he flyeth frō thence. For the spirite of wysdome is louynge, gentle and gracious, and will haue no pleasure in him that speaketh euell with hys lippes. For God is a witnesse of his reynes, a true searcher out of hys herte, and an hearer of his tonge. For the spirite of the Lorde fylleth the round compasse of the worlde and the same that vpholdeth all thinges, hath knowledge also of the voice.

Therfore he that speaketh vnrighteous thinges, cannot be hyd, neyther maye he escape the iudgement of reprofe. And why? inquisicion shall be made for the thoughtes of the vngodly, and the reporte of hys wordes shall come vnto God, for that his wickednes shalbe punished. For ye eare of gelousye heareth all thinges, and the noyse of the grudginges shall not be hyd. Therfore beware of murmuringe, which is nothinge worthe, & refrayne youre tonge from slaunder. For there is no worde so darcke and secrete, that it shall goo for naughte: and the mouthe that speaketh lyes, slayeth the soule.

Se not youre owne death in the errour of youre lyfe, destroy not youre selues thorow the workes of youre owne handes. For God hath not made death, neyther hath he pleasure in the destruccion of the vngodlye. For he created all thinges, that they myght haue their beyng: & a lytle people of the earth hath he made that they should haue helth that there shalbe no destruccion in them, and that the kyngdome of hell shalbe not vpō earth (for righteousnesse is euerlastinge and immortall, but vnrighteousnes bringeth death.) Ouerthelesse, the vngodlye call her vnto the doeth with wordes, and workes and wayte they thynke to haue a frende of her they come to naught: for ye vngodly that are confederate with her and take her parte are worthy of death.

The.ii. Chapter.

The ymaginacion and despite of the wicked, and their reward against the righteous.

For the vngodly talke and ymagin thus amonge them selues (but not rightly:) Therme of oure lyfe is but shorte and sorrowfull, & when a man is oute goone, he hath no more ioye nor pleasure, neyther know we any man ye returneth agayne frō death: for we are borne of naught and we shal be hereafter as though we had neuer bene. For our breth is as a smoke in oure nosethrels and the worde as a sparcke to moue oure herte. As for oure body, it shalbe very ashes that are quenched, and oure soule shal vanish as the soft aire. Oure lyfe shall passe awaye as the trace of a cloude, and come to naughte as the myste that is dryuen awaye with the beames of the Sonne, and put downe with the heate therof. Oure name also shalbe forgotten by tyme and tyme, and no man shall haue our workes in remembraunce.

For our time is a very shadow that passeth awaye, and after oure ende there is no returnyng, for it is fast sealed, so that no man cometh agayne. Come on therfore, let vs enioye the pleasures that there are, and let vs vse the creature lyke as in youth. We will fyll oure selues with good wyne and oyntement, that no flour of the time go by vs. We will croune our selues with roses afore they be withered. There shall be no lyfe medowe, but oure lust shall goo thorowe it. Let euery one of vs be partaker of oure ryotousnes, let vs leaue some token of oure pleasure in euerye place, for that is oure portion, & is get we nothynge. Let vs oppresse the poore righteous, let vs not spare the widdow nor olde man, let vs not regarde the heares that are grayhoare for age. Let the lawe of vs righte ouerelle be our authouritie, for ye thinge that is feble is nothynge worth. Therfore let vs vndertrade the righteous, and why? he is not for oure profit, yea he is cleane contrary to our doinges. He chargeth vs for offendinge agaynste the lawe, and slaunderth vs as trasgressours of al nurture. He maketh his boast to haue the knowledge of god, yea he calleth him selfe Gods sonne. He is the beholdar of oure thoughtes: It grieueth vs also to loke vpon him, for his lyfe is not like other mens his wayes are of another fashyon. We estieme vs but vayne persones, he withdraweth hym selfe from oure wayes as from fylthynesse: he commendeth greatly the latter ende of the iuste, & maketh his boast that God is his father. Let vs se then if his wordes be true, let vs proue what shall come vpon him & so shall we know what ende he shall haue.

For if he be the true sonne of God, he will receyue him and helpe him from the handes of his enemies. Let vs crauen him with despytefull rebuke and turmentynge, that we maye knowe his dignite and proue his patience. Let vs condemne him with the most shamefull deathe: for lyke as he hath spoken, so shall he be rewarded.

Such thinges do the vngodly ymagin, & go astraye, for their owne wickednes hath blynded them. As for the mysteries of God they vnderstande them not: ney ther neither hope for the rewarde of righteousnesse, nor regard the worshyp that holy soules shall haue. For God created man to be vndefaced, yea after the ymage of his owne likenesse made he him. Ouerthelesse thorowe envy of the deuel came death into the worlde, and they that hold of his syde, do as he doth.

The vnderstanding and ende of the righteous. The rewarde of the vngodly.

The

A But the soules of the ryghteous are in the hande of God, and the payne of deth shall not touch the. In the sight of the unwyse they apere to die, & their ende is taken for very destruccyon. The way of the ryghteous is iudged to be bitter destruccion but they are in rest. And though they suffre payne before men, yet is their hope full of immortalyte. They are punished but in few thinges, nevertheles, in many thynges shall they be well rewarded. For god proveth the, & findeth the mete for him selfe even as the gold in the fornace doth he fry the, & receyveth the as a burnt offering, and when the tyme cometh' they shalbe loked vpon.

B The ryghteous shal shine as the sparkes that renne thorowe the rodde bush. They shall iudge the nacyons, & have dominacyon ouer the people, & their Lorde shall raygne for ever. They that put their trust in hym, shal vnderstande the trueth, & such as be faythfull, will agre vnto him in love: for his chosen shall have gifte & peace. But the ungodly shalbe punished according to their owne ymaginacions, for they have despysed the righteous, & forsaken the Lord.

C Who so despyseth wysdome & nurture, he is unhappie, and as for the hope of suche, it is but vayne, their laboures unfruitefull, and their workes unprofitable. Their wyues are indiscrete, and their children malte ungodly. Their creature is curssed. Blessed is rather the barren & undefiled, which hath not knowne the synfull bed: she shal have frute in the reward of the holy soules. And blessed is the gelded, which with his hades hath wrought no unrighteousnesse, nor ymagined wycked thinges against God. For vnto hym shal be geuen the special gift of faith, and the moste acceptable portion in the temple of God. For glorious is the frute of good labour, and the D rote of wysedome shall never fade awaye.

As for the childe of aduowtrers, they shal come to an ende, and the sede of an unrighteous bedde shalbe rooted out. And though they live longe, yet shal they be nothing regarded, & their last age shalbe without honoure. If they dye hastely, they have no hope, neyther shal they be spoke to in the day of knowledge For horrible is the death and ende of the unrighteous.

The.iiii. Chapter.

Of the chaste generacyon of the faythfull, and of their Lyuyng. Of the death of the righteous, and of the condemnacyon of the vnfaythfull.

A How faire is a chast generacyon with vertue! The memorye all therof is immortal, for it is known with good men. When it is present, men take example therat: and if it go awaye, yet they desyre it. It is all waye crowned and holden in honour, and weareth the reward of the undefiled battail. But the multitude of ungodly children is unprofitable, & the thinges that are plaied with wickednesse, shal take no depe rote, nor lay any fast foundacyon. Though they be greene in the braunches for a tyme, yet shal they be shaken with the wynde: for they stande not fast, and through the vehemency of the wynde they shalbe rooted out. For the unperfecte bowes shalbe broken, their frute shalbe unprofitable and sower to eate, yea mete for nothing. And why? all the children that are borne of the wicked, must beare recorde of the wickednesse against their fathers and mothers, when they be asked. But though the righteous be ouertaken with death, yet shall he be in rest.

B Age is an honorable thynge: nevertheles it standeth not only in the length of time, nor in the multitude of yeares: but a mans wysdome is the grey heare, and an undefyled lyfe is the olde age. He pleased God, & was beloued of hym: so that where as he lyued among synners, he translated hym. Yea sodenly was he take away, lest the wycked that wickednesse shulde not alter his understandynge, and that ypocrysye should not begyle his soule. For the craftye be wytching of lewd make good thynges darcke, the unbridled lust alsa, & wickednes of bulptuous desyre turne aside the understandynge of the symple. Though he was soone dead, yet fulfilled he much time. For his soule pleased God therfore hasted he to take him awaye from among the wycked. This the people se, & understande it not: they laye not up suche thynges in their hartes, howe that the longe fauour and mercy of God is vpō his electes, and that he hath respecte vnto his chosen.

Thus the righteous that is dead, condemneth the ungodly which are lyuyng: and the C youth that is soone brought to an ende, the longe lyfe of the unrighteous. For they se the end of the wyse, but they understand not what God hath deuised for him, & wherfore the Lorde hath taken him awaye. And why? they se him & despyse him, therfore shal God also laughe them to scorne: So that they them selues shall dye here after (but without honour) yea in shame among the dead for euermore. For without any voyce shall he burst those that be put vp, & remoue the frō the foundacyon, so that they shalbe laied waste vnto the hyghest. They shall mourne, and their memorye all shall perysshe. So they dyeng afrayd shall remember their synnes, and their owne wickednesse shall bewray them.

The.v. Chapter.

The confidence of the ryghteous before their persecutors. The hope of the vnfaythfull is unprofitable & vayne. The vnfruitfulnes and fruitefulnesse of the sinners and godly.

Then shall the righteous stand in 3 + great stedfastnesse against suche as have dealt extremelye with them, and taken awaye their labours. When they se it, they shalbe vexed with horrible feare, and shall wonder at the hastynesse of the sodaine healthe: grompnge for very distresse of mynde, & shall ap with in them selues, hauynge inwarde sorowe and and mournyng for very anguyshe of mynde:

These are they, whom we sometyme had in derision, & scorned vpon. We fooles thought their lyfe very madnesse, and their ende to be without honour. But lo, how they are coūted amonge the children of God, & their portion is amōg the sayntes. Therefore we haue erred from the waye of truethe, & light of righteousnesse hath not shyned vnto vs, and the sunne of vnderstādyng rose not vp vpon vs. We haue wearied our selues in the waye of wickednesse & destruction. Tedious waies haue we gone, but as for the way of ꝑ Lord we haue not knowne it.

What good hath our pride done vnto vs. Or what profyte hath the pompe of ryches brought vs? All those thynges are passed awaye lyke a shadowe, & as a messanger renynge before: as a shyppe that passeth ouer the waues of the water, which whē it is gone by, the trace therof cannot be found, neyther the path of it in the flouds. Or as a byrde that flyeth thorow the ayre, and no māner token is any token where she is flowen, but only beateth the nayte of her wynges, beatynge the light wynde, parting the ayre thorowe the boysterous course of her goinge, & flyeth on, shakynge her wynges, where as afterwarde no token of her waye can be founde. Or lyke as when an arowe is shote at a marke, it parteth the ayre, which immediatly commeth together agayne, so that a man can not knowe where it went thorowe. Euen so we in lyke maner as soone as we were borne begonne immediatly to drawe to oure ende, & haue shewed no token of vertue, but are consumed in oure owne wickednesse.

Such wordes shal they that haue synned speake in the hell: for the hope of the vngodly is like a dry thystel floure (or dulte) that is blowen awaye with the winde: like as thyne frosone ꝑ is scattred abrode with the storme: lyke as the smoke whyche is dispersed here & there with the wynde, & as the remembraunce of a straunger that tarieth for a day, and then departeth. But the righteous shall lyue for euermore: their reward also is with the Lord & their remembraunce with the Most. Therfore shall they receyue a glorious kyngdome and a beautyfull crowne of the Lordes hande: for with his right hande shal he couer them, and with his owne arme shall he defende the. His geloufye also shall take awaye the harnesse, & he shall weapē the creature to be auēged of the enemyes. He shall put on righteousnes for a brest plate, and take sure iudgement in stede of an helmet. The inuincible shylde of equyte shall he take, his cruell wrath shall he sharpē for a speare, & the whole compasse of the worlde shall fyght with him agaynst the vnwyse.

Then shal the shooter bolte go out of ꝑ lightenynges, & come out of the rayne boluē of the cloudes, to the place appointed: out of the hearde stomp indygnation there shall fal thick hayles, and the water of the sea shalbe wroth agaynste them, and the floudes shall renne roughly together. Yea a mighty wynd shal stande vp agaynst them, & a storme shal tere the abrode. Thus ꝑ vnrighteous dealing of them shal bringe all the lande to a wildernes, and wickednes shal ouerthrowe the dwellynges of the mightye.

The.vi.Chapter

The exhortynge of Kynges, Iudges, and Iugges which are also exhorted to learne wysdome.

WIsdome is better then strēgth, and a man of vnderstandyng is more worth then one that is stronge. Heare therefore (O ye kynges) and vnderstande: O learne ye that be iudges of the endes of the earth. Geue eare ye that rule the multitudes, and delite in much people. For the power is geuen you of the Lord, & the strength from the Most: which shal trye youre workes and searche out your imaginations. How that ye beinge officers of his kyngedome, haue not executed true iudgement, haue not kepte the lawe of righteousnes, nor walked after his will. Horrible and that right soone shal he appeare vnto you: for an hard iudgement shall they haue that beare rule. Mercy is graunted vnto the symple, but they that be in authorite shall be sore punysshed. For God which is Lorde ouer all, shal except no mās persoune, neither shall he' stande in awe of anye maners greatnesse: for he hath made the small and great, and careth for al a lyke. But the myghtye shall haue the sorer punysshmente.

Vnto you therfore (O ye kynges) do I speake, that ye maye learne wysdome and not go amysse: for they ꝑ kepe righteousnes shal be righteously iudged: & they ꝑ are learned in righteous thinges, shal find to make answer. Wherfore let youre lustes vpon my wordes, and loue them so shall ye come by instruction. Wysdome is a noble thynge, and neuer fadeth awaye: yee she is easely seue of the that loue her, & found of such as seke her. She preuenteth them that desyre her, that she maye fyrst shewe her selfe vnto the. Who so awaketh vnto her by tymes, shall haue no great trauayle, for he shall fynde her sitting readye at his doore. To thynche vpon her is perfecte vnderstandyng: & who so watcheth for her, shalbe safe, and that soone. For she goeth about, seekynge suche as are worthe for her, sheweth her self cheerefully vnto them in their goinges, & meeteth the with al diligence. For the vnlayned desyre of reformacyon is her beginnynge: to care for nurture is loue, & loue is the keepynge of her lawes. Now the keepyng of the lawes, is perfeccyon & an vncorrupte lyfe, and an vncorrupte life maketh a man familiar with God. And so the desire of of wysdome leteth to the kyngdome euerlas D stynge. If youre delyte be then in royall seates & septers (O ye kinges of the people) set youre hulle vpon wysdome, that ye maye raigne for euer more. O loue the light of wis dome, all ye that be rulers of the people. As for wilde what she is, and howe she came vp I wyll tell you, and wyll not hyde the mys teries of God from you: but wyl seke her out frō the begynnynge of the natiuitie & bynge

the knowledge of her into lyght, and wil not hepe back the trueth. Neyther wyl I haue to do wyth consumynge envye, for such a man shal not be partaker of wysdō. But the multitude of the wyse is the welfare of the worlde, and a wyse kyng is the vpholdinge of the peo ple. O receyue nourture then (ye) wyse wardes, and it shall do you good.

The.iii. Chapter.

Wysdome ought to be preferred before all thynges.

A I Myself also am a mortal mā lyke as all other, and am come of the earthy generation of hym that was first made, and in my mothers wombe was I fashioned to be flesh: In the tyme of ten monethes was I brought together in blode thorowe
the sede of man, & the commodyous appetyte of slepe. Whē I was borne, I receyued lyke aire as other men, an fell vpō the earthy (which is my nature) crying & wepping at the fyrst, as al other do. I was wrapped in swad lyng clothes, & brought vp wt grete cares. For there is no kyng & hath had anye other beginning of byrth. Al me then haue one entrance into lyfe, and one goynge out in lyke maner.

Wherfore I besought, and vnderstanding was geuen me: I called, & the spirite of wysdome came into me. I sett more by her then B by kyngdomes & royall seates, and counted ryches nothing in comparison of her. As for precyous stone I compared it not vnto her:
for all golde is but grauel vnto her, & siluer shalbe counted but claye before her syght. I loued her aboue welfare and beautie, and pur posed to take her for my lyght. For her shyne can not be quenched. All good thynges came to me with her, & innumerable riches thorow her handes. I was glad in them all, for the wysdome went before me, & I knewe not that she is the mother of al good thinges. Now as I my selfe learned vnfayndedly, so do I make other me partakers of her, & hyde her riches from no man: for she is an infinite treasure vnto men, which who so vse, he come part-takers of the loue & frendshippe of god, and are accepted vnto hym for the giftes of wisdom.

C God hath graunted me to talke wysely, & commenedly to handle the thynges that he hath graciously lent me. For it is he, & leadeth vnto wysdome, & teacheth to vse wisdome a right. In his hand are we and oure wordes yea al oure wysdome, oure vnderstanding & knowledge of all oure workes. For he hath geuen me the true lyghte of these thynges:
so

so that I knowe howe the worlde was made,
& the powers of the elementes: the beginninge, endynge and myddest of the tymes: howe the tymes alter, howe one goeth after another, and howe they are fulfylled: the course of the yeare: the ordynaunces of the starres: the na
tures & hardnes of beastes: the furyousnesse of beastes: the power of & wyndes: the ymaginacyons of mennes: the diuersities of youge plātes: the vertues of rotes, & all such thinges
as are secrete and not loked for, haue I learned. For the workemaister of all thynges hath taught me wysdome. In her is the spirite of D vnderstandynge, which is holye, manyfolde, one onely, subtyl, quycke speche, vnbefyled, glasynge swete, louing the thyng & is good, sharpe, whiche no thynge lette to do well, gētle, louyng, stedfast, sure, sekynge
all vertues, circumspecte in all thynges: ex-cellynge all spirites of vnderstādynge being cleane and sharpe. For wysdome is mouable then all mouable thynges: she goeth thorowe and attayneth to all thynges: because of her cleanes. For she is the breth of the power of God, and a pure cleane expressynge of the cleanes of Almyghtye God. Therfore can no vnbefyled thynge come vnto her: for she is & bryghtnes of the euerlastinge light, the vnbefyled myrrour of the maiestie of God, and the ymage of his goodnesse. And for so much E as she is one, she maye do all thynges: and beynge stedfast her selfe she renueth all, and amongst the people conueyeth she her selfe in to the holy soules. She maketh Gods frēn-des and prophetes: for God loueth no man, but him which wysdome vseth. For she is more beutifull then the Sunne, and goeth more lyghte then the starres and the daye is not to be compared vnto her: for vpon & day commeth wyckednesse. But wyckednesse can not ouer come wysdome, and holynesse maye not be wyth her.

The effectes of wysdom.

The.iiii. Chapter.

Wisdom reacheth from one ende
to another mightely, & lowing-ly both ordre al thynges, I haue loued her and labored for her euen fro my youth vp:
I dyd my dylygence to make my selfe wyth her, such loue had I vnto her beutye. Who so hath the companye of God, commendeth her nobilnes, yea the Lord of al thynges him selfe loueth her. For she is the scholemaistresse of the vnderstāder of God, and the chefer ouer of hys workes. If a man wouldest desyre re- *. Or rather ches in thys lyfe, what is rycher then wysdō- the Gouerdome, that worketh al thynges? Then wyll nour of his he saye: vnderstandynge worketh. What is wordes.
it amonge al thinges, that worketh more then wysdome? If a man loue vertues and ryghte- *. Or rather, ousnes, let him labourre for wysdome, for she and if wysdō hath greate vertues. And whyle she teacheth be he that (labourers temperaunce ryghteousnes) strength worcketh all whyche are such thynges as men can haue thynges, nothynge

Nothynge more profitable in their lyfe. If a man delyre muche knowledge, she can tell the thynges that are paste, and dyscerne thynges for to come, she knoweth the soteltyes of wordes, and can expounde darcke sentences. She can tell of tokens and wonderous thynges, or ever they come to passe; and the endes of all times and ages. So I purposed after this maner: I will take her unto my cõpany, & comen louingly with her no dout she shal geue me good counsell, and speake comfortablye unto me in my carefulnes and greefe. For her sake shall I be well & honestly taken amonge the commens and Lordes of the countrell.

Though I be yonge, yet shall I haue sharpe understandynge, so that I shalbe maruelous in the sighte of greate men, and the facers of Papers shall wonder at me. When I holde my tonge, they shall byde my leasure: when I speake, they shall looke upon me: and if I talke much, they shall lape their handes upõ their mouth.

Moreouer, by the meanes of her I shall obtayne immortalitie, and leaue behynde me an euerlastynge memorypall, amonge them that come after me. I shall set the people in order and the nations shalbe subdued unto me. Yea terrible tyrauntes shalbe afrayed, when they do but heare of me: amonge the multitude I shalbe counted good, and mightie in battail. When I come home, I shall fynde reste with her: for her company hath no bitternes, and her felowshippe hath no tedyousnesse, but mirth & ioye.

Now when I considered these thinges by my selfe, and pondered the in my herte, how that to be ioyned unto wisdom is immortalitie, and greate pleasure to haue her frendeshippe: how that in the workes of her handes are infinite ryches: how that, who so keepeth company with her shalbe wyse: and that he which talketh with her, shal come to honour. I went about seekynge, to get her unto me. For I was a babe of a ripe wytt, and had a good understandynge.

But when I came to more understandinge I came to an undefyled bodye. Neuertheles when I perceyued that I colde not kepe my selfe chaste, excepte God gaue it me (and that was apperteynynge of wysdome also, to knowe whose gifte it was) I kneled unto the Lorde, and besought him, and with my whole herte I said after this maner:

The.ix. Chapter

A prayer of Salomon to obteyne wysdome.

God of my fathers, and Lorde of mercyes (thou that hast made all thinges with thy word, and ordered man thorowe thy wysedome, that he shoulde haue dominion ouer the creatures which thou hast made: that he shold order the world accordynge to equyte and righteousnesse, and execute iudgemente with a true herte) geue me wysdome, whiche is euer about thy seate: and put me not out from among thy children: for I thy seruaunt and sonne of thy handmayden, am a feble person of a shorte tyme, and to younge to the understandynge of iudgement and the lawes. And though a man be never so perfecte amonge the children of men, yet if thy wisdome be not with hym, he shalbe nothing regarded. But thou hast chosen me to be a kynge unto thy people, and the iudge of thy sonnes and daughters.

Thou hast commaunded me to buylde a temple upõ thy holy mount, & an aulter in the citie wherin thou dwellest, a tabernacle of thy holy tabernacle whyche thou haste prepared frõ the beginninge, and thy wysdome with the which knowest thy workes: whiche also was with the, when thou madest the world and knew what was acceptable in thy sight and right in thy commaundementes. O send her oute of thy holye heauens and from the throne of thy maiesty, that she may be with me, and labour with me: that I may know what is acceptable in thy sight. For she knoweth & understãdeth all thinges: and she shal lede me sobrely in my workes, & preserue me in her power. So shall my workes be acceptable: and then shall I gouerne thy people righteously, and be worthye to sytt in my fathers seate. For what man is he, that may know the counsel of God? Or who cã thynke what the wyll of God is? For the thoughtes of mortall men are vnsensible, and oure forecastes are but vncertayne. And why? a mortall and corruptible body is heauy unto the soule and the earthy mansyon keepeth downe the understanding that museth upon manye thynges. Very hardlye can we dyscerne the thynges that are upon earthe, and greate labour haue we, or we can finde thinges which are before oure eyen: Who wyll then seke oute the grounde of the thinges that are done in heauen? Oh Lorde, who can haue knowelege of thy understandyng and meaninge, excepte thou geue wysdome and send thy holy ghost from aboue that the wayes of them whyche are upon earth may be reformed: that men may learne the thynges that are pleasaunt unto the, and be preserued thorow wysdome.

The vehemencie of the righteousnes shineth through wysdome.

The.x.Chapter.

Wysdome preserued the fyrste man, whome God made a father of the world, whe he was created alone: brought him out of his offence, yoke him oute of the mould of the earth, & gaue him power to rule all thynges. When the vnrighteous went awaye in his wrath from this wysedome, the brotherhed perysshed thorow the wrath of murther. Agayne, when the water destroyed the whole worlde, wysdome preserued the righteous thorow a poore tree, whereof she was governer her selfe. Moreouer when when wickednes had gotten the vpperhãde, so that the nacions were put vp with pride, she knewe the righteous, preserued him faultles vnto God, and kepte vp fatte mercy for his children. She preserued the righteous, whē the fled from the vngodly that perished, what time as the fyre fell downe vpon the .v. cyties: whose as yet this daye the barrayne walle, and smokynge lande geueth testimony of their wickednesse: yea, the vnrype and vntimely fruytes that growe vppon the trees.

B And for a token of a remembraunce of the vnfaythfull soule, there standeth a pyller of salt. For all such as regarded not wysedom, gat not onely this hurte, that they knewe not the thynges whyche were good, but also left behynde them vnto men a memorial of their folishnes: so that in the thinges wherein they synned, they coulde not be hydde. But as for such as take hede vnto wysdome, she shal deliuer them from sorowe.

When the righteous fled because of his brothers wrath, wysdome led hym the right waye, shewed hym the kyngedome of God, gaue hym knowlege of holy thynges, made hym ryche in his labours, & broughte to passe the thinges that he went about. In the deceatfulnes of suche as defrauded him, she stode by him, and made hym ryche. She saued him from the enemyes, & defended hym from the disceyuers. She made him strōg in battayl & gaue him the victory, that he might knowe, how that wysdome is stronger then all thynges. When the righteous was sold, she forsoke him not, but deliuered him from synners. She wente downe with hym into the dongeon, and kepte him not in the bandes tyll she had broughte hym the scepter of the realm, & power agaynst those that oppressed hym. As for them, that had accused hym, she declared them to be lyers, & brought him to perpetuall worshippe.

She deliuered the righteous people and D faultles sede, frō the nacions that oppressed them. She entred into the soule of ỹ seruaūt of God, & stode by him in wonders & tokens agaynst the horrible kynge. She gaue the righteous the rewarde of their labours, and led them forth a maruelous waye: on the daye tyme she was a shadowe vnto theym, and a light of starres in the nyght season. She brought them thorow the redde sea, & carryed them thorow the great water. She drowned their enemies in the sea, & brought them oute of the depe. So the righteous robe the spoyles of the vngodly, & praised thy holy name, O Lorde, and magnified thy victorious hād with one accorde. For wisedome openeth the mouth of the dombe, & maketh the tōges of babes to speake.

The maystres done by Israel. The dangerousnes of pryde. The great power and mercy of God.

The.xi. Chapter.

She

handes of the holy prophet: so that they went thorow the wildernes that was not inhabited & pitched their tētes in ỹ wilde holtes. They stode agaynst their enemyes, and were auēged of their aduersaries. Whē they were thirsty, they called vpon thee, & water was geuen them out of the roche, & their thirst slaked out of the harde stone. For by the thinges, wherē thorowe their enemyes were punished, were they helped in their nede. For vnto the enemyes thou gauest mīe blood in stede of liuing water. And where as they had scarcenesse in the rebuke when the children were slayne, thou gauest vnto thyne owne a plenteous water vnlooked for: declaring by the thyrste that was at that tyme, howe thou wouldest bring thine owne vnto honour and slaye their aduersaries.

For whē they were tryed & nourred with B fatherly mercy, then knewleged how the vngodly were iudged, and punished thorow the wrath of God. Thou hast thou exhorted as a father, & proued thē: but vnto the other thou hast bene a boysterous kyng, lyke vnto a tyraūt, geuyng sentence. Whether they were absent or present, their punishment was a lyke. For their grefe was double: namely, sighynge, & the remembraunce of thinges past. But when they perceaued that their punishmētes did thē good, they thought vpon the Lord, & wondered at the ende. For at the last they beheld much of him, of whome in the out castinge they thought scorne, as of an abiecte. Neuertheles the righteous did not so when they were thirsty: but euen like as the thoughtes of the foolishe were, so was also their wickednes. Where as certayne vnreasonable (thorow errour) did worshyp dōme serpentes C vayne beastes, thou sendest a multitude of dombe beastes vpon them for a vengeaūce: that they might knowe, that like where with all a man synneth, by the same also shall he be punished. For vnto thy almighty hande that made the worlde of nought, it was not impossible, to sende amonge theym an heape of Beares, or woode Lyons, or cruell beastes of a straunge kynde, suche as are vnknowen, or spoute fyre or cast out a smokynge breth, or shote horrible sparkes oute of their eyes: whyche myght not onely destroye theym with hurtynge, but also kyll them with their horrible syghte. Yea, without these beastes might they haue bene slayne with one wynde beynge persecuted of their owne wronges, and scattered abroade thorow the breth of thy power.

Neuertheles thou hast ordred all thynges in measure, number & weight. For thou hast D euer had great strēgth & might, & who maye withstande the power of thyne arme? And why? like as the smal thing that the balaūce weyeth so is the world before thee: yea, as a droppe of the morning drew, that falleth downe vpō the fielde, earth.

erth. Thou halte mercy vpon all, for thou halt power of all thinges: and maiest the as thoughe thou sawest not the synnes of men, because they should amende. For thou lovest all the thinges that are, & hatest none of the whome thou hast made: neither biddest thou ordeyne or make any thyng, of evell will.

How might any thynges endure, if it were not thy will: Or: how coulde any thynge be preserved, excepte it were called of the? But thou sparest all, for all are thyne, O Lorde, thou lover of soules.

The mercy of God towarde sinners. The workes of God are unspeakable. God giveth leysure to repent vs.

The.xii. Chapter.

O Lorde, howe gracious & swete
is thy spirite in all thinges?
Therefore chastenest thou the meanerably that go wronge, & warnest the ofte-tymes the thinges wherin they offende: that they leave their wickednes, & put their trust in the. As for those olde inhabiters of thy holy lande, thou mightest not awaye with the, for they committed abhominable workes agaynste the: as inchantmentes, sorcery and Idolatry: they slewe their owne children without mercy: they ate up mens bowels, & devoured the bloude: yea
because of such abhominations, misbeleeues & offrynges, thou mewest the fathers of the desolate soules by the handes of our fathers that the lande which thou lovest above al other might be a dwelling for the childre of God.

Neuertheles thou sparedest them also (as men) & sendedst the fore runners of thine hoost
even hornettes to destroye them ouer by lytle & lytle. Not that thou wast unable to subdue the ungodly vnto the righteous in battaple or with cruell beastes, or with one roughe worde to destroye them together: But thy mynde was to dispose them out by lytle & lytle geuynge them time & place to amende: knowynge well, that it was an unrighteous na-cion & wicked of nature & that their thoughte might neuer be altered. For it was a cursed sede from the beginnynge, & feared no man:
Yet hast thou pardoned them synnes. For who will saye vnto the: why hast thou done that? Or: who wyll stande agaynste thy iud-gement? Or: who will come before thy face an auenger of unrighteous men? Or: who will blame the, if the people perishe, whome thou hast made? For there is none other God but thou, that carest for all thinges: that thou mayest declare how that thy iudgment is not unright. Their harte neyther kynge, nor tyrraunt in thy sight requyre accoumpte of theim whome thou halte destroyed.

For so muche then as thou art righteous
they self thou ordrest all thinges righteously & punishest even hym that hath not deserued to be punished, & takest hym for a straunger & an aliaunt in the lande of thy power. For thy power is the beginning of righteousnes:
& because thou art Lord of all thinges therefore art thou gracious vnto all. When men thinke the not to be of a full strengthe, thou declarest thy power: & boldly delyverest thou them ouer that know the not. But thou Lord of power iudgest quietly, & ordrest vs with great worshippe, for thou mayest do as thou wilt.

By suche workes now hast thou thought thy people, that a mā also should be iust and louynge: and hast made thy children to be of a good hoope: for euen when thou iudgest, thou geuest rowme to amende from synnes.
For in so much as thou haste punished, and with suche diligence delyuered the enemyes of thy seruauntes, whiche were worthy too dye (where vnto thou gauest them tyme and place of amendement that they myghte turne from their wickednes with how great diligence then punishest thou thine owne chil dren, vnto whose fathers thou hast sworne & made couenauntes of good promises? So where as thou doest but chasten vs, thou pu-nishest our enemies diuerse wayes to the intent that when we punish we should remembre thy goodnesse: & when we our selues are punished, to put our trust in thy mercy.

Wherfore where as men have lyued ignorauntly & unrighteously thou hast punished them for euen thorow the same thinges that they worshipped. For they wēt all raye very longe in the waye of errour, & helde the beastes (whiche euen their enemies despised) for goddes, beynge as children of no understā-dynge. Therefore haste thou sent a feuerefull punishment amonge them, as among the chil dren of ignorance. As for such as wolde not be reformed by those feares and rebukes,
they felt the worthy punishment of God.
For the thynges that they suffred, they bare them impacyently, beynge not content in the but grudginge. And when they perished by the same thynges that they take for goddes, they knowleged then, that there was but one true God, whome afore they wold not know therfore came the ende of their dampnacion upon them.

All thynges be barne, except the knowlege of God.
Idolatres and Idols are mocked.

The.xiii. Chapter.

VAyne are all men, whiche have not the knowledge of God: as were they that out of the good thinges which are seue, knewe not hym, & of him self is euerlastinge. Neither take they so much regarde of the workes & art made, as to knowe, who was the craftesman of them: but some take fyre, some the wynde or ayre, some the course of the starres, some the water, some take sonne
and moone, or the lightes of heauen whyche rule the earthe, for goddes. But though they had such pleasure in their beutye, & they thought the to have ben goddes: yet should thei haue knowe, how much more fayrer he is & made them,

them. For the maiestie of beuty hath astonyed all these thynges. Or if they marueled at the power and workes of them, they shuld haue perceyued thereby, that he whiche made these thinges is mightyer then they.

B For by the greatnesse & beuty of the creature, the maker therof may playnely be knowen. Notwithstandyng they are the lesse to be blamed, that soughte God, & wolde haue founde hym, and yet myssed. And why? For so much as they went about in his workes & soughte after them, it is a token, that they regarded & beleue much of his workes that are seene: howbeit they are not wholy to be excused. For if their vnderstandyng & knowlege was so greate, that they coulde discerne the worlde & the creatures, why did they not rather fynde out the Lorde therof.

But vnhappy are they, and amonge the dead is their hope, that call the goddes which are but the workes of mens handes: golde, syluer, & the thinge that is founde out by craftyng, the similitude of beastes, or any vnpure stone that hath bene made by hande of olde.

C Or as when a carpenter cutteth downe a tree out of the wood, & parteth of the barcke of it rounde aboute, and so with the out parte maketh a vessel to be vsed, & digheth meate with the residue. As for the other parte that is lefte, whiche is profytable for nothinge (for it is a croked pece of wood and full of knobbes) he carueth it diligently therein (as hauinge leysure) and expressyng to the knowlege of his cunnyng) he grueth it some proporcion, fassioneth it after the symylytude of a man, or maketh it like some beast, stretcheth it ouer with red, and paynteth it, and lyke what foule spot is in it he casteth some colour therin it.

Then maketh he a conuenient tabernacle for it, seuyth it in the walle, & maketh it faste with yron, preuentynge (so far it lyeth in him) lest it happen to falle: for it is well knowen, that it can not helpe it selfe: And why? it is but an ymage, & must of neccessite be holpen.

D Then geueth he vnto it clothes of his goodes vnto it, for his children and for his wyfe: he feareth not to stryue at it, he asketh counsayll at hym is not ashamed to speake vnto it that hath no lyfe: for his health, he maketh his petycion vnto hym that is seke: for lyfe, he prayeth vnto hym that is dead: he calleth vpon him for helpe, that is not able to helpe him (selfe) to fynde hym a good iourney, he prayeth hym that maye not go. And in all the thynges that he taketh in hande (whether it be to optayn any thynge or to worke) he prayeth vnto him that can do no maner of good.

The horrible and abhominable of ymages. 3 cause of them, and of men that maketh them. The euils that come of idolatry.

¶ The.xiii.Chapter.

Agayne, another sayl pursuyng to lyue, & begynneth to take his iourney thereto the raging sea, calleth for helpe vnto a stocke that is more weaker, then the tree that beareth him. For an hye, couetous desyre of money hath founde it out, & the craftesman made it with his cunnyng. But thy prouidence, O father, gouerneth all thinges from the beginninge: for thou hast made a way in the sea, and a sure path in the myddest of the waues: declaryng thereby, that thou hast power to helpe in all thinges, yea, though a man went to the sea without shippe. Nowithstandyng, that the workes of thy wisdome should not be hyd, thou hast caused an Arke to be made: & therfore do men commytte their lyues to a smal pece of wood, passinge ouer the sea in a shippe, and are saued.

For in the olde time also when the proude gyauntes perished, he in whom the hope was left to inuestate the worlde) went into the ship, which was gouerned thereto thy hande, and so left the kynde hym vnto the world. For happy is the tree where vnto righteousnes commeth: but cursed is the ymage of wood, that is made with handes, yea, both it and he that made it. He, because he made it: & he, because it was called God, where as it is but a fraylie thinge. For the vngodly and his vngodlynes are both lyke abhominable vnto God. Euen so the worke and he that made it also shalbe punished together. Therfore shall there a plage come vpon the ymages of the Heathen: for euen of the creature of God they are become an abhominacion, a temptacion vnto the soules of men, and a snare for the fete of the vnwyse. And why the lokyng out of ymages is the begynnyng of whoredome, and the inuencion vp of them is the destruccion of lyfe. For they were not from the begynninge, neyther shall they endure for euer. The worldy vanitie of men hath founde the out vpō earth, therfore shal they come shortly to an ende.

C When a father mourned for his sonne that was taken away from him, he made him an ymage (in all the haste) of him dead sometyme: and so began now worshippe him as God, which was but a dead man, and ordeyned his seruauntes to offer vnto him. Thus by processe of tyme & through longe custome, this errour was kept as a lawe, & tyrannes compelled men by violence to honour ymages. As for those that were so farre of, that men might not worshippe them personally, there picture was brought from farre to the ymage of a kynge whome they wolde honoure: to the intent that with great diligence they myghte worshippe him who the was farre of, as though he had bene present. Agayne, the singular cunnyng of the craftesman gaue the ignorant also a great occasion to worshippe ymages. For the workeman willyng to do him a pleasure that set him a worke, laboured with all his cunnyng D to make the ymage of the best fashyon. And so (throughe the beuty of the worke) the common people was deceyued, as to reuerence that for a God, which a litle afore was but honored as a mā. And this was the errour of mās lyfe, when men (either for to serue their owne affection, or to do some pleasure vnto Kynges) ascribed vnto stones and stockes the name of God, why the ought not to be geuen vnto no mā.

Moreouer, this was not ynough for the that they erred in the knowledg of God: but where as they lyued in the greate warres of ignorance, thise euyll and greate plagues called they peace. Therother they slue their owne children, & offred them, or dyd sacrifice in the nyght season, or els helde vnreasonable watches: so that they kepte neither lyfe nor mariage cleane: but eyther one slue another E to death maliciously, or els greued his neighboure with aduoutrye. And thus were all thinges mixte together: bloude, manslaughter, theft, dissimulation, corruptiō, vnfaythfulnesse, fedeyson, periury, disquyetynge of good men, vnthankfulnes, defyling of soules, chaungyng of kynde, vnstedfastnesse of mariage, mysorder of aduoutrye & vncleannesse. And why? the honouringe of abhominable ymages is y cause, the begynnyng & ende of all euell. For they y worshippe Idols, either they are mad when they be merye, or prophetye lyes, or lyue vngodly, or els forsweare them selues. For in so muche as their trust is in the Idols (which haue neither soule nor vnderstanding) though they sweare falsely, yet they thincke it shall not hurte them.

Therfore commeth a greate plage vpon them, y that worshyp: for they haue an euell opinyon of God, geuynge lede vnto Idols, forsakyng vertuously, & lyuynge vngodlynesse. For them sweatynge is no vertue, but a plage of them that synne, and goeth euer with the offence of the vngodly.

The.xv.Chapter.

The power of the Fayethfull pardyngeth the mercy of God, for whose grace sake they erre not Idols.

A BVt thou (O our God) art swete, long sufferyng and true, and in mercy ordrest thou all thynges. Thoughe we synne, yet are we thine, for we know thy strength. If we synne not, then are we sure, that thou regardest vs. For to knowe the, is parfecte righteousnes: yea to knowe thy righteousnes and power, is the rote of immortalytye. As for the thynge that men haue founde out thorowe their euell sygnes, it harbe not dyscerned vs: as the paynterye of the pycture (an vnprofytable laboure) and carued ymage with dyuerse colowres, whose sight enspyth the ignorante: so that he lyketh and loueth y pycture of a dead ymage that hath no soule.

B Neuertheles, they that loue suche euell thynges, are worthy of deathe: they that trust in them, they that make them, they that loue them, and they that honoure them. The potter also taketh & tempereth softe earthe, laboureth it, and geueth it vse to all thynges of a vessell, howbeit litle ynough for oure vse: & so of one pece of claye he maketh some cleane vessell for seruyce, and some contrarye. But whereto to eueryche vessell serueth, that knoweth y potter hym selfe. So with his vayne labours he maketh a God of the same clay: then dothe euen he, whyche a lyfe afore was made of earth hym selfe, and within a lyfe whyle after (when he dyeth) turneth to earth agayne.

C Notwythstandyng, he careth not the more because he shall labour, nor because his lyfe is shorte: but strayneth to excell goldesmythes the sylu̇rsmythes & copersmythes, & taketh it for an honour to make vaine thinges. For his herte is ashes, his hope is but vayne earthe, & his lyfe is more vile then clay: for so muche as he knoweth not his owne maker, that gaue hym his soule to worke, & breathed in hym the breth of lyfe. They counte our lyfe but a pastyme and oure conuersacyon to be but a market, & that men shoulde ryse to get tyng, y that by euell meanes. Now he that of earth maketh fraple vessels & ymages, knoweth hym self to offende aboue all other.

D All the enemies of thy people & that hold the in subiectyon, are vnwyse, vnhappy, and exceadynge proude vnto their owne soules: for they iudge all the Idoles of the Heathen to be goddes, which neither haue eye sight to se nor nose to smell, nor eares to heare, nor fingers of handes for to grope: & for their fete, they are to slowe to goo. For man made them, and he that hath but a borowed spirite, fashioned them. But no mā can make a God lyke vnto hym: for seynge he is but mortall hym selfe, & is but mortalle that he maketh with vnrighteous handes. Be hym selfe is better then they whom he worshyppeth, for he lyued though he was mortall, but so dyd neuer they. Yea they worshippe also beastes whych are moste miserable: for cōpare thinges that cannot speke vnto them, & they are worse then those. Yet is there not one of those beastes, that with his sight can beholde any good thynge, neyther haue they geuen prayse nor thankes vnto God.

The punyshmente of Idolatres, and the benefytes done vnto the faythfull.

The.xvi.Chapter.

FOr these and suche other thynges haue they suffered worthy punyshmente, and thorowe the multytude of beastes are they rotted out. In stede of the which punyshmentes thou hast graciously vsed thyne owne people, and geuen them their desyre that they longed for: a newe and strange taaste, preparynge them quayles to be their meate to the intent that they the thynges which were serued and sente vnto them, y they that were so greedye of meate, myght be weyl disdeyned euen from the desyre that was necessary. But these when theyr tyme were brought vnto pouerte, and taaste a newe meate. For it was requisite that (without any erwise) destroyed, should come vpon those which vsed crueltie, to shewe only vnto the other, howe their enemyes were destroyed. For when the cruel wodenesse of the beastes came vpon them, they perysshed thorowe the stynges of the cruell serpentes.

B Notwithstandyng thy wrath endured not perpetually, but they were put in feare for a lytle season, that they myghte be reformed, hauynge a token of saluacion, to remember the commandement of thy lawe. For he that conuerted, was not healed by the thyng that he sawe, but by the, O Sauioure of all. And in this thou shewedste thyne enemyes, that it is thou, whyche delyuerest from all euel. As for them when they were bytten with grasshoppers and flyes, they dyed, for they were worthye to perysh by such: But neither the teeth of the gonomer of venemous wormes ouercame thy children, for thy mercy was euer by the and helped them. Therfore were they punished to remember thy wordes, but hastely were they healed agayne: lest they should fall into so depe forgetfulnesse, that they myghte not vse thy helpe.

C It was neither herbe nor playster that restored the to health, but thy worde (O Lord) which healeth all thinges. It is thou (O lord) that hast the power of lyfe and deathe: thou leadest vnto deathes dore, and bryngeste vp agayne. But mā thorow wyckednes slayeth his owne soule, and when hys spirite goeth forth, it turneth not agayne, neither maye he call agayne the soule that is taken awaye: It is not possible to eskape thy hād. For the vngodly that would not know the, were punished by the strength of thyne arme: with strange waters, haile & reynes were they persecuted, & thorowt fyre were they consumed. For it was a wonderous thing & fyre myght do more then water which quencheth all thynges: but the worlde is the auenger of the ryghteous. Some time was the fyre so tame, that the beastes which were sent to punish the vngodly, dyd not: & that because they should se & know, & they were persecuted with the punishment of God. And some time burnt D the fyre in the water on euerye syde, that it might destroy the vnrighteous nacio of the earth. Agayne, thou hast fed thine owne people w Angels fode, & sent the bread redy from heauen (without their labour) hauynge vnto pleasaunt and wel gusted ✠. And to shewe thy swetenesse vnto thy children, thou gauest euery one their desire, so that euery man myght take what liked hym best. But the snow and yse abode the violence of the fyre, & melted not: that they myght knowe, that the fyre burnyng in the haple & rayne, destroyed the frute of the enemyes: the fyre also forgat his strength againe, that the righteous might be nourished. For the creature that serueth the (which art the maker) is fearce in punishyng the vnrighteous, but in ease & gentle to do good, vnto such as put their trust in the. Ther fore dyd all thynges alter at the same time, and were al obedient vnto their gyuer, which is the vnder of all thynges, accordyng to the helpe of them that had nede therof: that thy children, O Lorde, whō thou louest, myghte knowe, that it is not nature & the growynge of frutes that feedeth mā, but that it is thy worde which preserueth them that put their trust in the. For like what myght not be destroyed with the fyre, as soon as it was warmed with a lytle Sonne beame it melted: that all men might know, that thankes ought to be geuen vnto the before the Sonne rysse, and that thou oughtest to be worshipped before the day sprynge. For the hope of the vnthankful shal melt awaye as the winter yse, and perysshe as water, that is not profytable.

The.xvij. Chapter.

The iudgementes of God vpon the Egyptians.

G Reate are thy iudgementes (O Lorde) and thy commyng is not be expressed therfore men do erre, that will not be reformed with thy wysdome. For when the vnrighteous thought to haue thy holye people in subiection, they were bounde with the bandes of darckenes and long myght lyne vnder the rofe, thynkinge to escape the euerlastyng wysdome. And while they thought to be hydde in darckenesse of their synnes, they were scattered abrode in the derke vnbelefe of the darcke couerynge of forgetfulnes, put to horrible feare and wonderous feare vexed for the comer where they myght not kepe them frō feare: because the sounde came dunnyng and vexed them: yea many terrible and straung visions made them afrayed.

D No power of the fyre myght geue them B lyght, neither myght the clere flammes of the starres lighten that horrible night. For there appeared vnto the a sodaine fyre, very dreadfull At the whyche (when they sawe nothyng) they were so afrayed, that they thought the thing which they sawe, to be the more fearful As for the sorcerye and enchauntment were that they vsed, it came to derision, and the proude wisdome was brought to shame. For they that promysed to driue awaye the fearefulnes and dulde from the sycke soules, were sycke for feare them selues, and that with scorne. And though none of the wonders feared them, yet were they a scared at the beastes which came vpon them, and at the hyssynge of the serpentes. In so much, that with trembling they swowned, & sayd they sawe not the ayre, which no man yet may eskape.

For it is an heuy thynge, when a mannes owne conscience bearyth recorde of his wyckednes & condemneth him. And whē a vexed and wounded conscience, taketh euer cruell thinges in hād. For fearfulnes is nothyng els, but a declaringe that a man taketh helpe and defence, to and were for hym selfe. And lyke how much lesse the hope is within, & more is the vncertentye of the matter for the whyche

he in pumysshed, But they that came in the mydsp nyght: Dept that slepe that fel vpō the frō vnder and frō abouysoumtume were they afrayed thoꝛow the feare of the wonders, & sōpame they were so weake þ they swowned wythall: for an hastye, & sodaine feare fell vpon them. Afterwarde, if any of them had fallen, he was kepte and shutt in prison but without chaynes. But if any dwelte in a vyllage, if he had bene and herd of husbandmā he suffered intollerable necessitie: for they were al bouū with our chayne of darchnesse.

D Whether it were a blasynge wynde, or a swete songe of þ birdes amonge the thycke braunches of the trees, ozthe behemente of hastie runninge waters, or greate noyse of the fallynge downe of stones, or the playnge & runninge of beastes whom they sawe not, or the mighte noyse of roaringe beastes, or the sowndes & answereth agame mighte mountayneis made the sowne for very feare.

For al the earth shined with cleare light, & no mā was hindered in his labour. Only vpon them there fell a heuye nyght, an ymage of darchnesse that was to come vpon them. Yea they were vnto them selues the moste heuy & horrible darchnesse.

The seuen wyght that the Hebrues had in Egypt The perseuerācon of the sayntes. The Egyptiās smote all the fyrst borne of Egypt. The drawe of the redde sea, wyth two colours.

The.xviii.Chapter.

A Nuertheles thy sayntes had a verye greate light (and the eue myed herd their voice, but they sawe not the figure of them.) And because they suffered not the same thynges, they magnyfyed the: and they that were vexed afore (because they were not hurt now) thanched the, & besought the (O Lord) that there myght be a differēce Therefore had they a burnynge pyller of fyre to lede the in the vnknowne waye and thou gauest them the Sunne for a fre gyft without anehart. Reason it was, that they shuld want lyght and be put in the prison of darchnes, which kepte thy children in captiuite, by whom the incorrupte lyghte of the lawe of the worlde was for to be geuen. When they thought to slay the babes of the ryghteous (one being layed out, and preserued to be leder vnto the other) thou broughtest out the whole multytude of the chyldren. and destroydest them in the myghtye water. Of that nyghte were oure fathers certyfyed afore, þ they knowyng vnto what ende they had geuen credēce, myght be of good cheare. Thus thy people receyued the health of the righteous, but the vngodly were destroyed. For like as thou hast hurt our enemies so hast thou promoted vs whō thou calledest afore. The ryghteous chylde of þ good men offred secretly and ordred the lawe of ryghteousnes vnto one ende that the wyll shuld receyue good euell in the maner, synginge prayses vnto þ father of all men. Agayne, there was herde an vnconuenyente voyce of the enemies, & an pyteous crye for children þ were bewayled. The master and the seruaūte were punysshed in lyke maner. For they all together had innumerable that dyed one death. C

Neyther were þ lyuynge sufficient to bury þ dede, for in þ twynchlynge of an eye, the noble creacion of the was destroyed. As oft as God helped the afore, yet wolde it not make them beleue: but in the destruccō of the brute beste they knowledged, that it was the people of God. For whyle al thynges were stil & whē the nyght was in the myddest of her course, thy Almyghtye worde (O Lorde) leape downe from heauen out of thy royall throne, as a rough man of warre, in the myddest of the land that was destroyed: and the sharpe swerde performed their straite commaundement, standyng & fyllyng al thynges with deathe, yea it stode vpon the earth & reached vnto the heauen. Then the syght of the cruell dreames herd them sodenly, and fearfulnesse came vpon them vnawares. B

Then lape there one here, another there, halfe dead half quycke, and shewed the cause of his death. For the wicions that vexed the shewed the these thynges afore: so that they were not ignoraūt, wherfore they perished.

The tentacyon of death touched the ryghteous also, and amonge the multitude in the wyldernesse there was insurrection, but thy wrath endured not longe. For the faultelesse man wente in all the haste, and toke the battayll vpon him, brought forth the weapen of his myghtye office: euen prayer and the censours of reconcilynge: fell him selfe agaynste the wrath, and so broughte the vyctorye to an ende declarynge thereby, that he was thy seruaunt. For he ouercame not the multytude with bodely power, nyther weapens of myght but with the worde he subdued him that vexed him, puttynge the in remembraunce of the othe & couenaunt made vnto the fathers For when the dead were fallen downe by heapes one vpon another, he stode in the myddest, quenched the wrath, and parted the way vnto the lyuing. And with in his longe garment was all the beutye, & in the foure rowes of the stones was the glorye of the fathers grauen, and thy maiestie was written in the crowne of his head. Vnto these the destroyer gaue place, and was afrayed of them, for it was only a temptacion worthy of wrath.

The.xix.Chapter.

The death of the Egyptians, and the great ioy of the Hebrues. The whole fact was geuen at the desire of the people. The elementes serue not onelye to the welth of God, but also to the hurt of man.

A

BVt for the vngodlye, the wrath came vpon them without mercy vnto the ende. For he knewe before what shulde happen vnto them whowe that (when they had cōsented to let the go, & had sent the out with great diligēce) they wold repēt, & followe

vpon

vpon them. For when they were yet mournyng and makyng lamentacion by the graues of the dead, they deuised another foolyshnesse so that they persecuted the in their flemyng whome they had cast out afore with prayer. Worthy recompence also brought them vnto this ende, for they hadde clene forgotten the thynges that happened vnto the afore. But the thyng that was wantyng of their punysshment, was requisite so to be fulfilled vpō the with tormentes: that the people might haue a meruelous passage thorowe, and that they might fynde a straunge death.

¶ Thru was euery creature fashioned a-gein
B of new according to the will of their maker obeyng thy commaundementes that thy children might be kept wythoute hurte. For the cloude ouershadowed their tentes, & the dry earth appeared, where afore was water: so that in the reed sea there was a waye without impediment, and the greate frye became a grene felde: where thorowe all the people wente that were defended with thy hande, seynge thy wondrous and meruelous workes. For as the horses, so were they fed, and leapte lyke lambes, praysinge the (O Lorde) which haddest deliuered the. And whan they were yet mynded of the thynges that happened whyle they dwelt in the lande: how the grounde brought forth flyes in stede of cattell, & how the ryuer strauled with the multitude of frogges in stede of fyshes.

¶ But at the last they sawe a new creacion
C of byrdes, what tyme as they were desyred with lust, and desired delicate meates. For when they were speakyng of their appetite, the quayles came vp vnto them from the sea and punishmentes came vpon the sinners not without the tokens which came to passe afore by the vehemence of the stremmes: for they suffred worthely according to their wickednesse, they dealt so abhominably & cruelly with straungers. Some receyued no hed-not-wen gestes, some brought the straungers into bondage that did them good. Beside all these thynges there were some, that not onely receyued no straungers with their welcome, but persecuted their also, & did them muche euell, that receyued the gladly. Therefore were they punished with blyndenesse lyke as they that were couered with sodaine darkenesse at the doors of the righteous so y euery one sought the entrannce of hys dore.

¶ Thus the elementes turned into them
D selues, lyke as when one tyme is chaunged vpon an instrumente of musycke, and yet all the residue kepe their melody: wherby maye easyly be perceyued, by the sight of the thynges that are come to passe. The dry lande was turned into a water, & the thynge that afore swamme in the water, wente now vpon the dry grounde. The fyre hath power in the water (contrary to his owne nature) and the water forgat hys owne kynde to quenche. Agayne the flammes of the noysome beastes hurte not the flesshe of them that wente wyth them, neither melted they the yse, whyche of natureth tyghtely. In all thynges haste thou promoted thy people (O Lorde) and brought them to honour: thou hast not despysed the, but alwaye and in all places hast thou stode by them.

ℂ The boke of Jesus the sonne of Syrach, whyche is called in latyne Ecclesiasticus.

¶ All wysedome cometh and commeth of God. A matter of the feare of God. Righteousnes is a degre to come by wysdome.

¶ The.J.Chapter.

2 ALl wysdom cometh of God the Lorde, and hath bene ever with hym, and is before all time. Who hath numbred the sande of the sea, the droppes of ỹ rayne and the dayes of tyme? Who hath measured the length of heaven, the breth of the earth and the depenesse of the sea? Who hath sought out the grounde of Goddes wisdome, in that he hath bene before all thynges? Wysedome hathe bene before all thinges, and the understandinge of prudēce from everlasting (Gods worde in the heygth is the welle of wysedome, and the everlastynge commaundementes are the entrannce of her.) Unto whome hath ỹ rote of wysedome bene declared? Or who hath knowen her wyse? Unto whome hath the doctryne of wysedom bene discovered and shewed? and who hathe understande the manyfolde entrannce of B her?

There is one/even the Lorde, the maker of all thynges, the almyghtye, the kynge of power (of whom men ought to stande greatly in awe) which sytteth upon hys trone, beyng a God of dominion: He hath created her (hoowe the holy Ghoste: he hathe sene her, numbred her, and measured her: He hathe poured her out upon all hys woorkes, and upon all flesshe accordynge to hys gift: he geveth her richely unto them that love hym.

The feare of the Lorde is worshippe and triumphe, gladnesse and a joyfull crowne. The feare of the Lorde maketh a merye hert, geveth gladnesse, joye and longe lyfe. Who so feareth the Lorde, it shall goo well with hym at the laste, and in the daye of his death he shall be blessed.

The love of God is honorable wysedom C loke unto whome it appeareth, they love it, for they se what wonderous thinges it doth. The feare of the Lorde is the beginninge of wysedome, and was made with the faythfull in the mothers wombe: it shall goo with the chosen women, and shalbe knowen of the ryghteous and faythfull. The feare of the Lorde is the ryghte Gods lernynge, that pleaseth and satisfieth the herte, and geveth myrth and gladnesse. Who so feareth the Lorde shall be happy: and when he hath nede of comforte, he shall be blessed. To feare God is the wysedome that maketh ryche, ỹ bringeth all good with her. She fylleth the whole house with her gyftes, and the garners with her treasure. The feare of the Lorde is the crowne of wisedome, and geveth plentyous peace and health. He hath sene her and numbred her: knowlege and understandynge of wysedome hath he poured out as rayne, and them that holde her fast, hathe he brought unto honour.

The feare of the Lord is the rote of wys- D dome, and her braunches are longe lyfe. In the treasures of wysdome is understanding and devocion of knowlege (but wysedome is abhorred of synners.) The feare of the Lord dryveth oute synne, for he that is without feare, can not be made righteous, and hys willfull boldnes is hys owne destruccion.

A pacient man wyll suffre unto the tyme, ỹ then shall he have the reward of joye. A good understandynge will hyde hys wordes for a tyme, and many mens lippes shall speake of hys wysdome. In the treasures of wysdome is the declaration of doctrine, but the synner abhorreth the worshippe of God. My sonne, if thou desyre wysedome, kepe the commaundementes, and God shall geve her unto the: for the feare of the Lorde is wysedome ỹ instructe, he hath pleasure in faythe and lowlynge meknesse, and he shall fyll the treasures therof. Be not obstinate and unfaythfull to the feare of the Lorde, and come not unto hym with a double hert. Be not an hypocryte in the sighte of men, and take good hede what thou speakest. Marcke well these thynges, lest thou happen too falle and bringe thy soule too dishonour, and so God discover thy secretes, and caste the downe in the middest of the congregacion: because thou woldest not feerynge the feare of God, and because thy hert is ful of faynednes, and dissemble.

E The

He exhorteth the trouthes of God to repentaunce, hope, perseueraunce, and patience: and ensureth him that feareth God, to beleue, to hope, and to loue stedfastly God neuer confounded nor forsaken of him, nor trust in him. A curse vpon the fearfull, slouthfull, and impacient of harme.

The.ii.Chapter.

1 MY sonne, if thou wilt come into the seruice of God, stande faste in righteousnes and feare, and arme thy soule to temptacion: sette thine hert, and be pacient: bowe downe thine eare, receyue the wordes of vnderstandynge and thynke not alwaye, when thou art corrected. Holde the fast vpon God, ioyne thy self vnto hym and suffer, that thy life maye encrease at the laste. Whatsoeuer happeneth vnto the, receyue it: suffer in humylite, & be pacient in the trouble. For like as golde and syluer are tryed in the fyre, euen so are acceptable men in the fornace of aduersite. Beleue in God, & he shall helpe the: order thy waye a right, and put thy trust in hym. Holde fast hys feare, and growe therin. O ye that feare the Lord, abide hys mercy: turne not awaye from hym, that ye fall not. O ye that feare the Lorde, beleue hym, and your rewarde shall not be empty. O ye that feare the Lorde put your trust in hym, & mercy shal come vnto you for pleasure. O ye that feare the Lorde set your loue vpon hym, and your hertes shalbe lightened.

2 Consider the olde generacions of men (O ye children) and marke them well: was there euer any one confounded, that put his trust in the Lord? Who euer continued in his feare and was forsaken? Or whome did he euer despise, that called faythfully vpon hym? For God is gracious and mercifull, he forgeueth synnes in the tyme of trouble, and is a defender for all them that feare hym in the truth. Wo be vnto hym that hath a double hert, wicked lippes and euil occupyed hondes, and to the synner that goeth two maner of wayes. Wo be vnto them that are faynt of hert, which put not their trust in God, and therfore shall they not be defended of hym. Wo be vnto them that haue lost pacience, forsaken the right wayes, and turned backe into frowarde wayes. What will they do, when the Lorde shall begynne to visit them?

They that feare the Lorde, will not mis-
3 trust hys worde: and they that loue hym, will kepe hys commaundement. They that feare the Lorde will seke out the thinges, that are pleasaunt vnto hym: & they that loue hym, shall fulfill hys lawe. They that feare the Lorde will prepare their hertes, and humble their soules in hys sighte. They that feare the LORDE, kepe hys commaundementes, and will be pacient tyll they se hym selfe, saying: better it is for vs to fal into the handes of the LORDE, then into the handes of men: for hys mercy is as great as hym selfe,

To euer feare and continue ought to be a great benefite vnto vs. Of the vnfeining and constant loue of God vnto vs. The vnfeining and constant loue of God vnto vs. How ought we earnestly to watch and be fearefull of God.

The.iii.Chapter.

1 THe children of wyldesome are a congregacion of the righteous and their exercyse is obedience and loue. Feare me your father (O my deare children) and be there after, that ye may be safe. For the Lorde will haue the father honoured of the children, and loke what a mother commaundeth her children to do, he will haue it kept. Who so honoureth hys father, hys synnes shalbe forgeuen hym: and he that honoureth hys mother is lyke one that gathereth treasure together. Who so honoureth his father shall haue ioye of hys owne children: whē he maketh hys prayer he shalbe herde. He that honoureth hys father, shall haue a long lyfe: and he that is obedient vnto the Lorde, hys mother shall haue ioye of hym.

2 He that feareth the Lorde, honoureth hys father and mother, and doth them seruice, as it were vnto the Lorde hym selfe. Honoure thy father in dede, in worde, and in all pacience, that thou mayest haue hys blessynge: for the blessing of the father buyldeth vp the houses of the children, but the mothers curse roteth out the foundacions. Reioyce not whē thy father is reproued, for it is no honoure vnto the, but a shame. For the worshippe of a mans father is his owne worshippe, & where the father is without honoure, it is the dishonestie of the sonne. My sonne, make muche of thy father in hys age, and greue hym not as longe as he liueth. And though hys vnderstandynge faple, haue pacience with hym, and despyse hym not in thy strength. For the good dede that thou shewest vnto thy father, shall not be forgotten: & when thou thy selfe wantest, it shalbe rewarded the (and for thy synnes there offered thou shalt be recompensed with good, yea, it shalbe founde for the in tribulacion) and in the daye of trouble thou shalt be remembred: thy synnes also shall melte awaye, lyke as the yse in the fayre warme weather.

3 He that forsaketh his father, shal come to 4 shame: and he that defyeth his mother, is cursed of God. My sonne, perfourme thy workes with louinge meknesse, so shalt thou be loued aboue other men. The greater thou art, the more humble thy self (in all thinges) and thou shalt fynde fauour in the sighte of God. For great power belongeth only vnto God, and he is honoured of the lowly.

5 Seke not out the thinges that are aboue thy capacyte, and searche not the grounde of suche thinges as are to mighty for the: but loke what God hath commaunded the, thinke vpon that all waye, & be not curious in many of hys workes. For it is not needfull for the to se with thyne eyes the thinges that are secrete. Make not thou to muche searche in co-

pertinent thynges, & be not curious in many of hys workes: for many thynges are shewed vnto the already, whiche be about & capacite of me. The nothing with such hath begyled many a mā, & tangled their wyttes in vanyte. Lowe he that loueth parell, shall perysh therin.

D An harde herte shal kepe euell at the last (an herte that goeth two wayes, shal not prospere & he that is frowarde of hert, will vexe be the worse & worse.) A wycked hert shalbe fylled with sorowes, & the vngodly sinner wil heape one synne vpon another. The counsell of the proude haithen healthe, for the plante of synne shall be roted out in them. The hert of him that hath vnderstādyng shal perceiue hye thynges, and a good eare wil gladly herken vnto wysdome. An hert that is wise and hath vnderstādyng, wyll absteane frō sinnes and increase in the workes of ryghteousnes Water quencheth burnynge fyre, and mercy reconcyleth synes. God hath respecte vnto him that is thankfull: he thinketh vpon him against the tyme to come: so that when he falleth, he shal fynde a strong holde.

The.iii.Chapter.

Alwaye muste be done with all meekenes. The fruyte of euell cōme and her fruyte. A rulige ought to be mercyfull. An exhortacion to refrayne euell & to be good

A MY sonne, defraude not the poore of his almes, and turne not away thyne eyes frō hym that hath nede. Dyspyse not an hongry soule, and defy not the poore in his necessitye: greue not the herte of hym that is helpeles, and with draw not the gyft from the nedeful. Refuse not the prayer of one that is in trouble, and turne not alwaye thy face from & nedy. Cast not thyne eyes aside from the poore, that thou geue him not occasyon to speake euell of the. For if he complayne of the in the bytternes of hys soule, his prayer shall be herde: euen he that made him, shall here him. Be curteous vnto the cōpanye of the poore, humble thye soule vnto the elder, & bowe downe thy head to a man of worshyp. Let it not greue the to bowe downe thyne eare vnto the poore, but paye thy det, & geue him a frendly answer, & that mekenes.

B Deliuer him that suffereth wrōg from the hāde of the oppressour, & be not sorye harted when thou sytteth in iudgment. Be mercyfull vnto the fatherles as a father, & be in stede of an housbande vnto their mother: so shalte thou be as an obedient sonne of the Hyest, & he shall loue the more then thy mother doeth. Wysdome bringeth vpe vnto her chyldren & reteyneth them that lerne her, & wyll go before the in the way of ryghteousnes. He & loueth her, loueth life: they that lerne her diligētly, shall haue greate ioye. They that kepe her, shall haue the herytage of lyfe: for where the entereth in, there is the blessing of God. They that honoure her, shall be the seruauntes of the holye one: and they that loue her, are beloued of God. Who so geueth eare vnto her, shall iudge the Heathen: and he that hath respecte vnto her, shall dwell safely.

C He that beleueth her, shall haue her in possession, and his generacyon shall endure: for when he falleth, she shal go with him before all. Feare, drede & temptacyon shall she bringe vpon him, and trye him in her doctryne: tyll she haue so proued hym in hys thoughtes, & he committe his soule vnto her. Then shall she stablish him, bringe the ryght waye vnto hym, make him a glad man, shew him her secretes, & heape vpon hym the treasures of knowledge vnderstanding & righteousnes. But if he go wronge, she shall forsake hym, & geue hym ouer into the hādes of his enemye.

My sonne make much of the tyme, eschue the thing that is euell, & for thy life shame not D to say the truth. For ther is a shame that bringeth synne, and ther is a shame that bringeth worshippe and fauour. Accepte no person after thyne owne wyll, that thou be not confounded to thyne owne decaye. Be not ashamed of thy neyghbour in his aduersitie, & kepe not backe thy coūsell when it may do good, neither hide thy wisdome in her beuty. For in the tonge is wysedome knowne, so is vnderstanding, knowledg and lerning in the talkynge of the wyse, and stedfastnesse in the workes of ryghteousnes. In no wise speak against the worde of truthe, But be ashamed of the lies of thine owne ignorāce. Shame not to confesse thyne errour, and subuyrte not thy selfe vnto euerye man because of synne. Withstande not the face of the mightie, and stryue not against the streame. But for the truethe stryue thou vnto death, and God shal fyght for the against thine enemies. Be not hastye in thy tonge, neither slacke & negligente in thy workes. Be not as a lyon in thine owne house, destroyng thy houshold seruauntes and oppressinge them that are vnder the. Let not thyn hand be stretched out to receyue, and shut when thou shouldest geue.

The.v.Chapter.

In ryches trust the not put any confydence. The vengeaunce of God ought to be feared, and to repentaunce euere the not be lated.

TRust not vnto thy ryches, and saye not: suffe, I haue ynough A for my lyfe. (For it shall not helpe in the time of vengeaunce and temptation.) Folow not the lust of thyne owne herte in thy strength, and saye not: tush, howe haue I had strength, or who wyll brynge me vnder because of my workes? for double the God shall auenge it. And saye not: I haue committed no sinnes but what euell hath happened me? For the Almyghtye is a patyent rewarder. Because thy synne is forgeuen the, be not therfore without feare, neither heape one synne vpon another. And saye not: tush, the mercy of the lorde is greate, he shall forgeue me my synnes, be they neuer so many. For like as he is mercyfull, so goeth wrath from hym also, and his indignacion rommeth downe vpon sinners

Make

B Make no tarynge to turne vnto the Lord & put not of from daye to daye: for sodenlye shal his wrath come, & in the tyme of venge-aunce he shall destroye the. Truste not in wicked ryches for they shall not helpe in the daye of punishment and wrath. Be not carp-ed about to every wynde, and goo not into every waye: for so doth the synner that hath a double tonge. Stande faste in the waye of the Lorde, be stedfaste in thy understandyng
abyde by the worde, and folowe the worde of peace, and ryghtuousnes. Be gentle to heare the worde of God, that thou mayest understande it, and make a true answer with wysdome. Be swyft to heare, but slowe and patient in gevynge answere. If thou hast understandynge, shappe thy neyghbours an answere: If no laye thyne hande vpon thye mouth: lest thou be trapped in an vndyscrete worde, and so confounded. Honour and worshype is a mans wyse talkynge, but the tong of the vndiscrete is his owne destruccyō. Be not a prayse accuser as longe as thou spuelte and ble no sclaunder with thy tounge. For shame and sorow goth ouer the theefe, and an euell name ouer him that is double tonged:
but he that is a prayse accuser of other men, shalbe hated enuyed & confounded. Be that thou wilt lyve the smalle and greate alyke.

The.vj.Chapter.

It is the propertye of a frende to be euell tongued. The doctryne and good counsell of the wyse is to be enbraced. Wysdome should be searched for. The gaine thereof.

A BE not thy neyghbours enemy for thy frindes sake: for who so is euell shall be the heyre of rebuke and dyshonour, and whosoeuer beareth enuy and a dou ble tonge offendeth. Be not proude in the de syre of thyne owne understandynge, leaste thy leaues wither, and thy fruite be destroyed and so thou be left as a drye tree. For a wyse hed soule destroyeth hym that hath it, mak-eth hym to be laughed to scorne of hys enemyes, (and bringeth hym to the porcyon of the vngodly.) A swete worde multiplieth frin des, and pacyfyeth the that be at warre, and a thanckfull tonge wyll be plentyous in a good man. Holde frendshippe wyth many neuertheles haue but one counceler of a thou sande.

If thou getteste a frende, proue him fyrst,
B and be not hastye to geue hym credence. For some man is a frende, but for a tyme, & wyll not abyde in the daye of trouble. And there is some frende that turneth to enemytie, and taketh parte agaynst the: and if he know any hurte by the, he telleth it oute. Agayne, some frende is but accompanyon at the table, and in the daye of ordre he contynueth not. But a sure frende wyll be vnto the euen as thyne owne selfe, and deale faythfullye wyth thye housholde folke. If thou suffer trouble and aduersyte, he is wyth the, and hideth not him selfe from the. Departe from thyne enemies pea and beware of thy frendes.

C A faythfull frende is a stronge defence:
who so fyndeth suche one, fyndeth a noble treasure. A faythfull frende hath no peare, the wight of golde and syluer is not to be co-pared to the goodnesse of his faythe. A fayth-full frende is a medycyne of lyfe, and they that feare the Lorde, shall fynde hym. Who so feareth the Lorde, shal prospere with frenddes: and as he is hym selfe, so shal his frende be also. My sonne, receyue doctryne from thye youth vp, so shalte thou fynde wysdome tyll thou be old. Go to her as one that ploweth and soweth, and wayt pacyently for her good frutes. For thou shalt haue but lytle labour in her worke, but thou shalt eate of her frutes right soone. O how exceadyng sharpe is wis dome to vnlerned men? an vnstedfaste bodye wyll not remayne in her. Vnto such she is as it were a touchstone, and he castyth her from him in all the hast. For wisdome is wyth hym but in name, there be but few that haue know ledge of her. But wyth the that knowe her, she abydeth euen vnto the appering of God.

Geue eare (my sonne) receyue my doctryne, And re fuse not my counsell. Put thy fote D into her fetters, and take her yocke vpō thy necke: bowe downe thy shoulder vnder her, beare her patiently, and be not wroth of her bandes. Come vnto her with thy whole herte & kepe her wayes with all thy power. Seke after her, and she shalbe shewed the: and wha thou hast her, forsake her not. For at the laste thou shalt fynde rest in her, and that shall be turned to thy greate ioye. Then shal her fetters be a stronge defence for the, and her yoch a glorious rayment. For the hewty of lyfe is in her, and her bandes are the couplynge to gether of saluation. Yea a glorious rayment is it, thou shalt put it on, and the same crowne of ioy shalt thou were.

My sonne, if thou wylte, take hede, thou E shalt haue vnderstandynge: and if thou wilt applie thy minde, thou shalt be wise. If thou wilte bowe downe thine eare, thou shalte receiue doctrine: and if thou delite in hearynge, thou shalt be wyse. Stande wyth the multitude of such elders as haue vnderstandynge, & cosente vnto their wisdome wyth thyne herte: that thou mayest heare all godlye ser mons, and that the worthy sentences shape
the not. And if thou fynde a man of dyscreet vnderstandynge, get the soone vnto him, and let thy fote treade vpon the steppes of his do
res. Let thy mynde be vpon the commaundementes of God, and be earnestly occupied in hys lawes: so shall he stablish thy hert, and geue the wysdome at thyne owne desire.

The.vij.Chapter.

Why men shulde eschewe euell, & yet not inuolue them
selues. The behauiour of the wyse towardes hys wyfe, hys seruaūt hys chyldren, hys kynsmen, hys father &
mother, the poore &c.

DO no euell, so shal ther no harm F happen vnto the. Departe a waye from the thynge that is wicked, and no mischefe shal medle wyth the. My sonne, sowe

sowe no euell thynges in the folowes of vn righteousnes.so shalt thou not reape the seuenfolde. Labour not vnto man for any lordshyppe,nether vnto the kynge for the seate of honoure. Iustifye not thy self before God (for he knoweth the herte) & delyte not to be reputyd wyse in the presence of the kynge.
Make no laboure to be made a iudge except it so were, that thou coudest myghtely put downe wyckednes; for if thou shouldest stande in awe of the parteuce of the myght-ye, thou shouldest fayle in gruynge lewdruce. Offende not in the multitude of the cyte,and put not thy selfe among the people Ryode not two synnes together, for in one synne shalt thou not be vnpunysshed. Say not euell, God wyll loke vpon the multytude of my oblacyons,and when I offere to the hyest
God he wyll accepte it.

Be not fayne hartyd when thou makeste
B thy prayer,nether slacke in gruynge of almes.
Laughe no man to scorne in the heuynesse of hys soule,for God(which seyth all thynges)is he that can brynge downe and set vp agayne Accepte no leasyng agaynste thy brother, nether do the same agaynste thy frend. Vse not to make ayne maner of lye, for the custome therof is not good. Make not many wordes when thou art amonge the elders:and when thou prayest,make not moche babblynge. Let no labourus worcke be tedious vnto the, nether the husbandrye which the Almyghty hath created. Make not thy boast in the mul tytude of thy wyckednes, but humble thy selfe euen from thyne herte: and remembre that the wrath shall not be longe in tarynge,
and that the vengaunce of the flesh of the vngodly is a verye lyse & worm. Gyue not ouer thy sprode for any good,nor thy faythful bro ther for the best golde.

Departe not from a discrete & good wo-
C man,that is fallen vnto the for thy porcyon in the feare of the Lorde,for the gyfte of her honestly is aboue golde. Where as thy seruaute worcketh truly,intreate him not euell, nor the hyerlynge,that is faythful vnto the Lorde a discrete seruaunte as thyne owne
soule,defraude hym not of hys lyberte,nep ther leaue hym a poore man. If thou haue ca-tell,loke wel to them:and if they be for thy profyte,kepe them. If thou haue sonnes,brynge them vp in nurture and lernyng,and bowe them in awe from their youth vp. If thou haue doughters,kepe their body,& shewe not thye face cherefull toward them. Marye thy daugh ter,and so shalt thou perfourme a weyghty matter:but geue her to a man of vnderstandyng. If thou haue a wyfe after thyne owne mynde,forsake her not:(but contempt not thy thy selfe to the hatefull.)

Honoure thy father from thy whole herte
D and forgett not the sorouful trauayle that thy mother had with the: remembre that thou wast borne thorow them,and how canst thou recompense them the thynges that they haue done for the. Feare the Lord with al thy soule & honoure hys mynysters. Loue thye maker with all thy strength, & forsake not hys seruauntes. Feare the Lorde with all thy soule, honoure hys Prestes. Geue the their por cyō of the fyrst frutes & increase of the earth, lyke as it is commaunded the:geue them the shoulders,and their appoynted offeringes and fyrstlynges. Reache thyne handes vnto the poore,that God may bielle the with plen-teousnes. Be lyberall vnto all men lyuynge yet let not but be good euen to them that are deade.

Let not them that wepe be without com-forte,but mourne with such as mourne. Let it not greue the to vysyt the sicke,for that shall make the to be beloued. Whatsoeuer thou takest in hande,remember the ende,and thou shalt neuer do amysse.

Against the better is no stryuynge. Of the death of thyne enemye mayst thou not reioyce, nor delyte thy neyghbours,nor the workes of the wyse.

The.viii.Chapter.

Stryue not with a myghty man lest thou chaunce to fal into hys handes. Make no variaunce with a rich man,lest he happen to brynge vp an harde quarel a gaynste the. For golde and syluer hath vndone manye a man, yea euen the herte of kynges hath it made to fal. Stryue not with a man that is full of wordes, and laye no stickes vpon hys fyre. Kepe no company with a vnlerned, lest he geue thy kynred an euell reporte. Despyse not a man that turneth him selfe awaye frome synne, and caste hym not in the teeth wyth all:but remembre that we are fraple euerychon. Thinke scorn of no man in hys olde age, for we waxe olde also Be not gladde of the death of thyne enemye,
but remembre that we muste dye all the sorte
of vs:and lykewise woulde we come into ioy.
Despyse not the sermons of suche elders as haue vnderstandyng,but acquaynte thy selfe with the wyse sentences of them:for of them thou shalt lerne wysdome and the doctrine of vnderstandyng, and how to serue great men wythout cumplaynte.

Go not from the doctrine of the elders,for they haue lerned it of their fathers. For of the thou shalt lerne vnderstanding,so that thou mayste make answere in the tyme of nede.
Kindle not the coales of synners,lest thou be burnt in the fyre flames of their synnes. Resist not the face of the blasphemer,that he lay not wayte for thye mouthe. Lende not vnto hym that is myghtyer then thy selfe: If thou lendeste hym counte it but lost. Be not sure tye aboue thye power:if thou be,then thinke surelye to paye it. Go not to lawe wyth the iudge, for he wyll iudge accordynge to hys owne honoure. Trauayle not by the waye wyth hym that is vnpurtesse, lest he do the euel:for he folowyth hys owne wylful
nesse,& so shalt thou perysshe thorowe hys folp.
Stryue not wyth hym that is angry and cruel

reuell,and go not with hym into the wilderneſſe,for his blonde is nothyng in hys ſyghte,and where there is no helpe, he ſhall murther the. Take no counſell at ſoles, for they loue nothynge but the thynges that pleaſe theſ ſelues. Make no counſell before a ſtraunger,for thou canſte not tell what wyll come of it. Open not thyne herte vnto euerye man, leaſte he be vnthanckfull to the,and put the to repoſte.

The temptacions of chaſtenes are to be abhorre. An vnchaſte is to be puniſhed before a iuge. The glorye and ryches of hymſelfe. No glorious man ſhulde be beaten to golt. Labours to the ſpede ryngis a lowlye man,and welcome to a gentle.

The.x.Chapter.

BE not gelous ouer the wyfe of thy bolome,that ſhe ſhewe not ſome ſharped poynte of wicked doctrine vpō the. Geue not the power of thy ſyfe vnto a woman,leſt ſhe come in thy ſtrēgth, and ſo thou be confounded. Looke not vpō a woman that is deſpitous of manye men, leſt thou fall into her ſnares. Vſe not the company of a woma that is a player and dauncer, and heare not, leſt thou periſh through her cunnyng. Behold not a mayden, that thou be not hurte in her beawte. Caſt not thy mynde vpon harlottes in any maner of thyng, leſt thou deſtroy both thy ſelfe and thyne heritage. Go not aboute gaſpyng in euery lane of the cytye, neyther wander thou aboute in the ſtreetes therof. Turne away thy face from a beautyfull woman, & loke not vpon the fayrenelle of other. Many a man hath periſhed through the beawty of women, for therby it the deſire is kyndled as it were a fyre. (An aduoutrous woman ſhalbe troden vnder fote as myre, of euery one that goeth by the waye. Many a man wondereynge at the beawty of a ſtrāg woman,hathe bene caſt oute, for her wordes kyndle as a fyre.) Sit not with another mās wyfe by any meanes, lye not with her vpon the bedde, make no wordes with her at the wyne: leſt thine herte conſent vnto her, and ſo thou with thy blonde fal into deſtruccō. For ſake not an olde frende,for the new ſhal not be lyke him.

A new frend is a new wine:let him be old & thou ſhalt drinke him with pleaſure. Be ſpare not the honoure and ryches of a ſpoyler: for thou knoweſte not what deſtruccyon is for to come vpon hym. Delyte not thou in ſ thynge that the vngodly haue pleaſure in,be ynge ſure that ſ vngodly ſhal not be accepted vntyll their graue.

Kepe the from the man that hath power to ſlaye, ſo ſhalt thou not to be afraied of death. And if thou commeſt vnto hym,make no faute,leſt he happē to take away thy lyfe. Remembre that thou goeſt in the myddeſte of ſnares,and vpō the bowlwarke of the cite. Beware of thy neyghboure as nye as thou canſt, and medle with ſuche as be wyſe and haue vnderſtandynge. Let ſuche men be thy gueſtes,let thy mouth be in the feare of God, let the vnwillyngnes of God be in thy mynde and let all thy talkynge be in the commaundementes of the Lorde. In the hāde of craftesmen ſhall the workes be commended, ſo ſhall the power of the people in the wyſedome of their talkynge. A mā full of wordes is perilous in his cytye: and he that is temerarious and paſt ſhame in his talkyng, is to be abhorred.

Of Rulers and Iuges. Power is commended vnto vs to be obſerued. Labour to prayſe.

The.x.Chapter.

A Wyſe iudge wil order hys people with diſcretion, and where a man of vnderſtandynge beareth rule, there goeth it wel. As the iudge of the people is hym ſelf, euē ſo are his officers: and ſuche what maner of man the ruler of the cytye is, ſuche are they that dwell therin alſo. An vnlerned kynge deſtroyeth his people, but wher they that be in authorite are men of vnderſtandynge, ther the cytye proſpereth.

The power of the earth is in the hande of God, and when he ſeaſon is, he ſhall ſet a profytable ruler vpon it. In the hande of God is the power of man, & vpon the ſcribe ſhall he laye his honoure. Remember no wronge of thy neyghboure, & medle them with no vnrighteous workes. Pride is hateful before God and man, and all trickeries of the lawe then is to be abhorred. Becauſe of vnrygh teous dealyng, wronge, blaſphemies and by wyſe diſceate, a realme ſhall be tranſlated frō one people to another.

There is nothing waſte then a rotteyne man. Why art thou proude, O thou earth and aſhes? There is not a more wicked thing then to loue money. And why? ſuch one hath bys ſoule to ſelle: yet is he but ſyghte bonge whyle he liueth.

And though the phiſitian ſtrue his helpe neuer ſo longe, yet in concluſion it goeth after thys maner, to daye a kynge, to morowe dead. For when a man dyeth, he is the heyre of ſerpentes, beaſtes & wormes. The begynnynge of mans pryde, is to fall awaye from God,and why? his herte is gon from his maker, for pryde is the begynnyll of all ſynne. Who ſo taketh holde therof ſhalbe filled & ouerpoured,and at the laſt it ſhall ouerthrowe him. Therefore hath the Lorde brought the confuſions of the wicked to diſhonoure, and deſtroyed them vnto the ende.

God hath deſtroyed the ſeates of proude princes,and ſet vp the meke in their ſtede. God hath withered the rotes of the proude heathen,and plāted the lowly among them. God hath ouerthrowne the lādes of the heathen,and deſtroyed them out of the grounde. He hath caſted them to wyther awaye, he hath brought them to naught, and made the memoriall of them to ceaſe from out of the earth:(God hath deſtroied ſ name of ſ proude and lefte the name of the humble of myndes.)

Pride was not made for man, neyther wrath fulnes for them that be borne of women. The seede of men that feareth God, shalbe brought to honoure but the seede which transgresseth the cõmandmentes of the Lorde shalbe shamed. Be that is ryche amõg his brethre, is holde in honoure among them, and he regardeth such as feare the Lorde. The glory of the ryche, of the honorable and of the poore is the feare of God.

D Despyse not thou the vile poore man, and magnify not the ryche vngodly. Great is the iudge & myghtie in honoure, yet is there none greater, then he that feareth God. Unto the seruant that is discrete, shall the lorde be seruyse. He that is wyse & well nurtured, will not grudge when he is reboured, & an ignorant body shal not come to honour. Be not proude in do thy worcke, and dispaire not in the tyme of aduersitye. Better is he that labourith, & hath plentifulnes of al thinges, then he that is gorgious and wanteth bread.

E My sonne, kepe thy soule in meknes, and geue her her due honoure. Who shall iustify him, that sinneth against him self? Who will honoure hym, that dishonoureth his owne life? The poore is honoured for his faithfulnes & truth, but the ryche is had in reputacion because of his goodes. He that abaseth him self honestly in poueretie, how much more shall he behaue him self honestly in ryches? And who so abaseth him self vnhonestly in riches, how much more shall he be haue hym self vnhonestly in poueretie.

The parels of humilitye. After the euerlastinge ordynaunce ought we not to iudge. Of beauty and euyll iudgement. The spirite is not vertuous offences. All thinges commeth of God. All men are not to be brought into thyne hande.

The.xi. Chapter.

A The wisdome of hym that is brought lowe, shall lyft vp hys head, and shall make hym to syt amonge greate men, Commend not a man in hys beawty, neyther despyse a man in his vetter appearaunce. The Bee is but a small beast amonge the foules, yet is her fruite ryseding swete. Be not proud of thy rayment, & exalte not thy selfe in the day of thy honoure: for the workes of the Lorde are wonderful: yea glorious, secrete and vnknowne are hys workes. Many tyrauntes haue bene fayne to sit down vpon the earth, and the vnlikely hath worne the crowne. Many mighty men haue ben brought low, and the honorable haue ben deliuered into other mens handes. Condemne no man before thou hast tried out the matter: & when thou hast made enquisicion, thã reforme righteously. Geue no eare before thou hast herd B the cause, but fyrst let men tel out their tales.

Entyre not for a matter that toucheth not thy selfe, and thamble not in the iudgment of sinners. My sonne, medle not with many matters: and if thou wilt be ryche, thou shalt not get it: and though thou renne fyl thy waye alone, yet shalt thou not escape. There is some man that labourith, and the more he wearieth him selfe, the lesse he hath. Againe, some man is slouthfull, hath nede of helpe, wanteth strength, and hath great pouerty, and Gods eye loketh vpon him to good, setteth hym vp from hys lowe estate, and lifteth vp his head so that many men marueil at hym, and geue C honoure vnto God.

Prosperitie and aduersitye, lyfe and death, pouertye and ryches come all of the Lorde. Wysdome, nurture and knowledge of the law are with Godlone & the waies of good are vp him. Errour and darcknes are made for sinners: and they that exalte them selues in euil, waxe olde in euil.) The gyfte of God remayneth for the righteous, and hys good will shall geue prosperitie for euer. Some man is rich by spunge vngardlye, & that is the poyson of hys rewarde, in that he sayeth now haue I gotten rest, and nowe wyl I eate and drinke of my goodes my selfe alone. And yet he considereth not, that & time draweth vp, that he must leaue al these thinges vnto other men, and dye hym selfe. Stande thou fast in thy couenaunte, and exercyse thy selfe therein, and remayne in the worke vnto thy age. Loke not in the workes of sinners, but put thy truste in God, and byde in thyne estate: for it is but an easy thing in the sight of God, to make a poore man ryche, & that sodenly. The blessynge of God hasteth to the rewarde of the righteous, and maketh hys fruites sonne to florysh & prosper. Saie not: what helpeth it me? & what shall I haue the whyle? Agayne, saie not: I haue ynough, how can I wante? When thou art in welfare forget not aduersitye: and when it goeth not well with the, haue a good hope, that it shall be better. For it is but a small thynge vnto God, in the dape of death to rewarde euerye man accordynge to his waies. The aduersitye of an houre maketh one to forgette all pleasure: and when a man dyeth, hys workes are discouered. Prayse no body before hys death for a man shalbe knowne in his children. E

Bringe not euery man into thyne house, for the discreatfull layeth wait dyuerslye. Like as a partryche in a mannde, so is the herte of the proude: and lyke as a spye, that loketh vpõ the fal of his neighbour. For he turneth good vnto euell, and slaundereth the chosen. Of one sparch is made a greate fyre, and an vngodly man layeth wayte for bloude. Beware of the discreatfull, for he ymagineth wycked thinges, to bringe the into a perpetual shame. If thou takest an alyen vnto the he shal destroye the in vnquietnes, and driue the from thine owne wayes.

The.xii. Chapter.

Unto whõ we ought to be good. Enemyes ought to be eschued.

When thou wilt do good, knowe to whom thou doest it, & so shalt thou A be greatlye thanked for thy benefites. Do good vnto the righteous and and thou shalt fynde great rewarde though not of him, yet no doute, the Lorde him selfe shall rewarde the. He standeth not in a good case that is alwaye occupied in euel, & geueth no almes: for the Lorde hateth the synners and hath mercye vpon them that shewe the workes of repentance. Geue thou vnto such as feare God, and receaue not a synner. As for the vngodly and synners, he shall recompense vengeance vnto them, and kepe them to the day of wrath. Geue thou vnto the good and receaue not the synner: do well vnto him that is lowly, but geue not to the vngodly. Let not the bred be geuen him, that he be not myghtyer then thy selfe therin. For so shalte thou receyue twyse as much euell, in all the good that thou doest vnto him. And why? the Lorde hateth synners, and shall rewarde vengeance to the vngodly.

In prosperite, a frend shall not be knowen
B and in aduersyte an enemie shall not be hyd. For when a man is in wealth, it greueth his enemies: but in hepnes and trouble a man shal knowe his frende, truste wyth that thyne enemy, for lyke as an yron rusteth, so doeth his wyckednes. And though he make muche crouchyng and kneleng, yet kepe well thy minde, and beware of hym. Set hym not by the, nether let hym syt at thy ryght hande lest he turne him, get into thy place, take thy rowm & lose thy seat, and so thou at the last remēbre my wordes, and be payed at my sayenges.

Byde not two synnes together, for there
C shall not one be punished. Who wil haue pyty of the charmer, that is stinged of the serpente, or of all such as come nye the beastes? Euē so is it with him & kepeth cōpany with a wycked man, and lappeth him selfe in his sinnes. For a season wyll he byde wyth the but if thou stomble, he tarpeth not. An enemy is swete in his lippes, he can make many wordes & speake many good thynges: Yea he can wepe wyth his eyen, but in his herte, he ymagineth how to throw the into the pyt, and if he may fynde aportunite, he wil not be satisfyed with blood. Aduersite come vpon the, thou shalte fynde him there first, and though he pretende to do the helpe, yet shall he vndermyne the. He shall shake his head, and clape his handes ouer the for very gladnes, and whylle he maketh many wordes, he shall disguyse his counte nauncē

The companies of the proude and of the rych are to be eschewed. The loue of God. Lyke to cleaue vnto lyke.

The.xiii.Chapter.

A Whoso toucheth pytch, shall be fyled with all: and he that is familyar wyth the proude, shall clothe him selfe wyth pryde. He taketh a burthen vpon him, that accompanyeth a more honorable man then him selfe. Therfore kepe no familyarite wyth one that is rycher then thy selfe. How agree the kettell and the pot toge ther? for if the one be smitte against the other it shall be broken. The riche deceth wrongfully, and thretneth withal: but & poore beyng oppressed & wrongfully dealt withal, suffereth scarcemelle, and geueth fayre wordes. If thou be for his profyt he wyll vse the: but if thou haue nothynge he shall forsake the. As longe as thou hast any thyng of thine owne, he shall be a good fellow wyth the: yea he shal make the a bare man & not be sory for the. If he haue nede of the, he shall defraude the: and (wyth a pryuy mocke) shal he put the in an hope, & geue the all good wordes, and say what wouldest thou? Thou shal he shame the in his meate, vntil he haue supt the cleane vp twise or thryse, and at the last shal he laugh the to scorne. Afterwarde, whē he seyth that thou hast nothynge, he shall forsake the, and shake his head at the.

Beware that thou be not deceaued and B brought downe in thy symplenesse. Be not to humble in thy welfare, lest when thou art brought lowe, thou be dispysed thorowe folysheres. If thou be called of a myghtye man, absente thy selfe, so shall he call the to him the more ofte. Dyscusse not thou vnto him that thou be not shut out: but goo not thou farre of, lest he forget the. Withdraw not thy selfe from his speech, but beleue not his many wordes. For with muche communication shall he tempte the, and (with a pryuy mocke) shal he question the of thy secretes. The vnmercyfull mynde of hys shall muche the wordes, he shall not spare to do the herte & to put the in prison. Beware, and take good hede to thy selfe, for thou walkeste in parell of thy confusyon.

Now when thou hearest his wordes, make C
the as though he thou werest in a dreame, and wake vp. Loue God all thy lyfe longe, and call vpon hym in thy nede. Euerye beast loueth his like, euē so let euery man loue his neyghboure. All flesh wyll resorte to their lyke, and euery man wyl kepe company wyth such as he is him self. But as the wolfe agreeth with the lambe, so doth the vngodly with the rych. ii.Cor.vi.a ghteous. What felowshippe holde an holy man haue with a dogge? How can the ryche and he poore agree together? The wild Asse is the lions pray in the wyldernesse, euen so are poore men the meate of the ryche. Like as the proude mayde not alwaye wyth lowlynes, euē so doth the ryche abhorre the poore. If a rich man fall, his frendes set him vp agayne: but when the poore falleth hys frendes forsake hym. If a ryche man fall into an errour, he hath many helpers: he speaketh proude wordes, and yet men iustifye hym.

But if a poore man go wronge, he is pu-D
nyshed yea though he speake wyttyly, yet can it haue no place. When the ryche man speaketh, euery body holdeth his tonge and lyke what he sayeth, they prayse it vnto the cloudes. But if the poore man speake, they saye What felowe is this? and if he do a mysse, they shal destroye hym. Ryches are good vn hym that hath no fame in his conscience, and poureth in a wicked thing in the mouth of the vngodly. The hert of man chaungeth hys countenance, whether it be in good or euell. A chearfull countenaūce is a token of a good herte, for els is it an harde thynge too knowe the thought.

The offence of the tounge. Shame is but a barne thynge. Happy is he that continueth in wysdome.

The.viii. Chapter.

Eccle.xii.c.9 xxv.c. Jaco.iii.a.

BEtter is the man, that hath not fallen with the woūde of hys mouth, and is not pricked with the conscience of synne. Happy is he that had no heuines in his mynde, and is not fallen from hys hope. It becommeth not a couetrous man and a nygarde to be riche: and what should a nygard do with golde? He that with al his carefulnes heapeth together vnrighteously, gatherith for other folkes, and another man shal make good chere with his goodes. He that is wicked vnto hym self, howe shoulde he be good vnto other men? How can such one haue any pleasure of his goodes: There is nothynge worse, then when one disauntereth hym self, and this is a reward of his wickednes. If he do any good, he doth it not knowyng therof and against hys will, & at the laste he declareth his vngratiousnes. A nygarde hathe a wicked eye, he turneth away his face, & despiseth hys owne soule. A courtous mans eye hath neuer ynough in the portion of wickednes, vntill the tyme that he wythet away, & haue lost hys owne soule.

B A wicked eye spareth bred, & there is scarcenesse vpō his table. Myn sonne, do good to thy selfe of that thou haste, & geue the Lorde hys due offeringes. Remembre that death tarieth not, ne how that the couenaunt of the graue is shewed vnto the: for the couenaunt of this worlde shall dye the death. Do good vnto thy frende before thou dye, & according to thy ability reache out thyne hande, & geue vnto the poore. Be not disposed of & good daye, and let not the portion of the good day ouerpas the. Shalte thou not leaue thy trauayles and labours vnto other men? In the deuiding of the heritage geue and take, and sanctifye thy soule. Worke thou righteousnes before thy death, for in the hel there is no meate to fynde. All flesshe shall fade awaye lyke grasse, and lyke a flourishynge leafe in a grene tree. Some growe, some are falle downe: euen so is the generation of flesshe and bloude: one commeth too an ende, another is borne.

Eccle.xiii.a. Tobi.iiii.b. Luc.xii.b. Eccli.xl.a. i.Pet.i.b. Jacob.i.b.

C All transitory thynges shall fayle at the last, and the worker therof shall go withall. Euery chosen worke shalbe iustified, and he that medleth with al, shal haue honour therin. Blessed is the man that hepeth him in wysedome, and exercyseth him selfe in vnderstandinge, & with discretion shall he thinke vpon the fourthowynge of God. Whiche considereth the wayes of wysdome in his hert, hath vnderstandynge in her secretes, goeth after her (as one that seketh her out) & continueth in her wayes. He looketh in at her windowes, & herkeneth at her doores: He taketh hys reste beside her house, & fastneth hys stake in her walles. He shall pytch hys tēte nye vnto her hande, and in his tent shall good thinges rest for euermore: He shal set hys children vnder her couering, & shall dwell vnder her braunches. Vnder her couerynge shall he be defended from the heate, and in her glory shall he rest.

The goodnes that foloweth hym that feareth God. God reiecteth and calleth of the synner. God is not the author of euell.

The.ix. Chapter.

HE that feareth God, will do good: and who so hopeth & law shall optayne wysedome. As an honorable mother shal she mete hym, and as a virgyn shall she receyue hym. With the bread of life and vnderstanding shall she fede hym, & geue hym the water of wholsome wysdome to drynke. If he be constāt in her, he shall not be moued: and if he holde hym fast by her, he shall not come to confusion. She shal bring him to honour among his neyghbours, & in the middest of & cōgregacō shall she opē his mouth. With the spirite of wysdome & vnderstāding shall she fill him, & clothe him with the garmēt of glory. She shal heape the treasure of myrth & ioy vpō him, & geue him an euerlasting name to heritage. Folysh men wil not take holde vpō her, but suche as haue vnderstanding, wil mete her, for she is farre from pryde & disceat. Mē that go about with lyes, will not remēbre her: but mē of trueth shalbe founde in her, euen vnto the beholdynge of God. Prayse is not semely in the mouth of the vngodly, for he is not sente of the Lorde. For of God commeth wisdome, & the prayse shall stande by the wisdome of God, & shall be plenteous in a faythfull mouth, & the Lord shall geue her vnto hym.

Matt.iii.a Johan.vi.b

Prou.ix.a

Hope not thou: It is the Lordes faute that I am gone by, for thou shalt not do the thing that God hateth. Hope not thou: he hath caused me to go wronge, for he hathe no nede of the vngodly. God hateth all abominacō of errours, and they that feare God will loue none suche. God made man from the beginnyng, & left him in the hande of his counsayl. He gaue hym hys commaundementes & preceptes: if thou wylte obserue the commaundementes, and kepe acceptable faythfulnes for euer, they shall preserue the. He hath sette water and fyre before the, reache out thyne hande vnto which thou wilt. Before man is lyfe and death, good and euel: lobe what him liketh, shalbe geuen hym. For the wysedome of God is greate and mighty in power, and beholdeth all men continually. The eyes of the Lorde are vpon them that feare hym, and he knoweth all the workes of man. He hath commaunded commaunded no man to do vngodly, neither hath he geuen any man leue to synne.

Of vnprofytable and vnclene children. The mercy can not be hyd from God. An exhortacion vnto the vnderstandyng of rehersynge.

The.xvi.Chapter.

2 DEsyre not thou in the multitude of vngodly children, & haue no pleasure in them, if they feare not God. Trust not thou vnto their life, & regarde not their labours: for one sonne that feareth God is better, then a thousande vngodly. And better it is for a man to dye without children, then to leaue behynd him such children as are vngodly. For by one that hath vnderstandyng, may a whole cite be vpholden, but though the vngodly be many, yet shal it be wasted thorow the. Many suche thinges hath myne eye seen and greater thynges then these haue I herde with myne eares. In the congregacion of the vngodly shall a fyre burne, & amonge vnfaithfull people shall the wrath be kindled.

3 The olde giauntes optayned no grace for their synnes, which were destroyed, trustyng to their owne strength. Neither spared he the Gen.vi.b. Gen.xix.c. people vnto whom Loth was straunger but smote them and abhorred them because of the pride of their workes. He had no pitye vpon them, but destroyed all the people, that were so proude in synne. And for so muche as he ouersawe not the syx hundreth thousande, that gathered them selues together in the hardenesse of their herte: it were maruayll if one beinge hardened, should be fre. For mercy and wrath is with hym: he is bothe myghty to forgeue, and to poure out displeasure.

4 Like as his mercy is great, euē so is his punishment also, he iudgeth a man accordynge to his workes. The vngodly shal not escape in his spoyle, and the longe patience of hym that sheweth mercy, shall not byde behynde. All mercye shall make place vnto euery man according to the deseruyng of his workes, & after the vnderstandyng of his pylgrymage.

5 Saye not thou: I will hyde me selfe from God, for who will thinke vpō me frō aboue? I shal not be knowen in so greate a heape of people, for what is my soule amōge so many creatures? Beholde, the heauen, yea, the heauen of heauē, the depe, the earth, and all that therein is, shalbe moued at his presence: the mountaynes, the hylles, and the foundacion of the earth shall shake for feare, when God visiteth them. These thynges doth no herte vnderstande, but he vnderstādeth euery herte and who vnderstandeth his wayes? No man seyth his fourme, & the most part of his workes are secrete. Who will declare the workes of his righteousnes? Or who shalbe able to abyde this? For the couenaunt is farre frō some, and the tryeng out of men is in the fullfyllyng. He that is humble of herte, thynketh vpon suche thynges: but a wrongfull and erroneous man calleth his myndes into folysh thynges.

6 My sonne, herken thou vnto me, & learne vnderstandynge, & marke my wordes with thyne herte: I will geue the a sure doctryne, and plainly shall I instructe the. God hath set his woorkes in good order from the beginnyng, and parte of them hath he sondered from the other. He hath garnished his workes from euerlastynge, and their beginnynges, accordynge vnto their generacions. None of them hindereth another, neither was any of them disobedient vnto his woorde.

7 After this, God loked vpon the earthe, and spilled it with his goodes. With all manner of liuynge he alter hath he couered the grounde, and they all shalbe turned vnto earthe agayne.

The creacion of man, and the goodnes that God hath done vnto him. Of charyte and repentaunce.

The.xvii.Chapter.

8 GOd shape mā of the earthe, and turned him vnto earth agayne. Gen.i.d. He gaue him the number of dayes and certayne tyme, yea, and gaue him power of the thynges that are vpon earth. He clothed him with strengthe, & made him after his owne ymage. He made all flesh to stande in awe of him, so that he had the dominion of all beastes and foules. He made out of him an helper like vnto hym self, and gaue them vnderstandynge, eyes and eares, and a hert to vnderstande, & spirit they with instruccion and vnderstandynge. He created for them also the knowledge of the spyrit, spilled their hartes with vnderstandynge, and shewed the good and euell. He set his eye vpon their hartes, declarynge vnto them the great power of his workes: that they should praise his holy name together, to recyte of his wonders, and to be tellynge of his noble actes. Besyde this, he gaue them instruccion, and the lawe of life for an heritage.

9 He made him an euerlastyng couenaunt with them, and shewed them his righteousnes and iudgementes. Their eyne hys glory with their eyes, and their eares heard the maiesty of his voyce. And he saide vnto them: beware of all vnrighteous thynges. He gaue euery man also a commaundement concernynge his neyghboure.

10 Their wayes are euer before hym, & are not hyde from his eyes. He hath set a ruler vpon euery people, but Israell is the Lordes portion. All their workes are as the Sunne, in the sight of God, and his eyes are alwaye lokyng vpon their wayes. All their vnrighteousnesses are manyfeste vnto hym, and all their wickednesse are open in his sight.

11 The mercy that a man sheweth vnto his neyghbour is as it were a purse with hym, and a rewe good dede preserueth hym as the apple of an eye. At the last shall he stande, and rewarde euery man vpon his head as he hath deserued, and shall turne the together into the nethermoste partes of the earth. But vnto the that wil repent

he hath geuen the wape of rightcousnes. As for suche as he weake, he comforteth them, sufferth them, and sendeth them the percepn of the verite. O turne then vnto the Lorde, forsake thy synnes, make thy prayer before ꝑ Lorde, do the lesse offence, turne agayne vnto the Lorde, forsake thyne vnrighteousnes, be an vtter enemy to abhominacion, learne too knowe the righteousnes and iudgementes of God, stande in the porcion that is set forth for the, and in the prayer of the moolte hye God. Go into the porcion of the holy worlde, with suche as be liuinge and geue thankes vnto God.

C Who will prayse the Lorde in the helle? Abyde not thou in the errour of the bnyodly but geue hym thankes before death. As for the dead, thankefulnesse perysheth from him as nothynge. Geue thou thankes in thy life, yea, whyle thou art liuinge and whole shalt thou geue thankes, and prayse God, and reioyce in hys mercy. O how greate is the louynge kyndnesse of the Lord, and hys mercyful goodnes vnto suche as turne vnto hym? For all thinges may not be in man: and why? the sonne of man is not immortall, ꝑ he hath ꝑleasure in the bautie of wickednes. What is more clearer then the Sunne? yet shall it faile. Or what is more wicked then the thing that flesh and blood hath ymagined? ꝑ that same shalbe reproued. The Lorde seyth the power of the hye heauē, and all are but earth and asshes.

The meruelous workes of God, the misery and wretchednes of man. Against God ought we not to complayne. Prayer must we continually.

The.xviij.Chapter.

A HE that liueth for euermore, made all thinges together. God onely is righteous, ꝑ remaineth a victorious kynge for euer.

Who shalbe able to expresse the workes of hym? Who hath sought out the grounde of hys noble actes? Who shall declare the power of his greatnesse? Or who will take vpon him to tell out his mercy? As for the wonderous workes of the Lord, there may nothyng be taken from them, nothynge maye be put vnto them, neither may ꝑ ground of the be founde out. But when a man hathe done his best, he must beginne agayne: and when he thinketh too become to an ende, he must go agayn to hys labour. What is man? Wherto is he worthe? What good or euell can he do? If the number of a mans dayes be B almost an hundreth yeare, it is muche.

1.Pet.iij.b

Like as the droppes of rayne are vnto the sea, and as a graue stone is in comparison of the sande: so are these few yeares to the dayes euerlastinge. Therefore is the Lorde pacient with them, and powreth out hys mercy vpō them. He sawe and perceyued the thoughtes and imaginations of their herte, that they were euell: therfore heaped he vp hys mercyfull goodnes vpon them, and shewed the the wape of righteousnes. The mercy that a man hath, reacheth to his neighbour: but the mercy of God is vpon all flesh. He chasteneth, he teacheth ꝑ nourtureth: yea, euen as a shepherde turneth agayn his flocke, so doth he all them that receyue chastenynge, nurture and doctrine. Mercifull is he vnto the, that lyde in awe of his iudgementes.

My sonne, when thou doest good, make C no grudgynge at it: ꝑ wharsoeuer thou geuest, speake no displeasable wordes. Shall not the dew coole the heat? Euē so is a worde better then a gyft. Is not a frendly woorde a good honest gifte? but a gracious mā geueth them both. A foole shal cast a mā in the teeth and that roughly, and a gyft of the vngarde putteth out the eyes. Get the righteousnes before thou come to iudgement. Learne before Prouer.xvij. thou speake, and go to phisich or euer thou be and xviij. sicke: examen and iudge thy selfe, before the iudgemēt come, and so shalt thou fynde grace in the sight of God. Humble thy selfe afore thou be syche, and in time of thy diseas shew thy conuersacion. Let not to praye alwaye, ꝑ stande not in feare too be reformed vnto death, for the rewarde of God endureth for euer. Before thou prayest prepare thy soule, ꝑ be not as one that tempteth God. Thinke vpon the wrathfull indignacion that shalbe at the ende, and the houre of vengeaūce, whē he shall turne awaye hys face. When thou hast ynough, remembre the time of honger: ꝑ when thou arte riche, thinke vpon the tyme of pouerte and scarsnesse.

From the morynge vntyll the euenynge D the tyme is chaunged, and all suche thynges are soone done in the sighte of God. A wyse man feareth God in all thinges, ꝑ in the dayes of trāsgressiō he kepeth him self from synne. A discrete man hath pleasure in wysdome, and he that findeth her, maketh much of her. They that haue had vnderstandinge, haue Roma.i.d dealt wysely in woordes, haue vnderstande ꝑ xij.b the trueth and righteousnes, ꝑ haue founde out wyse sentences and iudgementes. Folow not thy lustes, but turne the frō thine owne will. For if thou geuest thy soule her desyres, it shall make thine enemyes to laugh the too scorne. Take not thy pleasure in great volup teousnes, and melde not too muche withall. Make not too greate cheare of the thyng that thou haste wonne by aduauntage, leste thou fall into pouerte, and haue nothynge in thy purse.

Wyne and wyfedome longge men to pouerte. In my maysters mall thou bee discrecion. The difference of the wyfedome of God & mā. Wherby thou mayst knowe what is in a man. Correccion muste be vsed without anger.

The.xix.Chapter.

A Labouring man that is geuē vnto dronkennes, shal not be riche: ꝑ he A ꝑ maketh not much of small thinges, shal fal by litle ꝑ litle. Wyne ꝑ woman make wise mē renagates, ꝑ put men of vnderstāding to reproufe: ꝑ he that accōpanieth aduoutrers shal become a wicked mā.

Mothes

Mothers and wemen shall haue ben to heritage. yea he shal be set vp to a greater exãple, and his seede shalbe rotid out of the nũbre. He that is halfe ye to geue credence is lighte minded, and doth agaynst him self. Who so reioyseth in wyckednes, shal be punished: he that hateth to be reformed, his life shalbe shourned: and he that abhorreth babblynge of wordes, quencheth wyckednes. He that offendeth against his owne soule, shall repent it: and he that reioyseth in wickednes, shalbe punished.

Rehearse not a wicked and churlysshe worde twise and thou shalt not behindered. Shewe thy secretes nether to frende ner foo, and yf thou hast offended, tell it not out. For he shal herken vnto the and marck the, and when he fyndeth opportunyte, he shall hate the. If thou hast herde a worde agaynst thy neyghbour let it be dede within the: be sure. thou shalt haue no harme therby. A fole trauayleth with a worde, lyke as a woman that is payned with bearynge of chylde. Lyke as an arowe shot in a dogges thyghe, so is a worde in a fooles herte. Tell thy frende hys faute lest he be ignorant, and say: I haue not done it, or if he haue done it, that he do it no more. Reproue thy neyghboure, that he hepe hys tonge: and if he haue spoken, that he saye it nomore.

Tell thy neyghboure his faute, for oft tymes an offence is made, and geue not credence to euerye worde. And man falleth sometyme wyth his tonge, but not with hys will. For what is he, that hath not offended in his tonge? Shew thy neighbour warning, before thou threaten hym, and geue place vnto the Lorde. The feare of God is all wysdome, & he that is a ryghtwyse man, kepeth the law. As for the doctryne of wyckednesse, it is no wysdome, and the prudence of synners is no good vnderstandynge: is but wickednes, & abhominacyõ & a blaspheminge of wysdome. A symple man of small vnderstandyng that feareth God, is better then one that hath much wysdom, & transgresseth the law of the Hyest. A crafty sotell man can be wyse, but he is vnrighteous, and with gyftes he wasteth the eyen and manyfest lawe. A wycked man can behaue hym selfe humblye and can bouke with his head, and yet is he but a deceyuer within. He hydeth hys face, and disguiseth hym selfe because he shoulde not be knowne he preuenteth the.

And though he be so weake that he can do the no harme, yet whã he may fynde opportunyte, he shall do some euyll. A man maye be knowe by hys face, and one that hath vnderstanding, may be perceiued by the lokes of his countenaunce. A mans garmẽt, laughter, and gopnge, declare what he is.

The.xx. Chapter.

Of rebukynge and repentaunce. Of the goodnes the wyse man and of the fole. Of iyenge.

SOme man reproueth his neighboure oft tymes, but not in due season: Agayne, some man holdeth his tonge, and he is wyse and discrete. It is much better to geue warnynge and to repreue, then to beare euel wyl: for he that knowledgeth hym self open, shalbe preserued frõ hurte & offẽce. Like as whã a golden vessell thorowe out is fyne & iust, so defyleth a mayden eares so is it vnto that vseth violence and wrongfulnes to the lawe. O how good a thynge is it, a man that is reproued, to shewe openly hys repentaunce: for so shalt thou escape wylfull synne.

Some man kepeth silence, and is founde wyse: but he that is not ashamed what he speaketh, is hateful. Some man holdeth hys tonge, because he hath not the vnderstanding of the language: and some man kepeth silence wayteynge a conuenient tyme. A wyse man wyll holde hys tonge tyll he se opportunitie, but a wilfull & vnstayed body shal regard no tyme, he that vseth many wordes, shal hurte hys owne soule: & he that taketh authoritie vpon hym very grieuously, shalbe hated. Some mãn hath oft tymes prosperite in wicked thinges: Againe, some man getteth much, and hath harme & losse. There is gift that is nothyng worthe. Againe ther is some gift, whose reward is double. Some man getteth a fall for hepyng to proude & some cometh to worshyp for loue of hys. Some man bieth much for a litle price & must pay for it seuen folde.

A wyse man wyth hys wordes maketh him self to be loued, but the fauoures of fooles shalbe powred out. The gift of the vnwyse shall do the no good, for hys eyes are seuen folde. He shall geue lyttle, and saye he gaue muche: he openeth his mouth and cryeth out, as it were one that cryeth out vpon. To day he lendeth, to morow he aske it agayne, and such a man is to be hated. The foole sayeth: I haue no frende, I haue no thanke for all my good dedes: yea euen they that eate my bred, speake no good of me. O howe oft, and of how many shall he be laughed to scorne? He taketh a more perilous fal by such wordes then if he fell vpon the ground. Euen so shal the falles of wicked men come sodenly. In the mouth of hym that is vnlearned, are many vnconuenyent and vnmete wordes. A wyse sentence shall not be alowed in the mouth of the fole, for he speaketh it not in due season.

Some man spareth not, because he hath not wherwith all, and in hys end he shalbe stynged. Some man there is that destroyeth hys owne soule wyth shame, and for an vnwyse bodies he destroyeth he it, and with acceptynge of persones shall he vndo hym selfe. Some mã promiseth hys frende a gift for very shame, & geueth an enmy of hym for naught. A lye is a wicked shame in a man yet shal it be euer in ye mouth of the vnwyse. A these is better, then a man that is accustomed to lye: but they bothe shall haue destrucvpon to heritage. The condicyons of lyers

D are vnhonest, and their shame is euer w thē.
Gen.xli.f. A wyse man shal honoure hym selfe to ho-twysnesse, shalbe exalted, and he that pleaseth great men, shall escape muche euell. Rewardes and gyftes blynde the eyes of the wyse, and make him domme, that he cannot tell me their faultes. Wysdom that is hyd, and treasure that is hoarded vp, what profyte is in them both? Better is he that hydeth hys ignorance secrete, then a man that hydeth hys wysdome.

The.xxi. Chapter.

Of the repentaunce of synne. We may not bowe synne vpon synne. The bondmaide of an heritage. The ende of honoure. Of the fole and of the wyse man. Of hym that suffereth the beastl.

Eccli.b,a.bii
a.xiii.f.
My sonne if thou hast synned, do it no more: but praye for thy for synnes, that they maye be forge uen the. Flie from synne, euen as from a serpente: for if thou comest to nye her, she wil bite the. The teeth therof are as the teeth of a lyon, to slepe the soules of men. The wyckednes of man is a sharpe two edged swerde, wherwith maketh
suche wounden that they cannot be healed.
Iniurie and wrongefous dealynge shall waste awaye a mannes goodes, and thowe sande a rich house shalbe brought to naught:
so the riches of the proude shalbe rooted out.
The prayer of the poore goeth oute of the mouth, and commeth vnto the eares, and hys vengeaunce (or defence) shall come, and that hastely. Who so hateth to be reboumed, it is a token of an vngodlye persoune: but he that feareth God, wyll remember hym selfe.
A mysshapē man is knowen a farre of, by his tonge, but he that hath vnderstandynge, perceyueth that he shal haue a fall.
B Who so buyldeth hys house with other mens coll, is lyke one that gathereth stones in wynter. The congregacyon of the vngod-lye is lyke stubble gathered together, their ende is a flamme of fyre. The waye of the vn godly is set with stones, but in their ende is hell, darcknes, and payne. He that keepeth
the lawe, wyll holde fast the vnderstandyng therof, and the ende of the feare of God, is wysdome. He that is not wyse, will not be taught in good: but the vnwyse man aboun-deth in wickednesse: where bitternes is, there is no vnderstandyng. The knowledg of the wise shal flowe like water that renneth ouer,
and hys counsel is lyke a fountain of lyfe.
C The hert of a foole is like a broke vessell:
he can kepe no wysdome. When a man of vnderstandynge heareth a wyse worde, he shall commende it, and make much of it. But if a wanton man heare it, he shall haue
no pleasure therin, but caste it behynde hys backe. The talkynge of a foole is lyke an heuy burthen by the wayghte to beare a wise man speake, it is a pleasure. Where a boute is in the congregacyon, it is a pleasure. Whē a boute is in the cōgregacyon, it is asked at the mouth of the wyse, and they shall ponder his wordes in their hertes. Lyke as a house that is destroyed, euen so is wysdome vnto a foole: As for the knowledge of the vnwyse, it is but darcke wordes. Doctrine is vnto him that hath no vnderstandynge, euen as fetters aboute hys fete, & like maunyckles vpon hys ryghthande. A foole lyfteth vp his voyce with laughter, but a wyse manne shall scarse laugh secretly.

Leuiticus.xxi.d. Leuynge vnto a wyse man a Jewell of golde, and lyke an armlet vpō hys ryght
D arme. A foolysh mānes lore is soone in hys neyghbours house, but one that hath experience, shall be ashamed at the persoone of the myghte. A foole wyl pepe in at the window into the house, but he that is well nourtered, wil stand without. A folysh man standeth here-beuynge at the doze, but he that is wyse, wyll be ashamed.
The lyppes of the vnwyse wylbe telling foolysshe thynges, but the wordes of suche as haue vnderstandynge, shalbe waged in the balance. The hert of foles is in their mouth but the mouthe of the wyse is in their herte.
When the vngodly curseth the blasphemer,
he curseth his owne soule. A prowde accuser of other men shal defyle his owne soule, & be hated of every man: but he that keepeth hys tonge and is discrete, shal come to honoure. Leui.xix.b

The.xxii.Chapter.

The purgatyon of the slouthfull. Of the folysshe mōge.

A slouthfull body is mulded of a stone of clayshe that toucheth

A mysnurtured sonne is the dis honoure of the father. A folish daughter shalbe lytle regarded. A wise daughter is an heritage vnto her husbander: but she that commeth to dishonesty, bringeth her father in heuines. A daughter that is paste shame, dyshonoureth both her father and her husbande: the vngodlye shall regard her, but they both shal despise her. The plaeug of Mulich is not mete wher heupnes is, euen
so is the correctiō and doctrine of wysdome euer vnpleasant vnto soles.
E Who so teacheth a foole, is euen as one that glueth a potsherde together: as one that telleth a tale to hym that heareth hym not, and as one that rayseth a man out of an heuy slepe. Who so telleth a foole of wysdome, is euil as a man, whyche speaketh to one that is a slepe. When he hath tolde his tale, he saieth what is the matter? When one dyeth, lamentacyon is made for hym, because the lyght faileth hym: euen so let men mourne
ouer a foole: for he wanteth vnderstanding.
Make but lytle wepyng because of the deade
for

Eccles.6. for he is come to rest, but the lyfe of the folke is worse then the death. Seuen daies do men mourne for hym that is dead, but the lamentacion ouer the vnwyse and vngodly shuld endure all the dayes of their lyfe.

C Talke not much with a fole, and go not with hym that hath no vnderstandyng. Beware of him, lest it turne to trouble, & thou shalt not be defiled with his sin. Departe fro him, & thou shalt find rest, & shalt not be drawen backe into his folysshnes. What is heuier then leade? And what shulde a foole be called els but leade? Sand, salte, and a lompe of yron is easier to beare, then an vnwyse, folysshe, and vngodly man. Like as the band of wodd bounde together in the foundacion of the house can not be lowsed, ryght so is it with the harte that is stablysshed in the thought

Psa.xxxii.a. D of counsell. The thought of the wyse, shall neuer feare nor be offended at anye tyme.

Lyke as a vayne playsshed wall in a wynter house, & an hye building, may not abyde the winde and stormes: euen so is a folysshe harte afraped in hys imaginacion: he feareth at euery thing, and can not endure. He that wypeth a mans eye, bryngeth forth teares: and he & pricketh & herte, bryngeth forth the meaning & thought. Who so casteth a stone at the birdes, fraieth them awaye: and he that blaspemeth his frende, breaketh the frendshippe: though thou drewest a swerde at thy frende yet dispayre not, for thou mayeste come agayne to thy frende. If he speake fowerthe feare not, for ye maye be agreed together agayne: except it be that thou blaspheme him,

E bydsayne hym, open his secretes and wolde hym treason wythe: for all suche thinges shall dryue awaye a frende.

Be faythfull vnto thy neyghboure in his pouertie, that thou mayest reioyse with hym also in his prosperitye. Abyde stedfast vnto him in the tyme of his trouble, that thou mayest be heyre with hym in his enheritage. Lyke

Psal.xcii. as the vapour and smoke goeth out at the ouerne before the fyre euen so curssi wordes, rebukes and threateninges go before bloudshedding. Be not ashamed to defend thy frende for me, I wyll not hyde my face from him, though he should do me harme. Whosoeuer heareth it, shall beware of hym. Who shall set a watch before my mouth, and a sure seale vpon my lyppes, that I fall not with them, and that my tong destroy me not?

A prayer against pryde, lechery and gluttonye. Of the other, blasphemye, and of wyfe communication. Of the vyce drunkennesse. Many domes ensuethe of dronkennesse. Of the hope of God.

The.xxiii.Chapter.

LOrde, father and gouernour of my life, leaue me not in their imaginacion and counsell. Oh let me not fal in suche reprofe. Who wyll smyte my thoughte with the scourge, and the doctryne of wysdome in myne herte? that he spare not myne ignorauces, that I fall not with them yet vnto ignorauces vnmete, that myne offences be not mayde in number, and that my synnes ryenge not fast I fall before myne enemyes, and so my aduersarye reioyse. O

B Lorde thou father and God of my lyfe, leaue me not in their ymagynacion. O let me not haue a proude lokc, but turne awaye all vnlaufulnesse fro me. Take fro me the lustes of the body, let not the desyres of vnclennesse take hold vpon me, & geue me not ouer vnto Ezech.xx.b. an vnshamefast and ebil pronde mynde. Matth.xxvi.b.

Heare me (O ye children) I wyl geue you a doctryne, how ye shal order your mouth: who so kepeth it, shall not perysshe therein: his lyppes, nor be hurt therein wycked wordes. As for the sinner, he shal be taken in his owne transgressyon that is proude and curssed, shal fal therin.) Let not thy mouth be accustomed with sweraryng, for in it there are many

Mat.v.b. fallen. Let not the naming of God be customably in thy mouth: for lyke as a seruaunte which is oft punysshed can not be without some soze, euen so whatsoeuer he be that sweareth and nameth God, shal not be clean purged from synne. A man that vseth much swea-

C ryngs, shalbe fylled with wicked dedes, and the plage shall neuer go from his house. If Leui.xxiii.a. he beggyle his brother, his fautt shalbe vpon himself he knowledge not his sinne, he maketh a double offence, and if he sweare in vayne, he Ephes.v.a. shall not be founde ryghteous, for his house shal be ful of plagues.

The wordes of the swearer bringeth death (God graut that it be not found in the house of Jacob) But they that feare God, eschue al such and lye not wekedynge in sinne, vse not thy mouth to vnhonest and filthy talkynge for in it is the worde of synne. Remembre thy father and thy mother, when thou art set amonge greate men: lest God forgette the in their sight, and lest thou bedunge in thye owne sufferr trouble, & wil hoot to haue bene borne, and so curssi the daye of thy natiuitye. The man that is accustomed wythe the wordes of

D blaspheme, wyll neuer be reformed al the dayes of his lyfe. To spe tonsle is to much, but the synne bringeth vnto destruccion. An hote stomache can not be quenched (euen lyke a burnynge fyre) til it haue swalowed vp somthing: euel so an vnchast mā hath no rest in his fleshe til he haue kindled a fire. Eccl.xxix.a.

All bread is sweete to an vnhoot manger, he wyll not leaue of tyll he haue hys pleasyr. A man that breketh wedlock, and regardeth not his soule, but sayth: Tush, who seeth me. I am compassed about with darkenes, the walles couer me, no body seyth me: whome nede I to feare? The Hyest wyll not remembre my synnes. He vnderstandeth not that hys eyes se all thynges, for al suche feare of men hyndreth alwaye the feare of God from hym: for he feareth onely the eyes of men, and considereth not that the eyes of the Lorde are clearer then the Sonne, beholdynge all the wayes of men and the grounde of the depe

and lokynge euen to mens hertes in secrete places. The Lorde God knewe al thynges before or euer they were made, and after they be brought to passe also he loketh vpon them all. The same man shalbe openly punished in the stretes of the cite, and shalbe chased abrode lyke a ponge horle loale: and when he thinketh lest vpon it, he shalbe taken. Leuit.xx.b. Deut.xxii.

Thus shall he be put to shame of euery man because he wolde not vnderstande the feare of the Lorde. And thus shal it go also with euery wife that leaueth her housband, & getteth enheritaunce by a straunge marage.

Exodi.xx. Fyrst, she hath bene vnfaythfull vnto the lawe of the Hyest: Secondly, she hath forsaken her owne housband: Thirdly, she hath played the whore in aduoutry, and gotten her children by another man. She shalbe brought out of the congregation, & her children shalbe loked vpon. Her children shall not take rote: and as for frute, her braunches shal bring forth none. A shameful reporte shal she leaue behynde her, and her dishonour shall not be put out. And they that remayne, shal knowe that there is nothing better, then the feare of God: and that there is nothinge swetter then to take hede vnto the commaundementes of the Lorde. A great worshippe is it to folowe the Lorde, for longe lyfe shalbe rewarded of hym.

A prayse of wysdom preceding from of the mouth of God. Of her worken & place where she resteth.

The.xxiiii.Chapter.

WIsdome shall prayse her self, & be honoured in God, & reioyce in the middest of hys people: In the congregacions of the Hyest shal she open her mouth and triumphe in the beholdynge of hys power: In the middest of her people shal she be exalted, and wondred at in the holy habitacion: In the multitude of the chosen she shalbe esteemed, and amonge suche as be blessed she shalbe prayed, & shall saye: I am come oute of the mouth of the Hyest, fyrste borne before all creatures. I caused the light that fayleth not, to arise in the heauen, and couered al the earth as a cloude. My dwellynge is aboue in the hyeth, and my seate is in the pyller of the cloude. I my selfe alone haue gone rounde about the compasse of heauen, & pearsed the grounde of the depe: I haue walked in the floudes of the sea, and haue stande in al lodes my dominion is, in euery people and in euery nacio, & with my power haue I trode downe the hertes of all, both hye and lowe.

to come. In the holy habitacion haue I serued before hym, and so was I stablished in Sio. In the holy citie rested I in like maner: & in Hierusalē was my power. I toke rote in an honorable people, euen in the porcion of the Lord & in hys heretage, & kepte me in the fulnes of the saincters. I am set vp an hye like a Ceder vpon Lybanus, & as a Cypers tree vpon the mount Hermon: I am exalted lyke a palme tree in Cades, & as a rose plāte in Jericho: As a fayre olyue tree in the felde, & am exalted like as a plantayne tree by the water syde. I haue geuen a smel in the stretes, as the Cynamom and Balme, that hath so good a sauoure: yea, a swete odour haue I geuen as it were Myrre of the best. Exod.xxxiii. psal.xxxiii. C

I haue made my dwellinges too smell as it were of rosyn, Galbanum, of Cloues, and Incense, & as Lybanus when it is not hewē doune, & myne odour is as the pure Balme. As the Terebynte haue I stretched oute my braunches, and my braunches are the braunches of honour and louynge fauoure. As the vyne haue I brought forth frute a swete sauour, & my floures are the frute of honour & ryches. I am the mother of bewty, of lone, of feare, of knowlege & of holy hope. In me is al grace of lyfe & truth: In me is all hope of lyfe & vertue. O come vnto me, all ye that be desirous of me, and fyll your selues with my frutes: for my spirite is sweter then hony, & so is my inheritaunce more then the hony cōbe: the remembraice of me endureth for euermore. They that eate me, shall haue the more honger: and they that drinke me, shall thyrsteth more. Who so herkeneth vnto me, shall not come to confusiō: and they that worke in me, shall not offende. They that make me to be knowen, shall haue euerlasting lyfe. + Johan.vi.a Jhon.viii.a +

All these thynges are the boke of lyfe, the couenaunt of the Hyest, & the knowledge of the truth. The fyrste hath not knowen her perfectly, nomore shall the laste serche out the grounde of her. For her thought is fuller then the sea, & her counsayll is profounder then the great depe. D Jesus.viii.c

I wysdome haue caste oute floudes. I am as a great waterbroke out of the riuer. I am as the ryuer Dant, and as a water condyte am I come out of the garden of pleasure. I sayde: I wyll water the garden of my pong plantes, and fyll the frute of my bowre. So my my waterbroke became exceadinge greate, and my cyuer approched vnto the sea. For I make doctrine to be vnto all men as light as the sayre mornynge, and I shall make it to be euer the clearer. I will pearse thorowe all the lower partes of the earthe, I will loke vpon all suche as be a slepe, & lighten all the that put their trust in the Lorde. I shall yet poure out doctryne, lyke as prophesy, and leaue it vnto suche as seke after wysedome, and their generacions shall I neuer forsake, vnto the holy euerlastynge worlde. Beholde how that I haue not laboured for my selfe onely, but for all them that seke after the truethe.

Of the straunger whiche pleaseth God, & of the wyfe he shall haue. Of xij. thynges that be not to be desyred, & of the comparysonne of the malyce of a woman.

The.xxvi.Chapter.

A Blessed is the husbande that hath a louynge wyfe, for the nombre of his yeares shalbe double. A honest woman maketh her husbande a ioyfull man, & she shall fyll the yeares of his lyfe in peace. A vertuous woman is a noble gyft, which shal be geuen for a good portion vnto suche as feare God. Whether a man be ryche or poore he maye haue euer a merye herte, and a cheerfull countenaunce, there be thynges that my hert feareth, & my face is afrayed of the fourth. Treason in a cyte, a seditious people, and nought tonges, all these are heuyer then the death. But when one is greeued ouer his wyfe, it begynneth payne and sorowe vnto the hert: and a woman that taketh out all thynges, is a scourge of the tonge. When one hath an euell wyfe, it is euen as when an vnlyke paire of oxen muste drawe together, he that getteth her, getteth a scorpion. A

Gen.xiii.b Rom.xii.a

THre thinges there are, that my spirite fauoureth, which be also alowed before God and men: The vnite of brethren, the loue of neyghbours, and man & wife that agre well together.

Thre thinges there be which my soule hateth, and I vtterly abhorre the lyfe of the: A poore mā that is proude. A ryche mā that is a lyer, & an olde body that doteth, and is vnchaste.

Luk.xiiᵇ

If thou haste gathered nothinge in thy youthe, what wylt thou fynde then in thyne age? O howe pleasaunt a thynge is it, when gray headed men are discrete, & when the elders can geue good counsayl! O how comely a thyng is wysedome vnto aged men? yea, vnderstanding and counsayl is a glorious thing. The crowne of olde men is to haue much experience, and the feare of God is their worshippe.

There be.ix.thinges, which I haue indged in my hert to be happy, & the tenth wyll I tell forth vnto men with my tonge. A man that wyse he ioyeth, hath hope of his children, & seyth the fall of his enemyes. Wel is hym that dwelleth with an housewife of vnderstanding, & that hath not fallen with his tonge, & that hath not bene faine to serue such as are vnmete for him. Wel is hym, that fynde th a faythfull frende: & wel is hym, whiche talketh of wisdome to an eare that heareth him. O how great is he, that fyndeth wysedome & knowlege? Yet is he not aboue hym, that feareth the Lord. The feare of God hath set it self aboue all thinges. Blessed is the man vnto whom it is graūted to haue the feare of God. Vnto whom shal he be likened, that hath it fast? The feare of God is the begynnyng of his loue, & the beginning of fayth is to cleue fast vnto it. The beginnyng of the hert is all the punishmente, & the wickednes of a woman goeth aboue all. All punishment and plage is nothyng in comparison of the plage of the hert, euen so all wickednes is nothing to the wickednesse of a woman.

C Whatsoeuer happeneth vnto a man, is nothynge in comparyson of a that his euell wyllers do vnto hym: and all vengeaunce is nothyng to the vengeaunce of the enemy.

There is not a more wicked beaste then the head of the Serpent, & there is no wrath aboue the wrath of a woman. I will rather dwel with a Lyō & dragō, then to kepe house with a wicked wyfe. The wickednesse of a woman chaungeth her face, she shall mofell her countenaunce as it were a Bere, & as a sack shal she shew it among the neyghbours. Her husbande is brought to shame amonge his neyghbours, and when he heareth it, it maketh hym to syghe. All wyckednes is but litle to the wickednes of a woman, the parte of the vngodly shall fall vpon her.

Lyke as to clymme vp a sandye waye is D to the fete of the aged, euen so is a wyfe full of wordes to a stylle quyete man. Loke not too narowly vpon the beauty of a woman, lest thou be prouoked in desyre toward her. The wrath of a woman is displeasoure and greate confusion. If a woman get the maistry, then is she contrary to her housbande. A wicked wyfe maketh a sory herte, an heuy countenaunce & a dead wounde. Of the woman came the beginning of synne, and throughe her we all are dead. Geue the water no passage, no not a lytle, neither geue a wicked woman her wyll. If she walke not after thy hande, she shall confounde the in the sight of thy enemies. Cut her of then from the flesh, that she do not alwaye abuse the.

Judith.xii.

The whoredome of a woman maye be B knowen in the pryde of her eyes and eyelydes. If thy daughter be not shamefast, holde holde her straitly, lest she abuse her selfe thorow overmuch liberte. Beware of all the dishonesty of her eyes, & marvel not if she do agaynst the. Lyke as one that goeth by ꝑ way & is thirsty, so shall she open her mouth, and drynke of every next water that she may get. Upp every hedge shall she sit her doune, and open her quyuer agaynst every arowe. A lovynge wyfe reioyseth her housbande and feedeth his bones with her wysdome. A woma̅ of few wordes is a gifte of God, & to a well nurtured mynde maye nothynge be cõpared. Eccli. xlii. b.

An honest and mannerly woman is a gyfte above other giftes, & there is no weyghte to be compared, vnto a mynde that can rule it selfe. Lyke as the Sunne when it ariseth, is an ornament in the hye heauen of the Lorde, so is a vertuous wyfe the bewtye of all her house. Lyke as the cleare light is vpõ the holy candelstick, so is the bewty of the face vpõ an honest body. Lyke as the golden pyllers are vpon the sockettes of syluer, so are ꝑ fayre legges vpon a woman that hathe a constant mynde. Perpetuall are the foundacions that be layed vpon a whole stony rocke, so are the commaundementes of God vppon an holy woman. Gene. b. d.

There be two thinges that greue my hert and in the thirde is a displeasure come vpon me. When an experte man of warre suffereth scarsenes and powerte. When men of vnderstandyng and wysdome are not set by: And when one departeth from righteousnes vnto synne. Who so doth such, the Lorde hath prepared hym vnto the swerde. There be two maner of thynges, whiche me thynke too be herde and perylous. A marchaunt can not lightly kepe hym from wronge, neither a taverner hym self from synne.

Of the synne that wolde be fledde. The goodnes of the man that feareth God. The vnreasonable of a fole. The frendes of a frende are not to be trusted. The wicked ymaginacyon euell, whiche retourneth vpõ hym selfe.

The.xxvii.Chapter.

BEcause of powerte haue many one offended: and he that seketh to be riche, turneth hys eyes aside. Lyke as a nayle in ꝑ wall sticketh fast betwyxte two stones, euen so doth synne sticke betwixt ꝑ byer and the seller. If he holde him not diligently in the feare of the Lord, hys house shall soone be ouerthrowen. Lyke as when one syfteth, the fylthynes remayneth in the syue: So, remayneth there some vncleane thynge in the thought of man. The oven proueth the potters vessel, so doth tẽptacion of trouble trye righteous men. * The tree of the felde is knowen by hys fruite, so is the thought of mans hert knowen by hys wordes. Prayse no man ere̅ept thou haue herde hym, for a mã is knowen by hys wordes. If thou folowest righteousnes, thou shalt get her, and put her vpon the as a fayre garment. And thou shalt dwell with her, and she shall defende the for ere, and in the daye of knowlege thou shalt fynde stedfastnesse. The byrdes resorte vnto their like, so doth the trueth turne vnto them that be occupied withall. The lyon wayteth for the praye: so do the synnes lurke vpõ the workers of wickednes. The talking of hym that feareth God, is nothynge but wysdom as for a foole, he chaungeth as the Moone. If thou be amonge the vnderstonde, kepe thy worde to a conuenient tyme, but among such as be wyse, speake on hardely. The talkinge of fooles is abhominacion, and their sporte is holtpteousnesse and mismurture. Muche swearinge maketh the hearre to stande vp, & to stryue with suche, stoppeth the eares. Ecclesi. xxvii. a. Sapien. iii. a. 1 Pet. iii. b. * Mat. xii. b.

The stryfe of the proude is bloudshedinge, & their blaspheminge is heup to heare. Who so discouereth secretes, leseth hys credence, & fyndeth no frende after hys will. Loue thy frynde, & bynde thy selfe in faithfulnes with him: but if thou bewrayest his secretes, thou shalt not get hym agayne: For lyke as the man is that destroyeth hys enemye, so is he also that dealeth falsly in the frendship of hys neyghboure. Ecclesi. xxvii. d.

Lyke as one that letteth a byrde go oute of hys hande, can not take her agayne: Euen so thou, if thou geue ouer thy frynde, thou canst not get hym agayne: Pursue him not, for he is to farre of. He is vnto the as a Roe clerped out of ꝑ snare, for his soule is wounded. As for wounds, they maye be bounde vp agayne, and an euell worde may be reconcyled: but who so bewrayeth the secretes of a frende, there is no more hope too be had vnto hym.

He that winketh with the eyes, ymagineth some euell, and no man shall take hym from it. Whe thou art present, he shal lyke comfe and prayse thy wordes: but at the last he shal turne his tale, and slaunder thy sayinge. Many thinges haue I hated, but nothyng so euell, as the Lorde hym selfe also abhorreth suche one. Prouer. xi.

Who so casteth a stone on hye, it shall fal vpon hys owne head: & he that smyteth with gyle, woundeth hym selfe. Who so digged a pyt, shall fal therin: & he that layeth a snare shall be taken in it hym selfe. Who so groueth a wycked noysome collaple, it shal come vpõ hym selfe, and he shall not know frõ whence. The proude blaspheme & are shamefull, but vengeaunce lurketh for them as a Lyõ. The that reioyse at the fall of the righteous, shall be taken in the snare, angwyshe of herte shall consume them before they dye. Anger and rygorousnes are two abhominable thynges, and the vngodly hath them both vpon him. Exo. xxii.

We ought not to desire vengeaunce, but to forgeue the offence. Of the woes of the tonge, and of the bad gouernoure.

the hurte that he hath done the, and so shall thy synnes be forgeuen the also, when thou prayest. A man that beareth hatred agaynste another, howe darre he desyre forgeuenesse of God? He that sheweth no mercy to a man whiche is lyke hym selfe, howe darre he aske forgeuenesse of his synnes? If he that is but fleth beareth hatred and kepeth it, who wyll intreate for his synnes? Remember ẏ ende, & let enmyte passe, which leketh death and destruccyō, & abide thou in ẏ commaundementes. Remeber the commaundemente, so shalte thou not be rygorous ouer thy nepghbour. Thinke vpō the couenaunt of the Hiest, and forgeue thy nepghbours ignorance. Beware of strife, & thou shalte make thy synnes fewer. For an angrye mā kindleth variance, and the vngodly disquieteth frends, and putteth discorde amonge them that be at peace. The more wodd there is, the more vehement is the fyre: and the mightier that men be, the greater is the wrath: and the longer the strife endureth, the more it burneth.

An hastye brawlynge kyndleth a fyre, and an hastye stryke shedeth bloude. If thou blowe the sparcle it shall burne: If thou spyt vpon it it shal go forth, & both these go oute of thy mouth. The sclanderer, & double tonged is cursed, for manye one that be frendes setteth he at varyaunce. The thyrde tonge hath disquieted manye one and dryuen them from one lande to another. Stronge cityes hath it broken downe, and ouerthrowne the houses of greate men. The thyrde tōge hath cast out manye an honest woman, and robbed them of their laboures. Who so herkeneth vnto such, shall neuer fynd rest, & neuer dwell safe by. The stroke of the rodd maketh redders, but the stroke of the tonge smyteth the bones in sunder. Ther be many that haue perysshed wyth the swerd but many no throw the tong.

Welle hym ẏ is kepte frō an euel tonges & cōmeth not in the anger therof, whyche drayweth not the yock of such, & is not bounde in the bandes of it. For the yock therof is of yron, and the band of it of stele. The death therof is a very euell death: hell were better for one, then such a tonge. But the fyre of it maye not oppresse them that feare God, and the flame therof maye not burne them. Such as forsake the Lorde, shall fall therin: and it shall burne them, and no mā shall be able to quench it. It shall fall vpon them as a lyon, and deuoure the as a leopard. Thou hedgest thy goodes with thornes: why dost thou not rather make dores & barres for thy mouthe? Thou weyest thy gold and syluer: why doest thou not wrie thy wordes also vpon the balaunce? Beware, that thou slyde not in thy tonge, and so fall before thyne enemies, ẏ lye wayte for the.

There haue bene manye, that when a thynge was lente them, reckened it to be founde, and made them trauayle and labour, that had holpen them. Whyle they receaue any thyng they kysse the handes of suche as gyue them, and for their nepghbours good they humble their voyce. But whē they should pay again they hepe it backe, and geue euel wordes, and make many excuses by reason of the tyme: and thoughe he be able, yet geueth he scarse the halfe agayne, and reckeneth the other to be founde. If he withholde not his money, yet hath he an enemy of hym, & that vndeserued. He payeth hym wyth curssyng and rebuke & & geueth him euel wordes for his good dede. Ther be many one which are not glad for to lende, not because of euell, but they feare to lese the thinge that they lend. Yet haue thou pacience with the symple, and withholde not mercy from him. Helpe the poore for the commaundementes sake, and lett hym not goo emptie frō the because of his necessyte. Lese thy money for thy brother and nepghbours sake, and burye it not vnder a stone, where it rusteth and corrupteth. Gather thy treasure after the commaundemente of the Hyest, and so shall it bryng the more profyte then golde. Laye vp the almes in the handes of the poore, and it shal kepe the from all euell. A mans almes is as a purse wyth him and shal kepe a mans fauoure as the apple of an eye: and afterwarde shal it aryse, and paye euerye mā his reward vpō his head. It shall fyght for the against thine enemies, better then the shylde of a gyaunte, or speare of the mightye.

A good honest mā is suerye for his nepghboure, but a wycked personne letteth hym come to shame. Forget not the frendshyp of thy suertye, for he hath geuen hys soule for the. The vngodly despiseth the good dede of his suerty, and the vnthankful & ignoraunte leaueth his suertye in daunger. Some man prouyded for hys nepghboure: and when he hath lost his honestye, he that forsake him. Suertyshyppe hathe destroyed many a riche mā, & remoued them as the waues in the sea. Myghtye people hath it dryuen awaye, and caused the to wander in straunge countrees. An vngodly mā transgressyng the commaundemente of the Lorde, shall fall in to an euell suertyshyp: & thoughe he force him selfe to get out, yet shall he fall into iudgmēt. Helpe thy nepghboure out after thy power, & beware, that thou thy selfe fall not in such daūte. The chefe thynge that kepeth in the lyfe, is water and breade, clothynge and lodgynge, & co-ner the shame.

Psal.xxxix. 1. Timo.v.b. Hebr.xiii.a.

Better is it to have a poore hussinge in a mans owne house, then delycate fare amonge the straunge. Be it lytle or moch y thou hast, holde the covent wyth all, & thou shalt not be blamed as a vagabounde: for a myserable lyfe is it, to go from house to house: & where a man is frende, he darre not ope his mouth. Though one be lodged, and have meate and dynche, yet shall he be taken as unworthye & heare many bytter rough wordes, namely thus: Go thy wayes thou straunger, and prepare a table for thy selfe, and fede me also of that thou hast. Awaye thou straunger (so, that he regarderh hys honoure no more) my brother cometh into my house, and so he telleth hym the necessyty of his house. These thynges are hevy to a man that hath understadinge: namely, the forbiddyng of the house, and that the leder casteth him in the teth.

¶ The.xxxi.Chapter.

¶ Of the covetyse of chyldren. Of the commodity of health. Death is better then a sorowful lyfe. Of hydde wysdome. Of the sorye and sorowe of the hert.

Prover.xiii.c. and.xxvi.b.

WHo so loveth hys chylde, holdeth hym styl under correccion that he maye have sorye of hym afterwarde, and that he grope not after hys neyghbourers dores. He that teacheth his sonne, shall have sorye in hym, and nede not to be ashamed of hym amonge hys aquayntaunce. Who so enformeth & teacheth his sonne, greveth the enemye: & before hys frendes he maye have sorye of him. Though the father dye, yet is he as though he were not dead: for he hath left one behynd him that is lyke him. In his lyfe he sawe him, & had sorye in hym, and was not sorye in his death, neyther was he ashamed before the enemyes. For he lefte behynde hym an auenger against his enemyes, and a good doer unto the frendes. For the lyfe of chylder he shal bynde the woundes together, and his herte is greved at every crye. An untamed horsse wilbe harde, and a wanton childe wilbe wylfull. If thou bringe up thy sonne delycately, he shall make the afrayed: and if thou playe with hym, he shall brynge the to heuynes. Laugh not with him, lest thou wepe with hym also, and lest thy teth be set on edge at the laste.

Deu.xi.a.

Eccle.xxx.c.

Geve him no libertie in his youth, & excuse not his folye. Bowe downe hys neck whyle he is yonge. Smyte hym upon the sides while he is yet but a chylde, lest he ware stubburne, & geve no more force of the, & so shalte thou have heuynes of soule. Teach thy chylde, and be diligent therin, lest it be to thy shame. Better is the poore beinge whole and strong, then a man to be ryche, and not to have his health. Healthe and welfare is above al golde, and a whole bodye above all treasure. There is no ryches above a sounde body, and no ioye above the ioye of the herte. Death is better then a wretched lyfe, & continuall syckenes,

The good thynges y are put in a close mouth, are like as whe meate is taped upo the grave.

What good doth the offrynge unto an Idoll? For he can neyther eate, taste, nor smell. Euen so is he that is chased of the Lord, and heareth the rewardes of iniquitye. He seyth with hys eyes, & groneth lyke a gelded man, that lyeth with a wenche and sighyeth. Geve not over thy mynde into heuynes, and vexe not thy self in thine owne counsell. The ioye & chearfulnes of the herte is the lyfe of man, and a mans gladnes is the prolonging of hys dayes. Coure thine owne soule, and comforte thine herte: as for sorowe and heuynes, drive it farre from the, for heuynes hath slayne many a man, and bringeth no profit. Zele and anger shorten the dayes of y lyfe: carefulnes and sorowe bringe age before the tyme. Unto a mery hert every thynge hath a good taste, that he eateth. ¶ The.xxxi.Chapter.

¶ We ought to geve diligent hede to honestye. Of them that take payne to gather riches. The praise of a rich man without a faute. We ought to be obedyence and folow sobernesse.

RAuayle & carefulnes for ryches taketh awaye the slepe, & maketh the flesshe to consume. Who one lieth and taketh care he waketh ever up, like as greif of sickines breaketh the slepe. The ryche hathe greate labour in gathering riches together, and then with the pleasure of hys ryches he taketh his rest and is refreshed. But who so laboureth & prosperyth not, he is poore: and thoughe he leave of, yet is he a begger. He that loveth ryches, shall not be justified: and who so followeth corrupcion, shall have ynoughe therof. Many one are come in great myssortune by the reason of golde, and have founde their destruccion before them. It is a tree of fallynge unto them that offer it up, and all suche as be sotysshe fall therein. Blessed is the rich, which is founde without blemysh, and hath not gone after golde, ner hoped in money & treasures. Where is there such one? and we shall commende hym, and call hym blessed, for greate thynges doeth he among his people. Who so is tryed, & found perfecte in such thynges, shalbe commended and praysed. Who myght offende, and hath not offended? Who coulde do evel, and hath not done it? Therefore shall hys good be stablished, and the whole congregacion shal declare hys almesses. If thou sytte at a greate mans table, open not thy mouth wyde upon it, and make not many wordes. Remember that an evel eye is a shrew.

1. Timo.b.i.

What thinge created is worse then a wicked eye? therfore weepeth it before every mans face. Laye not thine hand upon every thing that thyne eye seyth, and stryve not with hym in the dysshe. Ponder by thy selfe what thy neighboure wold fayne have, and be discrete in every poynte. Eate the thing that is set before the mayster, as it becommeth a man: eate not to much, lest thou be abhorred.

ted. Leaue thou of first of al because of mysteoure, lest thou be he whome no man maye satisfye, whiche maye turne to thy decaye.

When thou sittest among many men, teach not thine hande out first of all. O how well content is a wyse mā with a lytle wyne? so þ in slepe thou shalt not beliche therof, nor fele any paine. A swete wholsome slepe shal such one haue, þ fele no inwarde grefe. He ryseth vp by tymes in the morninge, and is well at ease in him self. But an vnsaciable eater sleepeth vnquyetly, and hath ache and payne of the body. If thou feelest that thou hast eaten to much, aryse, go thy waye cast it of thy stomach, and take thy rest.

My sonne, heare me, and despyse me not: & at the last thou shalt fynde as I haue tolde the. In all thy workes be diligent and quicke so shall there no sykenes happen vnto the.

Who so is liberall in dealyng out his meate many men shall blesse hym and prayse hym with their lyppes: þ the same is a sure token of hys loue and faythfulnes. But he that is vnthankefull in meate, the whole cytye shall complayne of hym: and that is a sure experience of his infidelitie & wickednes. Be not thou a wine bybber, for wine hath destroyed many a man. The fyre proueth the hard yron, euen so doeth wyne proue the hertes of the proude, when they be dronken.

Wyne soberly dronken, quyckeneth the life of man. If thou drinckest it measurably, thou shalt be temperate. What life is it, that maye continue without wyne? Wyne was made from the begynnynge to make men glad(& not for drokennes) Wyne measurably dronken is a recreatynge of the soule and body. But if it be dronken with excesse, it maketh bytternes and sorowe vnto the mynde. Dronkennes fylleth the mynde of the foolysh with shame & ryotte, mynysheth the strength & maketh wounides. Rebuke not thy neyghboure at the wyne, and despyse hym not in his myrth. Geue him no despytefull wordes and prealle not vpon hym with contrarye sayenges.

Of the dyscretion & prayse of the preacher, & of the hearer. Of the feare, faith, & confidence of God.

The. xxxii. Chapter.

If thou be made a ruler, puffe not thy self therin, but be thou as one of the people. Take diligent care for them, and loke well therto: and whē thou hast done all thy dewty, sit the downe, that thou mayest be merye wyth them, and receyue a crowne of honoure. Talke wisely and honestly, for wysdome beameth the right well. Hynder not musyck. Speake not, where ther is no audyence: and poure not forthe wysedome oute of tyme, at an importunyty. Like as the Carbuncle stone stryneth that is set in gold, so doth a song garnysh the wine feast: & as the Smaragde þ is set in golde, so is the swetenes of Musycke by the mouth of wyne.

Thou yong man, speake that becommeth the, þ that is possible, and yet scarse when thou art twyce asked. Comprehende muche with few wordes. In many thynges be as one that is ignorante, geue eare, and hold thy tong withall. If thou be among men of hyer authority, despyse not to compare thy self vnto them: and when an elder speaketh, make not thou many wordes therein. Before the thonder goeth lyghtenynge, and before shamefastnesse goeth loue and fauoure. Stande vp by tymes, and be not the last: but get the home sone, and there take thy pastyme, & do what thou wylte: so that thou do no euell, and despye no man. But for all thynges geue thankes, vnto hym that hath made the, & replenished the with his goodes

Who so feareth the Lorde, wyll receyue his doctrine: and they that gette them to hym by tymes, shall fynde grace. He that seketh the lawe, shall be fylled withall: As for hym þ is but fayned, he wyll be offended therat. They that feare the Lorde, shall fynde the iudgement, & their righteousnes shalbe kindled as a lyghte. An vngodly man wyll not be reformed, but can helpe hym self wyth the example of other in hys purpose. A man of vnderstādyng despiseth no good counsell: but a wylde and proude body hath no feare. My sonne, do nothynge without aduysement, so shall it not repent the after the dede. Go not in the way where thou maiest fall, nor wher thou mayest stumble agaynst þ stone. Truste not thy self into a labourous slypperye way, and beware of thine owne children. In all thy workes put thy truste in God from thy whole hert, for that is the keppynge of the cōmaundemētes. Who so beleueth Gods word taketh hede to the commaundementes: and he that putteth hys truste in the Lorde, shall wante nothing.

The disturbance of him that feareth God. The answere of the wyse. The lyuyng delyuered of a fole. Mā is in the hād of God, as the earth is in the hand of the potter. We ought not to despyse oure felowe, to become humble to other.

The. xxxiii. Chapter.

There shall no euell happen vnto him that feareth God: but whē he is in temptacion, the Lorde shall delyuer him. A wyse man hateth not the lawe, but an hypocrite is as a shyp in a raging waterr. A mā of vnderstandyng geueth credence vnto the lawe of God, and the lawe is faythful vnto him. Be sure of the matter, then talke therof, be fyrste well instructe, then mayest thou geue answere. The herte of the foolish is like a cartewhele, & hys thoughtes ronne about like the axel tree. Like as a wylde horse þ neyeth vnder euery one that syteth vpon hym: so is it wyth a slomefull frende. Why doeth one daye excell another, seynge all the dayes of the yeare come of the Sunne? The wysedome of the Lorde hath so parte them a sounder, and so hath he ordered the tymes of solempne festes. Some of them hath he chosen & halowed before other dayes. And al men are made of the grounde, & oute of the earth of Adam.

D In the multitude of scyence hath ỳ Lorde sondered them, and made their wayes of diuerse fashions. Some of them hath he blessed, made much of them, halowed them, and clayned them to him selfe. But some of them hath he cursed, brought the low, & put them out of their estate. * Like as ỳ clape is in the potters hande, and all the ordynge therof at his pleasure: so are men also in the hande of him ỳ made them, so that he maye geue them as it lyketh him beste. Agaynst euell is good, and agaynst death is lyfe: so is the vngodlye agaynst such as feare God. Beholde thus al the workes of the Hyeste, and there are euer two, agaynst two, & one sett agaynste another. I am a waked vp last of all, as one that gathereth after in harueste. In the goddes of God and in his blessynge I am increased, & haue fylled my wyne pasle, like a grape gatherer. Beholde, howe I haue not laboured onlye for my selfe, but for all suche as loue C nurture and wysdome.

Geare me, O ye greate men of the people & herken with youre eares ye rulers of the congregacyō. Geue not thy sonne & wife, thy brother & frende, power ouer the whyle thou lyuest: & geue not awaye thy substaunce and good to another, lest it repent the, & thou be fayne to begge therfore thy selfe. As long as thou lyuest & hast breth, let no man chaunge the: for better it is thy chyldren to praye the then that thou shouldeste be fayne to loke in their handes. In all thy workes be excellent, that thy honoure be neuer stayned. At the tyme when thou shalt ende thy dayes, and fynysh thy lyfe, dilyrybute thyne enheritaunce. The fodder, the whyppe, and the burden belongeth vnto the Asse: Meate, correccyō and worcke vnto the seruaunt.

D If thou set thy seruaunt to labourc, thou shalt fynde rest. But if thou let hym go idel, he shall seke lyberte. The yocke & ỳ whyppe bowe downe the necke, but tame thou thy euil seruaunt in bondes & correction. Sende hym to labourc, ỳ he go not idle. For idylnesse bringeth much euell. Set him to worke for that belongeth vnto him and becommeth him well. If he be not obedyente, bynde hys fete: but do not to much vnto him in any wyse, & wythout discrecyon do nothing. If thou haue a faythfull seruaute, let him be vnto the as thyne owne soule, for in bloude hast thou gotten him. If thou haue a seruaunte, holde him as thy selfe for thou hast nede of him as of thy selfe. If thou entreatest him euyll, & kepest him harde, and makest him to be proud, and to renne awaye from the, thou canst not tell what waye thou shalt seke him.

Eccli.xxx.c.

The.xxxiiii.Chapter.

C Of dreames, dyuynacyons, and enchaunted messes. We ought to conforte vayne hope and lyeng. The prayse of them that feare God. Of diuers workes of men. God doeth not alowe the workes of an vnfaythfull man.

A Vnwyse people begyle them selues in vayne & diseaytful hope & foles trust in dreames. Who so regardeth dreames, is lyke hym that wyll take holde of a shadowe, & folowe after the wynd: Euen so is it with the appearinges of dremes. Before the face is ỳ lykenes of a face. Who can be clene fed of the vncleane? Or what treuth can be spoken of a lye? Sothsayinge, witchcraft, sorcery and dreamynge is but vanyte: lyke as when a woman trauaileth with childe, & hath many fantasyes in her herte. Where as such thinges come not of God, set not thyne herte vpō them: for dreames haue deceaued many a man, and they fayled, that put their trust therin.

The lawe shalbe fulfylled wythout lyes B & wysdome is sufficient to a faythful mouth. A wyse mā ỳ is wel instructe, vnderstandeth much: & he ỳ hath good experience, can talke of wysdome. He that hath no experience, knoweth lytle: & he that erreth causeth much wickednes.

C When I was yet in errour, I lerned much also: yea, I was so lerned, that I could not expresse it all, and came oft in perell of death therouer, tyll I was delyuered frō it. Now I se, that they which feare God, haue ỳ right spirite: for their hope standeth in him ỳ can helpe the. Who so feareth the Lorde, standeth in awe of no man, & is not afrayed, for the Lorde is his hope and comfort.

Blessed is the soule of him that feareth the C Lorde: In who putteth he his truste: who is his strength? For the eyes of the Lorde haue respecte vnto the, that loue hym. He is their mighty protection, & strong grounde: A defence for the heate, a refuge for the hote none dayes, A succoure for stombling, and an helpe for fallynge. He setteth vp the soule, & lyghteneth the eyes: He geueth health, lyfe, & blessynge. He that geueth an offerynge of vnrighteous good, his offerynge is refused: and the scornefull dealynges of the vnrighteous please not God. God hath no delyte in the offerynges of the vngodlye, nether may synne be recouncyled in the multitude of oblacyons Who so bryngeth an offerynge oute of the goodes of the poore, doth euen as one ỳ kylleth the sonne before the fathers eyes.

The bread of the nedefull is the lyfe of the D poore: he that defraudeth him therof, is a mā of bloude. Who so robbeth his nyghboure of his liuing, doth as greate synne as though he slew him to death. He that defraudeth the labourer of his hyre, is a bloud shedder. Whē one buildeth and another braketh downe, what profit haue they then but but labourc? When one prayeth & another curseth whose voyce wyl the Lorde heare? He that washeth hym him self because of a deade bodye, and then toucheth the deade agayne, what doeth hys washynge? So is it wyth a man that fasteth for hys synnes, and doth them agayne: who wyll heare his prayer? Or: what doth his humblynge helpe him?

It is well done to prayse, and to do sacrifice. The prayer of the fatherlesse, & of the widdow and of hym that humbleth hym self.

The. xxxv. Chapter.

A Jere. vii. c.

Who so keepeth the lawe, bryngeth offrynges ynough. He that holdeth faste the commaundement, offereth a ryght healthful offrynge. He that is thankfull, recompenseth, offereth fyne flowre. * Who so Ecclus. xiii. f. Prouer. iii. c. is mercyfull, & geueth almes that is the ryght thanckoffrynge God hath pleasure, when one departeth fro synne: and to forsake unryghteousnes recompenseth hym wyth hym.

Thou shalte not appeare empty before the Lorde, for all such is done because of the commaundement. The offrynge of the righteous maketh the aulter fat, & swete smelle is it before the Hyeste. The offrynge of the righteous is acceptable unto God, and shal neuer be forgotten. Geue God hys honoure wyth a chearfull eye, and kepe not backe the fyrstlynges of thy handes. In all thy gyftes shewe a mery countenaunce, and halowe thy tythes unto God, accordynge as he hath enriched & prospered the: and loke what thine hand is able, that geue wt a chearfull eye: for the Lord recompenseth, & geueth seuen times as much agayne. Geue no unrighteous gyftes, for such wil he not receyue. Beware of wrongeous offrynges, for the Lord is a righteous iudge: and regardeth mannes person he accepteth not the personne of the poore: but he heareth the prayer of the oppressed. He B Iudith. viii. b. Exod. xii. b. despyseth not the desire of the fatherlesse, nor the widdow, when she poureth out her prayer before hym. Doth not God se the teares, that ren downe the cheekes of the widdowe? Or: heareth not the complaynte, ouer suche as make her to weepe? Who so serueth God after his pleasure, shalbe accepted, & his prayer reacheth unto the cloudes. The prayer of hym Ecclus. iii. d. Ecclus. v. a. that humbleth him self, goeth thorow the clowdes, tyll she come nye. She wyll not be comforted, nor go her wape, tyll the Hyest God haue respecte unto her, geue true sentence, & performe the iudgement. And the Lorde wyll not be slacke in co[m]mynge, nor tary lōg: tyll he haue smytten in sonder the backes of the vnmercyfull, and auenged hym self of the Heathen: tyl he haue taken away the multytude of the cruell, and broken the cepter of the vnrighteous: tyll he geue euery man after hys workes, and rewarde them as they haue deserued: tyll he haue delyuered his people, maynteyned their cause, & reioysed them in hys mercy. O howe faire a thinge is mercye in the tyme of anguysshe and trouble! It is like a cloude of rayne that commeth in the tyme of a drought.

A prayer to God in the person of all ryghteous men wyth the prayse of a good woman.

The. xxxvi. Chapter.

A Haue mercy upon vs, O Lorde, thou God of all thynges. Haue respecte unto vs, shewe vs the lyght of thy mercies, & send thy feare among y Heathen, y trail gers, whyche seke not after the: y they maye know, how y ther is no god but y, & that thei may shewe thy wonderous workes. Lift up thyne hande ouer the outlandyshe Heathen, that they maye lerne to knowe thy mayghte & power, like as y are halowed in vs before the: so bring to passe, that thou mayst be magnified also in them before vs: that they may knowe the, lyke as we knowe the. For there is none other God, but only thou O Lorde. Renewe thy tokens and chaunge the wonderous workes. Shewe thyne hande & thy ryght arme gloryously. Rayse up thy indignacyon and poure out thy wrath. Take awaye the aduersarye, and smite the enemye. Make the tyme shorte, remember thy couenaunte, that thy wonderous workes may be praysed. Let the wrath of the fyre consume them, that lyue so carelesse: and let them perysh that do thy people harme. Smyte in sonder the head of the Princes, that be oure enemyes, and say: ther is none other but we.

Gather all the tribes of Jacob together agayne, that they maye know, how that ther B is none other God but only thou, that they maye shew thy wonderous workes, and be thy people and heritage, like as from the begynnynge. O Lorde haue mercye upon the people that hath thy name, and upon Israell who thou hast lykened to a fyrst borne sonne. O be mercyfull unto Jerusalem the cyte Ecclus. iii. f. of thy Sanctuary, the cyte of thy rest. Fyl Sion wyth thy unspeakable workes, and thy people wyth thy glory. Geue witnes unto thy i. Para. ix. g. creature, whom thou madest fro the begynnyng, and rayse up the prophecyes that haue ben shewed in thy name. Rewarde the that wayte for the, that thy Prophetes maye be founde fayethful. O Lorde heare the prayer of thy seruauntes, accordynge to the blessyng of Aaron ouer thy people: that all they which Numer. vi. d. dwell upon the earth, maye know, that thou art the Lord the eternall God, which is fro euer lastynge.

The belly deuoureth all meates, yet is one C meate better, then another. Lyke as the tong talketh by reason, so doeth an herte of vnderstandynge: marck falce woordes. A frowarde herte geueth heuynes, but a man of experience lifteth hym up agayne. The woman receyueth euery man, yet is one daughter better then another. A fayre wyfe reioyseth her husbande & a man loueth no thyng better. If she be lo vynge & vertuous wyth all, then is not her husbande lyke other men. He that hath gotten a vertuous woman, hath a goodlye pos-lesspon: she is bnto hym an helpe, and pyller whereupō he resteth. Wher no hedge is, ther the goodes are spopled: ¶ where no houswyf is, there the frendes mourneth. Lyke as there is no credence geuen to a robber, that goeth from one cytye to another: So is not the man beleued, that hath no nest, and must turne in, where he may abyde in the nyght.

¶ The.xxxvii.Chapter.

How a man shulde know frendes ¶ counsellers, and searche the compayne of a holy man.

2 Every frēd sayeth: I wyll be frēd lye vnto him also. But ther is some frēd, which, is only a frēd in name. Remayneth there not heuines vnto death, when a cōpanō and frende is turned to an enemy? O most wicked presumpcyon: From whence art thou spronge vp, to couer the earth with falsede and dicease. There is some compaynon which in prosperyte reioyseth with his frend: but in ỹ tyme of trouble, he taketh parte agaynst hym.

Eccli.vi.b.

Ther is some cōpanion that mourneth with his frend for the belly sake: but wise trouble cōneth he taketh holde of the shyld. Forget not thy frend in thy mynde, and thinke vpon him in thy riches. Every counceler bringeth forth hys counsell: Neuertheles there is some that counselleth but for hys owne profet. Be ware of the counceler, and be aduysed afore wherto thou wylt vse him, for he wyll counsell for him selfe. Lest he cast the lot vpō the, and saye vnto the: Thy way and purpose is good, and afterwarde he stande agaynst the and loke what shall become of the.

3 Aske no councell at him, that suspecteth the for an enemye, and hyde thy counsel frō such as hate the. Aske no counsell at a woman cōcerning the thinges that she lōgeth for: nor at a fearfull ỹ fayntherted bodye, in matters of warre: at a marchaunte, bonde deare he wyll cheape thy wares towarde hys: or at a byer, of sellynge: Or at an enuyous man, of thancke geuynge: Or at the vnmercyfull of louyng kyndnes: Or at ỹ slouthfull of worke bynge: Or at an hyrelynge whyche hath no house, of pasture or wealth. ¶ An yole bodye wolde not gladly heare speake of muche labour.) Take no such folckes to counsel, but be diligēt to take councel at a vertuous man that feareth God, such one as thou knowest to be a keper of the cōmaundements, whyche hath a mynde after thyne owne mynde, and is sory for the when thou stumblest.

4 And holde thy councell fast in thyne hert: for there is no mā more faythfull to kepe it: then thou thy selfe. For a mās minde is sōtyme more dysposed to tell mare, then seuen watchmen that syt aboue in an hye place to kynge aboute the. And aboue all thys praye the Lord, ỹ he wyll lede thy waye in fayeth fulnes ¶ truth. Before all thy worckes aske counsell first: ¶ or euer thou doest any thynge be well aduysed. There be foure thinges that declare a chaunged herte, wherevnto there springeth euell ¶ good, death and life, and a mayster full tonge that bableth muche. Some mā is apt and well instruct in many thinges ¶ yet very vnprofitable vnto him selfe. Some man there is, that can geue wise and prudent councell, ¶ yet is he hated, and counted a begger for ỹ grace is not geuē him of God to be acceppted. An other is robbed of al wisdome, yet is he wyse vnto hym selfe, and the frute of vnderstandynge is faythful in hys mouthe.

A wise man kepeth his people wise, and ỹ frutes of hys wysdome saple not. A wise mā shall be plentyously blessed of God: ¶ al they that se him, shal speake good of him. The lyfe of man standeth in the number of the daies, but the dayes of Israell are innumerable. A wyse man shall optayne faythfulnes ¶ credence amonge his people, ¶ hys name shall be perpetuall. My sonne proue thy soule in thy lyfe: ¶ if thou se any euell thynge, geue it not vnto her. For al thynges are not profitable for all mē, nether hath euerye soule pleasure in euery thynge. Be not gredy in euerie earynge, ¶ be not to hastye vpon all meates. For excesse of meates bringeth sycknes, and glottony commeth at the last to an vnmeasurable heate. He that holdeth the plough, & hath pleasure in prodding and dryuynge the oxen, & goeth about with suche workes, he can speake of oxen. He setteth his herte to make forowes, & is diligent to geue the kyne fodder. So is euery carpenter also & workemaister, that laboureth styll nyght & daye: he carueth, graueth & cutteth oute, and his desyre is sondry commynge thinges, and his hert imagineth, howe he may conningly cast an image, his diligēce also & watchinge performeth the worke. The plowman in lyke maner dydeth by his styche, & doth hys diligence to labour the ynon. The vapoure of the fyre bremneth his flesh, & he must fight with the heat of the fornace. The noise of the hammer soundeth euer in his eares, and hys eyes loke styll vpon the thynge that he maketh. He hath set hys mynde there vpon, that he wyll make oute hys worke, and therefore he watched, how he may set it out, & bryng it to an ende.

E So doth the potter sit by his worke, he turneth the wheele about with his feete, he is diligent and carefull in all doynges, and his labour & worke is without nūber. He fashioneth the clape with hys arme, and with hys fete he tempereth it. Hys herte ymagineth how he may make it pleasaunt, and his diligence is to clense the ouen. ¶ The.xxxix. Chapter.

HE that applyeth hys mynde to vnderstande the lawe of God, doth diligētly serche out the wysedome of them of the olde tyme, & exercyseth hym self in the Prophetes. He keepeth the sayinges of famous men, and pondereth to the vnderstandynge of darke sentences of wysedome. He sercheth out the mistery of secrete sayinges, & exercyseth hym self therin continually. He doth serue among great men, and appeareth before the prince. He goeth into a straunge countre, & trauayleth throwe it: for what good is euel is among men, he proueth it & sercheth it out. He purposeth in hys herte, to resorte early vnto the Lorde that made hym, & to pray before the hyest God. He openeth his mouthe in prayer, & prayeth for hys synnes. When B the great Lord will, he shalbe fylled with the spyrit of vnderstanding, & he may then poure out wyse sentences, and geue thanckes vnto the Lord in hys prayer. He shall order his doctrine, & lede hys knowlege aryght, and geue hym vnderstandinge of secrete thinges. He shall shew forth the science of hys learning, and reioyce in the couenaunt of the lawe of the Lord. The whole congregacion shal cōmende his wysedome, & it shall neuer be put out. The remembraunce of hym shall neuer be forgotten, & hys name shall conpryue frō one generacion to another. Hys wysedome Eccle.xlviij.b shalbe spoken of, & the whole congregacion shall openly declare hys prayse. Whyle he lyueth, he hath a greater name then a thousande beside: and after hys deathe, the same name remaineth vnto hym. Yet wil I speake of moracion of vnderstandyng, for I am full as the Moone.

Herke vnto me (ye holy werteous children) C bryng forth fruite, as the rose that is planted by the brokes of the felde, & geue ye a swete smell as Libanus. Florish as the rose yarde, synge a songe of prayse. O geue thanckes vnto God ouer all hys workes. Geue glory & honour vnto the Lord, shew his prayse with your lyppes. Yea, euen with the song of your lyppes, with harpes & playenge, and in geuynge thanckes vnto him, lyke as thys ma- Gene.i.d ner: All the workes of the Lorde are exceadynge good, & all hys commaundementes are ryght and commeth at due season.

A man ought not to saye: what is that: what D is that: for at tyme conuenient they shall all Gene.b.j.d be sought. At his commaundement the water was as a wall, & at the worde of his mouthe the waters stode styll. In hys commaundement is euery thynge acceptable and recompted, and his health cānot be minished. The workes of al flesh are before him, and ther is nothing hyd frō his eyes. He seeth frō euerlastyng to euerlastyng, and there is nothynge to wonderfull or hye vnto him. A man nede not to saye then, what is this, or ꝙ? For he hath made al thinges to do good vnto man. Hys blessyng shall renne ouer as the streame, and moysture the earthe lyke a flood of water. Lyke as he maketh the water for drouthe, so shall hys wrath fall vpon the Heathen.

ff The teeth of wylde noysome beastes, the scorpions, serpentes, and the swerd are created also for vengeaunce, to the destruccion of ꝥ vngodly. They shall be glad to do hys cōmaundementes: & when nede is, they shall be ready vpon earthe: and when their houre is come, they shall not ouerpasse the commaundement of the Lorde.

Therfore haue I taken a good courage vnto me frome the begynnyge, and thought to put these thinges in wryting, and to leaue them behynde me. All the workes of ꝥ Lorde are good, & he geueth euery one in due season, & whan nede is, so that a man nede not to saye, ꝥ is worse then that. For in due season they are all pleasaunt and good: And therfore prayse the Lorde with whole herte & mouth, & geue thankes vnto his name.

¶ Many mistery ght in a mās lyfe. All thinges past away, but a frende & stable faythe remayneth. Of the blessing of the righteous, and prerogatiue of the feare of God.

¶ The.xl. Chapter.

A Great trauayle is created for all men & an heuy yoche vpon all mens chyldren, frō the daye that they go oute of their mothers wombe, tyll they be buryed in the earth, the mother of all thinges: namely, their thoughtes and ymaginacions, feare of the hert, counsayl, meditacions, longinge and desyre, the daye of death: from the hyest that sitteth vpon the glorious seat, vnto the lowest & most symple vpon the earthe: from hym that is gorgiously araped & weareth a crowne, vntill hym that is but homely and symply clothed. There is nothynge, but wrath, yre, fearfulnes, vnquietnes, & feare of death, rygorous anger and stryfe. And in the nyghte when one shoulde reste and slepe vpon hys bedde, the slepe chaungeth his vnderstandyng & knowlege. A litle as nothing is hys rest, in the slepe as well as in the daye of laboure.

He feareth and is disquyted in the wyspon of hys hert, as one that reuneth out of a battayll: and in the tyme of health he awaketh, and marueleth that the feare was nothinge. Suche thynges happen vnto all flesh, bothe man and beast: but seuen folde to the vngodly. Moreouer death, bloudshedding, stryfe, & swerde, oppression, honger, destruccion and punyshmente: these thynges are all created agaynst the vngodly, & for their sakes came the floude also. All that is of the earthe, shall turne to earth again: & al waters ebbe again into the sea. All bribes and vnrighteousnes shalbe put awaye, but faythfulnes & trueth shall endure for euer. The substaunce and goodes of the vngodly shalbe dryed vp and sprucke awaye as a water floude, & they shall make a sounde like a greate thonder in the rayne. Eccl.xxxiii. Gene.vi.d

ff Frendlines and liberalitie in the increase and blessinge of God, is lyke a paradise and garden of pleasure: such mercy also & kyndnes endureth for euer. To labour and to be content with that a man hath, is a swete pleasaunt lyfe: and that is to fynde a treasure aboue all treasures. To beget chyldren and to repayre the cytye, maketh a perpetual name but an honest womē is more worth then they both. Wyne and mynstrelsy reioyse the hert, but the loue of wysedome is aboue the both. 1. Tim.v.b. Philip.iiii.b.

D Pypyng & harpyng make a swete noyse, but a frendly tonge goeth beyonde the both. Thyne eye desyreth fauoure and bewty but a grene sede tyme rather then they both. A frende and cōpanyon come together at opportunitie, but aboue them both is a wyfe that agreeth with her housbande. One brother helpeth another in the tyme of trouble, but almes shall delyuer more then they both. Golde and syluer fasten the fete, but a good counsayl is more pleasaunt then they bothe. Temporall substaunce and strength lyft vp the mynde: but the feare of the Lorde more then they both. The feare of the Lorde wanteth nothynge, & needeth no helpe. The feare of the Lorde is as a pleasaunt gardē of blessynge, and nothynge so beutiful as it is. My sonne, lede not a beggers life, for better it were to dye thē to begge. Who so loketh too another mans table, taketh no thought for hys owne lyuynge how to vpholde his lyfe, for for he feadeth him self with other mens ment. But a wyse and well nurtoured man wyll beware thereof. Beggynge is sweete in the mouth of the vnshamefaste, but in hys belly there burneth a fyre.

¶ Of the remembraunce of death. Death is not to be feared. A curse vpon the that forsake the law of God. Good name & fame. An exhortacio to geue hede vnto wysdome. Of what thynges a man ought to be ashamed.

¶ The. xli. Chapter.

A O Death, how bitter is the remembraunce of the, to a mā that seeketh rest and cōforte in his substaunce and ryches, vnto the man that hath nothing to vexe hym, and that hath prosperitie in all thinges yea, vnto hym yt yet is able to receyue meate! O death, how acceptable & good is thy iudgement vnto the nedefull, & vnto him whose strength fayleth, and that is now in his laste age, and that in all thynges is full of care & fearfulnes: vnto him also that is in dispayre, and hath no hope nor pacience! Be not thou afrayed of death: remembre theim that haue bene before the: and that come after the: this is the iudgement of the Lord ouer all fleshe. Gene. iiij. And why woldest thou be against this pleasure of the hyest? Whether it be ten, an hundreth, or a thousande yeares: death asked not how longe one hath lyued.

B The children of the vngodly are abhominable children, and so are they that kepe cōpany with the vngodly. The inheritaunce of vngodly children shall come too naught, and their posteritie shall haue perpetuall shame & confusion. The children complayn of an vngodly father: and why? for his sake they are rebuked and despysed. Eccll. xx. c Woo be vnto you (O ye vngodly) whiche haue forsake the lawe of the hyest God: if ye be borne, ye shal be borne to cursling, if ye dye, the curse shal be your portion.

All that is of the earth, shall turne to earth agayn: so go the vngodly also out of ye curse into destruccion. The sorowe of men is in their body: but the name of the vngodly shal be put out, for it is nothyng worth. Eccle. xi. b Laboure to get the a good name, for that shall conteyne surer by the, then a thousande great treasures of golde. A good lyfe hath a number of dayes, but a good name endureth euer. Eccle. xxij. a.

C My children, kepe wysdome in peace: for wysdome that is hyd and a treasure that is not sene, what profite is in the both? A man that hydeth his folishnes, is better then a mā that hydeth hys wysedome. Therefore be ye turned at my wordes: for it is not good, in al thinges & alway to be ashamed. True fayth must proue and measure it. Eccle. xx. d.

Be ashamed of whordome before father and mother: Be ashamed of lesynge before the prynce & men of auctoritie: Of synne, before the iudge & ruler: Of offence, before the congregacion & people: Of vnrighteousnes, before a companyon & frende: Of theft, before the nyeghbours. As for ye trueth of God and hys couenaunt, be not ashamed therof. Roma. i. b

Be ashamed too lye with thyne elbowes vpon the bread: Be ashamed to loke vpō hat lotten: Be ashamed to turne awaye thy face from thy frend: Be ashamed to take & not to geue: Be ashamed also to loke vpō another mans wyfe, and too make many tryflynge wordes with her maiden, or to stande by her bedsyde. Be ashamed to vpbrayde thy frēde when thou geuest any thynge, taste hym not in the teeth withall.

¶ Secretes maye not be opened. The lawes of God must be taught. A daughter A woman. God knoweth all thynges, yea, euen the secretes of the hert.

¶ The. xlij. Chapter.

R Hearke not a thynge twyse, & disclose not the woordes, that thou haste herde in secrete. Be shamefaste and well mannered in dede, so shall euery man fauour the. Of these thinges be not thou a shamed, & accepte no persome to offende. Namely, of these thinges be not a shamed: Of the lawe of God, of the couenaunt, of iudgement: to bring the vngodly from his vngodlynes vnto righteousnes, and to make him a good mā: to deale faythfully with thy neyghbour & cōpanyon: to distribute the heritage vnto the frendes: to be diligent to kepe true measure and weyght: to be content, whether thou getteest much or litle: to deale truly with temporal goodes in byeng & selling: to bring vp children with diligēce: to correct an euel seruaunt: to kepe that thine is. Lorde, & declare the thyng that I haue sene. In the wordes of the Lorde are his workes. The Sunne ouerlooketh all thinges with his shyne, and all hys workes are ful of ꝑ clearnes therof. Hath not the Lorde brought too passe, that his sayntes shoulde tell oute all his wonderous workes, whiche the almightye Lord hath stablished? All thinges endure in his glory. He sercheth out the grounde of ꝑ depe and the hert, and he knoweth all their imagination and wyfedome. For the Lorde knoweth all science, and he loketh into the token of the tyme. He declareth the thynges ꝑ are past and for to come, and discloseth thinges that are secrete. No thought may escape him, neither maye any woorde be hyd from him. He hath garnished the hye excellent workes of hys wyfdome, and he is frō euerlasting to euerlastinge. Vnto him maye nothinge be added neyther can he be mynished he hath no nede also of any counsayll. O how amiable are all his woorkes, and as a sparke to loke vpon? They lyue all, and endure for euer: and when soeuer nede is, they are all obedient vnto him. They are all double, one agaynste another: he hath made nothynge that hath faute or blemyshe. He hath stablished the goodes of euery one: and who maye be satisfyed with his glory, when he sayth it?

¶ The.xliii.Chapter.

A Psal.xix.a

The glory of the heyght, is ꝑ fayre and cleare firmament, the beutye of ꝑ heauē in his glorious clearnes. The Sunne whe it appeareth declareth the daye in the goinge oute of it, a marueylous woorke of the hyest. At noone it burneth the earth, and who maye abyde for the heate therof? Who so heketh an ouē whē it is hote, thre times more doeth the Sunne burne vpon the mountaynes, when it breatheth out the fyre beames and shyneth: with the brightnes of it, it blyndeth the eyes. Greate is the Lorde that made it, and in his commaundement he causeth it to runne hastely.

The Moone also is in all, and at conuenient season it sheweth the times, & is a token of the tyme. The token of the solempne feast is taken of the Moone, a lighte that mynysheth and increaseth agayne. The moneth is called after the Moone, it groweth wonderously in her chaungyng.

Gene.i.b
Eccl.xx.a

B The army of heauen also is in the heyght in the firmament of heauen it geueth a cleare and glorious shyne. This is the clearnes of the starres, the beutifull apparel of heauen, the apparell that the Lorde lighteneth in the heyght. In his holy woorke they continue in their order, and not one of thē fayleth in hys watch. Loke vpon the rayne bowe, & prayse him that made it: very beutiful is it in hys shyne. He compaseth the heauen about with his clearnes & glory, the handes of the Hyest haue bended it. Thorow his cōmaundement he maketh the snowe to fall, & the thonder of his iudgement to smyte hastily. Thorow hys commaundement the treasures are opened, and the cloudes fle as the foules. In hys power hath he strengthened the cloudes, & broken the hayle stones.

Gene.ix.b

The mountaynes melt at the sight of him the wynde bloweth accordynge to hys wyl. The sounde of his thonder beareth the earth and so doth the storme of the northe: the whyrle wynde also lighteth doune as a fethered foule, castyth out and spredeth the snowe abrode: & as the grashoppers that destroye al, so falleth it doune. The eye marueyleth at the beuty of the whyteneſſe therof, and the herte is afraed at the rayne of it. He poureth oute the frost vpon earth, lyke salt, and when it is frosen, it is as sharpe as ꝑ pricke of a thistle.

C When the coulde Northwynde bloweth, harde Cristall cōmeth of the water. He lighteth doune vpon all the gatherynges together of water, and putteth on the waters as a brest plate. He deuoureth the mountaines, and burneth ꝑ wyldernesses: and loke what is grene, he putteth it out lyke fyre. The medecine of all these is, when a cloude cōmeth hastely: and when a dew commeth vpon the heate, it shalbe refreshed agayne.

In his woorde he stilleth the wynde. In his counsail he setteth the depe, and (the Lorde) Jesus planted it. They that saple ouer the sea, tell of his parels and harmes: and when we heare it with our eares, we marueil therat. For there be straunge wonderous woorkes, diuerse maner of myce beastes & whalfyshes. Thorow hym are all thynges set in good order and performed, & in hys woorde all thinges endure.

I speake much, but I can not sufficiently attayne vnto it, for he him selfe onely is the perfeccion of all woordes. We should prayse the Lord after all our power, for he is greate in all his workes. The Lord is to be feared yea, verye greate is he, and marueylous is his power. Prayse the Lorde, and magnify him as muche as ye maie, yet doth he farre farre excede all prayse. O magnifie him with all youre power, and laboure earnestly, yet are ye in no wyse able sufficiently to prayse him. Who hath sene him, that he myghte tell vs? Who can magnifye him so greatly as he is? For there are hyd yet greater thynges then these be: as for vs, we haue sene but fewe of hys workes. For the Lorde hath made all thynges, and geue wisdome to such as feare God.

¶ The prayse of certen holy men Henoch, Noe Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

¶ The.xliiii.Chapter.

A Let vs cōmende the noble famous men, and the generacion of oure fore elders & fathers. Many more glorious actes hath ꝑ Lord done and and shewed hys greate power euer sens the beginning. The noble famous men raigned in their kyngdomes, and bare excellent rule. In their wysdome and vnderstandyng, they folowed the counsayl shewed in the prophecies. They led the folke thorow the counsaill and wysdome of the Scribes of the people. Wyse sentences are founde in their instruccion. They sought the swetenes and melody of Musick, and brought forth the pleasaunt songes in scripture. They were tyche also, to coulde comforte & paciefie those that dwelte with them. All these were very noble and honorable men in their generacions, and were wel reported of in their tymes. These haue left a name behinde them, so that their prayse shall alwaye be spoken of. Afterward there were some, whose remembraunce is gone. They came to naught & perished, as though they had neuer bene: and be came as though they had neuer bene borne, yea, & their children also with them.

Gene.xlij.d

B Nevertheles these are louing men, whose righteousnesse shall neuer be forgotten, but comme by their posterite. Their children are an holy good heretage: Their sede endured fast in the couenaunt. For their sakes shall their children & sede continue for euer, & their prayse shall neuer be put doune. Their bodyes are buryed in peace, but their name liueth for euermore. The people can speake of their wisdome, and the congregacion can talke of their prayse. Enoch walked right & acceptably before the Lord: therfore was he translated for an example of amendement to the generations. Noe was a stedfaste and righteous man: & in the time of wrath he became a reconcyling. Therfore was he left a remnaūt vnto the earth, whē the floud came. An euerlasting couenaunt was made with him, that al flesh should perish nomore with the water. Abraham was a greate father of many people, in glory was there none lyke vnto hym. He kepte the lawe of the Hyest, & came into a couenaunte with him. He set the couenaunt in his flesh, & when he was tempted, he was founde faythful. Therfore swore God vnto him w an othe, that he wolde bleese all people in his sede, that he wold multiplie & increase him as the dust of the earthe, and to exalte his sede as the starres: yea, and that his sede should haue the possession & inheretaunce of the lande from sea to sea, and from the ryuer vnto the borders of the lande.

With Isaac did he stablish the same couenaunt, for Abrahā his fathers sake. Yea, that gracious blessyng and health of al men, and couenaunt did he stablyshe with Isaac, and made it to rest vpon the head of Jacob. He knew hym, in that he prospered hym so well and tychely, and gaue hym an heretage, and sundered hys portyon by it selfe, and parted it among the twelfe tribes. Merciful men brought he out of hym, which founde fauour before all flesh.

Exo.xxx

A Moses beloued of God & me, whose remembraunce is in hye prayse, hym that & Lord made lyke in the glory of the sainctes and magnified hym so that the enemyes stode in awe of hym, throwe hys wordes he did great wonders. He made him great in the sighte of kynges, gaue hym commaūdemēt before hys people, & shewed him hys glorious power. He stablished him with faythfulnes & meknes, and chose him oute of all men. For he herde his voyce, and led hym in the darcke cloude, and there he gaue hym the commaundementes, yea, the lawe of lyfe & wysdome that he might teache Jacob the couenaunt, and Israel hys lawes.

He chose Aaron his brother also out of the tribe of Leuy, exalted him, & made him such lyke. An euerlasting couenaūt made he with him, & gaue him the priesthode in the people. He made hym glorious in bewtyfull arape, and clothed hym with the garmentes of honour. He put perfecte ioye vpon hym, and gyrded hym with strengthe. He decked hym with fyne clothes, and a tuncle, with an ouerbody cote also & a gyrdle. Round about made he hym belles of golde, & that mannys when he went in, the soūde might be herde, that they might make a noyse in the Sanctuary, and geue the people warnynge. The holy garment was wrought & broidered with golde, yelow silke & purple. And in the breastlappe there was a goodly worcke, wherein was fastened light and perfectnesse.

Upon the same also there was a worke fastened, & set with costly precious stones, all boudde with golde: and thus he broughte in his ministracion. The stones were fastened for a remembraunce, after the twelue tribes of Israel. Upon his myter there was a plate of pure golde, a grauen ymage of holines, a famous and noble worke, garnished, & pleasaunt to loke vpon. Before hym were there sene no such kynde ornamentes, & these it behoued hym alway to vse: There myght none other put them on, but onely hys children & hys childrens children perpetually. Daily performed he hys burntoffrynges two times. Moyses fylled his handes, and anoynted hym with holy oyle.

This was now confirmed hym with an euerlastyng couenaunt, & to hys sede, as the dayes of heauen, namely that hys children shoulde alwaye mynistre before hym, & performe the office of the priesthode, and with the people good in his name. Before all men hauyng chose he him, that he should offer before the Lord, and make odours for a swete sauoure & remembraunce, that he should reconcyle the people of the Lorde with hym agayne. He gaue hym ancreace also in hys cōmaundementes & in the couenaunte, that he should teach Jacob the statutes and testimonies, mones, & to enfourme Israell in his lawe.

E Therfore there stode vp certayne against him, and had enuy at him in the wildernes: namely, they that were of Dathan, and Abirams syde, and the furious congregacion of Chore. Thus the Lorde sawe, and it displeased him, and in his wrothfull indignacion were they consumed. A great wonder did he vpon them, & consumed them with the fyre. Numer.xvi.a. Numer.xvi.b.

Besydes this, he made Aaron yet more honorable and glorious. He gaue him an heritage, and parted the firste fruites vnto him. Vnto him specially he appointed the bread for sustenaunce: for the priestes eat of the offringes of the Lorde: this gaue he vnto him and his sede. Els had he no heritage nor portion with the people. For the Lorde him self is his portion and enheritaunce. Exo.xxix.f Leui.xxiii.b.

The thirde noble & excellent man is Phinehes the sonne of Eleazer, which pleased F God of Israell, because he had the feare and feare of the Lorde. For whē the people were turned backe, he put him self to the righte soone, and that with a good will, to pacifye the wrath of the Lord toward Israel. Therfore was there a couenaunte of peace made with him, that he shoulde be the principall amonge the righteous and the people, that he and his posterite shoulde haue the office of the priesthode for euer: Like as there was made a couenaunt with Dauid of the tribe of Juda, that from among his sonnes onely there shoulde be a kynge: And that Aarō also and his sede shoulde be the heritage, to geue vs wyde home in ourr herte, to iudge his people in righteousnes: that his goodes shoulde not come into forgetfulnes, and that their honoure might endure for euer. ¶ The prayse of Josue, Caleb, and Samuel.

¶ The.xlvi.Chapter.

MAny and strōg in battayl was Jesus the sonne of Naue, which in stede of Moses the prophet was geuen to be captayne of his people which according vnto his name was a great sauiour vnto the elect of God, to punish the enemyes that rose vp against Israel, that Israell might optayne their inheritaunce. O how greate, noble and excellent was he, when he lyft vp his hande, and drew out his swerde against the cities! Who stode so manly before him? For the Lord him self brought in the enemies. Stode not the Sunne still at his cōmaundement, & one day was as long as two? He called vpō the Hyest & most mighty, whē the enemyes prassed vppon him on euery syde: and the Lorde herde him with hayle stones. They smote the Heythenish people mightely, and in fallynge downe they slew all the aduersaries, so that the Heathen knewe his hoost, & all his defence, that the Lord him self fought against them, for he followed vpō the mighty men of them. A Josue.xv.c Num.xxvii.d Deu.xxxiiij.b Josue.i.a. Josue.x.c.

In the time of Moyses also he and Caleb B the sonne of Jephune, dyd a good worcke, whiche stode against the enemies, wythelde the people from synne, & stylled the wicked murmuring. And of syx hundreth thousande people of lote, they two were preserued, when they were brought into the heritage, namely, a lande that floweth with mylcke & hony. The Lorde gaue strēgth also vnto Caleb, which remayned with him vnto his age: so that he went vp into the hye places of the lande, and his sede conquered the same for an heritage: that all the childre of Israell might se, how good a thyng it is, to be obedient vnto the Lorde. And the iudges or rulers (euery one after hys name) whose hert wente not a whorīng, nor departed from the Lorde, and which forsake not the Lorde vnfaythfully, whose remembraunce hath a good reporte: Yea, their bones flouish out of their place, and their name shall neuer be chaunged. Josue.xiiij.

Samuel the prophet beloued of the Lord, C ordeyned a kyng, and anoynted the princes ouer the people. In the law of the Lorde ruled he, and iudged the congregacion, and the Lord had respecte vnto Jacob. The prophet was founde diligent in his faythfulnes: yea, in hys faythfulnes was the faythfulnes of vision knowen. He called vpon the Lorde almighty, when the enemies prassed vpō him on euery side, what time as he offred the sucking lambes. And the Lorde thondred from heauen, & made his voyce to be herde with a greate noyse. He discomfited the princes of Tyre, all the rulers of the Philistines. i.Reg.vii.a

Before his laste ende he made protestacion in the sight of the Lorde, and his anoynted that he toke neither substaunce nor good of any man, no not so muche as a shoo: and no man myght accuse him. After this he told, that his ende was at hande, and shewed the kynge also his ende and death: and from the earth lyfte he vp his voyce in the prophecie, that the vngodly people shoulde perysshe.

¶ The prayse of Nathā, Dauid, & Salomon.

¶ The.xlvii.Chapter.

AFterwarde in the tyme of king Dauid, there rose vp a prophet A called Nathan: For like as the i.Reg.xii.a fat is taken away from the offringe, so was Dauid chosen out of the children of Israel. He toke his pastyme with the Lyons & with kydds, & with beares lyke as with lambes. Blessed were they that sawe the, and were garnyshed in Elias was couered in the storme, but Helyseus was fylled with his mouth. While he lyued he was afrayed of no prynce, and no man might ouer come hym. There could no worde discreate him, & after his death hys bi dy prophecyed. He did wonders in his life, & in death were hys workes marueilous. For all thys, the people amended not, neyther departed they from their synnes: tyl they were carped awaye prisoners out of the lande, & were scattered abrode in al countrees, so that of them there remayned but a very litle people, and a prynce vnto the house of Dauid. How be it some of them dyd vpryght, and some heaped vp vngodlynes.

C Hezekiah made hys citie stronge, coueried

Then trembled their hertes and hādes, so that they sorowed lyke a woman trauaylynge with childe. So they called vpon the Lord, which is mercyfull, and lyft vp their handes before him. Immediatly & Lorde herde them out of heauen, and delyuered them by the hande of Esay. He smote the hoost of the Assyryans, & his angell destroyed them. ¶ Of Symon the sonne of Onyas.

i.Mac.xij.xiij

Symon the sonne of Onyas the hye preest, which in his lyfe set vp the house agayne, & in his dayes made all & temple. The depth of the temple also was founded of hym. & double buyldyng, & & hye walles of the temple. In his dayes the welles of water flowed out, and were ouerflowing full as the sea. He toke care for his people, & delyuered them frõ destruccion. He kepte his cytye & made it stronge, & it shulde not be besieged. He dwelt in honoure and worshyppe amonge his people, and enlarged the intraunce of the house, and the court. He goeth lyghte as the mornynge starre in the middest of the cloudes, and as & mone whan it is full. He shyneth as the sunne in the temple of God. He is as bryght as the rayne bowe in the fayre cloudes, and flourisheth as floures and roses in the spryng of the yeare, and as pipes by the ryuers of water: Like as the braunches vpõ the mount Libanus in the time of Somer: as a fire & nacke & is hunted: Like as an whole ornament of pure gold set wyth all maner of precyous stones: & as an olyue tree & is frutefull, & as a Cypres tree which groweth vp an hye.

When he put on the garment of honoure & was clothed with all bewyte, when he went to the holy aulter to garnysh the courtynge of the Sanctuarye: when he toke the portyons out of & Preestes hand, he hym self stode by the harth of the aulter, and his brethren rounde about hym. And as the braunches of Cedre tree vpon the mount Libanus, so stode they rounde about hym. And as the braunches of the olyue tree, so stode all the sonnes of Aaron in their glory. And that he myghte sufficientlye performe his seruyce vpon the aulter, and garnysh the offrynge of the hyest God, he stretched out his hande and toke of the drynckofferynge, & poured in of the wyne so he poured vpon the botome of the aulter a good smell vnto the hyest Prynce.

Then began the sonnes of Aaõ to synge, and to blow with trompetes, and to make a greate noyse, for a remembraunce and prayse vnto & Lorde. Then were the people afraied & fell downe to the earth vpon their faces, to worshyppe the Lorde their God, and to geue thankes to the almyghtye God. They synge goodly also with their voyces, so ther was a pleasaunte noyse in the greate house of the Lorde. And & people in their prayer besought the Lorde the hyest, that he wolde be mercyfull, tyll the honoure of the Lorde were performed. Thus ended they their ministracõ and seruyce. Then went he downe, and stretched out his hãdes ouer the whole multytude of the people of Israel, that they shoulde geue prayse and thankes out of their hyppes vnto the Lorde, to reioyse in his name. He began yet ence also to praye, that he myghte openly shewe the thankesgeuynge before the Hyest, namely thus: O geue prayse & thanke ye all vnto the Lord our God, which hath euer done noble and greate thynges: wt yche hath increased oure dayes from our mothers woinbe, & dealt wyth vs accordynge to his mercy: that he will geue vs the ioyfulnes of hert, & peace for oure tyme in Israel. Which faithfully kepeth his mercy for vs euermore and all waye deliuereth vs in due season.

There be two maner of people that I abhorre fro my hert: as for the thyrde, whom I hate, it is no people: They that sit vpon the mountayne of Samaria, the Philistines, & the foolish people that dwell in Sichimis.

D

I Jesus the sonne of Sirach Eleazarus of Hierusalem, haue tokened vp these informacions and documentes of wysdome and vnderstandinge in thys boke, & poured out the wysdome of my hert. Blessed is he that exercyseth hym self therin: & who so taketh suche to hert shalbe wise. If he do these thinges, he shalbe stronge in all. For the light of the Lorde ledeth hym.

¶ The prayer of Jesus the sonne of Syrach.

I Thanke the O Lord & kynge, & prayse the O God my sauioure. I will yelde prayse vnto thy name: for thou arte my defender & helper, and hast preserued my body from destruccion, from the snare of traytorous tonges, and from the lippes that are occupyed with lyes. Thou hast bene my helper, frō such as stode vp against me, and hast deliuered me after thy multitude of thy mercy, and for thy holy names sake. Thou hast deliuered me from the roaringe of them, that prepared them selfes to deuour me, out of the handes of such as sought after my lyfe: from the multitude of them that troubled me, and went about to set fyre vpō me on euery side, so that I am not bett in the middest of the fyre: ffrō the depe of hell, frō an vncleane tong, from lieng wordes, from the wicked kyng, and from an vnrighteous tonge. My soule shall prayse the Lorde vnto death, for my lyfe drew nye vnto hel.

They compased me rounde about on euery syde, and there was no man to helpe me. I loked about me, if there were any man that wolde socour me: but there was none. Then thought I vpon thy mercy O Lord, & vpon thy actes that thou hast done euer of olde: na mely, that thou deliuerest suche as put their trust in the, & riddest them out of the handes of the Heathē. Thus lift I vp my prayer frō the earth, and prayed for deliueraunce from death. I called vpō the Lord my father, that he wolde not leaue me without helpe, in the daye of my trouble and in the tyme of the proude. I prayed thy name continually, yelding honour and thankes vnto it: and so my prayer was herde. Thou sauedest me frome destruccio, and deliueredest me from the vnrighteous tyme. Therefore will I acknowlege and prayse the, and magnifye the name of the Lorde.

When I was yet but yōg, or euer I went astraye, I desyred wysdome openly in my prayer. I came therefore before the temple, & sought her vnto the last. Then flouryshed she vnto me, as a grape that is soone rype. My hert reioyced in her, then went my fote the right waye, yea, from youth vp sought I after her: I bowed doune myne eare and receyued her. I founde me muche wysdome, and prospered greatly in her. Therfore will I ascribe the glory vnto him, that geueth me wisdome: for I am aduised to do thereafter. I will be gelous to cleue vnto the thing that is good, so shall I not be confounded. My soule hath wrestled with her, and I haue bene diligent to be occupied in her. I lift vp myne hādes an hye, then was my soul lightened thorow wisdome, that I knowleged my foolishnes. I ordred my soule after her, she and I were one hert from the beginning, & I found her in clennesse. And therefore shall I not be forsaken.

D

My hert longed after her, and I got a good treasure. Thorow her the Lorde hathe geuen me a newe tonge, wherewith I will prayse hym. O come vnto me ye vnlerned, & dwell in the house of wysdome: withdrawe not your selfes from her, but talke and comē of these thinges, for your soules are very thirsty. I opened my mouthe, and spake: O come and bye wysdome without money, bowe doune your necke vnder her yoche, & your soule shall receyue wysdome. She is harde at hande and is content to be founde. Beholde with youre eyes, how that I haue had but litle laboure, and yet haue founde muche rest. O receyue wysdome, and ye shall haue plenteousnes of syluer and golde in possession. Let your myndes reioyce in hys mercy, and be not ashamed of hys prayse. Worke hys worke by tymes, and he shall geue you your rewarde in due tyme.

¶ The boke of the Prophet Baruch.

¶ Baruch wrote a boke, durynge the captiuitie of Babylon, whych he redde before Jechoniah and all the people. The Jewes sende the boke with money, vnto Hierusalem, too their other brethren: to the intent that they Houlde praye for them.

¶ The.i. Chapter.

A AND Baruch dyd rede the wordes of this boke, that Jechoniah ℣ sone of Joachim kyng of Juda might heare: ℣ in the presence of all the people, that were come too heare the boke: yea, and before all the noble kynges sonnes, before the lordes of the cōsistorie and elders: ℣ before the whole people, from the lowest vnto the hyest: before all the that dwelt at Babylon, by the water of Sody. Whyche whan they herde it, wepte, fasted, and prayed before the Lorde.

B They made a collection also of money, accordyng to euery mans power, and sente it to Hierusalem vnto Joachim the sonne of Helchiah the sonne of Salon preest, with the other preestes: and to all the people whyche were with him at Hierusalem, whan tyme as they had gotten the ornamentes of the tēple of the Lorde (that were taken awaye oute of the temple) that they might bryng thē againe into the lande of Juda, the.x. daye of the moneth Siban: namely, siluer vessels (whyche Sedechiah the sonne of Josiah kynge of Juda had made) After that Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon hadde taken Jechoniah, with all his princes, lordes, and all the people, and led them captiue from Hierusalem vnto Babylon.

C And they sayde: Beholde, we haue sente you money, to bye you burnt offerynges and incense withall: make you vnleuened bread, and offre for synne vpon the aulter of ℣ Lorde oure God. And praye for the prosperitie of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon, and of Balthasar his sonne: that their dayes maye be vpon earth, as the dayes of heauen: that God also maye geue us strength, and lighte oure eyes: that we maye lyue vnder the defence of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylō, and vnder the protection of Balthasar his sonne: that we maye longe do them seruice, and fynde fauour in their sighte. D Thus shall ye saye: The Lorde our God is righteous, but we are worthy of confusiō and shame: like as it is come too passe thys daye, vnto all Juda, and too euery one that dwelleth at Hierusalem: to our kynges, princes, preestes, prophetes and to our fathers. Baruch.ii. Daniel.ix.

We haue sinned before the Lorde our God, we haue not put oure trust in him, nor geue him credence we haue not obeyed hym, we haue not herkened vnto the voyce of ℣ Lord oure God, to walke in the commaundementes that he gaue vs. Sens the daye that he broughte oure forefathers out of the lāde of Egypte vnto thys present daye, we haue bene euer a rebellyous and an vnfaythfull people vnto the Lorde oure God: destroyenge oure selues vtterly, and shrynckynge backe, that we shoulde not heare his voyce.

E Wherfore there are come vpon vs greate plages and diuerse curses, lyke as the Lorde dyuised by Moyses his seruaunte: whyche brought oure forefathers out of the lande of Egipte, to geue vs a lāde, that floweth with mylke and honye, lyke as it is to se this daye. Neuertheles, we haue not herkened vnto the voyce of the Lorde oure God, accordyng to all the wordes of the Prophetes, whome he sent vnto vs and too oure rulers: but euery man folowed his owne wycked ymaginacion: to offer vnto straūge goddes, and to do euell in the sighte of the Lorde our God. vnto hys voyce. Therfore ỹ Lord our God is ryghtuous and we vñ our fathers (as reason is) are brought to open shame, as it is to se thys day. And as for these plages that are come vpon vs all ready, the Lorde had deuysed them for ouer yet wolde we not pray vnto the Lorde oure God, that we myght euerye man turne from his vngodly wayes. So the Lord hath caused such plages to come vpon vs for he is righteuous in al his workes, which he hath cõmaunded vs: which we also haue not done, ner harkened vnto his voyce, for to walke in the cõmaundementes of the Lorde that he had geuen vnto vs.

And nowe O Lorde God of Israell, thou that hast brought thy people out of the lande of Egypte with a mygtye hande, with tokens & wonders, with thy greate power and outstretched arme: and hast gotten thy selfe a name, as it is come to passe thys daye. O

What is worth of them that coyned siluer, and were so carefull, and coulde not bring their workes to passe? They

O Israel, how happy are we, seynge that God Psal.cxlvii.b

is come vpon me from the holye one, because of the mercye that ye shall haue of oure euer-

With mournynge and wepyng did I let

they also se shortelye youre health in God, which shall come on you wt greate honoure
and euerlastyng worshyp.

O my children, suffer pacientlye the wrath

¶ The.v. Chapter.

¶ Jerusalē is moued vnto gladnes for the re-

Put of thy mournynge clothes (O Jerusalem) and thy sorow, and decke the with the worshippe and honoure, that commeth vnto

thy children gathered from the east, vnto
the west: whiche reioyce in the holye worde, haueynge God in remembraunce. They departed from the on fote, and were led awaye of their enemyes: but nowe shall the Lorde bringe them caried wyth honoure, as chyldren of the kingdome. For God is purposed to bringe downe all stoute mountaynes, yea and all hye rockes, to fyll the valleyes, and so to make them euen with the grounde: that Israell maye be diligente to liue vnto the ho

¶ The.vi. Chapter.

¶ The copye of the epistle that Jeremye sent vnto
the Jewes, which were led awaye prysoners by the king of Babylon: wherin he certifieth them of the thyng that was commanded hym of God

Because of the synnes that ye haue don against God, ye shal

Ju.xiii. Angell

Deut. xii. 1. Aungel also shal be with you, and I my self will care for your soules. As for the tymbre of those goddes, the carpenter hath polished them: yea, gylded be they, & laped ouer with syluer, yet are they but dayne thinges, & can not speake. Like as a wench that loueth per-amours is trymly decked, euen soo are these made & hanged with golde. Crounes of gold verely have their goddes upon their heades: so the priestes them selfes take the golde and syluer from them, & put it to their owne vses: yea, they geue of the same unto harlottes, & trymme their whores withall: agayne, they take it frō the whores, & decke their goddes therwith. Yet can not these goddes deliuer them selfes from rust and mothes. When they have couered them with clothynge of purple, they wype their faces for the dust of the temple, wherof their is much amōg the. One hath a scepture in his hande, as thoughe he were iudge of the countre: yet can he not slape suche as offende hym. Another hath a swearde or an axe in his hande, for all that, is he neither able to defende hym selfe from battayll, nor from murtherers. Jere. x. a

E By this ye maye vnderstande, that they be no goddes: therfore se that ye neither worshipe them, nor feare them. For like as a vessel that a mā breth, is nothynge worth when it is broken, euen so is it with their goddes. When thei be set up in the temple, their eyes be full of dust, throwe the fete of those that come in. And like as the doores are shutte in rounde about upon him, that hath offended the kynge: Or as it were a dead body kepte beside the graue: Euen so the priestes kepe ỳ doores with barres and lockes, lest their goddes be spoyled with robbers. They set up candels before them (yea, verely & that many) wherof they can not se one, but euē as blockes, so stande they in the temple. It is sayde, that the serpentes & wormes, which come of the earth, gnawe out their hertes, eating thē & their clothes also, and yet they fele it not. Their faces are blacke, throwe the smoke ỳ is in the temple. The owles, swalowes, and birdes sit upon them, yea, & the cattes rūne ouer their heades.

D By this ye maye be sure, that thei are not goddes, therfore feare them not. The golde that they have, is to make them beutiful: for all that, except some body dyght of their rust, they will geue no shine: and when they were cast into a fourme, thei felt it not. Thei are bought for money, and have no brethe of lyfe within them. They must be borne upon mens shoulders, as those that have no fete: whereby they declare unto men, that they be nothynge worth. Confounded be they then, that worshippe them. For if they fall to the grounde, they can not rise up agayne of thē selfes. Yea, though one helpe them up & sette them right, yet are they not able too stande alone: but must have proppes set under thē lyke dead men. As for the thynge that is offred unto them, their priestes sell it, & abuse it: yea, the priestes wyfes take therof, but unto the seke and poore they geue nothynge of it, the women with child & the menstruous lape handes of their offringes. By this ye maye be sure, that they are no goddes, therefore be not ye afrayde of them. From whēce commeth it then, that they be called goddes? The wemen sit before the goddes of syluer, golde and woode, and the priestes sit in their temples, haynge open clothes, whose heades and beerdes are shaven & have nothyng upon their heades: roaringe and cryeng upō their goddes, as men do at the feaste, when one is dead.

The priestes also take awap the garmentes of the ymages, & decke their wyfes and children withal. Whether it be good or euel that any mā do unto them, they are not able to recompence it: they can neyther sette up a kyng nor put him doune. In like maner thei maye neyther geue ryches, nor reward euel. Though a man make a bowe unto them and kepe it not, they wil not requyre it. They can not restore a blynde mā to his sight, nor help any man at his nede. They can shewe no Eccle. b.d. mercy to the widdowe, nor do good to the fatherles. Their goddes of wood, stone, golde and syluer, are but euen as other stones, that be hewen of the mountaine. They that worshippe them, shalbe confounded. How should they then be take for goddes? yea, how darre men call them goddes? And though the Caldees worshiped them not, hearyng that they were but dumme & coulde not speake. Yet they them selfes offre unto Bell, and would fayne have him to speake: as who saye, they coulde fele, that maye not moue. But whan these men come to understandyng, they shal forsake thē, for their goddes have no feling.

F A great sorte of women gyrde with coardes sit in the stretes, and burne olyue beries. Now if one of them be conueyed awape, & lye with any such as come by: she casteth her neighbureste in the teth, because she was not so worthely requited, nor her coarde broken. Whatsoeuer is done for them, it is but hayn and lost: Howe maye it then be thoughte or sayde, that they are goddes? Carpenters and goldsmythes make them, neither be they any other thinge, but euen what the worche men will make of them. Yea, the goldsmithes thē selfes that make them, are of no longe continuance: How shoulde then the thinges ỳ are made of them, be goddes? Sayne therefore are the thynges (yea, very shame is it) that they leaue behynde them for their posterite. For as soone as there commeth any warre or plage upon theim, then the priestes counsayle where they maye hyde them selfes with them. How can men thynke then ỳ they be goddes, whiche neither maye defende thē selfes from warre, nor deliuer them fro misfortune? For seyng they be but of woode, of stone, of syluer, and of golde; all people and hynges shall knowe her after, that they be but vayne thynges: yea it shalbe openly declared, that they be no goddes: but euen the very workes of mens handes, & y God hath nothinge to do wyth them. They can sett no hynge in the lande nor geue rayne vnto men. They cā geue no sentēce of a matter, neyther defend the lande from wronge: ffor they are not able to do so much as y crowe, that flieth betwixt heuen and earth.

When there happeneth a fyre into y house of those goddes of wod, of syluer and of golde, the preestes wyl escape and saue the selues, but the godes burne as y dalkes therin They can not wythstande anye hynge or bat tel: how maye it then be thought or granted, that they be goddes? Moreouer, these godes of wodde, of stone, of golde and syluer maye nether defende them selues from theues nor robbers: yea y very wicked are stronger the they. These stryppe them oute of their apparell, that they be clothed wythall, these take their golde & siluer from them, and so get the awaye: yet can they not helpe them selues. Therfore it is much better for a man, to be a hynge & to so shewe hys power: or els a profitable vessel in a house, wherin he that owneth it, might haue pleasure: yea or to be a dore in a house, to kepe such things safe as be therin then to be such a vayne god. The Sunne, the Mone and all the starres whan they geue their shyne and light, are obedient, & do men good. Whan the lightenynge glistreth, all is cleare: The wynde bloweth in euery coūtre and whan God commaūdeth the cloudes to go rounde aboute the whole worlde, they do as they are bidden: whē the fyre sent downe from aboue and commaūded, it burneth vp hilles and woddes: But as for those goddes, they are not like one of these thinges, neither in beuty nor strength. Wherfore men shulde not thynke, nor saye y they be goddes, seinge they can nether geue sentence in iudgmente, nor do me good. ffor sō much now as ye are sure, that they be no goddes, then feare them not: ffor they cā neither speake euel nor good of hynges. They can shewe no tokens in heauen for y Heithen, nether shyne as y Sunne nor geue light as the mone: yea the vnreasonable beasts are better then they, for they can get them vnder the rose, & do the selues good So can ye be certified by no maner of meanes, that they be goddes: therfore feare them not. ffor lyke as a skarbogarde in a garden of Cucumbers kepeth not hynge, euen so are their goddes of wod, of syluer & golde: & lyke as a whyte thorne in an orchard, that euery byrde syteth vpon: yea lyke as a dead bodye that is cast in the darcke. Euen so is it wyth those goddes of wodde, syluer and gold. By the purple and scarlet which they haue vpon them, and soone rayteth away, ye maye vnderstande, that they be no goddes: yea they them selues shall be consumed at the laste, which shal be a greate confusion of y lande.

Blessed is the Godly mā that hath no Images & worshyppeth none, for he shalbe farre from reproffe.

¶ The story of Sulanna, which is the.xiii. Chapter of Daniel after the Latyne.

THere dwelt a man in Babylon, called Joachim, that tooke a wife, whose name was Sulanna, the daughter of Helchiah, a verye fayre woman and suche one as feared God. Her father & mother also were godly people, and taught their daughter accordynge vnto the lawe of Moyses. Nowe Joachim (her housbande) was a greate ryche man, and had a fayre orchard ioynynge vnto hys house. And to hym resorted the Jewes comenly, because he was a man of reputacion amonge them. The same yeare were there made two iudges, suche as the Lorde speaketh of: All the wickednesse of Babilon, commeth from the elders (that is) from the iudges, whiche seme to rule the people. These came oft vnto Joachims house, and all suche as hadde anye thynge to do in the law, came thyther vnto them.

Nowe when the people came agayne at after noone, Sulanna went into her housbandes orchard, to walke. The elders seynge this, that she went in daily, and walked, they burned for lust to her, yea, they were almost out of their wittes, & caste doune their eyes, that they shoulde not se heauen, nor remembre, that God is a righteous iudge. For they were both wounded with the loue of her, neither durst one shew another his grefe. And for shame, they durste not tell her their inordinate lust, that they wolde fayne haue had to do with her. Yet they layed wayte for her earnestly from daye to daye, that they might (at the least) haue a sight of her. And the one sayde to the other: Vp, let vs go home, for it is dynner tyme. So they went their waye from her. B

When they returned agayne, they came together, enquyrynge out the matter betwixt them selfes: yea, the one tolde y other of hys wicked lust. Then appoynted they a tyme, when they might take Sulanna alone.

It happened also, that they spyed out a conuenient tyme, when she went forth to walke (as her maner was) & no body with her, but two maydens, & thought to wash her selfe in the garden, for it was an hote season: And there was not one person there, excepte the two elders, that had hyde them selfes, to behold her. So she sayde to her maydens: go fetch me oyle and sope, & shut the orchard doore, that I maye wash me. And they dyd as she bad them, and shut the orchard doore, & went out them selfes at a backe doore, to fetch the thynge that she hadde commaunded: but Sulanna knewe not, that the elders laye there hydde within. Now when the maydens were gone forth, the two elders gat them vp, and ranne vpon her, sayinge: nowe the orchard doores are shut, that no man can se vs: we haue a lust vnto the, therefore consent vnto vs, and lye with vs. C Ecc.ii.a. 3.Reg.xi.a.

If thou wilt not, we shall beynge a testimonial agaynste the: that there was a younge felowe with the, and that thou hast sente away thy maydens fro the for the same cause. Sulanna sighed, and sayde: Alas. I am in trouble on euery syde. Though I folowe your mynde, it will be my death: and if I consente not vnto you, I can not escape your handes. Well, it is better for me, too falle into your handes without the dede doyng, then to synne in the sight of the Lorde: and with that, she cryed out with a loude voyce: the elders also cryed out agaynst her. D

Then ran there one to the orchard doore, and

and shoue it open. Nowe when the seruauntes of the house herde the crye in the orchard they rushed in at the backe doue, to se what the matter was. So when the elders tolde them, the seruauntes were greatly ashamed for why, there was neuer such a reporte made of Susanna. On the morow after came the people to Joachim her housbande, & the twoo elders came also, full of mischeuous imaginacions against Susanna, to bringe her vnto deathe, & spake thus before the people: Sende for Susanna the daughter of Helchias, Joachims wyfe. And immediatly they sent for her. So she came with her father & mother, her children & all her kynred. Now Susanna was a tender person, and maruelous fayre of face. Therefore the wicked men commaunded to take of the clothes frō her face (for she was couered) that at the least, they might so be satisfied in her beuty. Then her frendes, yea, and all they that knewe her, began to wepe.

These two elders stode vp in the middest of the people, & layed their handes vpon the heade of Susanna: whiche wepte, and loked vp towarde heauen, for her herte had a sure trust in the Lorde. And the elders sayde: As we were walking in the orchard alone, this woman came in with her two maides, whom she sent awaye from her, and sparred the orchard doues. With that, a ponge felowe (which there was hyd) came vnto her, & lay with her. As for vs, we stode in a corner of the orchard. And whē we sawe this wickednes we ranne too her: and perceyued, that they had medled together. But we coulde not holde hym, for he was stroger then we: thus he opened the doue, and gat him awaye. Now when we had taken this woman, we asked her, what yōg felow this was: but she wold not tell vs. This is the matter, and we be witnesses of the same. The comen sorte beleued them, as those that were the elders and iudges of the people, and so they condemned her to death. Susanna cryed out with a loud voyce, and sayde: O euerlastyng God, thou searcher of secretes, thou y knowest all thinges afore they come too passe: thou wotest, that they haue borne false witnes against me: and beholde, I must dye, where as I neuer did any suche thynges, as these me haue maliciously inuented against me. And the Lorde herde her voyce. For when she was led forth to death, the Lord raised vp y sperte of a ponge chylde, whose name was Daniel which cried with a loude voice: I am cleane from this bloud. Then all the people turned them towarde him, and sayde: What meane these wordes, that thou hast spoken? Daniel stode in the middest of them, and sayde: Are ye suche fooles, O ye chyldren of Israell, y ye can not discerne? Ye haue here condēned a daughter of Israel vnto death, and knowe not the truth, wherfore: Go sit on iudgemēt agayne, for they haue spoken false witnesse against her.

3. Reg. iii.f. Actu. xx.d.

Wherfore the people turned againe in al the haste. And the elders (that is, the principall heades) sayde vnto hym: come sit doune here amonge vs, and shewe vs this matter, seyng God hath geuen the as great honoure as an elder. And Daniel sayde vnto them: Put these two aside one from another, and then shall I heare them. When they were put asunder one from another, he called one of them, and sayde vnto hym: O thou olde cōberde carle, that hast wied thy wicked nesse so long: thyne vngracious seder which thou hast done afore, are now come to lighte. For thou hast geuen false iudgemētes, thou hast oppressed the innocent, and letten the giltye go fre, where as yet the Lorde sayeth: The innocent and righteous se thou slaye not. Well than, if thou hast sene her, tell me vnder what tree sawest thou them talkynge together. He answered: Vnder a Wolberp tree. And Daniel sayde: very well, now thou lyest euen vpon thyne head. Lo the messanger of the Lorde hath receyued the sentence of hym, to cut the in twoo. Then put he hym aside, and called for the other, and sayd vnto hym: O thou sede of Canaan, but not of Juda: fayrenesse hath disceyued the, and lust hath subuerted thyne herte. Thus dealte ye afore with the daughters of Israel, and they (for feare) cōsented vnto you: but the daughter of Juda wolde not abyde youre wickednesse. Now tel me than vnder what tree didest thou take them, spekynge together. He answered: Vnder a Pōgranate tree. Then sayd Daniel vnto him: Very wel, now thou lyest also euen vpon thyne head. The messaunger of the Lorde standeth waytynge with the swerde to cut the in two, and to slay you both.

Exo. xxiii.a. Pro. xvii.c.

With that, all the whole multitude gaue a greate shoute, and praysed God, whyche alwaye deliuereth them that put their truste in hym. And they came vpon the two elders (whom Daniel had conuicte with their owne mouth: that they had geuen false witnesse) & dealte with the, euen likewise as they wolde haue done with their neighbourrelse: yea, they dyd accordyng to the law of Moyses, & put them to death. Thus the innocēt bloud was saued the same daye.

¶ The story of Bel, and the Dragon, which is the .xiiii. Chapter of Daniel after the Latyn.

THere was at Babylon an ymage, called Bel: and there were spēt vpō him euery day .xii. cakes. .x. xl. shepe, and fyue great pottes of wyne. Hym dyd the kynge worshippe hym selfe, & wente daily to honour hym: but Daniel worshipped his owne God. And the kyng sayd vnto hym: Why doest thou not worshippe Bell? Deut. iiii. c. & v. He answered and sayde: Because I maye not worshippe thinges that be made with handes, but the lyuynge God whiche made heauen and earth, and hath power vpon all Psa. xcv. b. flesh. The kynge sayde vnto hym: thynkest thou not, that Bell is a lyuynge God? Dost Dan. iii. a. thou not how much he eateth and drynketh euery daye? Daniel smyled, & sayde: O kyng deceyue not thy selfe: this is but made of claye within, and of metall without, neyther eateth he euer any thyng.

Then the kyng was wroth, and called for Exo. xxx. c. his priestes, and sayde vnto theim: If ye tell me not who is this, that eateth vp these expences, ye shall dye: but if ye can certefie me, Leui. xxiiii. c. that Bel eateth them, then Daniel shall dye, for he hath spoken blasphemy agaynst Bel. And Daniel sayde vnto the kyng: let it so be, accordyng as thou hast sayde. The priestes of Bel were .lxx. beside their wyues and children. And the kyng went with Daniell into the temple of Bel. So Bels priestes sayde: Lo, we will go oute, and set thou the meate there (O kynge) and poure in the wyne: then shut the doze faste, and seale it with thyne owne signet: and to morow when thou comest in, if thou findest not, that Bel hath eate vp all, we wyll suffre death: or els Daniell, that hath lyed vpō vs. The priestes thought them selues sure enough, for vnder the aultare they had made a preuy intraunce, and there wente they in euer, and ate vp what there was.

So when they were gone forth, the kynge set meates before Bel. Now Daniel had cōmaunded hys seruauntes too bryngе asshes and these he syfted thorow out al the temple, that the kynge myght se. Then wente they out, and sparred the doze, sealyng it with the kynges signet, and so departed. In the nyght came the priestes with their wyues and children (as they were wonte to do) and ate and dronke vp all. In the mornyng be tymes at the breake of the daye, the kynge arose, and Daniel with hym. And the kyng sayd: Daniel, are the seales whole yet? He answered yea, O kyng, they be whole. Now assoone as he had opened the doze, the kynge lokyd vnto the aultare, & cried with a loude voyce: Great arte thou O Bel, and with the is no disceate. Then laughed Daniel, and holde the kyng that he shoulde not go in, and sayd: Beholde the pauement, marke well, whose fote steppes are these? The kynge sayde: I se the fote steppes of men, women and chyldren.

Therfore the kynge was angry, and toke the priestes, with their wyues and chyldren, and they shewed hym the preuy dores, where they came in, and ate vp suche thynges as Jeremy. l. g. were vpon the aultare. For the which cause Esay. xlvi. a the kynge slewe them, and deliuered Bel in Jeremy. l. a. to Daniels power, whiche destroyed hym & hys temple.

And in that same place there was a great Dragon, whych they of Babylon worshipped. And the kynge sayd vnto Daniel: Canst thou, that thys is but a God of metall also? lo, he lyueth, he eateth and drynketh: so that thou canst not saye, that he is no lyuing God therfore worshippe hym. Daniel sayde vnto the kyng: I will worshippe the Lorde my God, he is the true lyuinge God: as for this, he is not the God of lyfe. But geue me leaue (O kynge) & I shall destroy thys Dragon without swearde or staf. The kyng sayde: I geue the leaue. Then Daniel toke pytch, fatte and Daniel. bi. c. hearry wol, and dyd sette them together, and made lompes therof: thys he put in the Dragons mouth, and so the Drago burst in sonder: and Daniel sayde: lo, there is he whom ye worshipped. When they of Babylon herd that, they toke great indignacion, and gathered them together agaynst the kyng, sayeng: The kyng is become a Jew also, he hath destroyed Bel, he hath slayne the Dragon, and put the priestes to death. So they came to the kyng, and sayd: let vs haue Daniel, or els we will destroye the and thyne house.

Now when the kyng sawe, that they vrged him so sore vpon hym, and that necessite constreyned hym, he deliuered Daniel vnto them: which cast him into the Lyons denne, where he was sixe dayes. In the denne, there were seuen Lyons, and they had geuen them euery daye two bodyes & two shepe: whiche then were not geuen them, that they myghte deuoure Daniel. Daniel. bi. c.

There was in Jewry a Prophete called Abacuch, which had made potage, and had broken bread in a depe platter, and was goynge into the fylde, for to beryng it to the mowers. But the Aungell of the Lord sayd vnto Abacuch: go carye the meate that thou hast into Babylon, vnto Daniel, which is in the Lyons denne. And Abacuch sayd: Lord, I neuer sawe Babylon: & as for the denne, I knowe it not. Then the aungel of the Lord toke him Ezech. bii. a. by hed, and (thorow a mighty wynde) set hym in Babylon vpon the denne. And Abacuch and ate: and the aungell of the Lorde sette Abacuch in hys owne place agayne immediatly.

Vpon the seuenth daye, the kynge wente to bewepe Daniel: and when he came to the denne, he loked in and beholde, Daniell sat

kyng with a loude voyce, sayinge: Great art

☞ The.j. Chapter

¶ After the death of Alexander the kynge of Macedonia, Antiochus taketh the kyngdome. Many of the children of Israel make couenaūt with the Gentyles. Antiochus subdueth Egipt and Hierusalem vnto his dominion. Hierusalē being burnt maketh lawes of her owne, & forbiddeth to kepe gods lawes. Antiochus setteth vp an Idol vpon the aulter of God.

A Fter that Alexander the sonne of Philippe, kynge of Macedonia wente forth of the lande of Cethim, and slew Darius kynge of the Persiās and Medes: It happened, that he toke great warres in hāde wanne very many stronge cytyes, and slew many kynges of the earth: going thorowe to the endes of the worlde, and gettyng many spoyles of the people: In so muche, that the worlde stode in great awe of hym, & therfore was he proude in hys hert. Now whan he had gathered a mightye strong hoost, & subdued the landes and people with they: princes, so that they became tributaryes vnto hym: he fel sicke. And whē he perceyued that he muste nedes dye, he called for hys noble estates (which had ben brought vp with him of children) & parted his kingdome amonge them, whyle he was yet alyue. So Alexāder Dani.bij.a. & lib.h. raygned.xij. yeare. and then dyed.

After hys death fell the kyngedome vnto hys princes, & they optayned it euery one in hys towne, & caused them selfes to be crouned as kynges: and so dyd their chyldren after them many yeares, and muche wickednesse increased in the worlde. Out of these 1.Mac.bij.a. came the vngracious rote, noble Antiochus the sonne of Antiochus the kyng (which had bene a pledge at Rome) and he raygned in the.C.xxxvij. yeare of the raygne of the Grekes.

B In those dayes went there out of Israel wycked men, whiche moued muche people with their counsayll, saying: Let vs go and make a couenaunte with the Heathen, that are rounde about vs: for sence we departed from them, we haue had much sorow. So thys deuyce pleased them well, and certayn of the people toke vpon them for to go vnto the kyng, which gaue them licence to do after the ordinaunce of the Heathen. Then set they vp an open schole (at Hierusalem) of the lawes of the Heathen, and were nowise circumcised: but forsoke the holy Testamente, & ioyned them selfes to the Heathen, and were cleane solde to do mischefe.

So when Antiochus begāne to be mighty in hys kyngdome, he wente about to optayne the lande of Egipte also, that he might haue the dominion of two realmes. Upon this entred he into Egipte with a stronge hoost with charettes, Elephantes, horsmē & a great numbre of shippes, and begāne too warre against Ptolomy the kyng of Egipt. But Ptolomy was afrayed of him, and fled and many of his people were wounded too death. Thus Antiochus wanne many stroge cytyes, and toke awaye great good out of ye lande of Egipte.

And after that Antiochus had smytten Egipte, he turned agayne in the.C.xlvij. yere E & went toward Israel: & came vp to Hierusalem with a mighty people: and entred proudly into the Sanctuary, and toke awaye the golden aultare, the candelstycke and all the ornamētes therof, the table of the shewbred the pouringe vessel, the chargers, the golden spones, the vayle, the crounes and golde apparell of the temple, and brake doune all. He toke also the syluer & golde, the precious Jewels and the secrete treasures that he founde. And when he had taken awaye altogether, caused a greate murther of men, and so fulfilled his malicious pryde, he departed into hys owne lande.

Thus there arose great heuynesse and misery in all the lande of Israel. The princes & the elders of the people mourned, the yōge men and the maydens were defiled, and the fayre beutye of women was chaunged: the brydegrome and the bryde toke yē to mourninge: the lande and those that dwelt therin, was moued: for all the house of Jacob was brought to confusion.

After two yeares the kyng sent his chiefe treasurer vnto ye cities of Juda, which came D to Hierusalem with a great multitude of peo- 2.Mach.v.e. ple, speakinge peaceable wordes vnto them but all was disceate: for whē they had geuen hym credence, he fel sodenly vpon the cytye, & smote it sore, and destroied much people of Israell. And when he had spoyled the cytye, 1.Mach.bū.b he set fyre on it, & after doune houses and walles on euery side. The women and they: 1.Mach.ij.f. children toke they captiue, & led awaye their cattel. Then buylded they ye castell of Dauid with a great and thicke wall, & with mighty towres, and made it a strong holde for them. Besyde all this they sette wicked people and vngodly men to kepe it, stoared it with weapens & vytayles: gathered the goodes of Hierusalem, and laied yē up therein: thus became it a theuysh castell.

And this was done to lye wayte for the people that wente into the Sanctuarye, and for the cruell destruccyon of Israel. Thus they shed innocēt bloude on euerysyde of the Sanctuary, and defyled it: In ſo much that the cytyzens were fayne to departe, and the cytye became an habytacyon of ſtraungers, beynge deſolate of her owne ſeede, for her owne nayghbours were fayne to leaue her. Her Sanctuary was clene waſted, her holy dayes were turned into mournynge, her Sabbathes were had underfyon, and her honoure brought to naught. Loke how great her glory was a fore, ſo greate was her confuſyon, and her ioy turned into ſorow. Tobi.ii.a. Amos.viii.b.

¶ Antiochus alſo the kynge ſent out a commyſſion vnto all hys kyngedome, that all the people ſhould be one. Then they lefte euerye man hys Lawe, and all the Heathen agreed to the cõmaundemente of kynge Antiochus: Yea many of the Iſraelites conſented there vnto, offeringe vnto Idols, and defylyng the Sabboth. So the kynge Antyochus ſente hys meſſangers wyth hys commyſſion vnto Ieruſalem, and to al the cytyes of Juda: that they ſhulde folowe the lawes of the Heathen and forbad ether burntofferinge meatofferinge or peace offeringe to be made in ỹ temple of God, ỹ that there ſhould no Sabboth nor hye feaſt day be kept: but commaunded, that the Sanctuarye and the holye people of Iſraell ſhoulde be defyled. 6.Mach.vi.a

He commaunded alſo that there ſhould be ſett vp other altares, temples ỹ Idoles, to offre vp ſwynes fleſhe ỹ other vncleane beaſtes that men ſhoulde leaue their chyldren vncircumcyſed, to defyle their ſoules with all maner of vnclenneſſe ỹ abhominacions: that they myght ſo forgett the lawe, ỹ chaunge all the holy ordinaunces of God: ỹ that whoſoeuer woulde not obeye: dynge to the commaundement of kyng Antiochus, ſhould ſuffer death. In ſuche maner commaunded he thorowe out all his realme, and ſette rulers ouer the people, for to compell them to do theſe thynges, commaundynge the cytyes of Juda to do ſacrifice vnto Idols.

Then woente the people vnto the heathen by heapes, forſoke the law of the Lorde, and cõmitted much euell in the land: yea and chaced out the ſecrete Iſraelites, whych had hyd themſelues in corners and ſuruye places.

¶ The.xv. daye of the moneth Calleu, in the.cxlv. yeare, ſette kynge Antiochus an abhominable Idoll of deſolation vpon the altare of God, and they buylded altares thorowe out all the cytyes of Juda on euerye ſyde, before the doores of the houſes, and in the ſtreetes: where they burnt incenſe, and dyd ſacryfyce. And as for the bokes of the lawe of God, they burnte them in the fyre, and rente them in peces. What ſo euer he was that had a boke of the teſtament of the Lord, ſould by hym, yea whoſoeuer endeuoured hymſelf to kepe the lawe of the Lorde, the kynges commaundemente was, that they ſhould put hym to death. And thorow his auctoryte they executed theſe thynges euerye moneth, vpon the people of Iſraell that were founde in the cytyes. Jere.xxxbi.c.

The fyue and twenty daye of the moneth ¶ what tyme as they dyd ſacrifice vpon the altare (which ſtode in the ſteade of the altare of the Lorde, accordynge to the commaundement of kynge Antiochus, they put certayne wemen to deathe, whyche had cauſed their chyldren to be circumciſed: Not only that, but they hanged vp the chyldren by the neckes thorowe out all their houſes, and ſlewe the circumciſers of them. 1.Mach.i.c

Yet were there many of the people of Iſraell, whych determined in them ſelues, that they wolde not eate vncleane thynges: but choſe rather to ſuffer death, then to be defiled wyth vncleane meates. So becauſe they woulde not breake the bleſſed lawe of God, they were cruelly ſlayne. And thus great tyranye increaſed verye ſore vpon the people of Iſraell.

¶ The.ii.Chapter.

¶ The mourninge of Mathathiah and hys ſõnes for the deſtruccyon of the holy cytye. They refuſe to do ſacrifice vnto Idols. The ſyte of Mathathiah for the lawe of God. They are ſlayne: wil not fight agayne becauſe of the Sabboth day. Mathathiah dyynge cõmandeth his ſonnes to fyght by the worde of God after the exampte of the fathers.

IN thoſe dayes there dyd ſtand vp one Mathathyah the ſon of Symeon the preſt (out of ỹ kined of Joaris) from Ieruſalem and dwelt vpon the mounte of Modin, ỹ had.v. ſonnes: John called Gadis: Symon, called Thaſi. Judas, other wiſe called Machabeus: Eleazer, other wyſe called Abarone: ỹ Jonathas, whoſe ſurname was Apphus. Theſe ſawe ỹ euell, ỹ was done among ỹ people of Juda ỹ Ieruſalẽ. Mathathiah ſaid: Wo is me, alas ỹ euer I was borne, to ſe this miſerye of my people, ỹ the pitious deſtrucciõ of ỹ holy cite ỹ thus to ſyt ſo ſtyll it being delyuered into ỹ hãdes of ỹ enemies. Her Sanctuarye is come into the power of ſtraungers her temple is, as it were aman ỹ hath loſt his good name. Her precious ornamentes are caried awaye captyue, her olde men are ſlayne in the ſtreetes, and her yonge men are fallen thorowe the ſwearde of the enemyes. A 1.Mach.ii

What people is it, that hath not ſome poſſeſſyon in her kingdome? Or who hath not gotten ſome of her ſpoyles? All her glorye is taken awaye. She was a Quene, ỹ nowe ſhe is become an handemayde. Beholde oure Sanctuary, our bewtye and honoure is waſted awaye, ỹ defyled by the Gentiles. What helpeth it vs the to lyue? And Mathathyah rente his clothes, he ỹ his ſonnes, ỹ put ſack cloth vpon them, ỹ mourned verye ſore.

Then came the men thither whiche were ¶ ſent of kyng Antiochus, to compell ſuche as were fled into the cytye of Modyn, for to do ſacrifice ỹ to burne incenſe vnto Idols, ỹ to forſake the lawe of God. So, many of the people of Iſraell conſented ỹ enclyned vnto the, but Mathathyah ỹ hys ſonnes remayned B ned stedfast. Then spake the commissioners of kyng Antiochus, and sayde vnto Mathathiah: Thou art a noble man, of hye reputacion and greate in this cytye, hauynge sayre chyldren and brethren. Come thou therefore first, and fulfill the kynges cõmaundement, lyke as all the Heathen haue done, yea, & the men of Juda, and such as remayne at Hierusalem: so shalt thou and thy chyldren be in ỹ kynges fauoure, and enryched wyth golde, syluer and great rewardes.

Mathathiah answered, and spake with a loude voyce: Though all nacions obeye the kyng Antiochus, and fall awaye euery man from kepyng the law of their fathers: though they cõsente to hys commaundementes, yet will I & my sonnes and my brethren, not fall frõ the lawe of oure fathers. God forbid we shoulde that were not good for vs, that we shoulde forsake the law and ordynaunces of God, and to agre vnto the commaundemẽt of kyng Antiochus. Therfore we will do no suche sacrifice, neither breake the statutes of our lawe, to go another waye. And when he had spoken these wordes, there came one of the Jewes, whych openly in the sighte of all dyd sacrifice vnto the Idols vpon the aulter in the cytye of Modyn, according to ỹ kynges commaundement.

E When Mathathyah sawe thys, it greued hym at the herte, so that hys raynes shoke withall, and hys wrath kindled for very zele of the lawe. Wyth that he gaue a skyppe forth, and kylled the Jewe beside the aulter: Yea, and slew the kinges commissioner, that cõpelled hym to do sacrifice, & destroyed the aulter at the same time: Num.xxv.b such a zele had he vnto the law of God, lyke as Phinehes did vnto Zabi the sonne of Salomi. And Mathathiah cried with a loude voice thorow the cytye, Lo ye ge: Who so is feruent in the lawe, & wil kepe the couenaũt, let hym folowe me. 1.Mach.b.c. So he and hys sonnes fled into the mountaines & lefte all that euer they had in the cytie. Many other godly men also departed into the wildernesse with their chyldre, their wyues and their cattel, & remayned there: for the tyranny increased so sore vpon them.

Now when the kynges seruauntes, and D the hoost, whych was at Hierusalẽ in the cytye of Dauid herd, that certayn me had broken the kynges commaundement and were gone their waye to the wyldernesse into the secrete places, and that there were many departed after them: they followed vpon them to fight agaynste them in the Sabbath daye & sayde: Wyll ye yet rebel? Get you hence & do the commaundement of kyng Antiochus and ye shall lyue. They answered: We wil not go forth, neither wil we do the kinges cõmaundemẽte, to defile the Sabbath daye. Josue.i.c. Then began they to fight agaynst them nowthelesse they gaue them none other answere, neither cast they one stone at them nor made fast their preuy places, but sayde: We will dye all in our innocency, heauen & earth shall testifie with vs, that ye put vs to death wrongously. Thus they fought against the vpon the Sabbothe, & slewe both men & cattell, their wyues & their childre, to the nũbre of a thousande people.

When Mathathiah and hys fredes herd E this, they mourned for them right sore, and sayde one to another: If so be that we all do as our brethre haue done, & fight not for our lyues & for our lawes agaynst the Heathen: then shall they the sonner roote vs oute of the earth. So they concluded among them selfe at the same time, saying: Whatsoeuer he be that commeth to make battayl with vs vpon the Sabbath daye, we wyll fyght agaynste hym, & not dye all, as our brethren that were murthered so hainously. Vpon thys came ỹ Synagoge of the Jewes vnto them: stronge men of Israel, all such as were feruẽt in the law. And all they that were fled for persecucion, came too helpe them, and to stande by them: In so much that they gathered an host of men, and slewe the wicked doers in their gelousy, and the vngodly me in their wrath. Some of the wicked fled vnto the Heathen, and escaped.

Thus Mathathiah & hys frendes wente about, and destroyed the aulters, and circumcised the chyldren, that had not yet receyued circumcision: as many as they founde within the coostes of Israell: & followed mightely vpon the chyldren of pryde, & this acte prospered in their handes: In so much that they kept the law agaynst the power of the gentiles and the kynges, and gaue not ouer their dominion vnto wicked doers.

After thys when the tyme drewe on fast, F that Mathathiah should dye, he sayde vnto his sonnes: Now is pryde and persecucion increased, now is the tyme of destruccion & wrathfull displeasure: wherfore (O my sonnes) be ye feruent in the lawe, and iuparde your lyues for the Testament of the fathers: call too remembraunce what actes oure fathers dyd in their tyme, so shall ye receyue great honour and an euerlastynge name.

Remembre Abraham, was not he founde Jacob.ii.c faythfull in temptacion, and it was reckened Rom.iiii.b vnto hym for righteousnes? Joseph in tyme Gene.xli.a. of hys trouble kepte the commaundemente, and was made a Lorde of Egypt. Phinehes oure father was so feruent for the honoure of God, that he optayned the couenaunte of an euerlastynge priesthode. Josue for fulfillinge the worde of God, was made the captayne of Israel. Caleb bare recorde before the congregacion, and receyued an heritage. Dauid also in hys mercifull kyndnesse, optayned the throne of an euerlastyng kyngdome. Elias beyng gelous and feruẽt in the lawe, was taken vp into heauen. Ananias, Azarias and Misael remayned stedfaste in fayth, and were deliuered out of the fyre. Jo lyke maner Daniel beynge vngyltye, was G saued from the mouthe of the Lyons.

Ecclesi.ii.h. And thus ye maye consyder thorow oute all ages sence the worlde begonne, that who so ever put their trust in God, were not ourt come. Feare not ye then the wordes of an vn godly man, for hys glorye is but donge and wormes to daye in he set vp, and to morowe is he gone: for he is turned into earthe, and hys memorial is come to naught. Wherfore (O my sonnes) take good herres vnto you, & quyte youre selues lyke men in the lawe: for in ye do the thynges that are commaunded
you in the law of the Lord your god, ye shal optaine great honour therin.

And beholde, I knowe that youre brother Symon is a man of wyse dome: se ye geue eare vnto hym alwaye, he shalbe a father vnto you. As for Judas Machabeus, he hath euer bene myghtye and stronge frō his youth vpwarde, he be youre captayne, & ordre
the battayl of ye people, thus shall ye bringe vnto you all those that fauor the lawe, and se that ye auenge the wronge of youre people, and recompence the Heathen again, and applye youre selues wholy to the commaun-dement of the lawe. So he gaue them hys blessynge, and was layed by his fathers: and dyed in the.C.xlvi. yeare at Modin, wher hys sonnes buried hym in hys fathers sepulcher, & all Israell made greate lamentacyon for hym.

The .iii. Chapter

Judas is made ruler ouer the Jewes. He kylleth Appolonius & Seron the Prynce of Syria. The consyderacy of Judas towarde God. Iudas determyneth to fight against Lysias, whō Antiochus had made captayne ouer his hoste. The prayer of ye obedyences.

A Then stode vp Judas Machabeus in his fathers stede, and Josephus.xii. lyb. xii. ca. Anno. all his brethren helped hym: & so dyd all they that helde with his father, & fought with cher fulnesse for Israel. So Judas gat his people great honoure: he put on a brestplate as a gyaunt, and armed hym selfe with his harne-sse, and defended the hoste with his sworde
In his actes he was lyke a Lyon, and as a lyons whelpe roarynge at his praye. He was an enemye to the wycked, and hunted them out: and burnt vp those that vexed his people: So that his enemyes fled for feare of hym, and all the workers of vngodlynes were put to trouble: suche lucke and prosperytye was in his hand. The grene dyuerse kynges, but Jacob was greatly reioyced tho-row his actes, and he gat hym selfe a greate name for euer.

He went thorow the cyties of Juda, de-strōynge the vngodly out of them, turnynge awaye the wrathe from Israell, and recey-ued in suche as were oppressed: and the fame of hym went vnto the vttermoste parte of the earthe. Then Apollonius a prynce of Syria, gathered a myghtye greate hoolle of the Heathē & out of Samaria, to fyght agaynste Israell. Which when Judas perceaued, he wente forth to mete hym, fought with hym slewe him, and a greate multytude with hym
the remnaūt fled, & he toke their substaunce Judas also toke Apollonius owne swearde, and fought with it all his lyfe longe.

Now whē Seron (another prynce of Syria) herde saye, that Judas had gathered vn- B to hym the congregacyon and churche of the faythfull, he sayed, I wyll get me a name & a prayse thorow out the realme: for I will go fight with Judas and them that are with hym, as many as haue despysed the kynges commaundement. So he made hym readye, and there wente with hym a greate myghtye hoost of the vngodly, to stande by hym, and to be auenged of the chyldren of Israel. And when they came nye vnto Bethoron, Judas wente forth agaynst the with a smalle company. And whē hys people sawe such a greate hoolte before them, they sayed vnto Judas:
How are we able, (beynge so fewe, to fyghte agaynst so greate a multitude and so strong, seynge we be so wery, and haue fasted all thys daye.

But Judas sayde: It is a smale matter (1.Reg.xiiii.
for many to be ourtcome by fewe: yea there is no differēce to the God of heauen, to de- (2.Par.xiii.

company: for the victorye of the battell stan-deth not in the multytude, of the hoost, but the strength cōmeth from heauen. Beholde, they come agaynste vs with a presumptuous and prowde multytude, to destroye vs, oure wyues and oure chyldren, and to robbe vs. But we wyll fyghte for oure lyues, & for oure lawes, and the Lorde hym selfe shall destroye them before oure face: therefore be not ye afrayed of them.

As soone as he had spoken these wordes
he leapt sodenly vpon them, Thus was Se-ron smytten, and hys hoost put to flighte. and Judas folowed vpon them beyonde Bethoron vnto the playne felde: where there were slayne eight hundreth men of them, and the residue fled into the lande of the Philystyines. Then all the Heathē on every syde were afrayed for Judas and hys brethren: so that the rumoure of hym came vnto the kynges eares, for all the Gentyles coulde tell of the warres of Judas.

So when kynge Antiochus hearde these D tydynges, he was angry in his minde: where fore he sente forth and gathered an hoolle of hys whole realme very stronge armed: and opened hys treasury, and gaue hys hoolte a yeares wages in hande, commaundynge them to be readye at all tymes.

Neuertheles when he sawe that there was not moneye ynoughe in hys treasuryes, and that thorow the discorde and persecucyon, whych he made in ye lande, to put downe E
the lawes that had bene of olde tymes (hys customes & tributes of the lande were my-

nished

to beare the costes and charges any longer, nor to haue suche giftes, to geue so liberally as he dyd afore, more then the kynges that were before hym.

Wherfore he was heuy in his minde, and 1.Mach.vi.a thought to go into Persides, for to take tributes of the lande, & so to gather muche money. So he left Lysias (a noble man of the kynges bloude) to ouersee the kinges businesses, from the water Euphrates vnto the borders of Egipte: & to kepe well his sonne Antiochus, tyll he came agayne.

Moreouer, he gaue him half of his hoost and Elephantes, committed vnto him euery thynge of his mynde, concernynge those whiche dwelt in Juda and Hierusalem: that he shoulde sende out an army agaynst them, to destroye and to rote out the power of Israel and the remnaunt of Hierusalem: to put out their memoriall from that place, to sette straungers for to inhabyt all their quarters, and to parte their lande among them. Thus Iosep. capi.x lib.xi. antiq. the kynge toke the other parte of the hoost, and departed from Antioche (a cyte of his realme) ouer the water of Euphrates, in the hundreth and.xlvii. peare, and went thorow the hye countreys.

And Lysias chose vnto hym Ptolomye the 2.Mac.viii.b sonne of Dorimenus, Nicanor and Gorgias mighty men, and the kynges frendes. These he sent with.xl. thousande fote men and.vii. thousande horsmen, for to go into the lande of Juda, and to destroye it, as the king commaunded. So they went forth with all their power, & came to Emmaus into the playne felde. When the marchauntes hearde the rumoure of them, they & their seruauntes toke very muche syluer & golde, for to bye the children of Israel to be their bonde men. There came vnto them also yet moo men of warre on euery side, out of Syria and from the Palestynes.

Now when Judas and his brethren sawe that trouble ouerfalle, & that the hoost drewe vnto their borders: considering & kynges wordes whiche he commaunded vnto the people manyfolde, that they shuld vtterly waste & destroye them: They sayde one to another: Let vs redresse the decaye of oure people, let vs fighte for oure folke and for oure Sanctuary. Then the congregacion were soone ready gathered to fighte, to praye & to make supplicacion vnto God for mercy & grace.

As for Hierusalem, it lay voyde, and was 1.Mach.i.b as it had bene a wyldernesse. There were no man in nor oute at it, and the Sanctuary was trodden downe. The aleauntes kepte the castell, there was the habitacion of the Heathen. The myrth of Jacob was taken away, the ppe and the harpe was gone fro amongs them.

The Israelites gathered them together, and came to Maspha before Hierusalem: for in Maspha was the place where they prayed afore tyme. So they fasted that daye, & put Num.bi.a lacke clothes vpō them, cast asshes vpō their heades, rente their clothes, & layde forth the bokes of the lawe (wherevnto the Heathen sought after the ymagery) and brought the priestes ornamentes, the firstlinges and the tythes. They set there also the Deute.xx.a ministers (which had fulfilled their dayes) before God, and cryed vpth a loude voyce towarde heauen, sayynge: What shall we do with these? and whether shall we cary them awaye? For the Sanctuary is trodden downe and defiled, thy priestes are come too heynesse and dishonoure: and beholde, the Heathen are come together for to destroye vs. Thou knowest what thynges they ymagyn agaynst vs. Howe may we stande before the, except thou (O God) be oure helpe?

They blewe out the trompette also vpth a loude voyce. Then Judas ordened captaynes ouer the people: ouer thousandes, ouer hundres, ouer fifty, and ouer ten. But as for suche as buylded their houses, maryed wyues, planted their vynyardes, and those that were fearfull: he commaunded euery man to go home, according to the lawe. So Deut.xx.a the hoost remoued, and pitched vpō the southside of Emmaus.

And Judas sayde: Arme youre selues, be stronge (O my chyldren) make you ready agaynste to morowe in the morninge, that ye maye fighte with these people, whyche are agreed together to destroye vs & oure Sanctuary. Better is it for vs to dye in battayll, than to se oure people and oure Sanctuary in suche a miserable case. Neuertheles, as the Math.vi.b, Luc.xi.a will is in heauen, so be it.

¶ The.iiii. Chapter.

¶ Judas goeth agaynst Gorgias who dyd lerd in wayte. He putteth Gorgias and his hoost to flighte. Lysias withdraweth his army, but Judas dryueth them out. Judas purifieth the temple and dedicateth the aulter.

Then toke Gorgias fyue thousande men of fote, & a thousand of the best horsmen: and remoued by nighte, to enuyron where & Jewes hoost laye, and so to slaye them sodenly. Now the men that kepte the castell, were the conuayers of them. Then arose Judas to fynde the cheife and principal of the kynges hoost at Emmaus, for & army was not yet come together. In the meane season came Gorgias by nighte into Judas tentes: when he founde no man there, he sought them in the mountaynes, & thought they had bene fled awaye because of him. But when it was daye, Judas shewed hym selfe in the felde with thre thousande men onely, which had neither harnesse nor swoardes to their mynders.

But on the other side, they sawe that the Heathen were mighty and well harnessed, and their horsmen about them, and all these well experte in feates of warre. Then sayde Judas to the me that were with hym: Feare not ye the multitude of them, be not afrayd of ther violente rumpynge: remembre howe oure fathers were delpuered in the red ſea, when Pharao threatned them wyth a greate hoſt.

Exo.xiiij.f. Turne ſo let vs alſo crye nowe towarde heauen: and the Lorde ſhall haue mercy vpō vs, and remember the couenaunt of oure fathers, yea and deſtroye this hoſt before oure face thys daye: And all ỹ Heathē ſhall knowe that it is God vpon ſelfe, whyche delyuereth and ſaueth Iſrael.

S Then the Heathen lyft vp their eyes: and when they ſawe that they were commynge againſte them, they wente out of their tentes vnto the battaple: and they that were wyth Judas, blewe vp the trompetes. So they buckled together, and the Heathen were diſcomfyted and fled ouer the playne felde: but the hyndmoſt of them were ſlayne. For they folowed vpō them vnto Allaremoth, and in to the feldes of Idumea towarde Azot and Jamnia: ſo that there were ſlayne of them vpon a thre thouſande men. So Judas turned agayne wyth hys hoſte, & ſayd vnto the people: Be not gredy of the ſpoiles, we haue yet a battayll to fyghte: for Gorgias and hys hoſte are here by vs in the mountaynes, but ſtande ye faſt againſt oure enemyes, and ouer come them: then maye ye ſafely take the ſpoyles.

As Judas was ſpeakyng theſe wordes there appered one parte of them vpon the mount. But whan Gorgias ſawe that they of hys partye were fled, and the tentes burnt vp (for by the ſmoke they might vnderſtande what was done) they perceaued thys, were bery ſore afrayed: and when they ſawe alſo that Judas and hys hoſte were in the felde ready to ſtroke battaple, they fled euerichone into the lande of the Heathen.

L So Judas turned agayne to ſpoyle the tentes, where they gat much golde and ſyluer, precious ſtones, purple & great ryches. Thus they went home and ſonge a Pſalme of thankeſgeuynge and prayſed God in heauen: for he is gracyous, and hys mercye endureth for euer: And ſo Iſrael had a greate victory in that daye.

Pſal.cvij. Pſal.cxviij.a

Now all the Heathen that eſcaped, came and tolde Lyſias euerye thynge as it happened. Wherfore Lyſias was ſore afrayed and greued in hys mynde, becauſe Iſrael had not gotten ſuch myſfortune as he wold they ſhulde vnder ther as the kynge commaunded. The nexte yeare folowynge, gathered Lyſias thre ſcore thouſande choſen men of fote, and fyue thouſande horſemen, to fyghte agaynſte them.

D So they came into Idumea, and pytched their tētes at Bethoron, where Judas came agaynſte them with ten thouſande men. And when he ſawe ſo greate myghtye an hoſt, he made hys prayer and ſayde: Bleſſed be thou (O ſauioure of Iſrael) whyche dydeſt deſtroye the vyolente power of the gyaunte, in the hande of thy ſeruaunte Dauid, and gaueſte the hooſte of the Heathen to the hande of Jonathas (the ſonne of Saule) and of hys weapen bearer. iiii.Re.xviij.

Put hys hooſt nowe into the hande of thy people of Iſrael, and let them be confounded in their multitude and horſemen. Make them afrayed, & diſcomfyte the boldnes of their ſtrēgth, that they maye be moued thorow their deſtruccion. Caſt them downe thorow the ſwearde of thy louers, then ſhall all they that knowne thy name, prayſe the wyth thankeſgeuyng.

So they ſtroke the battell, and there were ſlayne of Lyſias hooſt, fyue thouſand men. Then Lyſias ſeynge the diſcomfetynge of hys men, and the manhyndle of the Iewes, how they were ready, rather to lyue or to dye like men: he wente into Antyochie and chooſe out men of warre: that whē they were gathered together, they myght come agayne in to Iewry. Then ſayde Judas and hys brethren: beholde, our enemyes are diſcomfited: Lett vs now go vp, to cleanſe and to repayre the Sanctuary.

E Vpon thys, all the hooſt gathered them together, and wente vp vnto mounte Syon. iiij.Mach.xij.

Now when they ſawe the Sanctuary layed waſte, & aulter defyled, the doores burnt vp, & ſhrubbes growyng in the courtes, like as in a wod or vpon mountaynes, yea & ỹ the preſtes Celles were broken downe: They rente their clothes, made great lamentacion, caſte aſhes vpon their heades, fell downe flat to the ground, made a great noyſe wyth the trūpets, & cried toward heauen.

Then Judas appoynted certayne men to fyghte agaynſt thoſe which were in the caſtel till they had cleanſed the Sanctuary. So he choſe preſtes ỹ were vndefyled, ſuch as had pleaſure in the lawe of God: and they cleanſed the Sanctuary, and bare out the defyled ſtones into an vncleane place. And for ſo much as the aulter of brentofferynges was vnhalowed, he toke aduiſement, what he might do vnto it: ſo he thought it was beſt to deſtroye it (leſt it ſhould happē to do them any ſhame) for the Heathē had defyled it, & therfore they breake it downe. As for ỹ ſtones they layed thē vp vpō the mountaine by the houſe in a conuenient place: tyll there came a prophet to ſhew, what ſhould be done with them.

So they toke whole ſtones accordynge to ỹ lawe, & buylded a new aulter ſuch one as was before, & made vp ỹ Sanctuary wythin & without, & halowed ỹ courtes. They made new ornamentes, & brought the candilſtycke the aulter of incenſe, & the table in to the temple. The incenſe layed they vpon the aulter & lyghted the lampes wyche were vpon the candelſticke, that they myght burne in the tēple. They ſet the ſhewbred vpon the table, & hanged vp the vaile, and ſet vp the temple, as it was afore. And vpon the xxv. day of the xij. mouth, which is called the mouth of Caſlew ff Exod.xx.a Deu.xxvij.a Joſue.viij.a in the .C.xlviij. peare: they rose vp bytymes in the mornyng for to do sacrifice (according to the lawe) vpon the new burnt offrynge aulter that they had made: after the tyme & season that the Heathen had defiled it. The same daye was it set vp agayne, with songes, pypes, harpes and cymbales.

And all the people fell vpon their faces, & worshippinge & thankyng the God of heaue
1.Para.viij.b which had geuen them the victory. So they kepte the dedicacion of the aulter .viij. dayes offrynge burnt sacrifices & thankeoffrynges with gladnesse. They decked the temple also with crownes & shildes of golde, & halowed the poste & celles, & hanged doores vpon the. Thus there was very great gladnes amōge the people, because the blasphemy of ye Heathen was put awaye. So Judas & his brethren with the whole congregacō of Israel, ordeyned, that the tyme of the dedicacion of the aulter should be kept in hys season from yeare to yeare, by the space of .viij. dayes, frō the .xxv. daie of the moneth Casleu: yea and that with myrth and gladnesse.

And at the same time buylded they vp the mount Sion with hye walles and stronge towres rounde about: lest the gentiles should

¶ The.v. Chapter.

¶ Judas vanquished the Heathē that go about to destroye Israel, is holpen of his brethē Simon and Jonathas. He ouerthroweth the citie of Ephron, because they denyed hym passage thorow it.

A Joseph.capi. xij.libro.xij.

IT happened also that whā the Heathen rounde about herde, how that the aulter & the Sanctuary were set vp in their olde estate: it displeased them very sore, wherfore they thought to destroy the generacion of Jacob that was amonge them: In so muche that they began to slaye and to persecute certayne of the people. Then Judas fought agaynst the chyldren of Esau in Iudith. xvb.c. Idumea, & agaynst those whiche were at Arabathane (for they dwelt rounde about the 1.xvb.a Israelites) where he slew & spoyled a greate
1.Mach.v.c. multitude of them. He thought also vpon the malice and vnkyndnes of the chyldren of Bean, how they were a snare & stoppe vnto the people, & how they layed wayte for them in the hye waye: wherfore he shut them vp in to towres, and came vnto them, condemned them, and burnt vp their towres, withal that were in them.

Afterwarde went he agaynste the chyldren of Ammon, whereof he founde a myghtye power & a great multitude of people, with Timothy their captayne. So he stroke many battayls with them, whiche were discomfited before hym. And when he had slayne them, he wanne Gazer the cytye, with the townes belonging therto, and so turned agayne into Jewry. The Heathen also in Galaad gathered them together, agaynste the Israelites & were in their quarters to slaye them: but they fled to the Castel of Datheman, and sent letters vnto Judas and his brethren, sayinge: The Heathen are gathered agaynste vs on euery side, to destroye vs, & now they make them for to come, and laye syege to the castel, whereunto we are fled, and Timothy is the captayne of their hoost: come therfore, & deliuer vs oute of their handes: for there is a great multitude of vs slayne all ready. Yea, and oure brethren that were at Tubin, are slayne & destroyed (wel nye a thousande mē) and their wyues, their chyldren and their goodes haue the enemyes ledde awaye captiue.

Whyle the letters were yet a readyng, beholde, there came other messagers from Galile, with rente clothes: which tolde euen the same tidinges, & sayde, that they of Ptolomais, of Tyrus and of Sidon were gathered agaynst them, and that all Galilee was fylled with enemyes to destroye Israel. Whē Judas and the people herde this, they came together (a greate congregacion) to counsele, what they might do for their brethren, that were in trouble & besieged of their enemyes. And Judas sayde vnto Simō his brother: chose the out certayne men, and go deliuer thy brethren in Galilee: As for me & my brother Jonathas, we will go into Galaadithim. So he left Josephus the sonne of Zachary, and Azarias to be Captaynes of the people and to kepe the remnaunt of the hoost in Jewry, and commaunded them, sayinge: Take the ouersight of this people, & se that ye make no warre agaynst the Heathen, vntill the tyme that we come agayne. And vnto Symon he gaue fyue thousande men for too go into Galilee, but Judas hym selfe hadde eyght thousande in Galaadithim.

Then went Symon into Galilee, and stroke diuerse battayls with the Heathē: whō ¶ he discomfited, and folowed vpō them vnto the porte of Ptolomais. And there were slayne of the Heathen all moost .iij. thousand men. So he toke the spoyles of them, and caried awaye the Israelites, that were in Galilee and Arbatis, with their wyues, their chyldren and all that they had, and broughte them into Jewry with greate gladnesse. Judas Machabeus also and his brother Jonathas, went ouer Jordane, and trauayled .iij. dayes iourney in the wilderneesse: Where the Nebuthees met them, and receyued them louingly: and tolde thē euery thynge that had happened vnto their brethren in Galaadithim, and howe that many of them were besieged in Barasa, Bosor, Alimis, Casphor, Mageth and Carnaim (all these are stronge walled and mightye greate cyties) and that they were kepte in other cytyes of Galaad also: and to morowe they are appoynted too bringe their hooste vnto the cytyes, too take them them to wyn them in one daye.

So Judas and hys hoste turned in all the haste in the wilderneſſe to warde Boſor, and wanne the cytye, ſlewe all the males wyth ye ſwearde, toke all their goodes, and ſett fyre vpon the cytye. And in the nyghte they toke their iourneye from thence, and came to the caſtell. And by tymes in the morninge when they loked vp, beholde, there was an innumerable people bearyng ladders and other inſtrumentes of war to take the caſtel and to ouercome them.

When Judas ſawe that the battayll began, and that the noyſe thereof went vp and range into the heauen, and that there was ſo greate a cry in the cytie: he ſayd vnto his hoſt: fyghte this daye for youre brethren. And ſo came behinde their enemyes in three companyes, and blewe vp the trompettes, and cryed in their prayer to God.

But as ſoone as Timothis hoſte perceyued y Machabeus was there, they fled from him, and the other ſlewe them downe ryght ſore: ſo that there were killed of them ye ſame daye, allmoſt eyght thouſande men. Then departed Judas vnto Maſpha, layed ſeige vnto it and wanne it, ſlewe all the males in it, ſporled it, and ſet fyre vpon it. From thence wente he and toke Caſbon, Mageth, Boſor and the other cytyes in Galaad.

After thys gathered Timothe another hoſte, which pitched their tentes before Raphon beyonde the water. Judas ſente to ſpye y hoſte, y they brought him worde againe, ſayinge: All the Heathen that be round about vs, are gathered vnto him, and the hooſte is very greate: Yea they haue hyred the Arabyans to helpe them, y haue pitched their tentes beyond the water, and are ready to come and fyghte againſte the. So Judas wente on to mete them.

And Timothe ſayde vnto the captaynes of hys hooſt: when Judas and his hoſt come nie y ryuer: if he go ouer firſt, we ſhal not be able to withſtande him: for why, he wil be to ſtroge for vs. But if he darre not come ouer, ſo that he pitch his tente beyonde the water then will we go ouer, for we ſhalbe ſtronge ynough againſt him. Now as ſoone as Judas came to y ryuer, he appointed certayne ſcribes of the people, y commaunded them, ſayinge: ſe y ye leaue none behinde vpon this ſyde of the ryuer, but let euery man come to the battayll. So he wente firſt ouer vnto the y his people after him.

And al the Heathen were diſcomfited before him, and lett their weapens fal, y ranne into the temple that was Carnaym. Whyche cytye Judas wanne, and brente the temple wyth all that were in it: So was Carnaym ſubdued, and myght not withſtande Judas. Then Judas gathered al the Iſraelites that were in Galaaduthim, frō y leſt vnto ymoſt, wt their wyues y their chyldren (a very great hoſt) for to come into the land of Iſrael.

So they came vnto Ephron, which was a myghtye, greate and ſtronge cyty, and laye in their waye. For they coulde not go by it, nether of the ryght hande nor of the left, but muſt goo thorow it. Neuertheleſſe they that were in y cyte, woulde not let the go thorow but walled vp the portes wyth ſtones. And Judas ſente vnto them with peaceable wordes ſayinge: Let vs paſſe thorow youre land that we maye goo into our owne countree: there ſhall no body do you harme, we wyll but only go thorow. But they woulde not let them in.

Wherfore Judas commaunded a proclamacyon to be made thorowe oute the hoſte, that euery man ſhould kepe his order: and ſo they did their beſt lyke valeaunt men.

And Judas beſeiged the cyte al that daye and all that nyghte, and ſo wanne it: where they ſlewe as many as were males, and deſtroyed the cytye, and ſpoyled it, and wente thorow all the cyte ouer the y were ſlayne. Then wet they ouer Jordane into the playne felde before Bethſan. And Judas helped thoſe forwarde that came behinde, and gaue the people good exhortacyō al the waye thorowe, tyll they were come into the lande of Juda. Thus they wente vp vnto the mounte Sion, where they offered vp myrth y thankeſgeuynge: becauſe, there were none of them ſlayne, but came home againe peaceably.

Now what time as Judas and Jonathas were in the lande of Galaad, and Symon their brother in Galile before Ptolomais: Then Joſephus the ſonne of Zacharye, and Aſaryah the captaynes, hearynge of the actes that were done and of the battels that were ſtroken, ſayde: Lett vs gette vs a name alſo, and go fyghte againſt the Heathen that are rounde aboute vs.

So they gaue their hooſte a commaundement, and wente towarde Jamnah. Then came Gorgyas y his men out of the cyty, to fyghte againſt them: Joſephus alſo and Aſaryah were chaſed vnto the borders of Jewry and there were ſlayne that day of the people of Iſrael.ij.M. men: ſo y there was a greate miſery amōg the people, and al becauſe they were not obedyent vnto Judas and hys brethren, but thought they ſhould gyue the ſelues manfully e. Neuertheleſſe they came not of the ſeede of theſe men, by whome Iſrael was healped. But the men that were wyth Judas, were greatly commended in the ſight of all Iſrael and all Heathen, where ſo euer their name was heard, vpon, and the people came vnto them bydding them welcome.

After thys wente Judas forth wyth hys brethren, and fought againſt the children of Eſau, in the lande y lyeth towarde the ſouth, where he wanne the cittie of Hebron and the townes that lye beſyde it: y as for the walles and towres rounde aboute it, he brent them vp. Then removed he to go vnto the lande of the Philistines, and wente thorowe Samaria. At ỳ same tyme were ther many people slayne in the battayll, whych wylfully and without aduysement wente out for to fyght to get them honoure. And when Judas came to Azot in the Philistines lãd, he brake doune their aultares, burnte the ymages of their Idols, spoyled the cyties, and came agayne in to the lande of Juda.

¶ The.vi. Chapter.

Antiochus willing to take the cite of Elimas for a pray is driuen awaye of the Cytezins. He falleth in to sykenes & dyeth. His son Antiochus is made kinge. The besegyng of the towre of Sion. Eupator cõmeth into Jewry with a great armye. The boldenesse of Eleazer.

A Josephus capi. xii. lib. xii. Antiq.

NOw when kynge Antyochus trauayled thorow the hye countrees he herde ỳ Elymas in Persia was a noble and plentyous cite in syluer & golde, & that ther was in it a very rych temple: wher as were clothes, cote armoures & shildes of gold, which Alexander the son of Philippe kyng of Macedonia had left behynde hym. Wherfore he went aboute to take the cite & to spoyle it, but he was not able, for the cytezens were warned of it, & fought vp him. And so he fled and departed vp great heuynesse, & came againe in to Babylon. Moreouer ther came one which brought hym tydynges in Persyde, that hys hostes which were in the land of Juda, were dyscuyn awaye, and how that Lisias wente forth first vp a great power, and was dryue awaye of the Jewes: how that they had won the victory, & gotten greate goodes oute of the hostes ỳ perysshed: how they had broken doune the abhominacion, which he set vp vpon the aultare at Jerusalem, and fenced the Sanctuary with hye walles, like as it was afore: & how Bethsura hys cyte also.

1 Machab. i. f

So it chaunced, that when the kynge had herde these wordes, he was afrayed and greued very sore. Wherfore he layed him doune vpon his bed, and fell sicke for very sorowe and al because it had not happened as he had deuysed. And there contynued he longe, for hys greefe was euer more and more, so that he sawe he must nedes dye. Therfore he sente for hys frendes, & sayde vnto them: the slepe is gone from myne eyes, for the very sorowe and heraçon of herte ỳ I haue. For when I cõsider in my minde the great aduersite ỳ I am come vnto, & the floudes of heuynesse which I am come in, where as afortyme I was so merry, and so greatly set by (by reason of my power) Agayne, consydering the euyl that I haue done at Jerusalem, from whence I toke all the riches of gold and syluer ỳ were in it, and sent to fetch awaye the inhabytoures of Jewry without any reason why: I know, that these troubles are come vpõ me for the same cause. And beholde, I must dye with greate sorowe in a straung lande. Then called he for one Philippe a frende of his, whom he made ruler of all his realme, & gaue him ỳ crowne, his roabe & his ryng: that he shulde take hys sonne Antiochus vnto hym, and bryng him vp, tyll he myght raygne hym selfe. So the kynge Antyochus dyed there, in the .cxlix. yeare. When Lysias knewe that the kynge was dead, ordeyned Antiochus hys sonne (whom he had brought vp to raygne in hys fathers stede, & called hym Eupator. Now the they that were in the castell (at Jerusalem) kepte in the Jewes round about the Sanctuary, & sought euer stil to do them harme, for the strengthyng of the heathen.

Wherfore Judas thought to destroy them and called all the people together, that they myght laye sege vnto them. So they came together in the .L.i. yeare, & besieged them, layenge forthe their ordynaunce and instrumentes of warre. Then certayne of the that were besieged wente forth: vnto whom some vngodly men of Israell ioyned them selues also, and went vnto the kynge (saynge: How longe wyll it be, or thou punysh and auenge oure brethren? We haue euer bene mynded to do thy fathers seruyce, to walke in hys statutes, and to obeye hys commaundementes. Therfore our people fell from vs, & wheresoeuer they founde any of vs, they slewe them: and they haue not only medled with vs, but with all oure countrees: and beholde, dyuers daye are they besyenge the castell at Jerusalem, and haue made vp the strong holde in Bethsura: And if thou doest not preuente them ryghte soone, they wyll do more then these, and thou shalt not be able to ouercome them.

1. Mach. iii. g

When the kynge herde this, he was very angrye and called his frendes the Captaynes of hys fote men and of all hys horsemen together. He hyred men of warre also out of other realmes and oute of the Iles of the sea, which came vnto hym. And the number of hys hoste was an hundreth thousande fote men, and twentye thousande horsemen, .xxxii. Elephãtes well exercised to battayll. These came thorow Idumea vnto Bethsura and besieged it a longe season, and made dyuerse instrumentes of warre agaynste it. But the Jewes came out and burnte them, and fought lyke men. Then departed Judas from the castell at Jerusalem, and remoued the hoste toward Bethzacaran ouer agaynste the kynges army.

1. Mach. vi. g & vii. f.

So the kynge arose before the daye, and brought the power of his hoste vnto the way to Bethzacaran, where the hostes made them to the battayles blowynge the trompettes. And to prouoke the Elephantes for to fight, they shewed them the sappe of read grapes and mulberies. And deuyded the Elephantes amonge the hostes: & by euery Elephante there stode a .M. men well harnessed, and helmettes of stele vpon their heades: Yea vnto euery one of the Elephantes also, were ordeyned .C. horsmen of the best which waited of the Elephante, goynge where ſo euer he wente. and departed not from hym. Eurye Elephant was couered with a ſtrong towre of wod, where vpon were .xxxii. valeaunte men with weapens to fyght, & within it was a man of Jude to rule the beaſt.

As for the remnaunte of the hoſtmen, he ſet them vpon both the ſides in two partes with trompettes, to prouoke the hooſte, and to ſtere vp ſuch as were ſlowe in the armye.
And whē the ſunne ſhone vpon their ſhildes
of golde and ſtele, the mountaynes glyſtered agayne at them, and were as bryghte as the creſſettes of fyre. The kynges hoſt alſo was deuyded, one parte vpō ỹ hye mountaynes,
the other lowe beneth: ſo they wente on, ta-kynge good heede, and keppynge their order.
And al they that dwelt in the lande, were a-frayed at the noyſe of their hooſte, when the multytude wente forth, & when the weapōs ſmote together, for the hooſt was both great & mighty. Judas alſo & his hooſt entred into the battayll, & ſlew.vi.C. men of the kynges armye. Now whē Eleazar the ſonne of Sara dyd ſe one of the Elephantes decke in the kynges badge, and was a more goodly beaſt
then the other: he thoughte the kynge ſhoulde be vpon hym, and ieoparde hym ſelf to deli-uer hys people, and to get hym a perpetuall name.

Wherefore he ran with a courage vnto the Elephante in the myddeſt of the hoſte, ſmy-tynge them downe of both the ſydes, & ſlewe many about hym. So wente he to the Elephantes fete, & gat hym vnder hym, & ſlewe him: then fell the Elephant downe vpō hym, & there he dyed. Judas alſo & his mē ſeinge ỹ power of the kyng & the myghtye vyolence of his hooſt, departed frō them. And the kynges armye wente vp againſt thē towarde Jeru-ſalem, & pitched their tētes in Jewrye beſyde mounte Syon. Moreouer, the kynge toke truce wyth them that were in Bethſura.

But whē they came out of ỹ cyte (becauſe
they had no vytayles wythin, & the lande laye vnſpilled) the kyng toke Bethſura, & ſet men to kepe it, & turned hys hooſte to the place of the Sanctuarye, & layed ſiege to it a greate whyle. Where he made al maner ordynaūce handbowes, fyre dartes, rachettes to caſte ſtones, ſcorpyōs to ſhote arrowes, & ſlinges.
The Jewes alſo made ordynaunce againſte theirs, and fought a longe ſeaſon.

But in the cyte there were no vytayles,
for it was the ſeuenth yeare of the warres, & thoſe Heathē that remained in Jewry had eaten vp all their ſtoare. And in the Sanctuary were few men left, for ỹ hunger came ſo vpon thē, that they were ſcattered abroad
euery man to his owne place.

So when Lyſias hearde that Philippe (whom Antiochus the kynge whyle he was yet lyuynge, and ordeined to bringe vp An-tiochus hys ſonne, that he myght be kynge) was come agayne out of Perſya & Medea wyth the kynges hooſt, & thought to optaine
the kyngdome: he gat hym to the kyng in all the haſte, & to the captaynes of ỹ hooſte, and ſayd: we decreaſe daylye, and our vitales are but ſmall: Againe, the place that we lay ſeige vnto, is very ſtrong, and it were our parte to ſe for the realme, Let vs agre with theſe men and take truce wyth them, and wyth al their people, and graunte them to lyue after their lawe, as they dyd afore. For they be greued & do all theſe thinges againſt vs, becauſe we haue deſpyſed their lawe. So the kynge and the princes were content, & ſent vnto them to make peace, and they receyued it. Now whē the kyng & the princes had made an othe vnto them, they came out of the caſtell, and the kynge wente vp to mounte Syon. But whē he ſawe that the place was well fenced, he brake the othe that he had made, and commaunded to deſtroy the wall rounde about.
Then departed he in all the haſte, and returned vnto Antioche, where he found Philippe hauyng dominyon of the cyte. So he fought againſt hym, & toke the cyte agayne in to his handes.

them vnto him. But when it was tolde hym, he ſayde: lette me not ſe their faces. So the hooſte put them to death: Nowe when Demetrius was ſet vpon the throne of hys kyngdome, there came vnto hym wycked and vngodly men of Iſrael: whoſe captaine was Alcimus, that woulde haue bene made hye prieſte: Theſe men accuſed the people of Iſrael vnto the kynge, ſayynge: Judas & his vs out of oure owne land. Wherefore, ſende now ſome mē (to whom thou geueſt credē-ce) that he maye go and ſe all the deſtruccō, wyych he hath done vnto vs & to the kinges lande, and lett him be puniſhed wyth all his frindes and fauourers.

Then the kynge choſe Bachides a friende of his, which was a mā of greate power in B
the realme (beyonde the greate water) and faythfull vnto the kynge: and ſent hym to ſe the deſtruccō that Judas had done. And as for that wicked Alcimus, he made hym hye prieſt, and commaunded him to be auenged of the chyldren of Iſrael. So they ſtode vp, and came wyth a greate hoſte into the lande of Juda, ſendynge meſſaungers to Judas &

his brethren, & speakyng vnto the with peaceable wordes: but vnder disceate. Therfore Judas & his people beleued not their sayings, for they sawe that they were come with a great hoost.

After this came the scribes together vnto Alcimus & Bachides, trustyng the best vnto them. And first the Assideans required peace of them, sayinge: Alcimus the priest is come of the sede of Aarō, how can he disceyue vs? So they gaue them louynge wordes, & swore vnto them, & sayde: we wil do you no harme neither your frendes: & thei beleued the. But the very same day toke they .lx. men of them & slew the according to the wordes that are L written: Thei haue cast the flesh of thy sainctes, & shed their bloud rounde about Hierusalē, & there was noman y^t^ woulde burye the. So there came a great feare & drede amonge the people, sayng: there is neither trueth nor righteousnesse in them, for they haue broken the appoyntement and othe that they made. And Bachides remoued hys hoost from Jerusalem, and pytched his tent at Bethzacha: where he sent forth, and toke many of them that had forsaken hym: he slew many of the people also, and cast them into a great pyte. Then committed he the lande vnto Alcimus and left men of warre with hym too helpe hym, and Bachides hym self went vnto the kyng. And thus Alcimus defended hys hye priesthode, and also such as vexed Israel, resorted vnto hym: In so much that they optayned the lande of Juda, and did much euel vnto the Israelites.

Now when Judas sawe all the mischiefe that Alcimus and his cōpany had done (yea, more then the Heathen them selues) vnto the Israelites: He went forth rounde about all the borders of Jewry, and punyshed thole vnlaythfull runnagates, so that they came no more out into the countrey. So when Alcimus sawe, that Judas and hys people had gotten the vpperhande, and that he was not able to abyde them: he went agayne too the kyng, and layd all the worst of them that he coulde. Then the kyng sent Nicanor, one of hys chief princes (which bare euel wil vnto Israel) and cōmaunded hym, that he should vtterly destroy the people.

D So Nicanor came to Hierusalem with a 1.Mac.7.b. greate hoost, and sente vnto Judas and hys brethren wyth frendly wordes (but vnder disceate) sayinge: there shall be no warre betwixte me and you: I will come wyth a few men, to se how ye do, with frendship. Vpon this he came vnto Judas, and they saluted one another peaceably: but the enemies were appoynted to take Judas by violence. Nevertheles it was tolde Judas, that he came vnto him but vnder disceate: wherfore he gat hym away from him, & wolde se his face no more. Whē Nicanor perceyued that his counsayl was bewrayed, he went out too fight against Judas, beside Capharsalama: where there were slayne of Nicanors hoost .v. M. and the residue fled vnto the castel of Dauid.

After this came Nicanor vp vnto mount Sion: and the priestes with the elders of the people went forthe to salute hym peaceably & to shew hym the burnt sacrifices that were offered for the kyng. But he laughed them to scorne, mocked them, defiled their offeringes and spake disdainfully, yea, and swore in his M wroth, sayinge: If Judas and hys hoost be ij.Mac.xiv.f. not deliuered into my handes, as soone as ever I come agayn (and fare wel) I shal ij.Par.xvi.f burne vp this house. With that, went he out iij.Reg.viij.f in a great anger. Then the priestes came in, and stode before the aulter of the temple, weepinge and sayinge: For so much as thou (O Esa.lvi.b. Lorde) hast chosen this house, that thy name Matth.xxi.b might be called vpon therin, & that it should be an house of prayer and petition vnto thy people: Be auenged of this man & his hoost, & let them be slayn with the sweard: remembre the blasphemyes of them, and suffre the not to continue any longer.

When Nicanor was gone from Hierusalem, he pitched his tent at Bethoron, & there an hoost mete him out of Syria. And Judas came to Adarsa with .iij. M. men, & made his prayer vnto God, sayng: O Lorde, because Esai. xxxvij.f of the messengers of king Senacherib blasphe- ij.Mac.viij.b med the the aungel went forth, and slewe an and.xv.b. L.lxxxv.M. of them: Euen so destroye thou iij.Reg.xix.g this hoost before vs to day that other people maye knowe, howe that he hath blasphemed thy Sanctuary: & punyshe hym, according to maliciousnesse.

And so the hostes stroke the felde, the .xiij. day of the moneth Adar: and Nicanors hoost N was discomfited, and he hym self was fyrste slayne in the battayll. When Nycanors ij.Mac.xv.b. of warre sawe that he was kylled, they caste away their weapens and fledde: but the Jewes followed vppon them an whole dayes journey, from Adazer vnto Gazara, blowing with the trompettes, and making tokens after them. So the Jewes came forth of all the townes there about, and blewe out their hornes vpon them, and turned agayne vpon them: Thus were they al slayn, and not one of the left.

Then they toke ther substance for a praye and smote of Nicanors head and hys ryght hande (whyche he helde vp so proudly) and brought it with them, and hanged it vp afore Hierusalem. Wherfore the people were exceedingly reioyced, and passed ouer that day in great & gladnesse. And Judas ordened, that the same day (namely the .xiij. day of the moneth Adar) shoulde be kepte in myndy euery yeare. Thus the lande of Juda was in rest a litle whyle.

¶ The.viij.Chapter.

¶ Judas considering the power & crueltie of the Romayns maketh peace with the. The request of the Romayns made vnto the Jewes.

¶ Iiij. Judas

¶ Iudas hearde alſo the fame of the Romaynes, that they were mighty & valeaūt men, & agreable to all thynges that are requyred of the. & make peace to all men, which come vnto them, & how they were doughty men of ſtrength. Beſides that it was tolde hym of their battayls and noble actes which they did in Galacia, howe they had conquerred them, & brought the vnder tribute: & what great thinges they had done in Spayne, how that with their wiſedome & ſober behauiour they had wonne the Myne of ſiluer & gold that are there, & optayned all the lande, with other places farre frō them: how they had diſcomfited & ſlayn downe the kynges that came vpō the, frō the vttermoſt parte of the earth, & how other people gaue them tribute euery yere: How they had ſlayn & ouercome Philippe & Perſes kyng of Cethim, and other moo in battayl which hadde brought their ordinaūce agaynſt them: how they diſcomfited great Antiochus kynge of Aſia (that wolde vedes fight with them) hauynge an hūdreth and.xx. Elephantes, with horſemen, charettes, and a very great hooſt: how they toke hym fell alyue, and ouercame hym (with ſuch as ſhould raygne after hym) to paye them a great tribute, yea, and to fynde them good ſuertyes and pledge: beſides all this, how they had taken from hym India, Media and Lydia (his beſt landes) & geuen them to kynge Eumenus. Agayne, how they perceyuing that the Greches were comming to vexe them: ſent agaynſt them a captayn of an hooſt, whiche gaue them battayll, ſlewe many of them, led awaye their wyues and children captiue, ſpoyled them, toke poſſeſſion of their lande, deſtroyed their ſtrong holdes, and ſubdued them to be their bonde men, vnto this daye: Moreouer, how that as for other kyngdomes & Iles, whych ſometyme withſtode them, they deſtroyed the & brought them vnder their dominion: But holpe euer their owne frendes & thoſe that were confederate with them, and conquerred kyngdomes both farre & nye: & that who ſo euer herde of their renowne, was afrayed of the: for whō they wolde helpe to their kingdomes, thoſe raygned: & whō it lyked not the to raigne, they put him downe: And how that were come to greate preeminence: haynge no kyng among them, neyther any man clothed in purple, to be magnified there thorow but had ordeyned them ſelfes a perliament, wherein there ſat .vi.C. and.xx. Senatours daply vpō the conſail, to diſpatch euer & buſineſſe of & people, & to kepe good order: And how that euery yeare they chooſe a Mayre, to haue the gouernaunce of all their lande: vnto whome euery man was obediente, and that there was neyther ruell will nor diſcencion among them.

Then Judas chooſe Eupolemus the ſonne of Iohn the ſonne of Jacob, & Jaſon & ſonne of Eleazar, and ſent them vnto Rome for to make frendſhipe & a bonde of loue with the: that they might take from the the bondage of the Greches, for the Jewes ſaw that the Greches wolde ſubdue the kyngdome of Iſraell. So they went vnto Rome (a very great iourney) & came into the Perliament, & ſayd: Judas Machabeus with hys brethren and the people of the Jewes hath ſent vs vnto you, to make a bonde of frendſhip & peace with you, & ye to note vs as your louers & frēdes. And the matter pleaſed the Romaynes right wel, wherfore it was writte vp: of the which the Romaynes made a writinge in tables of Latyn & ſent it to Hieruſalē: that they might haue by them a memorial of the ſame peace & bonde of frendſhip, after this maner: God ſaue the Romaynes & the people of the Jewes both by ſea & by lande, & kepe & ſweard & enemy from them for euermore. If there come firſt any warre vpō the Romaynes or any of their frēdes thorowe out all their dominiō the people of the Jewes ſhall helpe the (as the tyme requyreth) & that with all their herte. Alſo they ſhall neither geue nor ſende vnto their enemies vitales, weapēs, money nor ſhippes: but fulfill this charge at the Romaynes pleaſure, & take nothing from them therfore. Agayn if the people of the Jewes happen firſt to haue warre, the Romaynes ſhall ſtande by them with a good wil, according as the time wil ſuffre. Neither ſhal they geue vnto the Jewes enemies, vitales, weapens, money nor ſhippes. Thus are the Romaynes content to do, and ſhall fulfill their charge without any diſceate.

Accordinge to theſe articles, the Romayns made the bonde with the Jewes. Now after theſe articles (ſayde they) if any of the parties wil put to the, or take any thinge frō them: they ſhall do it with the conſent of both: and whatſoeuer they adde vnto them or take from them, it ſhall ſtande faſt. And as touchynge the euell that Demetrius hath done vnto the Jewes, we haue written vnto hym, ſayeng: Wherfore layeſt thou thy heuy yocke vpon the Jewes our frendes and louers? If they make any complaint of the agayn vnto vs, we ſhal defende them, and fight with the by ſea and by lande.

wape that leadeth vnto Galgala, and pitched their tentes before Melaloth which is in Arbellis, and wanne the cytye, and slew much people. In the first moneth of the. C.lij. yere they brought their hoost to Hierusalem, and rose vp and came to Berea. with. xx. M. foote men. and. ij. M. horsmen.

Now Judas had pitched his tent at Laisa, with thre thousand chosen men. And whē they sawe the multitude of the other armye that it was so great, they were sore afraied, & many conueied them selues out of the host, In so much that there abode no mo of them but. viij. C. men. When Judas saw that his hoost fayled him, & that he must nedes fight it brake his hert, that he had no time together them together: wherefore the man was in extreme trouble. Neuertheles, he sayde vnto them, that remayned with him: Up, let vs go agaynste our enemyes, peraduenture we shall be able to fight with them. But thei wolde haue stopped him, sayinge: we shall not be able, therfore let vs now saue our liues, and turne agayne to oure brethren and then will we fight agaynst them, for we are here but fewe. And Judas sayd: God forbid ℣ that we should flē from them. Wherefore if oure tyme be come, let vs dye manfully for our brethren, and let vs not stayne oure honour. Then the hoost remoued out of the tētes, and stode agaynst theim. The horsmen were deuided in two partes: & slyng casters & the archers went before the hoost, & all the mighty mē were formest in the felde, Bachides him self was in the right wyng of ye battayl, and the hoost drewe nye in two partes, and blewe the trompettes. They of Judas blewe the trompettes also, & the earth shoke at the noyse of the hoostes, and they stroke a felde from the morow tyll nyght. And when Judas sawe that Bachides hoost was strōgest of the right side, he toke with him all the hardy men, and brake the right wynge of their ordre, and followed vpon them vnto the mount Azot.

Now when they whiche were of the lefte wynge, sawe that the right side was discomfited, they persecuted Judas and theim that were with him. Then was there a sore battayll, for many were slayne and wounded of both the partyes, Judas also him selfe was kylled, and the remnaunt fled. So Jonathas and Symon toke Judas their brother, and buried him in his fathers sepulchre in ye cytye of Modin. And all the people of Israell made great lamentacion for him, and moured longe, sayinge: Alas, that thys worthy should be slayne, which deliuered the people of Israel. As for other thinges perteynynge to the battails of Judas, the noble actes that he did & of his worthinesse: they are not written, for they were very many.

℣ And after the death of Judas, wicked me Iosep. cap. iij came vp in all the coastes of Israell, & there lib. xij. antiq. arose all suche as worke vngodlinesse. In those dayes was there a greate death in the lande, and al the countray gaue ouer the selfe & theirs vnto Bachydes. So Bachides chose wicked men, & made them lordes in the lāde. These sought out & made searche for Judas frendes, and brought them vnto Bachides: whiche auenged him selfe vpon them with great despite. And there came so great trouble in Israel, as was not sence the tyme that no prophet was sene there.

Then came all Judas frendes together, & sayde vnto Jonathas: For so muche as thy brother Judas is dead, there is none like him to go forth agaynste oure enemies, agaynste Bachides, and suchas are aduersaries vnto our people. Wherefore this daye we chose the for hym, to be oure prince and captayne to aide our battayl. And Jonathas toke the gouernaunce vpon hym at the same tyme, & ruled in steade of his brother Judas. When Bachydes gat knowlege therof, he sought for to slay him: But Jonathas and Symon his brother, perceyuyng that, fledde into the wildernesse of Thecua with all their cōpany and pytched their tentes by the water poole of Asphar.

Whiche when Bachydes vnderstode, he ℣ came ouer Jordane with all his hoost vpon the Sabbath daye. Now had Jonathas sent his brother Jhon (a captayne of the people) to praye his frendes the Nabuthites, & they wolde lende them their ordinaunce, for they had much. So the chyldren of Jambry came out of Madaba, and toke Jhon and all that he had, and wente their waye withall. Then came worde vnto Jonathas and Symon his brother, that the chyldren of Jambry made a great marrage, and brought the bryde from Madaba with greate pompe: for she was daughter to one of the noblest princes of Canaan. Wherfore they remembred the bloud of Jhon their brother, and went vp, and hid them selues vnder the shadowe of the mountayne.

So they lift vp their eyes, and loked: and beholde, there was much a do, and great trayne: for the bryde grome came forth, & his frendes & his brethren mete them with tymbrels, instrumentes of musycke, and many weapēs. Then Jonathas and they that were with him, rose out of their lourkynge places agaynst them, and slewe many of them. As for the remnaunt, they fled into the mountaynes, and they toke all their substaūce. Thus the marrage was turned to mournynge, and the noyse of their melody into lamentacyon. And so when they had auenged the bloud of their brother, they turned agayne vnto Jordane.

Bachides hearynge this, came vnto the ℣ very border of Jordane with a great power vpon the Sabbath day. And Jonathas sayd to his company: let vs get vp, and fight agaynste oure enemyes: for it standeth not with vs to daye, as in tymes past: Beholde, oure enemies are in oure waye, the water of Jordane vpon the one syde of vs, with bankes, fennes & woddes of the otherside, so that there is no place for vs to departe vnto.

1.Para.1.a 1.Mach.vij.b Wherfore crye now vnto heauen, ỳ ye may be deliuered from the power of youre enemyes. So they stroke the battail. And Jonathas stretched out hys hãde to smyte Bachides, but he fled backwarde. Then Jonathas & they that were with hym leapte into Jordane, & swymmed ouer Jordane vnto hym, & there were slayn of Bachides syde ỳ daye, a thousande men.

Therfore Bachides with his hoste turned agayn to Hierusalem, & buylt vp the castels & stròg holdes that were in Jewry, Jericho Emaus, Bethoron, Bethell, Thamnata, Phara & Topo, with hye walles, with portes & with lockes: & set men too kepe the, that they might vse their malice vpon Jsraell. He walled vp Bethsurah, Gazarah & the castell at Hierusalem also, & prouided them with mẽ & vitales: He toke also the chiefest mens sonnes in the countrey for pledges, & put them in the castell at Hierusalem to be kepte.

Afterwarde in the .C.lij. yeare in the seconde moneth, Alcimus cõmaũded, that the walles of the ymost Sanctuary shoulde be destroyed, & the buyldinges of the prophetes also. And when he began to destroy them the thinges that he went about, were hyndered: for he was smytten in a palley, & his mouth shut, so that he coulde nomore speake nor cõmaunde any of his house concerning his businesse. Thus dyed Alcimus in great misery at the same tyme. And whẽ Bachides sawe that Alcimus was dead, he turned agayn to the kyng, & so the lande was in rest .ij. yeares. Then all the vngodly men helde a counsayl, sayinge: Beholde, Jonathas & his company are at ease, & dwell without care. Wherfore let vs bring Bachides hither, & he shall take them all in one nyght.

So they went and gaue Bachides thys counsayll, which arose to come with a great hoost, & sent letters priuely to his adherentes which were in Jewry, to take Jonathas and those that were with him: but they might not for the other had gotten knowledge of their deuice. And Jonathas toke .lxxx. of the conspiracy, (which were the ringleaders of them) & slew them. Then Jonathas & Symõ with their cõpany departed vnto the cyte Bethbesten whiche lyeth in the wildernesse, & repayred the decaye therof, & made it stronge. When Bachides knew this, he gathered all his hoste, & sent vnto the that were of Jewry. Then came he & layed siege to Bethbesten & fought agaynst it a lõge season, & made instrumentes of warre. Now Jonathas left hys brother Symon in the cyte, and went forth hym self into the countrey, & came with a certayne number, and slew Odares & hys brethren and the children of Phaseron in their tentes: so that he began to be strong and too increase increase in power.

As for Symon & his company, they went out of the cyte, and brent vp the instrumentes of warre, and fought agaynst Bachides, and discomfited hym. And Bachides was sore vexed, because his counsayl and trauaile was in vayne. Wherefore he was wroth at the wicked men (that gaue hym counsayll to come into their lande) and slew many of the. Then purposed he with hys company too go awaye into his owne countrey: whereof when Jonathas had knowlege, he sent Embassadours vnto hym, for too make peace with hym & ỳ he should deliuer him his prisoners agayn. To the which Bachides consented gladly, & dyd accordyng to hys desire: yea, & made an othe, that he shoulde neuer do hym harme all the dayes of his lyfe. So he restored vnto hym all the prisoners that he hadde taken out of the lande of Juda, and then turned and went hys waye into hys owne lãde, neither proceded he any further to come vnto the borders of Juda. Thus Jsrael had more warre. And Jonathas dwelt at Machmas, and begamme there to gouerne the people, and destroyed the vngodly men oute of Jsraell.

¶ The.x.Chapter.

¶ Demetrius desyreth to haue peace with Jonathas. Alexander mouyth warre agaynst Demetrius. Demetrius is slayne. The friendshyp of Ptolomeus and Alexander.

Josephus. A. ix. xiij. xv.

In the .C.lx. yeare came Alexander the sonne of noble Antiochus & toke Ptolomais, whose citizens receyued hym, & there he raygned. Whẽ Demetrius herde therof, he gathered an exceadyng great hoost, and went forth agaynst hym to fighte. Wherfore Demetrius sent letters vnto Jonathas with louyng wordes, & praysed hym greatly. For he sayd: we will first make peace with hym, before he bynde hym selfe with Alexander agaynst vs: els he shal remembre the euel that we haue done agaynst hym, his brother & hys people. And so he gaue Jonathas leue to gather an hoste, to make weapõs and to be confederate with him, and cõmaũded the pledges that were in the castel, to be deliuered vnto hym.

Then came Jonathas to Hierusalem, and red the letters in the audience of all the people, and of them that were in the castell. And therfore were they sore afraied, because thei herde, that the kyng had geuen hym licence to gather an hoost. Thus were the pledges deliuerd vnto Jonathas, whiche restored them to their elders. Jonathas also dwelt at Hierusalem, and began to buylde vp and to repayre the citie: cõmaundyng the workemẽ to walle it, and the mounte Syon rounde about with fre stone, to be a strong e holde, and so they did. As for the Heathẽ that were in the castels which Bachides had made vp, they fled: so that euery man lefte the place, & went into hys owne countrey. Only at Bethsura ſuta remayned certayn of the Jewes, which had forſaken the lawe & commaundementes of God, for Bethſura was their refuge.

Now when kyng Alexander herde of the promyſes that Demetrius had made vnto Jonathas, and when it was tolde hym of the battels & noble actes, which he and his brethren had done, and of the greate trauayles that they had taken: he ſayde: where ſhal we fynde ſuch a man? well, we will make hym our frende, & be cõfederate with him. Vpon this he wrote a lettre vnto hym, wyth theſe wordes: kynge Alexander ſaluteth hys brother Jonathas. We haue herde of the, that thou art a valeaunt man, and mete to be our frende: wherfore this day we ordayne the to be the hye prieſt of thy people, and to be called the kynges frende, (Vpon this, he ſente hym a purple clothyng, & a croune of golde) that thou mayeſt conſider what is for oure profit, and kepe frendſhipe towarde vs.

So in the.lxij. moneth of the.C.lx. yeare vpon the ſolempne feaſt day of the tabernacles, Jonathas put the holy rayment vpon hym. Then gathered he an hoſt, & made many weapens. Which whē Demetrius herde he was maruelous ſory, & ſayde: Alas, what haue we done, that Alexander hath preuented vs in gettinge the frendſhippe of the Jewes, for hys owne defence? Yet will I write louyngly vnto them alſo, yea, & promyſe the dignities & rewardes, that they maye be of my ſide. Wherupon he wrote vnto them theſe wordes: kyng Demetrius ſendeth gretyng vnto the people of the Jewes. Where as ye haue kepte your couenaunt toward vs, & cõtynued in our frendſhippe, not enclyning to our enemyes we were glad, when we herde therof. Wherfore remayne ſtil and be faithfull to vs: & we ſhall well recompẽſe you for the thynges, that ye haue done on our party: we ſhall releaſe you of many charges, and geue you rewardes. And now I diſcharge you & al the Jewes from tributes, I forgeue you the cuſtomes of ſalt, & releaſe you of the croune tares, of the thirde parte of ſede, and half of the fruite of trees, which is myne owne duety. Theſe I leaue for you, from this day forthe: ſo that they ſhall not be taken of the lãde of Juda nor of the thre cities which are added therunto out of Samaria & Galilee, from this daye forth for euermore. Hieruſalē D alſo with all thinges belonging therto, ſhall be holy & free, yea, the tythes & tributes ſhall pertayne vnto it. As for the power of the caſtell which is at Hieruſalē, I remyte & geue it vnto the hye prieſt, that he may ſet in it ſuch men, as he ſhall chooſe to kepe it. I freely deliuer all the Jewes that are priſoners therout out all my realme: ſo that euery one of them ſhalbe free from paying any tribute, yea, euē of their cattell.

All the ſolempne feaſtes, ſabbathes, newmones, the dayes appointed, the thre dayes before and after the feaſt ſhalbe free for all the Jewes in my realme: ſo that in them no man ſhal haue power to do any thyng, or to moue any buſineſſe againſt any of the in any maner of cauſe. There ſhall.xxx. M. alſo of the Jewes be written vp in the kynges hoſt, & haue their wages payed, as all other men of warre of the kinges ſhoulde haue: & of them ſhalbe ordeyned certayne, to kepe the kynges ſtrong holdes: yea, and ſome of them ſhalbe ſet ouer the kynges buſineſſe, that they maye faythfully deale with the ſame. The Jewes alſo ſhal haue princes of their own, & walke in their owne lawes, as the kyng hath commaunded in the lande of Juda.

And the thre cytyes that are fallen vnto Jewry from the countre of Samaria & Galilee: ſhalbe taken as Jewry, & be vnder one: neither be ſubiecte to any ſtraunge lord, but to the hye prieſt. As for Ptolomais and the lande pertenynge therto, I geue it vnto the Sanctuary at Hieruſalem, for the neceſſary expences of the holy thynges. Moreouer, I wyll geue euery yeare.xv. thouſande ſycles E of ſiluer out of the kynges cheſte (whiche pertayneth vnto me) to the worke of the temple: yea, and like what remayneth (whiche they that had oure matters in hande in tymes paſt, haue not payed) & ſame ſhall they geue vnto them alſo. And beſides all thys, the.b. M. ſicles which they toke yearly of the rentes of the Sanctuary, ſhall belonge vnto the prieſtes that do ſeruice.

Item, whoſoeuer they be that flee vnto the temple at Hieruſalem or within the libertes therof, where as they are fallen into the kinges daunger for any maner of buſines, they ſhall be pardoned, and all the goodes that they haue in my realme, ſhalbe free. For the buyldyng alſo & repayryng of the worke of the Sanctuary, expenſes ſhalbe geuen oute of the kynges cheſte: yea, & for the making of the walles rounde about Hieruſalem, for the breakyng downe of the olde, and for the ſettyng vp of the ſtronge holdes in Jewry, ſhall the coſtes and charges be geuen out of the kynges cheſte.

But when Jonathas and the people herd theſe woordes, they gaue no credence vnto 1.Mach.xij.b them, neither receiued them: for they remembred the greate wickednelle that he had done vnto Iſrael, and how ſore he had vexed the. Wherfore they agreed vnto Alexander, for he was a prynce that had dealt frendly with them, & ſo they ſtode by hym alwaye. Then gathered kyng Alexander a great hoſt, and brought hys army againſt Demetrius. So Joſephus.ca. the twoo kynges ſtroke battell together, v.lib.xiij.anti but Demetrius hoſt fledde, and Alexander folowed after and fel vpon them. A mighty ſore ſelde was it, continuyng til the Sunne went downe, and Demetrius was ſlayn the ſame daye.

And Alexander ſent Embaſſadours vnto Ptolomy the kyng of Egypte with theſe wordes, ſayinge: For ſo much as I am come

agayn to my realme, and a ſet in the throne of my progenytours, and have gotten the dominion, ouercome Demetrius, conquered the lande, and ſtryken a felde with hym, ſo that we have diſcomfited both hym and hys hoſt, and ſit in the throne of hys kyngdom: Let us now make frendſhipe together, geue me thy daughter to wyfe: ſo ſhall I be thy ſonne in lawe, and both geue the rewardes, and her great dignite. Ptolomy the kyng gaue anſwere, ſayeng: Happy be the daye wherin thou art come agayn to the lande of thy progenytours, and ſette in the throne of their kyngdome. As now wyll I fulfyl thy wayenge: but mete me at Ptolomais, ¶ we maye ſe one another, and that I maye marye my daughter vnto the accordynge to thy deſire. So Ptolomy went out of Egypt with hys daughter Cleopatra, ¶ came vnto Ptolomais in the Cleane: where kyng Alexander mete hym, and he gaue Alexander hys daughter Cleopatra, ¶ maryed them at Ptolomays with great worſhyppe, lyke as the maner of kynges is to be. Then wrote kyng Alexander vnto Jonathas, that he ſhoulde come and mete hym. So he went honorably vnto Ptolomays, and there he mete the two kynges, and gaue them great preſentes of golde and ſiluer, and founde fauour in their ſyght. And there came together agaynſt Jonathas certayne wicked men ¶ vngracyous perſonnes of Iſrael, makynge complayntes of hym, but the kyng regarded them not. As for Jonathas, the kyng commaunded to take of hys garmentes, and to clothe him in purple: and ſo they dyd. Then the kyng apoynted hym to ſit by hym, and ſayde vnto hys peaces: Go with hym into the middeſt of the cyte, and make a proclamacion, that no man complayne agaynſt him of any matter, and that no man trouble hym for any maner of cauſe.

So it happened that when hys accuſers ſawe the worſhipe whiche was proclaymed of him, ¶ that he was clothed in purple: they fled everychone. And the kyng made muche of hym, wrote hym amonge hys chiefe frendes, made hym a duke, and partaker of hys dominion. Thus Jonathas went agayne to Hieruſalem with peace and gladneſſe. In the.C.lxv. yeare came Demetrius the ſonne of Demetrius from Creta into hys fathers lande: whereof when Alexander herde tell, he was right ſory, and returned vnto Antyoche. And Demetrius choſe Appollonius (which had the gouernaunce of Celoſyria) to be hys captayne.

So he gathered a greate hoſte and came vnto Jamnia, and ſende worde vnto Jonathas (hye prieſt) ſayeng: Darreſt thou withſtande vs thy ſelf alone? As for me, I am but laughed to ſcorne and ſhamed, becauſe thou prouokeſt thy ſtrength againſt vs in the mountaynes. Now therefore if thou truſteſt in thyne owne ſtrength, come doune to vs into the playne felde, and there let vs proue oure ſtrength together: thou ſhalte fynde, that I have halfe a thouſande men of warre with me: and ſhalt know whom I am, and the other that ſtande by me.

Which ſayde, that youre fote is not able to ſtande before oure face, for thy fathers have bene twyſe chaced into their owne lande. And now, how wilt thou be able to abyde ſo great an hoſte of horſmen and fotemen in the felde, where as is neither roche, ſtoone nor place to fle vnto?

When Jonathas herde the wordes of Appollonius, he was moued in hys mynde: wherfore he chooſe.x. thouſande men ¶ went out of Hieruſalem, and Symon hys brother mete hym for to helpe hym: And they pytched their tentes at Joppa, but the cyte kept hym forth, for Joppa was an holde of Appollonius. Then Jonathas layed ſiege to it, and they that were in the cyte, for very feare let hym in: and ſo Jonathas wane Joppa. Appollonius hearynge of thys, toke thre thouſande horſemen, with a great hoſte of fote, ¶ went as though he wolde go to Azotus, ¶ came immediatly into the plaine felde becauſe he had ſo many horſemen, ¶ put hys truſt in them. So Jonathas folowed hyndon him to Azotus, and there they ſtroke the battayl. Now had Appollonius left a thouſand horſmen behinde them priuely in the tentes. And when Jonathas knew that ſuche wayte was layed behynde them, they went rounde about the enemyes hoſte, and ſhut dartes at the people from the morning to the euenyng. As for Jonathas people, they kept their ordre as he had commaunded them, and the enemyes hoſte were euer labourynge.

Then brought Symon forth his hoſte, ¶ ſet them agaynſt the fote men. For the horſemen were wery alreadye. So he diſcomfyted them, and they fled. And they that were ſcatred in the felde, gat them to Azotus, ¶ came into the temple of Dagon their Idoll, that they myght there ſaue their lyues. But Jonathas ſet fyre vpon Azotus and all the cytyes rounde about it, and toke their goodes, and burnt vp the temple of Dagon with al them that were fled into it.

Thus were ſlayne and burt well vpe.viii. thouſande men. So Jonathas remoued the hoſte from thence, and brought them to Alcalon: where the men of the cyte came forth, and mette hym with great worſhippe. After thys went Jonathas and hys hoſte agayne to Hieruſalem, with greate ſubſtaunce of good. And when kyng Alexander herde theſe thynges, he thought to do Jonathas more worſhippe, and ſent him a colar of golde, as the vſe is to be geuen vnto ſuch as are of the kynges nerre blonde. He gaue hym alſo the cytye of Accaron (with the lodes belonging thereto) in poſſeſſion.

AND the kynge of Egypt gathered an hoste, lyke the sand that lyeth vpon the sea shore) and many shippes: and went about thorowe diuerse to optayne
the kingdome of Alexander, and to ioyne it vnto his own realme. Vpon this he toke his iourneye into Siria, and was letten into the cyties, & me came forth for to mete hym: for kyng Alexander had commaunded them so to do, because he was hys father in lawe.
Nowe when Ptolompe entred into any city
he lefte men of warre to kepe, and thus he dyd thorow oute all the cyties. And when he came to Azotus, they shewed him the temple of Dagon & Azotus that was burnt vp with the other thynges whyche were destroyed, the dead bodyes cast abrode, and the graues that they had made by the way syde for such as were slayne in the feld: And tolde the kyng that Jonathas had done al these thynges, to the intent that they myght get hym euel wyl
But the kynge sayde not a word therto. And Jonathas met the kyng with great honour
at Joppa, where they saluted one another, and toke their rest. So when Jonathas had gone with the kyng, vnto the water that was called Eleutherus, he turned againe to Jerusalem. Now Ptolomy had gotten the dominion of the cyties vnto Seleucia vpon
the sea coast, ymagyninge wicked counceles against Alexander, and sent embassitours vn to Demetrius, sayeng: Come let vs make a bonde betwixt vs, so that I geue the my daughter yͤ Alexander hath, & thou shalt raign in thy fathers kingdome. I repent that I gaue Alexander my daughter, for he goeth about to slee me. And thus he slaundered Alexander, because he woulde haue had his realme.
Thus he toke his daughter frō him, gaue
her vnto Demetrius, and fraysoke Alexander, so that his malice was openly knowne.
And Ptolompe came to Antioche, where he set two crownes vpō his owne head: the crown of Egypte and of Asia. In the meane season was kinge Alexander in Cilicia, for they that dwelt in those places, had rebelled against hym. But when Alexander herde of thys, he came to warre against him. So kynge Ptolomy brought forth his host & mett him with a mygtye power, and chased hym awaye.
Then fled Alexander into Araby, there to be defended, & king Ptolemys honoure increa sed. And Zabdiel the Arabian sent of Alex anders heade, and set it vnto Ptolompe. But the thyrde daye after, dyed kynge Ptolompe hym selfe: and they whom he had sette in the stronge holdes, were slayne of those yͤ were within the cytyes. And Demetrius raigned in the hundreth and fourth and fyftye yeare.

At the same tyme gathered Jonathas thē that were in Jewry to laye syege vnto the castell whych was at Jerusalem, and so they made many instrumentes of warre against it. Then wente there certayne vngodly personnes (whych hated their owne people) vnto kyng Demetrius and tolde hym that Jonathas besieged the castel. When he heard it, was angrie, an Immediatly came vnto Pto lomias, and wrote vnto Jonathas, that he shoulde not laye syege to the castel, but come and speake wyth hym in all the haste. Neuer theleſſe when Jonathas herde this he commaunded to besiege it. He chose also cer-tayne of the elders and preestes of Israell, & put him selfe in the parel, and toke with him golde, siluer, clothyng and diuerse presentes and wente to Ptolomias vnto the kyng and and found him gracious.

And though certayne vngodly me of hys owne people made cōplaintes vpon him, yet
the kynge intreated him, lyke as hys predecessoure had done before: and promoted him in the sight of all his frēdes, confirmed him in the hie priesthode with all the worshyppe that he had afore, & made him his chefe frēd.
Jonathas also desired the kyng that he wold make Jewry free, with the three head cityes of Samaria & the landes pertayninge thereto:
vpon this did Jonathas promise him thre. C. talentes. Where vnto the kynge consented, & gaue Jonathas waytynge of the same, conteynynge these wordes. Kynge Demetrius sendeth greetynge vnto his brother Jonathas & to the people of the Jewes. We sende you here a copy of the letter whych we did write D vnto our elder Lasthenus, concerninge you that ye should know it.

Kynge Demetrius sendeth greetyng vnto Lasthenus his elder. For the fayethfulnes & oure frendes the people of the Jewes kepe vnto vs, and for the louing kyndnesse which they beare toward vs, we are determined to do the good. Wherfore we ordeyne al the co stes of Jewry wyth .iii. cyties. Lyda and Ramatha (which are added vnto Jewry frō Samaria) and all the landes pertaining ther vnto, to be freely separated for such as do sacrifyce in Jerusalem: doeth concerninge the payments whych the kyng tooke yearly afore tyme, and the frutes also of the earth & trees
As for other tithes & tributes that belonged vnto vs, we discharg them therof from thys tyme forth. In lyke maner we graunte vnto them al the customes of salt & crowne taxes which were brought vnto vs. And thys fredome shall they haue firme & stedfaste, from this time furth for euermore. Therfore se ye i. Mach. xi. c.
make a copy of these our letters, & deliuer
it vnto Jonathas: yt maye be kepte vpon the holy mount in a conuenient place.

After thys, when Demetrius the kynge
sawe that his lande was in rest, & that no re-

1.Mach.xii.c. ſtaūce was made hym: he ſente awaye all his hoſt euerye man to hys owne place, excepte an armye of ſtraungers, whome he brought frō the Iles of the Heathen, wherefore al his fathers hoost had euel wil at him. Now was ther one Typhon (that had bene of Alexanders partie afore) whyche when he ſawe that all the hoost murmured agaynſte Demetrius: he went to Emalcuel the Arabian (that brought vp Antiochus the ſonne of Alexander) to lay ſore vpon him, to deliuer him this yōg Antiochus: that he myght raygne in his fathers ſtede. He tolde him alſo what greate euell Demetrius had done, and how his men of warre loued him not: to remayned there a long ſeaſon.

And Jonathas ſent vnto kynge Demetrius, to dryue them out whych were in the caſtel at Jeruſalem: for they dyd Iſrael greate harme. So Demetrius ſent worde vnto Jonathas, ſayenge: I wil not only do theſe thinges for the and thy people, but at time conuenient I wil do both the & thy people greate worſhipe. But nowe thou ſhalt do me a pleaſure, if thou wilt ſend me men to helpe me: for all myne armye is gone fro me. So Jonathas ſente him .iii. M. ſtronge men vnto Antyoche, and they came vnto the kynge, wherfore the kyng was very glad at their commynge. But they y were of the cyte (euen an. Lxx. thouſande men) gathered them together, & would haue ſlayne the kynge, whyche fled into hys courte: and the cytezens kepte the ſtretes of the cities and began to fight.

Then the kyng called for the Jewes helpe which came vnto hym altogether, and went abrode thorow the cytye, and ſlewe the ſame daye an. C. M. men: ſet fyre vpō the city, gat many ſpoyles in that day, and delyuered the kynge. So when the cytezens ſawe that the Jewes had gotten their wyl of the cyte, and they them ſelues diſpointed of their purpoſe they made their ſupplicacion vnto the kyng ſayenge, Graunte vs peace, and lette the Jewes ceaſſe from troublinge vs and the cyte, & vpon thys they caſt awaye their weapens. Thus they made peace, and the Jewes gat greate worſhipe in the ſyght of the kyng, and in the ſyghte of al that were in hys realme, & were ſpoken of thorow out the kyngedome: and ſo they came agayne to Jeruſalem with greate goodes.

So the kyng Demetrius ſat in the throne of his kyngdome, and had peace in his lande. Neuertheles he diſſembled in all that euer he ſpake, & withdrewe him ſelfe from Jonathas, neither rewarded him accordyng to the benefytes whyche he had done for hym, but troubled hym very ſore. After this came Typhon agayne with yonge Antiochus, which raygned & was crowned kynge. Then there gathered vnto him al the men of warre, whō Demetrius had put awaye: theſe fought agaynſt Demetrius, which fled & turned hys backe. So Typhon toke the Elephātes, and wanne Antioch. And yong Antiochus wrote vnto Jonathas, ſayinge: I confyrme the in thy preſthode, and make the ruler of .iiii. coſtrees, that thou maieſte be a frende of the kynges.

Upon this he ſent him golde veſſels to be ſerued in, & gaue hym leue to drynke in golde to be clothed in purple, and to were a coalar of golde. He made hys brother Symon alſo captayne, from the coaſtes of Tyrus vnto y borders of Egipte. Then Jonathas toke his iournay, & wente thorow the cityes beyonde the water (of Jordane) & al the men of warre of Syria gathered the vnto hym for to helpe hym. So he came vnto Aſcalon, and they of the cyte receaued hym honorablye: and from thence wente he vnto Gaza, but they would not lett him in: wherfore he layed ſeige vnto it burnynge vp and ſpoylynge the places that were about the city.

And the citezens of Gaza ſubmitted them ſelues vnto Jonathas, which made peace vnto them, but toke of their ſonnes to pledge, ſent them to Jeruſalem, and went thorow the coſtre vnto Damaſcus. Now when Jonathas herde that Demetrius princes were come into Cades (whych is in Galile) with a great hoſt, purpoſing to put Demetrius out from ye kyngdome in the realme: he came againſt the and lefte Symeon hys brother in the lande: whych came to Bethſura, and layed ſeige to it a longe ſeaſon, and dyſcomfyted them. So they deſyred to haue peace with him, which he graunted them, and afterward put them out from thence, toke the city, and ſet men to kepe it. And Jonathas with hys hoost came to the water of Genezar, and by times in the morning gat them to the plaine feld of Aſor.

And beholde, the hoostes of the Heathen met them in the feld, and layed watch for the in the mountaines: ſo y whē Jonathas came againſt the, the other (whych were layed to watch) roſe out of their places, & fought, & they that were of Jonathas ſyde, fled euerye man: and ther was not one of the left, excepte Mathathyas the ſonne of Abſalomus, and Judas the ſonne of Calphy the captayne of the hoſt. Then Jonathas rente hys clothes layed earth vpon his heade, made his prayer & turned agayne to the in y felde: where they fought together, and he put them to flyght. Now when his owne men y were fled, ſawe this: they turned agayne vnto hym, & helped hym to followe vpon all their enemyes vnto their tentes at Cades. So there were ſlayne of the Heathen the ſame day .iii. M. men, and Jonathas turned agayne to Jeruſalem.

The.xii.Chapter.

Jonathas ſendeth Embaſſadours to Rome & to ye people of Sparta to renue their couenaūt of freendſhip. Jonathas putteth to flight ye Princes of Demetrius. Typhon taketh Jonathas by deceite.

Jonathas ſeynge that the time was mete for hym, choſe certayne men and ſent them vnto Rome for too ſtablyſhe and to renue

1.Mach.viii.a renue the frendshipp wyth them. He sent letters also vnto Sparta, & to other places in lyke maner. So they wente vnto Rome, & entred into the counsel and sayde: Jonathas the hye preest and the people of the Jewes sent vs vnto you, for to renue the old frendshipp and bond of loue. Vpō this the Romanes gaue them fre passportes, that men should lede thē home into the lande of Juda peaceably. And this is the copy of the letters that Jonathas wrote vnto the Spartiates:

Jonathas the hye preest with the elders, preestes, & the other people of the Jewes, sende greeting vnto the Spartanes their brethren. There were letters sente longe agoo vnto Onias the hye preest, frō Arius, whyche than raigned among you: ye are oure brethren, as the wrytynge made ther vpon, specifieth. And Onias entreated the embassitoure that was sēt, honorably, and receaued the letters wherein there was mencyō made of ye bonde of loue & frendshipp. But as for vs, we nede no such wrytinges: for why, we haue ye holy bokes of scripture in oure handes to our cōfort. Neuertheles, we had rather send vnto you, for the renuing of the brotherhode and frendshippe: lest we should be straunge vnto you, for it is longe, sens the tyme that ye sent wordes vnto vs. Wherfore in ye sacrifices ye we offer & other ceremonyes vpō the hye solempne dayes and other, we alwaye remember you wythout ceasinge (like as reason is, & as it becōmeth vs to thincke vpō oure brethren) yea and are ryght glad of your prosperous honour.

And thoughe, we haue had great troubles and warres, so that the kynges about vs haue foughten agaynste vs: yet wouldе we not be greuous vnto you nor to other of our louers and frendes in these warres. For we haue had helpe from heauen, so that we are delyuered, and our enemies subdued. Wherfore we chose Numenius the sonne of Antiochus and Antipater the sonne of Jason, and sent them vnto the Romanes, for to renue the olde bond of frendshippe and loue wyth them. We commaunded them also to come vnto you, to salute you, and to delyuer you oure letters, concernynge the renouacyon of our brotherhode. And now ye shal do ryght wel, to geue vs an answer therunto.

And this is the copye of the wrytynge, whych Arius the kynge of Sparta sente vnto Onias: Arius king of the Spartians sendeth greetynge vnto Onias the hye preste. It is founde in wrytynge, that the Spartanes and Jewes are brethē, and come oute of the generacion of Abrahā. And now for so much as this is come to our knowledge, ye shal do wel, to write vnto vs of youre prosperytye. As for vs, we haue wryten our mynde vnto you: Oure catell and goodes are yours, and yours, ours. These thinges haue we cōmaunded to shewed vnto you.

When Jonathas herde, that Demetrius

princes were come forth to fyght agaynste him, wyth a greter hoost then afore, he went from Jerusalem, & met them in the lande of Hemath, for he gaue them no space to come into his owne coūtre. And he sente spyes vnto their tentes, which came agayne and tolde him, that they were appoynted to come vpō him in the nyght season. Wherfore when the sunne was gone downe, Jonathas cōmaunded his men to watch all the nyght, and to be readye vnto weapens for to fyght: & set watchmen rounde about the hoost. But when the aduersaries hearde that Jonathas was ready wyth his men to the battayll, they feared, & were afrayed in their hertes, and kindled fyres in their tentes, brake vp, and gat them awaye. Neuertheles Jonathas and his company knewe it not tyll the morowe, for they saw the fires burning.

Then Jonathas folowed vpon them, but he myght not ouertake them, for they were gone ouer the water Eleutherus. So Jonathas departed vnto the Arabians (which were called Zabadeans) slew thē, & toke their goodes. He proceded further also, and came vnto Damascus, and wente thorowe all that countre. But Symon his brother toke his iourneye and came to Ascalon and to the nexte strong holdes: departynge vnto Joppa, and wanne it. For he herde that they would lande of Demetrius parte: wherfore he sente men of warre into the cyte, to kepe it. After this came Jonathas home agayne, & called the elders of the people together and counsyled with them to buylde vpō the strōg holdes in Jewry, and the walles of Jerusalem, to sette vp an hye wall betwixt the castell and the cyte, for to separate it from the cyte, that it myght be alone, and that men should neyther bye nor sell in it.

Vpon this they came together for to buylde vp the cyte: & for asmuch as the wal vpon the broke of the west side (called Caphethetah) was fallē downe, they repaired it. And Symō set vp Adiadah in Sephelah, & made it strōg, & settynge gates & lockes vpon it. Now when Tryphon purposed to raygne in Asya, to be crowned, & to slaye the kynge Antiochus: he was afrayed that Jonathas wolde not suffer him, but fight against him. Wherfore he went about to take Jonathas: and to kyl him.

So he departed, and came vnto Bethsan. Then wente Jonathas forth agaynst him to the battayll with fourtye thousande chosen men, and came vnto Bethsan also. But when Tryphon sawe that Jonathas came wyth so greate an hoste to destroye him, he was afrayed: and therfore he receaued him honorably, cōmended him vnto al his frendes, & gaue him rewardes, and commaunded his men of warre to be as obedyent vnto him, as to him selfe.

And sayde vnto Jonathas: why hast thou caused this people to take suche trauayle, seyng there is no warre betwyxt vs? Therfore fore sende them home againe, and chose certayne men to wayte vpō the, & come thou to me to Ptolomais: for I wil geue it the, with the other strōg holdes, men of warre & their officers: As for me, I muste departe, thys is f only the cause of my cōming. Jonathas beleued him and dyd as he sayde, puttynge awaye his host, which went into the land of Juda. He kepte but .iii. M. by hym, whereof he sente .ii. M. into Galile, and one M. went with him selfe.

Nowe as soone as Jonathas entred into Ptolomais, the cytezens shut the gates of the cōtre, and toke him, and slewe all them with the swerde, & cast in with him. Then sent Tryphon an host of fote men and horsmen into Galile and into the great playne felde, to destroie al Jonathas company. But when they knew that Jonathas was taken, & all they slayne that wayted vpon him: they toke councell together, & came forth readye to & battayll. So when they which folowed vpon thē, sawe that it was a matter of lyfe, they turned backe agayne. As for the other, they went into the land of Juda peaceably, and bewayled Jonathas, and them that were with him ryghtore. And Israel made great lamentacyon. Then all the Heathen & were rounde about them, sought to destroy them For they sayde: now haue they no captayne, nor any man to helpe them. Therfore let vs ouercome them, and rote out their name frō among men.

¶ The.xiii. Chapter.

¶ After Jonathas was taken Symō & the ten captayns, of whom Tryphō taking his childe and money for the redemptiō of Jonathas, fulfilleth him and his childe. The grefe of Jonathas. Tryphō slayeth Antiochus, and possesseth the realme Demetrius taketh truce vp Symon, and winneth Gaza. He possesseth & tower of Sion. He maketh his sonne John Captayne.

NOw when Symon herde that Tryphon gathered a great host
2 to come into the lande of Juda and to destroy it. and sawe that he people was in greate feruentnesse and care: He came vp to Jerusalem and gathered the people together, & gaue thē exhortacyon, sayinge: Ye knowe what great battayls I and my brethren and my fathers
i.Ma.bi.c.ix. b.rm.b. houle haue stryke for the lawe and the Sanctuarye & what maner of troubles we haue seene: thorow occasyon wherof, al my brethē are slayne for Israels sake, and I am lefte alone. And now lett not me spare my owne life in anymaner of trouble, for I am no better then my brethren: but will auenge my people and the Sanctuarye, oure childrē and oure wyues: for all the Heathen are gathered together, to destroy vs of very malyce.

At these wordes the hertes of the people were kyndled together, so that they cried vp a loude voyce, sayinge: Thou shalte be oure captayne in stede of Judas and Jonathas thy brethren, order thou oure battell, & what soeuer thou commaundest vs, we shall do it. So he gathered all the men of warre making haste to finysh all the walles of Jerusalem, which he made strong rounde about. Then

E sente he Jonathas the sonne of Absalomus
B with a fresh host vnto Joppa, whych droue thē out & were in the castell, and remayned there him selfe. Tryphon also remoued from Ptolomias with a greate armie, to come in to the lande of Juda, and Jonathas with him in warde. And Symon pytched his tentes at Addus before the playne felde.

But when Tryphon knewe that Symon stode vp in stede of hys brother Jonathas, & that he wolde warre agaynst hym: he sent messaungers vnto him, sayinge: Wher as we haue kepte Jonathas thy brother, it is for money that he is owynge in the kynges accompte, concerninge the busynesse & he had in hande. Wherefore sende now an. C. talentes of syluer and his two sonnes for suertye, that when he is letten forth he shall not forsake vs: and we shall sende him agayne. Neuertheles Symon knewe, that he dyssembled in his wordes: yet commaunded he the money & children to be delyuered vnto him: lest he should be the greater enemye against the people of Israell, and say: because he sent him not the money and the children, therfore is Jonathas dead.

So Symon sent hym the children and an
C hundreth talentes, but he dissembled, & would not let Jonathas go. Afterwarde came Tryphon into the lande, to destroye it, and wente rounde about by the waye, that ledeth vnto Ador. Butt whersoeuer they went, thyther wente Symon and his hoste also. Now they that were in the castell, sent messaungers vnto Tryphon, & he should make haste to come by the wyldernesse, and to sende thē vytales: And Tryphon made ready al his horsmen to come that same nyght. Neuertheles it was a very greate snowe, so that he came not in Galaadithim. And whē he drew nye Baschama, he slewe Jonathas and hys sonnes ther, and then turned for to go home into his owne land.

Then sent Symon for to fet his brothers dead coarse, and burped it in Modyn his fathers cyty. So all Israell bewayled hym vp great lamentacyon, and mourned for hym very longe. And Symon made vpon the sepulcher of his father and hys brethē a buyldynge hye to loke vnto of fre stone behynde & before: and set vp seuē pylers, one agaynst another (for his father, hys mother and four brethren, and set great pillers rounde about, with armes vpon them for a perpetuall memory, and carued shyppes beside the armes that they myght be seene of men sayllynge in the sea. This sepulcre whiche he made Modin, standeth yet vnto this day.

Now as Tryphon went forth to walke vp D

kynge Antiochus, he sleweth him treasterously, and raigned in his steade, crowned him self kynge of Asia. and dyd much euell in the lande. Symon also buylte vp the castels in Jewry, makinge them strong wyth highe towers, great walles portes and lockes, and layed vp vytayles in the strouge holdes. And Symon chose certayne men, and sente them to kynge Demetrius: to desyre hym, that he wolde discharge the land from all bondage, for Triphon had spoyled it very sore. Wherupon Demetrius the kynge answered hym, and wrote vnto him after this maner.

Demetrius the kynge sendeth gretynge vnto Symon the hye preest hys frende, wyth the elders & people of the Jewes. The golde crowne and precious stone that ye sent vnto vs, haue we receaued: and are ready to make a stedfast peace wyth you, yee & to wryte vnto oure officers, for to release you, concernynge the thynges wherin we made you fre & the appoyntment that we make wyth you, shalbe kept and stable. The strouge holdes which ye haue buylded, shalbe youre owne. As for anye ouer syght or fawte committed vnto this daye, we forgeue it, & the crowne taxe ye ought vs also. And where as was any other tribute in Jerusalem, it shal now be no tribute: and loke who are mete among you to be in oure counte, let them be wryten vp, that there maye be peace betwyxt vs.

Thus the yocke of the heathen was taken ✠ from Israell, in the hundreth and seuentye yeare. And the people of the Jewes begaune to wryte in their letters & actes on this maner. In ye fyrste yeare of Symon ye hye preest, and paynce of the Jewes.

1.Mac.xiiij.b In those dayes went Symon vnto Gaza, and besieged it rounde about, where he sette vp ordinaunce of warr. And wanne a tower whyche he toke: So they that gatte into the tower leapte in the cytye, whyche was in a greate feare: In so muche that the people of the citye rente their clothes, and clymmed vp vpon the walles with their wyues & chyldre besechynge Symon to be at one wyth them: sayenge.

Deale not after our wyckednes, but be gracious vnto vs, and we shal do the seruyce. Then Symon for very pyte, wolde fight nomore against them, but put them out of the cytie, and cansed the houses (wherin ye Images were) to be clensed: and so entred the cytye wyth Psalmes of prayse, geuynge thankes vnto the Lorde. So when he had caste all abhominacyons out of the cytye, he sette such men in it as kept the lawe of God, and made the cyty stronge, and buylded a dwellynge place for hym selfe.

✠ Nowe when they in the castell at Jerusalem were kepte so streaightly, ye they coulde not come forth nor into the countre, & myghte nether bye nor sell: they were very hongrye and many of them famyshed to death: In so much that they besoughte Symon to be at one with them, which he graunted them. So he put them out from thence, and clensed the castle from spirytuelle. And vpon the xxiij. daye of the seuenth moneth in the. clxxi. yeare they entred into it wyth thankes geuing and braunches of palme trees, wyth harpes, crowdes, cymbala, and lutes, synginge psalmes, and songes of praise vnto God, for that the great enemye of Israel was ouercome.

And Symon ordened that the same daye shoulde be kepte euery yeare in gladnesse and made stronge the hill of the temple that was besyde the castell, where he dwelt hym selfe with his cōpany. Symon also perceaynge that John his sonne was a myghtye man of armes, made him captayne of all the hoste, and caused him to dwel at Gaza.

¶ The.xiiii.Chapter.

Demetrius to ouercome of Arsaces. Symon beyng captayne ther is great quietnes in Israel. The couenaunt of frendshyppe with the Romaynes & with the people of Sparta is renued

IN the.clxxii. yeare gathered kynge Demetrius his hoste, and departed vnto Media, to gette hime helpe for to fyght against Triphon. Now when Arsaces the kynge of Persia and Media hearde, that Demetrius was entred wythin hys borders he sent one of his paynces to take hym alyue, & to bring hym vnto hym. So he went & slewe Demetrius hoste, toke him self, brought him to Israces, which kept him warde. And all the lande of Juda was in rest, so long as Simon lyued for he sought the wealth of his people, therefore were they gladde to haue hym for their ruler, and to do hym worshyp alwaye.

Symon wanne the citie of Joppa also for an haue towne, and made it an intraunce into the Iles of ye sea. He enlarged the borders of his people, & conquered them more landes He gathered vp many of their people that were prisoners: he had the dominion of Gaza, Bethsura, and the castell, whiche he clensed from spirytues. and there was no man that resisted hym: So that euery man tylled his groundes in peace, the lande of Juda and the trees gaue their fruite and encrease. The elders sate all in iudgement, & toke their counce for the wealth of the lande: the yonge men ✠ put an worshyppe and harnesse vpon them. He prouyded vytalles for the cytyes, & made goodlye stronge holdes of them: so that the fame of hys worshyppe was spoken of vnto the ende of the worlde. For he made peace thorowe out the lande, and Israell was full of myrth and ioye.

Euery man sat vnder his vyne & fig tree and there was no man to fraye them anaye There was none in ye lande to fyght against them, for the the kinges were ouercome. He helped those that were in aduersitye amonge his people, he was diligent to se ye lawe kepte: as for such as were vngodly and wycked he toke them away. He set vp the Sanctuarye, and and increaced the holy veſſels of the temple.

When the Romaynes and Sparcians had gotten worde, that Jonathas was dead, they were ryght ſory. But when they hearde that Symō his brother was made hye preſt in his ſtede, and how he had wonne ꝧ lande a gayne with the cytyes in it: they wrot vnto him in tables of latan, to renue ꝧ frendſhyp, and bonde of loue, whyche they had made afore with Judas and Jonathas his brethren. Whiche wrytynges were red afore the congregacyon at Jeruſalem.

1.Mach.c.d and.xv.d. And thys is the copye of the letters, that the Sparcians ſent: The Senatours and cytezyns of Sparta ſende greting vnto Simon ꝧ great preſt wt the elders, preſtes, & the other people of the Jewes their brethren: When youre embaſſytours that were ſent vnto our people, certyfyed vs of yur worſhyppe, honour, & proſperous welthowe were gladde of their cōming, and haue wrytē the earand which they ſpake before the coūcell of ꝧ people: namely that: Numenius the ſonne of Antiochus. And Antipater the ſonne of Jaſō the Jewes embaſſytours are come vnto vs, for to renue ꝧ olde frendſhipe wyth vs. Upon this the people conſented, that the men ſhould be honorably interated, & ꝧ copye of their errande ſhoulde be wrytten in the ſpecyall bokes of the people, for a perpetuall memorye vnto the Sparcians: yea and that we ſhould ſend a copye of the ſame vnto Symō ꝧ greate Papyſte.

After thys dyd Symon ſende Numenius vnto Rome with a golden ſhylde of a thouſande pounde weight to cōfirme the frendeſhyp to them: which when the Romaynes vnderſtode, they ſayde, what thanckes ſhall we recōpence againe vnto Simon & his children? For he hath eſtabliſhed his brethē, and ouercome the enemyes of Iſrael. Wherfore they graunted him to be free. And all thys wrot the Jewes in tables of Latyn and naled it vnto the pillers vpon the mount Sion. The copie of the wrytynge is this:

The.xviii. daye of the moneth Elul in the yere. xxxix. yeare in the thirde yeare of Symon the hye preſte, in the greate congregacyon of the preſtes, rulers of the people, and elders of the coūtre at Aſaramne, were theſe wordes openly declared:

For ſo much as there was much warre in oure lande, therfore Simon the ſonne of Mathathiah (come of the children of Jareb) and his brethren, put them ſelues in perell, and reſiſted the enemyes of their people: ꝧ their Sanctuary and lawe might be mayntayned, and dyd their people greate worſhipe. Jonathas in lyke maner, after that he had gouerned his people and bene their hye preſt: ded, and ſyth buried beſyde his elders.

After ꝧ would their enemies haue troden their holy thynges vnder fote, deſtroyed their lande, and vtterlye waſted their Sanctuary. Thē Simon withſtode them, and fought for his people, ſpent much of hys owne money, weapened the valeaunt men of his people, gaue thē wages, made ſtronge the cytyes of Juda, wyth Bethſurah that lyeth vpon the borders of Jewry (wher the ordynaunce of their enemyes laye ſometyme,) & ſet Jewes ther for to kepe it.

He made faſt Joppa alſo, which lieth vpon the ſea, & Gaza that, bordreth vpō Azotus (wher the enemyes dwelt afore) and ther he ſette Jewes to kepe it: and whatſoeuer was mete for the ſubduynge of the aduerſaryes, that layed he therin. Now when the people ſawe the noble actes of Simon, & what worſhyp he purpoſed to do for them, hys godlye behauoure, and faythfulneſſe which he kept vnto them, and how he ſought by all wayes the wealth of his people, becauſe he dyd all this, therfore thei chose him to be their prince and hye prieſt. And in hys tyme they proſpered well by hym, ſo that the Heathen were taken oute of their lande: and they alſo whiche were in the cyte of Dauid at Jeruſalem in the caſtel (where they wente out and defyled al thynges that were about the Sanctuary, and did greate harme vnto cleanlines, and Simon put me of the Jewes in it, for the defēce of the lande and the citie, and ſet vp the walles of Jeruſalem.

And kynge Demetrius confirmed him in his hye preſthode, made him his frende, and dyd him greate worſhipe. For he herde that the Romaines called the Jewes their fredes louers and brethren: how honorably they receaued Simons embaſſytours: how the Jewes and preſtes conſented that he ſhould be their prince and hye prieſt perpetually (tyll God rayſed vp the true prophet) and that he ſhuld be their captayne, to care for the Sanctuary, and to ſette officers vpon the workes therof, ouer the land, ouer the weapōs, ouer the houſes of defence, to make prouiſion for the holy thynges, and to be obeyed of euery man, and all the wrytynges of the land to be made in his name: that he ſhould be clothed in purple and gold, and that it ſhould be laufull for none of the people nor preſtes to breke any of theſe thynges, to withſtande hys wordes, nor to call any congregatyon in the land without him: that he ſhuld be clothed in purple, & weare a colar of gold: And if ther were any which diſobeied or brake this ordinance that he ſhuld be puniſhed.

So al the people conſented to alowe Symon, and to do accordynge to theſe wordes. Symon alſo him ſelfe toke it vpon hym, and was contente to be ꝧ hye prieſt, the captayne and prince of the Jewes and preſtes, and to gouerne them all. And they commaunded to make this wrytynge in tables of latyn, and faſten it vnto the compaſſe of the Sanctuary in an open place: and to laye vp a copye of the ſame in the treaſury, that Simon and his poſterity might haue it.

¶ The.xv. Chapter.

Antiochus

Antiochus maketh a couenaunt of frendshyp wyth Symō, and Tryphon is persuaded, ℣ the mayntis write letters vnto kynges and nacyōs in the behēfe of the Iewes. Antiochus refusyng the helpe ℣ Symō wil him, byndeth his couenaunt

A MOreouer, kyng Antiochus the sonne of Demetrius sente letters from the Iles of the sea, vnto Simon the hie preest ℣ prince of the Iewes, and to al the people, conteinyng these wordes: Antiochus the kynge sendeth gretyng vnto Simon the hie preeste and to the people of the Iewes. For so much as certayne wicked men haue gotte the kyngdome of oure progenytours, I am purposed to chalenge the realme againe, and to restore it to the olde estate.

Wherfore I haue gathered a greate hoste and made shippes of warre: that I maye goo thorowe the countrie, and be auenged of the whiche haue destroyed oure lande, and wasted many cytyes in my realme. And therfore now I make the free also from all the tributes, wherof all kynges my progenitours haue discharged the, and from other customes (wher from they haue released the) whatsoeuer they be: Yea I geue the leaue to stryke money of thyne owne within thy lande. As for Jerusalem, I will that it be holy and free: and all the weapens and houses of defence which thou hast buylded and kepest in thine handes, shall be thine. Where as any thyng is or shall be owynge vnto the kynge. I forgeue it the, frō this tyme forth for euermore. And when we haue optayned our kingdom, we shall do the, thy people and the temple great worshyp: so ℣ your honoure shal be knowen thorowe out the whole worlde.

In the.clxxiii. yeare went Antyochus into his fathers lande, ℣ all the me of warre came together vnto hym, so that fewe were left with Tryphon. So the kyng Antiochus folowed vpon hym, but he fled vnto Dora, which lyeth by the sea syde: for he sawe that there was myschefe commynge vnto hym, ℣ that his hoste had forsaken hym. Then cam Antiochus vnto Dora with an hundreth and twentie thousande men of armes vpon fote, ℣ eyght thousande horsemen. So he cōpased the cytye rounde about, ℣ the shippes came by the sea. Thus they vexed the cytie by land and by water, in so muche that they suffred
i.Mac.xiiii.d no man to go in nor out.

In the meane season came Numenius (℣ they that had bene with him) from the cytye of Rome, hauynge letters written vnto the C kynges ℣ prouinces, wherein were contey-ned these wordes: Lucius ℣ Maire of Rome sendeth gretyng vnto Ptolompe the kynge. The embassitours of the Iewes oure frends beynge sent from Symon the hye prieste and from the people of the Iewes, came vnto vs for to renue the olde frendshyppe (and bond of loue, ℣ broughte a shylde of golde weyeng a thousand pounde, which we were cōtent to receaue of them. Wherfore we thought good to write vnto the kynges and prouincies, to do them no hanne, nor to take parte against them, their cytyes nor countrees nether to mayntayne their enemies against the. If there be any wycked personnes therefore fled from their countre vnto you, deliuer the vnto Symon the hye preest, that he maye punysh them according to their owne law.

The same wordes wrote the Romaynes also vnto Demetrius the kynge, to Attalus, D Ariaba, Arsaces and to all regions: as Samanes, to them of Sparta, Delo, Mindo, Sycion, Caria, Samos Pamphilia, Lycia, Halicarnassum, and to the Rhodes, to Phaselis, Coo, Side, Arado, Gortina, Gnydum, to Cipres and to Cyren. And of euerye letter they sent a coppe to Symon the hye papeste and to the people of the Iewes. So Antiochus the kyng brought his hoste vnto Dora ℣ seconde tyme to take it: where he made diuerse ordynaunce of warre, ℣ kepte Tryphon in, that he shoulde not come forth. Then sente Symon Antiochus, two thousand chosen me to helpe hym with golde, syluer and other plenteous geer: Neuertheles he wolde not receaue them, but brake all the couenaunt whych he made wyth Simon afore, and withdrew him self from him.

He sente Athenobius also a frende of hys vnto Symon, for to reason with him saying: Ye withholde fro me Joppa and Gaza (with the castell that is at Jerusalem) which are cities of my realme, whose borders ye haue destroyed) and done greate euell in the, and hauynge the dominication in many other places of my kyngdome. Wherfore deliuer now the cytyes which ye haue taken with the tributes of places that ye haue rule vpon without the borders of Jewry: Or els geue me fyue hundreth talentes of syluer, yea and for the harme that ye haue done in the cytyes and for the tributes of the same, other fyue hundreth talentes. If no, we shall come and fyght against you.

So Athenobius the kynges frende came to Jerusalem, ℣ when he sawe the great worshyp, and honoure of Symon in golde, syluer and so great plenty of ornamentes: he marueled, and tolde Symon as the kynge commaunded hym. Then answered Simon and Judi.xi.c. sayd vnto him: As for vs, we haue nether taken other mens land, nor withholde them, but only oure fathers heritage, whych oure enemyes had vnrighteously in possession a certayne tyme. This heritage of oure fathers haue we chalenged in processe of tyme. And wher as thou cōplaynest concernyng Joppa and Gaza, they dyd greate harme to our people and in our land, yet wil we geue an.C.talentes for them.

Neuertheles Athenobius answered hym not one worde, but turned agayne wrathfully vnto ℣ kyng, ℣ tolde him all these wordes

Symon.i. and

and the greate dignitie of Symon with all that he had seue, and the kinge was very angry. In the meane tyme sledde Triphon by shippe vnto Orthosiada. Then the kynge made Cendebeus captaine of the sea coost, & gaue him an host of fote men & horsmen, cõmaundinge him to remoue the host towarde Jewry, & to buylde vp the cytye of Sedron, to make vp the portes, & to warre agaynst ỹ people of the Jewes. As for the kynge hym selfe, he folowed vpon Triphon. So Cendebeus came vnto Jamnia, & begaune to vexe the people, to treade doune Jewry, to take ỹ people prysoners, to slaye thẽ & to buyld vp Sedron: where he set horsmen and other mẽ of warre, that they might come forth and go thorow the stretes of Jewry, like as the king had commaunded hym.

The.xvi.Chapter.

¶ Cendebeus the captayne of Antiochus hoste is put to flight of the sonnes of Symon Ptolomeus the sonne of Abobus kylleth Symon & hys two sonnes at a banchet: Jhon killeth thẽ that lye in wayte for hys lyfe.

THen came Jhon vp from Gaza & tolde Simon his father, what Cendebeus had done amonge their people. Vpon this called Symon two of hys eldest sonnes, Judas and Jhon, and sayde vnto them: I and my brethern & my fathers house, haue euer frõ oure youth vp vnto this dai, foughten agaynst the enemyes of Jsrael, and God gaue vs good fortune too deliuer Jsraell oft tymes. And now for so much as I am olde, be ye in steade of me and my brother, too go forth and fight for our people, and the helpe of God be with you. So he chose.xx.M. sigh tynge men of the countrey, with horsmẽ also which wente forth agaynst Cendebeus and rested at Modin.

In the moringe they arose, and went in to the playne felde: and beholde, a mighye great hoost came agaynst them, both of fote men and horsmen. Now was there a water broke betwixt them, and Jhon remoued the hoost towarde them. And when he sawe that the people was afraied too goo ouer the waterbroke, he went ouer fyrst hym selfe: and ỹ men seynge this, folowed hym.

Then Jhon set his horsmen & fote men in order, the one by the other, for their enemies horsmen were very many. But when they blew vp the preistes trompettes, Cẽdebeus fled vnto his host, wherof many were slayn, & the remnaunt gat them to their stroñg holde. Judas also Jhons brother was wounded at the same tyme. And Jhon folowed fyrst vpon the enemyes, tyll he came to Cedron whiche he buylded. The enemyes fled also vnto the towres that were in the feldes of Azotus, & those dyd Jhon burne vp. Thus there were slayne.ci.M. men of them, and Jhon turned again peaceably into Jewry.

And in the felde of Jericho was Ptolomy the sonne of Abubus made captayne: which because he had aboundaunce of syluer and golde: for he had maried the daughter of Symon the hye priest) waxed proud in his mind and thought to conquere the lande, pmagenyng salibed agaynst Symon & hys sonnes, to destrope them. Now as Symon was goyng about thorow the cytyes, that were in ỹ countrey of Jewry, and caryng for them: he came doune to Jericho, with Mathathiah & Judas hys sonnes, in the.C.lxxvii. yeare in the.xi. moneth called Sabat. Then Ptolomy the sonne of Abobus receyued thẽ (but with discreate) into a stronge house of hys called Doch, which he had builded, wher he made them a banchet.

So when Symon and hys sonnes were mery and had dronchen wel, Ptolomy stode vp with his men (whom he had hyd there) & toke their weapens, entred into the banchet house, & slewe Symon with his two sonnes, and certayne of hys seruauntes. Such great vnkapthfulnesse did Ptolomy in Jsrael, and recompensed euell for good. Then wrote thys Ptolomy thelame vnto kynge Antiochus, requiryenge hym that he shoulde sende hym an hoost to helpe hym: and so shoulde he deliuer hym the lande, wyth the cytyes & tributes of thelame. He sent other men also vnto Gaza, for to take Jhon: and wrote vnto the captaynes to come to him, and he should geue them siluer, golde and rewardes. And to Jerusalem he sent other, to take it and the Sanctuary.

Then ran there one before, & tolde Jhon in Gaza, that his father & hys brethern were slayne, and how that Ptolomy had sent too slaye hym also. When Jhon herde this, he was sore abashed, and layed handes of them that were come to destrope hym, and slewe them: for he knewe, that they went about to kyll hym.

As for other thynges concernynge Jhon of hys warres, of his noble actes (wherin he behaued hym selfe manfully) of the buyldynge of walles whyche he made, and other of hys dedes: They are written in the Cronycles of hys priesthode, from the tyme forthe that he was made hye priest after hys father.

¶ An Epistle of the Jewes that dwelt in Hierusalem sent vnto them which dwelt in Egipt wherin they exhorte them to geue thankes for the death of Antiochus. Of the fyre that was hydde in the pyt. The prayer of Nehemiah.

THe brethre of the Jewes which be at Jerusalem and in the lode of Jewry, wilbe vnto those brethren of the Jewes ꝑ are thorow out Egipte: good

fortune, health and peace.

God the Lord be gracious vnto you, and thynke vpon hys couenaunt that he made vnto Abraham, Jsaac & Jacob hys faythfull seruauntes: and geue you all suche an hert, that ye maye lone and serue hym, yea, & performe hys will with an whole herte and of a willyng mynde: he open youre hertes in hys lawe and in hys commaundementes, sende you peace: heare yourpraiers, be at one with you, and neuer forsake you in tyme of trouble. This is here our prayer for you.

What tyme as Demetrius raygned, in ꝑ C.lxix. yeare, we Jewes wrote vnto you in ꝑ trouble and violence that came vnto vs. In those yeares after that Jason departed oute of the holy lande and kyngdome, they brente vp the portes, & shed innocent bloude. Then made we oure prayer vnto the Lorde, and were heard: we offred, & lighted the candels, set forth cakes & bread. And now come ye vnto the feaste of tabernacles in the moneth Casleu.

b In the.C.lxxxviii. yeare the people ꝑ was at Hierusalem and in Jewry, the counsayll and Judas hym self, sent this wholsome salutacion vnto Aristobulus kynge Ptolomes maister, which came of the generacion of the anoynted priestes: and to the Jewes ꝑ were in Egypt: Jn so much as God hath delyuered vs from greate parelles, we thanke hym highly. Jn that we resisted so mighty a kyng. And why? he brought men out of Persis ꝑ hyraen, to fight against vs & the holy cyte. For as he was in Persis (namely, the Captayne with the great host) he perished in the temple of Nanea, beynge deceyued thorowe the deuyce of Nanea priestes. For as he was purposed to haue dwelte there, Antiochus and hys frendes came thyther, too receyue muche money for a dowry. So when Nanea priestes had layed forth the money, he entred with a small copany into the cyrcuite of the temple, and so they shut the temple.

Now when Antiochus entred ꝑ opening the preuy entraunce of the temple, the priestes stoned the captayne to death, hewed them in peces that were with hym, smote of their heades, and threwe them out in all thynges. God be prayed, whiche hath delyuered the wicked into oure handes.

c Where as we now are purposed to kepe ꝑ purification of the temple vpon the.xxv. daye of the moneth Casleu, we thought necessary to certifie you therof: that ye also might kepe the tabernacles feast daye, & the daye of the fyre, which was geuen vs when Nehemiah offred, after that he had sette vp the temple & the aulter. For what tyme as oure fathers were led awaye into Persis, the priestes (whiche then soughte the honoure of God) toke the fyre priuely from the aulter, and hid it in a valley, where as was a depe dyke pyt: and therein they kepte it, because the place was vnknowen to euery man. Now after many yeares when it pleased God, that Nehemiah (should be sent frō the kyng of Persia he sent the children children of those priestes (which had hyd ꝑ fire) to seke it. And as they tolde vs, they founde no fyre, but thicke water. Then cōmaunded he thē to drawe it vp, & to bring it hym, and the offringes wythall. Now whē the sacrifices were layed on & aded the priest Nehemiah commaunded too sprincle them & the wood with the water. d When this was done, & the tyme come that the Sunne shone, which afore was hid in the cloude: there was a great fire kyndled. Jn so much that euery man marueled. Now all ꝑ priestes prayed, whyle the sacrifice was a making. Jonathas prayed first, and the other gaue answere.

despysed & abhorred, that the Heathen maye knowe and se, how that thou art oure God: Punysshe the that oppresse, & proudly put us Deut.xxv.a. to dyshonoure. Set thy people againe in thy holye place, lyke as Moses hath spoken.

And the preestes songe Psalmes of thanksgeuynge, so longe as the sacrifyce endured. Now when the sacrifyce was brent, Nehemyah commaunded the greate stones to be sprenckled w the residue of ¶ water. Which whē it was done, there was kindled a flame of them also: but it was consumed thorowe the lyght, that shyned from the aulter. So when this matter was knowen, it was told the kynge of Persia, that in the place where the preestes, whych were led awaye, had hyd fyre, there apeared water in stede of fyre, & that Nehemias & his company had purified the sacrifices withall. Then the kynge consyderynge & ponderynge the matter bylyght lye made hym a temple to proue the thynge that was done. And when he founde it so in dede, he gaue the preestes many gyftes & diuerse rewardes: yea he toke them wych hys owne hand, and gaue them. And Nehemias called the same place Nephthar, which is as much to saye as a clensynge: but many men call it Nephi.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

¶ How Jeremy hyd the tabernacle, the Arke, and the aulters in the hyll. Of the.ii. bokes of Jason contayned in one.

IT is found also in the writting of Jeremy the prophet, that he cōmaunded them whych were 2.Mach.i.c. caried awaye to take fyre, as it is sayd afore. He commaunded them also, that they shuld not forget the lawe Jere.xxxi.b. and commaundementes of the Lord, and that they shuld not erre in their myndes, whē they se Imagres of syluer and golde with their ornamentes. These and such other thynges cōmaunded he them, & exhorted them, that they shoulde not leue the lawe of God go oute of Baruc.vi.a. theyr hertes.

It is wrytten also, how the prophet (at the commaundemente of God) charged them, to take the tabernacle & the arcke wyth them: & he wente forth vnto the mountayne, where Deu.xxxiiij.a Moyses clymmed vp, & sawe the heritage of God. And whē Jeremy came thyther, he fownd an open caue wherin he layd the tabernacle, & arcke & the aulter of incense, & so stopped the hole. There came certayne men together ¶ also folowyng him, to marke the place, but they coulde not fynde it. Which when Jeremy perceaued, he reproued them sayeng: As for that place, it shalbe vnknowne, tyll the time that God gather his people together agayne, & receaue them vnto mercy. Then shall Exodi.xiij.d. God shew them these thynges, & the maiesty iij.Reg.viij.b of the Lorde shal appeare, & the cloude also, lyke as it was shewed vnto Moses: & lyke as when Salomon desyred that the place might be sanctified, & it was shewed him.

For he beyng a wyse man, handled honorably and worthyly & offering vnto god in the Leui.ix.b. halowynge of the temple, when it was fynyshed. And lyke as when Moses prayed vnto the Lorde, the fyre came downe from heauē, and consumed the burnte offeryng: Euen so prayed Salomon also, and the fyre came ij.Para.vii.a downe from heauen, and consumed & burnt offeringe. And Moyses sayde: because the sin offeryng was not eaten, therefore it is consumed. In lyke maner Salomon kepte the dedycacion (or halowinge) eight dayes.

In the Annotacyōs & writynges of .. Jeremy, were these thynges put also: & how he made a lybrary, & how he gathered out of all countrees the bokes of the prophetes, of Dauyd, the epystles of the kynges, & of the presentes: Euen so Judas also, lyke what he lerned by experiēce of warre, & such thynges as hath happened vnto vs, he gathered them all together, and so we haue them by vs. If ye nowe desyre to haue the same, sende some body to fetch them vnto you. Where as we then are aboute to celebrate the purysycacyon, we haue written vnto you. Therefore ye shall do well, if ye kepe the same dayes.
Deut.xxvi.a We hope also, that & God (which delyuered his people, and gaue them all the heritage, kyngedome, priesthode & Sanctuary that he promised them in the lawe) shal shortly haue mercy vpō vs, and gather vs together from vnder the heauen into his holye place: for he hath saued vs from greate perels, and hath clensed the place.

As concernynge Judas Machabeus and his brethren, the purysycacyon of the greate temple, the dedicacyon of the aulter, yea & of the warres that cōcerne noble Antiochus, & Eupator his sonne, of the spyrytuall warres & came downe from heauen vpon those, whych manfully defended the Jewes. For though they were but fewe, yet defended they the whole lande, droue awaye the enemyes holt, recouered agayne the temple, that was spoken of thorowe out all the worlde, delyuered the cite, kepynge their beste that the lawe of the Lord which was put downe, might with all tranquilite be restored agayne vnto & Lorde, & was so mercyfull vnto them. As touchyng Jason also of Cyren, we haue vnder take compendiously to bring into one boke, & thynges that were comprehended of him in fyue. For we cōsyderynge the multytude of the bokes and how harde it should be for them & wold medle with storyes and actes (& that because of so diuerse matters) haue vndertaken so to comprehende the storyes: that such as are disposed to rede, myght haue pleasure and pastyme therin: & that they which are diligente in such thynges, myght better thynche vpon the: yea and that whosoeuer read the myght haue profyt therby.

Neuertheles we oure selues that haue medled with this matter for the shortenynge of it, haue taken no smal labour, but greate

diligence, watchynges and trauaple. Lyke as they that make a feaste, wolde fayne do other men pleasure: But so we also (for many mens lakes) are very well content to take the labour, where as we maye shortlye comprehende, the thynges that other men haue truly written.

For he þ buyldeth an house anewe, muste prouide for many thynges, to þ whole buylduynge: but he that paynteth it afterwarde, seketh but only what is comlye, mete & conuenient to garnysh it with al. Euen so do we also in lyke maner. And why? He that begynneth to wryte a story for the fyrst, muste wyth his vnderstandynge gather the matter together, set hys wordes in order, and diligently serche out of euery parte: But he þ afterwarde wyll shorten it, vseth fewe wordes, and toucheth not the matter at the largest. Let thys be sufficient for a Prologe, now will we begynne to shewe the matter: for it is but a folyth thynge to make a longe Prologe, and to be shorte in the story it selfe.

¶ The. iii. Chapter.

Of the honoure done vnto the temple by the kynges of the Gentiles. Symon wotteth what treasure is in the temple. Heliodorus is sent to take them away. He is stricken of God, & healed at the prayer of Onias.

WHatsoeuer as the holy cyte was inhabited in al peace, & wealth and when the lawes were yet beyng well kepte. (For so was ordeyned by Onyas the hye preest & other godly men, that were enemyes to wickednesse) It came thereto, þ eue the kinges and princes the selues did the place great worshyp, & garnished the temple wyth great gyftes: In so much þ Seleucus kynge of Asia of his owne rentes bare al the costes belonging to the seruyce of the offrynges. The Symon of the trybe of Ben Jamin, a ruler of the temple, laboured to worke some mischefe in the cyty that the hye preest reysted him.

Neuertheles when he myght not ouercome Onias, he gat him to Appolonius the sonne of Therla (whych then was chefe lord in Celosyria and Phenices) & told hym, that the treasury in Jerusalem was ful of innumerable money, and how that the common goodes (which belonged not vnto the offrynges) were exceadynge great allowes & howe it were possyble, that all these myght come vnder the kynges power.

Now when Appolonyus had shewed the kynge of the monye, as it was told hym: the kinge called for Heliodorus his stewarde, & sente him wyth a commaundement, to bringe him þ same money. Immediatly Heliodorus toke hys iourneye, but vnder a colour, as though he wolde go thorow Celosyria & Phenices to visit the cyties, but his purpose was to fulfyll the kynges pleasure. So when he came to Jerusalem, & was louyngly receaued of the hye preest into þ cyte: he told what was determined concerning the money, and shewed the cause of his co myng: he asked also, if it were so in dede. Then þ hie preest told him, that there was such money layed vp for the vpholdyng of widdowes and fatherlesse children, & howe that a certayne of it belonged vnto Hyrcanus Tobias a noble man: & that of all the monye (whyche that wycked Symon had bewrayed) there were. iii. hundreth talentes of syluer, and .fl. hundreth of golde: yea & that it were impossible for those mens meanynge to be dyscrased, þ had layd vp their money in the place and the pleas (whych is had in worshyp thorow the whole world) for the maruelous nesse and honoure of the same. Wherunto Heliodorus answered, that the kynge had commaunded hym in anye wyse, to bringe him the money.

So that the daye appointed, Heliodorus entered into the temple to order hys matter. But there was no smal feare throughout the whole cytye. The Preestes fell downe before the aulter in their vestymentes, and called vnto heauen vpon hym, whyche had made a lawe concernynge thinges geuen to kepe, that they shulde be safely preserued, for suche as committe them vnto keppynge. Then who so had loked the hye preest in the face, it would haue grieued his herte: For his countenance and the chaungynge of his colour, declared the inwarde sorowe of hys minde. The man was all in brusnesse, and hys body in feare: whereby they that loked vpō him, myght perceaue the griefe of hys herte. The other people also came out of their houses by heapes vnto the comō prayer, because the place was lyke to come into cōfusion. The wemē came together thorow the streetes, wyth heary clothes about their brestes.

The virgins also that were kepte in, ranne to Onias some to þ walles, other some loked out of the wyndowes: yea they all held vp their handes towarde heauē and prayed. A mysserable thynge was it, to loke vpon the comen people, & the hye preest beyng in suche trouble. But they besought almyghtye God that the goodes which were committed vnto them, myght be kepte whole, for those that had delyuered them vnto their keppynge. Nenertheles the thynge that Heliodorus was determined to do: that performed he in the same place, he hym selfe personallye beynge about the treasury wyth his men of warre. But þ spirit of almyghty God shewed hym selfe open, so that al they which presumed to obeye Heliodorus, fell thorow the power of God into a greate fearfulnesse & drede. For there apeared vnto thē an horse wyth a terrible man sittinge vpon hym, decked in goodly araye, and the horse smote at Heliodorus with his fore fete. Now he that sat vpon the horse, had harnesse of golde vpon him.

Moreouer, there appeared .ij. fayre & beautyfull young men in goodly araye, which stode by hym, scourged hym of both the sides and gaue hym many stroppes without ceasynge

ii. Mach. b. c. Wyth that fell Heliodorus sodenly vnto the K grounde. So they toke him vp (beynge com-passid about with greate darchnesse) & bare hym out vpon a beare. Thus he that came wyth so many runners and men of warre in to the sayde treasury was borne oute, where as no man myght helpe him: & so the power of God was manyfest and knowne. He laye thus downe also by the power of God, dest-tute of all hope and lyfe. And they praysed God, that he had shewed his power vpō his place and tēple, which a lyte afore was full of feare & trouble: and that thorow the reue-lacyon of the almyghtye Lorde it was fylled with ioye and gladnesse.

Then certayne of Heliodorus frēdes prai-ed Onias, that in all hast he wouldē cal vpō God, to graūte him his lyfe, which was ge-uynge vp the goost. So the hye preste cōsy-dered the matter, and lest the king shulde suspecte that the Jewes had done Heliodorus some euell: he offred an healthy offeryng for him. Now when the hye Preest had opfered his petition, the same yonge men in the same clothynge appeared, & stode beside Heliodo-rus, sayinge: Thanke Onias the hye preste, for hys sake hath the Lord graunted the thy lyfe: therfore seing & God hath scourged the Acts. xvii. c. geue hym prayse & thanckes, & shewe euery K man his myght & power. And when they had spoken these wordes they appeared nomore.

So Heliodorus offered vnto God, made greate vowes vnto him, wh̄ych had granted him his lyfe, thanked Onias, toke his hoaste & went agayne to the kynge. Then testifyed he vnto euery man of the greate workes of god, & he had seue with his eyes. And when the kynge asked Heliodorus who were mete to be sent yet once agayne to Jerusalem, he sayde: if thou hast any enemye or aduersarye vnto thy realme, sende him thither, and thou shalt haue hym punyshed, if he escape with his lyfe: for (no doute) there is a specyal power & worchyng of God. For he dwelleth in heauē, beholdeth & defendeth that place: and al that come to do it harme, he punysheth & plageth thē. This is now the matter concernyng Heliodorus, & the kepynge of the treasury at Jerusalem.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

¶ Simon reporteth & euil of Onias. Jason by kynge the office of the hye Preste vnto him. The kyng rewardeth the wicked.

A Hie Symon now (of whom we spake afore) beynge a bewray-er of the money and of his owne naturall countre, reported the thyngs of Onias: as though he had moued Heliodorus vnto thys and as though he had bene a kepynger vp of euell.
Thus was he not ashamed to call him an enemye of the realme, that was so faythfull an ouerseer & defender of the cite & of his people: yea & seruent in the lawe of God. But whē the malyce of Simon increased so farre that thorow his frendes there were certayne mansla[illegible]ers cōmitted: Onias considered the parel & might come thorow thys strife, & how that Appolonius (namely the chefe lord in Celosyria and Phenices) was all set vpon tyranny, and Symons malyce increased the same: He gat hym to the kynge, not as an accuser of the cytyzens, but as one that by hym selfe noted the comō wealth of the whole multytude. For he saw it was not possible to haue in peace, neither, Symon to leaue of frō
his folysshnesse, except the king did loke ther to. But after the deathe of Seleucus, when B Antiochus (which was called the noble) toke & kingedome: Jason the brother of Onias laboured to be hye preest: for he came vnto the kynge, and promised him thre hundreth & .lx.
talentes of syluer, & of the other rentes .lxxx.
talentes. Besides this he prompted hym yet an .C. & .L. if he myght haue the scole of the children, & that he myght call them of Jerusalem Antiochians. Wh ch when the kynge had graunted, & he had gotte the superiorite, he beganne immediatly to drawe his kynsme to the custome of the Heathē, put downe the thynges that the Jewes had set vp of loue,
by John the father of Eupolemius, whych was sente embassyatour vnto Rome, for to make the bonde of frendshippe and loue. He put downe all the Jewes & Lyberties of the Jewes, and set vp the wyched statutes. He durst make a fyghtynge scole vnder the castell, and set sayre yonge men to lerne the ma-ners of whyues and brothels.

This was now the begynnyng of & Hea- C thenysh & straunge conuersacio, brought in thorow the vngracyous & vnherde wyckednesse of Jason, whych should not be called a Preest, but an vngodly persone. In so muche that the preestes were now no more occupied about the seruyce of the aulter, but despysed
the temple, regarded not the offerynges: yea gaue their dylygence to learne to fyghte, to wrastle, to leape, to daunce, and to put at the stone: not settynge by the honoure of the fathers, but lyked the glory of the Greekes best of all: for the which they strout perlously, & were gredy to folow their statutes, yea their lust was in all thinges to be lyke thē, wh̄ych afore were their enemyes & destroyers. How be it to do wyckedly agaynst & law of God, shall not escape vnpunyshed: but of thys we shall speake here after.

What tyme as the * Olympiades (pastes D were playd at Tyrus (the kynge hym selfe * These were beynge present) this vngracyous Jason sent kepte euery wicked men, bearyng from them of Jerusa- fifthe yere.
lem (wh̄ych now were called Antiochyans)
iii. C. drachmas of syluer for an offryng to Hercules. These had they that carped them, desyred vnder suche a fashiō, as though they should not haue bene offered, but bestowed to other vses. Neuertheles he that sente them, sent them to the intente that they shoulde be offred vnto Hercules. But be cause of thole that were present, they were geuen as to the makynge

makyng of shyppes. And Appolonius the sonne of Nesteus was sent into Egipte, because of the noble men of kynge Ptolomy Philometor. Now when Antiochus perceyued that he was put out from medling in the realme, he sought hys owne profit, departed from thence, came to Joppa, & then to Hierusalem: where he was honorably receyued of Jason & the cytye, and was brought in with torche light and with great prayse: and so he turned his hoost vnto Phenices.

E After.iii. peace Jason sent Menelaus, the 4.Mac.iii.b. sowlesp Symons brother, to beare the money vnto the kyng, & to bringe him answere of other necessary matters. But he (when he was praysed of the kyng for magnifiynge of hys power) turned the priesthode vnto hym self, layng vp.iii.C talentes of syluer for Jason. So when he had gotte commaundemẽtes from the kyng, he came hauinge nothing that becommeth a priest, but bearing the stomache of a cruell tyraunt, and the wrath of a wylde beast. Then Jason (whiche had disceyued hys owne brother) seynge that he hym self was begyled also, was layne to ye into the lande of the Ammonites, & Menelaus gat the dominiõ. But as for the money that he had promised vnto the kynge, he dyd nothinge therein, when Sostratus the ruler of the castel required it of hym. For Sostratus was the man that gathered the customes: wherfore they were both called before the kyng. Thus was Menelaus put out of the priesthode, & Lysimachus hys brother came in hys stede. Sostratus also was made lord of the Cyprians.

It happened in the meane season, that the Tharsians & Mallocians made insurrection, because they were geuen for a present vnto kyng Antiochus concubyne. Then came the kyng in all the haste, to still them agayn, & to pacefye the matter, leauynge Andronicus there to be his debyte, as one mete therfore. Now Menelaus supposing that he had gotten a right conuenient tyme, stole certayne vessels of golde out of the temple, and gaue them to Andronicus for a present, and some he solde at Tyrus and in the cytyes thereby.

Which when Onias knewe of a suertye, he reproued hym: but he kept hym in a Sanctuary beside Daphnis, that lyeth by Antioche. Wherfore Menelaus gat hym to Andronicus, and prayed him that he wolde slay Onias. So when he came to Onias, he coũsayled hym craftely to come out of the Sanctuary, feynge him hys hande with an othe (how be it he suspecte him) and then he slew Onias, without any regarde of righteousnesse. For the which cause not onely the Jewes, but other nacions also toke indignacion, & were displeased for the vnrighteous death of so godly a man.

And when the kynge was come agayne from Cilicia, the Jewes and certayne of the Greekes wente vnto hym, complaynyng for the vnrighteous dath of Onias. Yea Antiochus him self was sory in his mynd for Onias, so that it pitied him, & he wepte, remembringe his sobernesse & manerly behauoure. Wherfore he was so kindled in hys mind, & commaunded Andronicus to be stripped out of his purple clothynge & so to be led thorow out all the cite: yea & the vngracious man to be slayne in the same place, where he cõmytted hys wyckednes vpon Onias. Thus the Lorde rewarded him his punyshment, as he had deserued. Now when Lysimachus had done many wicked dedes in the temple thorow the counsel of Menelaus, and the voice came abrode: the multytude gathered them together agaynste Lysimachus, for he had carryed out now much gold.

So when the people arose, and were full of displeasure, Lysimachus armed .iii. M. euthaites to defende him: a certaine tyraste beynge their captayne, whych was growen both in age & woodnesse. But when the people vnderstode the purpose of Lysimachus, some gat stones some good stronge clubbes, & some cast ashes vpon Lysimachus. Thus there were many of the wounded, some being slayne, & all the other chased awaye. But as for the wycked chyefrobber hym selfe, they killed hym beside ye treasury. Of these matters therfore there was kepte a courte agaynst Menelaus. Now when the kynge came to Tyrus, they made a complaynte vnto him of Menelaus, concernyng hys busynesse, and the embassadours were there. But Menelaus wet and prompted Ptolompe to geue hym much money, if he would persuade ye kyng. So Ptolomy went to the kyng into a courte, (where as he was set to cole him, and brought hym out of that mynde. In so much that he discharged Menelaus from the accusacyons, that not withstandynge, was cause of al mischefe: and those poore men, whych if they had told their cause, yea before the Scythias, they shoud haue bene iudged innocẽt, them he condemned to death.

Thus were they soone punyshed, whiche folowed vpon the matter for the cyte, for the people, and for the holy vessell. Wherfore they of Tyrus toke indygnacyon, and buryed them honorablye. And so thorowe the couetousnesse of them that were in power, Menelaus remayned styll in authoryte, increasynge in malyce, to the hurte of the cytezens.

¶ The.v. Chapter.

Of the signes and tokens seen in Jerusalem. Of the ende & office of Jason. The cruelnesse Antiochus agaynst ye Jewes. The spoylyng of ye holy

¶ At the same time Antiochus made hym ready to agayne into Egipt. Then were there seue at Jerusalem, xl. dayes longe, hauynge rennynge to and fro in the ayre, whych had rayment of golde, and speares. There were seue also whole hoostes of men ordeyned, & horses runnynge in an other, how they came together, how they helde forth there shildes, how the harnessed men drew out there swerdes, and shot their dartes.

The shyne of the golden weapens was seene, and of all maner of armure. Wherfore every man prayed, that those tokens myght turne to good. Now when there was gone forth a false rumoure, as though Antiochus had bene dead: Jason toke a .M. men, & came sodenly upon the cyte. The cytesins came into the walles, at the last was the cyte taken, & Menelaus fled into the castell.

As for Jason, he spared not hys owne cytesins in the slaughter, neither considered he what great cuell it were, to destroye the prosperite of hys own kynsmen: but dyd as one that had gotten the victory of hys enemyes, and not of his frendes. For all this gat he not the superioryte, but at the laste receyued confusion for hys malice, and fled agayne lyke a vagabunde into the lande of the Ammonytes.

Fynally, for a reward of his wickednesse he was accused before Aretha the kynge of the Arabians: In so much that he was fayne to fle from cyte to cyte, beynge despised of every man as a forsaker of the lawes, and an abhominable persone. And at the laste (as an open enemy of hys owne natural cuntrey and of the cytesins) he was dryuen into Egypte.

Thus he that afore put many out of their owne natural lande, perished from home him self. He went to Lacedemon, thynkynge there to haue gone succoure by reason of kynred. And he that afore had caste many one oute vnburyed, was throwen out hym self, no man mournynge for hym, nor puttynge him in his graue: so that he neyther enioyed the buriall of a stranger, neither was he partaker of hys fathers sepulchre.

Now when this was done the kynge suspected, that the Jewes wolde haue falle from hym: wherfore he came in a greate displeasure out of Egypte, and toke the cyte by violence. He commaunde hys men of warre alle that they should kyll and not spare, but slaye downe such as withstode them, & clymmed up upon the houses.

Thus was there a great slaughter of yong men, olde men, women, chyldren and virgines. In .iii. dayes were there slayne .lxxx. M. fourthy thousand put in prison, and no lesse solde. Yet was he not content with this, but durst go into the most holy temple (Menelaus that traytour to the lawes and to hys owne natural cuntrey, beynge his gyde) & with his wicked handes toke the holy vessel, which other kynges & cytes had geuen thyther for the garnishing & honour of the place ehem toke he in hys handes vnworthely, and despised them.

So madde was Antiochus, that he considered not, how that God was a litle wrothe for the synnes of them that dwelt in the cyte, for the which such confusion came upō that place. And why: if it had not happened them to haue bene lapped in many synnes, thys Antiochus (as soone as he had come) had sodenly bene punished, and shotte out for hys presumpcyon, lyke as Heliodorus was, whome Seleucus the kyng sent to robbe the treasury. Neuertheles God hath not chosen the people for the places sake, but the place for the peoples sake: and therfore is the place become partaker of the peoples trouble, but afterwarde shall it enioye the wealth of the. And lyke as it is now forsaken in the wrath of almyghty God, so when the great God is reconcyled, it shall be set vp in hys worshipe agayne. Judit.8.d. 2.Mach.3.

So when Antiochus had taken a .M. and viii. talentes out of the temple, he gatte hym to Antioche in all the haste, thynkynge in hys pryde, that he might make men saple upō the drye lande, and to go upō the sea, such an hye mynde had he. He lefte debyties there to vexe the people: At Hierusalem left he Philippe a Phrygian, in maners more cruel then him self that set him there: At Garysim he left Andronicus and Menelaus, which were more greuous to the cytesins then other. Nowe as he was thus set in malyce agaynste the Jewes, he sent Appollonius an haud prynce, wyth xxii. M. commaunding hym to slaye al those that were of perfect age, & to sell the wemē, maydes & chyldren. When he came now too Hierusalē, he fayned peace, & kepte him still vntil the Sabboth day. And then he cōmaunded hys mē to take thē to their weapēs (for the Jewes kept holy daye) & so he slewe all the were gone forth to the opē playe, rūning here & there thorow the cyte with hys mē weaponed, & murthered a great nūbre. But Judas Machabeus whyche was the tenth, fled into the wildernesse, led his life there with his cōpany amōg the wilde beastes & upō the mosse tapures, dwelling there, & eatynge grasse, lest they should be partakers of the filthynesse.

¶ The.vi. Chapter.

¶ The Jewes are compelled to leaue the lawe of God. The temple is defyled. The readers are moued that they shall not abhorre the ordenaūce wherwith the Lord afflicteth the. The grieuous payne of Eleazarus.

Not long after this, sent the kyng a messaunger of Antioche, for to cōpel the Jewes to alter the ordinaunces of the fathers & the lawe of God, to defile the temple that was at Hierusalē, & to cal it the tēple of Jupiter Olimpius: & that they shoulde be in Gazarim, as those which dwell at the place of Jupiter the herberous. This wicked sedicō of the vngodly was kepe upon all the people: for the tēple was ful of voluptuousnes, bubbinge & boiling of the Heathē, of ribaudes & harlottes together. The women went into the holy place, & bare in that was not lawfull. The aulter also was full of vnlawefull thynges wherby the

which the law forbiddeth to laie vpō it. The Sabboths were not kept, the other solempne feastes of the lande were not regarded. To be playn, there durst nomā be a knowen that he was a Jewe. In the day of ꝑ kinges birth they were cōpelled parforce to offer: & when the feast of Bachus was kept, they were cōstrayned to were garlandes of pupe, & so to go about for the honour of Bachus.

Moreouer thorow the counsail of Ptolomy there went out a cōmaundement in the nexte cyties of the Heathen, ꝑ they should intreate the Jewes in like maner: namely, to compel them for to do sacrifice after the lawes of the gentiles: & who so wolde not, to put them to death. A pyteous thinge was it to se. There were two womē accused to haue circūcided their sonnes, whom when they had led rounde about the citie (the babes hāging at their breastes) they cast them downe headlynges ouer ꝑ walles. Some that were crept into dennes & had kept ꝑ Sabboth, were accused vnto Philippe, & brent in the fyre: because that for the feare of God they kept the cōmaundemēt so stryctly, & wolde not defende the selues. Now I beseche all those which reade this boke, that they refuse it not for these falles of aduersite & iudge the thinges (that are happened) for no destruccio, but for a chastesinge of oure people. And why? When God suffereth not sinners lōg to folow their owne mynde, but shortly punisheth the, it is a toke of his great louing kyndnes. ffor this grace haue we of God more then other people, that he suffereth not vs lōg to sinne vnpunished like other nacions, that when the day of iudgement commeth, he may punish the in ꝑ fulnes of their sinnes. If we sinne, he correcteth vs, but he neuer withdraweth his mercy from vs: and though he punish with aduersite, yet doth he neuer forsake his people. But let this ꝑ we haue spoke now with few wordes, be for a warning & exhortacio of the Heathen. Now will we come to the declaring of the matter. Eleazar one of ꝑ principal Scribes, an aged man of a well fauored countenaūce, was cōstrayned to gape with open mouth & to eate swynes flesh. But he desiring rather to dye gloriously then to lyue with shame, offered him self willingly to the martyrdom. Nowe when he saw that he muste nedes go to it, he toke it paciently: for he was at a poynt with him self, that he wolde cōsent to no vnlawful thing for any pleasure of life. Then they that stode by being moued with pitie (but not aright) for the olde frēdship of ꝑ man, toke him aside priuely, & prayed him that he wolde let suche flesh be brought him as were lawfull to eate & make a countenaūce as though he had eaten of the flesh of ꝑ sacrifice like as ꝑ king cōmaunded, for so he might be deliuered frō deathe: so for the olde frēdship of ꝑ man, they shewed him this kyndnes. But he began to cōsider his discrete & honorable age, his noble & worshipful stoke, & how that frō his youth he had ben of an honest & good conuersacion: yea, how costantly had kept the ordinaunces & lawes cōmaunded by God, wherfore he gaue the this answere, & sayde: Yet had I rather forth be layed in my graue. ffor it becōmeth not myne age (sayde he) in any wyse to dissemble, wherby many yōg persones might thinke, that Eleazar being .lxxv. yeare olde & .x. were now gone to a straūge life: & so thorow myne hypocrisy (for a litle time of a transitory life) they might be disceyued by thys meanes also shulde I defile myne age, and make it abhominable. ffor though I were now deliuered frō the tormentes of men, yet shoulde I not escape the hande of almighty God, neither alyue nor dead. Wherefore I will dye manfully, & do as it becommeth myne age: Wherby I may peraduenture leaue an example of stedfastnes for such as be yōg, if I with a ready mynde & manfully dye an honest death, for the most worthy & holy lawes.

When he had sayde these wordes, immediatly he was drawen to the torment. Nowe they that led him & were mylde alitle afore, beganne too take displeasure because of the wordes that he sayde: for they thought he had spoken them of an hygh mynde. But whē he was in his martirdome, he mourned & sayde: Thou (O Lord) which hast the holy knowlege, knowest openly that where as I might be deliuered from death, I suffer these sore paynes of my body: but in my mynde I am wel content too suffre them, because I feare the. Thus this man dyed, leauynge the memoriall of his death for an example, not only vnto yong men, but vnto all the people, too be stedfast and manly.

The.vii. Chapter.

The punishment of the .vii. brethren and of their mother.

IT happened also ꝑ there were .vii. brethē (with their mother taken) & cōpelled by the kynge against ꝑ law, to eate swynes flesh: namely with scourges & lethē whippes. And one of the which was the chiefe, sayde: What seketh thou, & what requyrest thou of vs? As for vs we are ready rather to suffre death, then too offende ꝑ lawes of God & the fathers. Then was ꝑ king angry, & bad heat caudrons & brasen portes. Which whē they were made hote immediatly he cōmaunded the tōge of hym ꝑ spake first to be cut out, to pul ꝑ skynne ouer hys head, to pare of the edges of his hāndes & fete: yea, and that in the sight of hys mother & the other of his brethē. Now whē he was cleane marred, he commaunded a fyre to be made, and so whyle there was any breath in him) to be fried in the caudron. In the which when he had brent longe payned, the other brethren with their mother exhorted hym to dye manfully, saying: The Lorde God shall regarde the truely, and comforte vs, like as Moses testifieth and declareth in hys song, saying: and he will haue compassion on his seruauntes.

So when the first was dead after this maner, they brought the seconde to haue hym in derysion, pulled the chyrne with the heare out of his heade, & asked him, if he would eate swynes flesh, or he were punished in the other membres also throughout the body. But he answered boldly, and sayed: I will not do it And so was he tormented like as the first, and when he was euen at the geuing vp of the goost he sayde: Thou moste wycked persone puttest vs now to death, but the kynge of the worlde shall raise vs vp (which dye for his lawes) vnto the resurrection of euerlastinge life.

After hym, was the thirde had in derysion: and when he was required, he put out his tonge, and that ryght soone, holdynge forth his handes manfully, and spake with a stedfast faith: These haue I of heauen, but nowe for the lawe of God I despyse them, for my trust is, that I shall receaue them of hym agayne. In so much that the kynge and they which were with hym, marueled at the ponge mans boldnesse, that he nothynge regarded the payne.

Now when he was dead also, they vexed the fourth with tormentes in lyke maner. So when he was now at his death, he sayde: It is better that we benge put to death of men, haue oure hope and trust in God, for he shal raise vs vp agayne. As for the, thou shalte haue no resurrection to lyfe.

And when they had spoken to the fyfth, they tormented him. Then loked he vnto the kynge, & sayde: thou hast power among men, for thou arte a mortall man also thy selfe, to do what thou wilt, but thynke not that God hath forsaken oure generacyon. Abyde the, tary styll a whyle, and thou shalt se the great power of God, how he wil punish the & thy kynde. After hym they brought the fyfte, whych benge at the poynte of death, sayde: Be not deceaued (O kyng) for this we suffer for oure owne sakes, because we haue offended oure God, & therfore marueylous thynges are shewed vpon vs. But thynke not thou, whyche takest in hande to stryue agaynst God, that thou shalt escape vnpunished.

This excellent mother (worthy to be well reported of, and had in remembraunce for swe her seuen sonnes dye in one day, and suffred it paciently, because of the hope that she had in God: yea she exorted euery one of them in effectuall, and that boldlye and stedfastlye to persyst vnto the ende, wakynge vp her wyttes thoughte with a manlye stomake, and sayde vnto them: I can not tell how ye came in my wombe, for I neither gaue you breth nor soule nor lyfe. It is not I & ioyned & members of your bodyes together, but the maker of the worlde, which fashioned & breth of man, & begatte all thynges. Euen he also of his owne mercy shal geue you breath and lyfe agayne like as ye now regard not your owne selues for his lawes sake.

Now thynketh Antiochus that she had despised him, therfore he let her go with her reproues, and beganne to exhorte the yongest sonne (which yet was left) not only with wordes but swore vnto him with an oth, that he should make him a rich and welthy man (if he wolde forsake the lawes of his fathers) yea and & he should geue him, what so euer were necessary for him. But when the ponge man woulde not be moued, for al these thinges he called his mother, and counceled her to saue her sonnes life. And whē he had exhorted her with many wordes, she prouoked him that she should speake vnto her sonne. So she turned her vnto him (laughinge the cruel tirant to scorne) and spake with a bolde voyce: O my sonne, haue pitie vpon me, that bare the .ix. monethes in my wombe, that gaue the sucke, norysshed the and brought the vp vnto this age.

I beseech the (my sonne) loke vpon heauen and earth and all that is therein, and consyder, that God made them and mans generacyon of nought: so shalte thou not feare thys hangman, but sufferr death stedfast lye, lyke as thy brethren haue done: that I may receaue the againe in the same mercy with thy brethren.

Whyle she was yet speakynge these wordes, the ponge man sayd: Whom loke ye for? Wherfore do ye tarye? I will not obeye the kynges commaundement, but the lawe that God gaue vs by Moyses. As for the that imagynest all mischefe agaynst the Jewes, thou shalte not escape the hande of God, for we suffer these thinges, because of our sinnes

And though God be angry with vs a lytle whyle (for our chastenynge and reformacyon) yet shall he be at one agayne with his seruauntes. But thou. (O shamefull and most abhominable persone.) Pryde not thy selfe thorow vayne hope, in beynge so malycious vpon the seruauntes of God: for thou hast not yet escaped the iudgmēt of the God whyche is almyghty, and seyth all thynges. My brethren that haue suffred a lytle payne are now vnder the couenaunt of euerlasting lyfe: but thorow the iudgment of God, thou shalt be punished ryghteously for thy pryde

As for me (like as my brethren haue done) I offer my soule and my bodye for the lawes of our fathers, callynge vpon God, that he wyll soone be mercyful vnto our people: yea and with payne and punysshemente to make the graunt, that he only is God. In me now and in my brethren the wrath of almyghtye God is at ende, whyche ryghteouslye is fallen vpon all our people.

Then the kynge beynge kyndled in anger was more cruell vpon him then vpon all the other, and toke indignacyon, that he was so lyghtly regarded. So this ponge man deed vndefyled, & put his truste styll in the Lorde. Last of all after the sonnes, was the mother put to to deth also. Let this now be ynough spoken, spoken, concernynge the ouerpuges, and extreme cruelnesse.

¶ The .viii. Chaptre.

Judas gatherith together hys hoost. Nicanor is set against Judas. Judas exhorteth his souldyars to cõfidence. Nicanor to ouercome. The Jewes gyue thãkes after they haue put their enemyes to flyght, deuyding the spoiles vnto the fatherles and vnto ỹ widowes. Nicanor sendith vnto Antiochus.

WHen Judas Machabeus and they that were with him, went preuelye into the townes called theyr kynsfolkes and frendes together, toke vnto them al such as cõtinued yet in ỹ faith & law of ỹ Jewes & broughte furth. vi. M. men.

So they called vpon the Lorde, that he would haue an eye vnto hys people, whych was trodden downe of euery man be garcyous vnto the temple, that was defyled of the vngodlye: to haue compassion vpon the destruccyon of the cyty, whiche was shoulde lyke to be layed waste, to heare the voyce of the bloude that cryed vnto him: to remembre the most vnryghteous deathes of yonge innocent chyldre, the blasphemyes also done vnto his name, and to punysh them.

2.Mac.viii.a. Nowe when Machabeus had gathered thys multytude together, he was to myghty for the Heathen (for the wrathe of the Lorde was turned into mercye) he fell vpon the townes and cytyes vnwares, brente them toke the most commodyous places and slew many of the enemyes. But specyallye he made suche chases by nyghte, in so much that hys manlynesse was spoken of euery B where.

So when Philippe sawe that the manne increased by lytle and lytle, and that the matter prospered with him for the moste parte: he wrote vnto Ptolomye (whych was a captayne in Celosiria & Phenyces) to helpe him in the kynges busynes. Then sente he Nicanor Patrocly (a specyall frende of hys) in all the haste, and gaue him of the comen soute of the Heathen no lesse then .xx. M. harnessed men, to rote out the whole generacyon of the Jewes. Haynge to helpe him one Gorgias a man of warre, whych in matters concernynge battayles had great experience.

Nycanor ordered also ỹ tribute (whych the Romaynes should haue had) to be gruen vnto the kynge out of the captyuytye of the Jewes, namely .ii. M. talentes. And immediatlye he sente to the cityes of the sea coost, requyrynge them for to bye Jewes to be their seruauntes & bonde men, promisynge to sell the .lxx. and ten for one talentent: but he cõsydered not the wrath of almyghtye God, ỹ C was to come vpon him.

When Judas knewe of thys, he tolde the Jewes that were with him of Nicanors comynge. Nowe were there some of them fearfull, not trustynge vnto the ryghteousnes of God and fled their awaye.

But the other that remayned, came together and besought the Lorde, to deliuer them from that wycked Nicanor, which had solde them or euer he came nye them: and though he wolde not do it for their sakes, yet for the couenaunte that he made with theyr fathers and because he called vpon hys holye and glorious name. And so Machabeus called his men together, namely about .vi. M. exortyng them not to agree vnto their enemies nether to be afrayed for the multytude of their aduersaryes commynge agaynst them vnryghteously: but to fight manly, considerynge the iniurye that they had done to the holye place without cause, howe they had defyled and oppressed the cyty, yea & destroyed the lawes of the fathers. For they (sayde he) trust in Jere.xlvi.b. their weapens and boldnesse, but oure con- Psal.xx.b. fidence is in the almyghtye Lorde, whyche in the twynclynge of an eye maye borne destroye them that come agaynste vs, and all the worlde.

He exorted them also to cal to remembrance the healpe, that God shewed vnto their fathers, as when ther perished an .C. & lxxxv. D .iii.reg.xix.g. M. of Senacheribs people: And of ỹ batayll Esa.xxxvii.f. ỹ they had in Babylo against ỹ Gallacyans: 1.Mach.iii.c how ỹ all the Macedonians ỹ came to helpe the, stode in feare: & how they being but only vi. M. slewe an .C. & xx. M. thorow the helpe that was gruen them from heauen, wherby they also had receaued many benefites.

Thorow these wordes the men toke good hertes vnto them, readye to dye for the lawe & the countre. So he set vpon euery companye a captayne, one of hys owne brethre Symo, Joseph & Jonathas: geuynge eche one .lv. E. men. He caused Esdras also to reade the holye boke vnto them, and to gyue them a token of the helpe of God.

Then he him selfe being captayn in ỹ fore 1.Mac.iiii.b. front of the battayll, buckled with Nicanor. And God was their helpe, in so muche that they slewe aboue .xx. M. men & compelled ỹ more parte of Nicanors hoost to flye, they were so wounded & feable. Thus they toke the F money from those that came to bye the, and folowed vpon them on euery syde. But whe the tyme came vpon them, they returned, for it was the Sabboth, and therefore they folowed nomore vpon them. So they toke their weapens & spoyles, and kept the Sabboth, geuynge thankes vnto the Lorde, whych had delyuered them that daye, and shewed them Nume.xxxi.d his mercy. After the Sabboth they distribu- i.Reg.xxx.f. ted the spoyles to the sicke, to the fatherlesse Deut.xx.b. and to wyddowes, and the residue had they them selues with theire. Whe this was done, and they all had made a generall prayer: they besoughte the mercyfull Lorde to be at one with his seruauntes.

Of those also that were with Timotheus and Bachides, which fought agaynste them, they slewe .xx. M. manne hye and strong fel- G lowes, and despoyled no spoyles: euer geuynge an equal porcion vnto the ſuche, to ỹ fatherleſs, to widowes ỹ to aged perſons. And whē

F they had diligently gathered their weapens together, they laied them all in conuenient places, ỹ the remnaūt of the ſpoiles brought they to Hierusalem. They ſlew Philarches that wicked perſonne, which was with Ty motheus, and had vexed many Jewes. And when they helde the thankesgeuing at Jeruſalē for the victory, they brent thoſe that had ſet fyre on the portes of the temple: namely Calliſthenes, which was fled into an houſe: and ſo they gat a worthy rewarde for their wickednesse. As for that moſte vngracious Nicanor, which had brought a thouſād mar chauntes, to bye the Jewes, he wan thorow the helpe of the Lorde broughte doune euen of them whome he regarded not: in ſo much that he put of hys glorious rayment, fled by ſea, and came alone to Antyoche, with great ſhame and dishonour, which he gat thorow the deſtruccō of his hooſt. Thus he that preſumed the Romaynes to paye them their tribute, when he tooke Hierusalem: began now to ſaye plainely, that God was the defender of the Jewes, ỹ therfore not poſſible to wouīd them, because they folowed the lawes which God had made.

¶ The.ix.Chapter.

¶ Antiochus willing to ſpoile Perſepolis is driue to flight. As he perſecuteth the Jewes, he is ſtriken of the Lord. The layned repentaunce of Antiochus. He dyeth.

AT the ſame tyme came Antiochus agayne with dishonoure out of Perſia. For whē he came to Perſepolis, ỹ vnderſtode to robbe the temple ỹ to ſubdue the cyte, the people ran together ỹ defēded them ſelfe, in ſo much that he ỹ his were fayn to flē with ſhame. And ſo after ỹ flight it happened, that Antiochus came agayn to dishonour. But when he came to Ecbatana he gat knowlege what was happened vnto Nycanor ỹ Timotheus. Now as he was auaūcing hym ſelf in his wrath, he thoughte he was able to auēge the iniury that was done to them, vpon the Jewes: and therfore cōmaunded to make redy hys charet, haſtyng on hys iourney wythoute ceaſſynge, the iudgement of God prouokinge hym, becauſe he had ſpoken ſo proudly, that he wolde come to Hierusalem, and make it a graue of the Jewes. But the Lorde God of Iſrael, that ſeeth all thynges, ſmote hym with an vnſeyble plague, whyche no man coulde heale.

B For as ſoone as he had ſpoken theſe wordes, there came vpon hym an horrible payne of hys bowels, and a ſore griefe of the tharmes. And that was but right: for he had martyred other mens bowels with dyuerſe and ſtraunge tormentes, howbe it he wolde in no wyſe ceaſe from his malice. Yea, he was yet the prouder and more malycious againſt the Jewes: But whyle he was commaundynge to make haſte in the matter, it happened that he fell doune vyolently frō the charet, ſo that it bruſed hys body, and dyd hym great payne.

And ſo he that thoughte he myghte commaūde the floudes of the ſea (ſo proude was he beyonde the condicīō of mā) and to weye the hygh mountaynes in a payre of ſcoales, was now broughte doune to the grounde, ỹ caried vpon an hoſlytter, knowlegynge the manifeſte power of God vpon hym: ſo that the wicked body of hys was ful of wormes whyche in hys payne, fell gupcke out of hys fleſh: In ſo much that hys hooſt was greued with the ſmell and ſtynche of hym. Thus he Act.xii.
that a litle a fore thought he myght reach to the ſtarres of heauen, hym myghte no man now abyde nor beare, for the vehemence of ſtynke.

Therefore he begynge brought from hys great pryde, began for to come to the knowC lege of hym ſelf: for the punyſhment of God warned hym, and hys payne increaſed euer more and more. And when he him ſelf might not abyde hys owne ſtynche, he ſayde theſe wordes: It is reaſon to be obedient vnto God and that a man deſyre not too be lyke vnto hym. Thys wycked perſon prayed alſo vnto the Lord, of whome he ſhoulde haue optayned no mercy. And as for the cite ỹ he came vnto ſo haſtely, to bryng it doune to ỹ groūd and to make it a graue for dead men: now he deſyreth to deliuer it fre.

D And as touching the Jewes, whom he had iudged not worthy to be buryed, but wolde haue caſt them out for to be deuoured of the foules ỹ wilde beaſtes, ſaying, that he wolde haue deſtroyed both olde and yong: Now he promiſeth, to make them lyke the cyteſins of Athens. And where as he had ſpoiled the holy temple afore, now he maketh promyſe too garnith it with greate gyftes, to increaſe the holy ornamentes, and of hys owne rentes to beare the coſtes, and charges belonginge to the offeringes: yea, and that he wold alſo become a Jewe hym ſelfe, to go thorowe euery place of the worlde, and to preach the power of God.

But when hys payne wolde not ceaſſe, (for the rightfous iudgemente of God was D come vpō hym) out of a very deſpaire he wrote vnto the Jewes a letter of interceſſiō, conteynynge theſe wordes: The kyng and prince Antiochus wyſheth vnto the vertuous cyteſyns of the Jewes, muche health and good proſperitie.

If ye and youre children fare well, and if all thynges go after your mynde: we geue great thankes. In my ſickenesſe alſo do I remembre you louingly: for as I came oute of Perſya, and was taken with ſore diſeaſe: I thought it neceſſary to care for the commen wealth. Not yther deſpaire I in my ſelfe, but haue a good hope to eſcape this ſickenes.

But conſiderynge that my father led an

hoost sometyme in the hyer places, and shewed who should reygne after hym, that if there happened any controuersy or any harde thynge were declared they in the land might know their chefe lorde, that there should be no insurrection: Agayne, when I ponder by my selfe, how that all the myghtye men and L neighbours rounde aboute, are layeng wayte, and loke but for opportunitie to do harme: I haue ordeyned that my sonne Antpochus shal raigne after me, whom I ofte commended to many of you, when I was in the hyer kyngdomes, and haue wrytten vnto hym as it foloweth hereafter. Therfore I praye you and requyre you, to remembre the benefytes that I haue done vnto you generally and in especyal. For I hope that he shal be of sober & louynge behauioure, & if he folowe my doctryne, he shal be indyfferent vnto you.

Daniel.viij.c This that murtherer and blasphemare of God was sore smytten: & lyke as he had intreated other men, so he dyed a myserable death in a straunge countre vpō a mountaine. And his body vpō Philyppe (that went with hym) carp awaye: which fearynge the sonne of Antpochus, wente into Egypte to Ptolomy Philometor.

¶ The.v. Chapter.

¶ Judas Machabeus taketh the city & the temple. He beginneth to dewe ꝑ actes of Eupator. The Jewes fight against the Idumeans: Timotheus maketh Jewry, with whō Judas Machabeus fyrst mete apereth in the ayre to the helpe of the Jewes. Timotheus is slayne.

A (Mach.iiij.e Machabeus now and hys compaynie (thorow the helpe of the lorde) wanne the temple and the cytye agayne, dystroyed the altares & chapels ꝑ the Heathen had buylded thorow the stretes: clensed ꝑ tēple, made a nother alter of hewen stone, & after .ij. yeares they offred sacrifyces, set forth the mesle, the lyghtes & shewe bred. When that was done they fell downe flate vpon the grounde, and besought the Lorde, that they myght come nomore into such trouble: but if they synned any more against hym he him selfe to chasten them with mercye, and not to come in the hādes of those aleauntes and blasphemous men.

End.xx.d.

Now vpon the same daye that the straungers polluted the temple, it happened that on the verye same daye it was clensed agayne: namely, the .xxv. daye of the moneth called (Mach.iiij.f Casleu. They kepte .viij. dayes in gladnesse
B lyke as in ꝑ feast of the tabernacles: remembryng that not longe afore, they helde the feast of the tabernacles vpō the mountaines and in dennes lyke beastes. And to the same token they bare grene bowes, braunches and palmes before him that had geuen the good fortune to clense hys place they agreed all so together, and made a statute, that euerye yeare those dayes should be solemnly kept of al the people of the Jewes.

Now Antpochus then (that was called the noble) dyed, it is sufficiently tolde. Now will we speake of Nicanor the sonne of that wicked Antiochus, howe it happened with hym: and so with few wordes to comprehend the aduersitye that chaunced in the warres. When he had taken the kingdome, he made one Lysias (which had bene captayne of the hoost in Phenices and Syria) ruler ouer the matters of the realme. For Ptolompe that was called Macron, bepnge a ruler for the Jewes (and specially, to spt in iudgment for such wronge as was done vnto them) vnder toke to deale peaceably with them. For the whyche cause he was accused of the frendes before Eupator: and when he was suspecte to be a traytoure (because he had left Cipres that Philometor had committed vnto hym: and because he departed from noble Antpochus, that he was come vnto) he poysoned him selfe, and dyed.

Now when Gorgias was gouernoure of the same places, he toke straungers and vndertoke of tymes to warre with the Jewes. Moreouer the Idumeans that helde ꝑ stronge holdes, receyued those that were dryuen from Jerusalem, and toke in hande to warre also. But they that were with Machabeus besought and prayed vnto the Lorde, that he would be their helper: and so they fel into the stronge holdes of the Idumeans, and wanne many places by strength: Suche as came against them they slew, and kylled to (1.Mach.v.a. lesse (of all together) then twentye thousand. Neuertheles some, no lesse then nyne thousande, were fled into two stronge towers, hauynge all maner of ordynaunce to withstande them.

D Then Machabeus leauyng Symon, Joseph⁹, Zacheus and those that were with them (which were very many) wel to besege them, and to fyghte where moste nede was. Nowe they that were with Symon beynge ledde with couetousnesse, were intreated for money, thorowe certayne of those that laye in ꝑ towers: toke .lxx. M. Drachmas, & let some of them escape. But when it was tolde Machabeus what had happened, he called the captaynes of the people together, accusynge those persones, ꝑ they had solde their brethren for money, and lette their enemyes go. So he slewe those traytoures, and immediatly wente in hande with the .ij. towers. And when they had ordred the seruice manly with their weapons and handes, they slewe in the two castels moo then twentye thousande.

Now Timotheus whome the Jewes had (1.Mach.v.b. ouercome afore, gathered a multytude of (2.Mac.viij.d straunge people, brought an hoost also of horsmen of the Asians, to wynne Jewry by strength. But when he drewe nye, Macha- E sought the Lorde that he woulde be mercyfull to them, but an enemye vnto their enemyes, and to take parte agaynst their aduersaryes, accordynge as it is promysed in the lawe. So after the prayer, they wente on further from the cytye: and when they came nye the enemyes, they prepared them selues agaynst them.

Jerr.xvii.b And by tymes in the mornynge at the breake of the daye, both the hoostes buckled together. The one parte had the Lorde for their refuge, whyche is the geuer of prosperytye, strength and victorye. The other had a manlye stomache, whyche is a captayne of warre.

iii.Reg.xi.a 1.Mac.iii.f. and.xi.b. The battayll nowe beynge greate, there appeared vnto the enemyes from heauen.v. men vpon horsbackes wyth bridels of gold ledynge the Jewes, and two of them hauyng Machebeus betwixte them, that kepte hym safe on euery syde wyth they weapens, but shot dartes and lyghtynynges vpon the enemyes: were thorowe they were confounded wyth blyndnesse & so sore afrayed, that they fell downe. There were slayne of fote men twentye thousande and syxe hundreth, and syxe hundreth horsmen. As for Timotheus F him selfe, he fled vnto Gazar a very stronge holde, wherein Cereas was captayne. But Machebeus and his company layed sege to it chearfully.xx.dayes.

Wyth thys was done they sung Psalmes, with prayses and thankesgeuynges vnto the Lorde, which had done so greate thynges for Israel, and geuen them the victorye.

¶ The.xi. Chapter.

Lysias goeth about to ouercome the Jewes but ouer is sent fro hens vnto the Jewes. The letter of Lysias to the Jewes. A letter of kyng Antiochus vnto Lysias. A letter of the same vnto the Jewes. A letter of the Romaines to the Jewes.

A Not longe after this, Lysyas the kynges stewarde and a kynsman of his (which had the gouernaunce of his matters) toke sore displeasure for the thynges that had happened: & whē he had gathered.lxxx. M. men of fote vnto all the hoste of the horsmē, he came against the Jewes, thynckynge to wynne the cytye, & to make it an habytacyon for the Heathen, and the temple would he haue to be an house of lucre, lyke as the other goddes houses of the Heathen are, & to sell the priestes of yere euery yeare: Not consyderyng the power of God, but was wylde in hys myude trustynge in the multytude of fote men, in thousandes of horsemen, and in hys.lxxx. Elephantes. John.8.A. Esa.xxxvi.b. B

So he came into Jewry and then to Bethsura, a castell of defence lyenge in a narowe place, v. furlonges from Jerusalem) & wanne it. Now when Machebeus and hys cōpany knewe that the stronge holdes were taken, they fell to their prayers wyth weppynge and teares before the Lorde: and all the people in lyke maner besought him, that he woulde sende a good angell to delyuer Israell. Machabeus hym selfe was the fyrste that made him ready to the battayll, exortynge the other that were wyth him, to ieoparde them selues and to helpe their brethren. And when they were gonge forth of Jerusalem together with a redy and wyllyng mynde, there apeared before thē vpon horsbacke a mā in whyte clothynge with harnesse of golde, shakynge his speare. Then they prayed the Lorde all together, which had shewed them mercy, & were comforted in their myndes: in so much that they were ready, not only to fyght wyth men, but wyth the most cruell beastes, yea & to runne thorow walles of yron. ii.Mach.xi. ii.Mach.xi.

Thus they wente on willyngly haupnge C an helper from heauen, and the Lorde mercyfull vnto them. They fell myghtely vpon their enemyes lyke lyōs, broughte downe.xi. M. fote men.xvii. C. horsmen, put all the other to flyght, many of them beynge wounded, and some gat away naked. Yea Lysyas hym selfe was fayne to flie shamefullye, and so to escape. Neuertheleſſe the man was not without vnderstandynge, but consydered by hym selfe that his power was mynished and pondred how the Jewes beinge defended by the helpe of Almyghty God, were not able to be ouercome: wherfore he sent the worde, and promysed, that he wolde cōsente all thynges which were reasonable, & to make the kyng their frende. To the which prayer of Lysyas Machabeus agreed seynge in all thynges the comen wealth: and whatsoeuer Machabeus wrote vnto Lysyas concernynge the Jewes, the kynge graūted it. For there were letters wrytte vnto the Jewes from Lysyas cōteining these wordes. D

Lysias sendeth greetynge to the people of the Jewes. John and Absalon whiche were sent from you, delyuered me wrytynges, & requyred me to fulfyll the thynges concernynge their erande. Therefore loke what might be graunted, I certyfyed the kynge ther of: & what so euer was conuenient. I agreed ther to. If ye now wyll be saythfull in your mat ters, I shal endeuer my selfe hereafter also to do you good. As concerninge other thinges by euery article therof: I haue comitted the to youre messaungers, and to those whom I sēt vnto you, to comen with you of the same, fare ye well. In the hundreth. q.xlviii. yeare & .xviii. day of & moneth Dioscorinthius.

Nowe the kynges letter conteyned these wordes. Kynge Antiochus sendeth greetynge vnto his brother Lisias. ffor so much as our father is nowe deade, ours wyll is, that they which are in oure realme, lyue wythout any mislercepon, and euery man to be dylygente in his owne matters. We vnderstande also, that the Jewes wolde not consent to our father, for to be brought vnto the custome of the Gentyles, but rather to kepe their owne statutes: for the which cause they requyre of vs also, to lette them remayne styll by their owne lawes.

Wherefore oure mind is, that this people shalbe in rest: we haue concluded and determined also, to restore the their tēple agayne: that they maye lyue accordynge to the vse & custome of their fore fathers. Thou shalt do vs a pleasure therefore, if thou sende vnto them and agree with them: that whē they are certyfyed of our mynd, they may be of good chere, and loke to their owne wealth.

And this was the letter, that the kynge wrote vnto the Jewes: Kyng Antiochus sendeth gretynge vnto the councell and & other people of & Jewes. If ye fare wel, we haue our desyre: as for vs, we are in good health. Menelaus came and told vs, how that youre desyre was to come downe to youre people, which are with vs.

Wherefore those that wyll come, we gaue them fre lybertye, vnto the. xxx. daye of the moneth of Aprill, that they may vse the meates of the Jewes and their owne lawes, like as afore: and none of them by ayne maner of wayes to haue harme, for thynges done in ignorance. Menelaus whom we haue sent vnto you, shal comē with you at large. ffare ye well. In the. cxlviii. yeare, the. xv. day of the moneth of Aprill.

The Romaynes also sent a letter, conteynynge these wordes: Quintus Memmius and Titus Manilius embassadours of the Romaynes, sende gretynge vnto the people of the Jewes. Loke what Lisias the kynges kynsman hath graunted you, we graunt you the same also. But as concerning the thinges which he referred vnto the kyng, send hither some with speede: and ponder the matter dylygently among youre selues, that we maye call & best to youre profyte, for we must departe nowe vnto Antioche. And therfore wyll ye shortly agayne, that we may know youre mynde. ffare well. In the hundreth. xlviii. yeare, the. xv. day of the moneth of April.

¶ The.xi. Chapter.

¶ Timotheus troubleth the Jewes. The wicked do ayde of the Jewes against the Jewes. Judas is ouercome of them. He fasteth lyeth on the gate of Jamnia. The pursute of the Jewes against Timothy. A mother is taken and let go agayne. Judas pursueth Gorgias. Judas offeryng sacrifice for the dead, declareth the hope of the resurrection.

When these couenaūtes were made: Lysias wente vnto the kyng, and the Jewes tilled their ground. But Timotheus, Apollonius the sonne of Genneus, Jerome & Demophon the proude, Nicanor the captayne of Cyprus, and they that lay in those places: would not let them lyue in rest & peace. They of Joppa also dyd euen suche a shameful dede. They prayed the Jewes that dwelt amonge them, to go with their wyues and chyldren into & shippes which they had prepared, and did with them, as though they had ought the no euel will. ffor so much then as ther was gone forth a generall proclamation throwe the city because of peace, they consented therto, & suspected nothynge: but whē they were gon forth into the depe, they drowned no lesse then. ii. C. of them.

Whē Judas knew of this cruelte shewed vnto his people, he commaunded those that were with him to make thē redy, exhorting them to call vpon God the ryghteous iudge: went forth agaynst those murtherers of his brethren, set fyre in the haue by nyghte, burnt vp the shippes, and those that escaped from the fyre, he slew with the sweard. And when he had done thys, he departed as though he woulde come againe, and rote out al them of Joppa. But when he had gotten word that the Jamnites were minded to do in like maner vnto the Jewes which dwelt amōg thē, he came vpon the Jamnites the night, & sette fyre in the haue wyth the shippes: so that the the lyght of the fyre was sene at Jerusalem, vpon a. ii. C. and xl. furlonges.

Now when they were gone from thence. xx. furlonges, in their iourney towarde Timotheus. b. thousande men of fote and. b. hundreth horsemen of the Arabians fought wyth hym. So whē the battayll was earnest and prospered with Judas throwe the helpe of God: the resydue of the Arabyans beyng ouercome, besought Judas be at one with them, & promysed to geue hym certayne pasture, and to do hym good in other thinges Judas thynckynge that they should in deede be profytable concernynge many thynges, promysed them peace: wher vpon they shoke handes, and so they departed to their tentes. Judas wente also vnto a cyte, whyche was very fayre kepte with bulwerkes, fensed rounde about with walles, & diuerse kindes of people dwelling therin, called Caspin.

They that were within, put their trust in the strength of the walles, & in their stores of vytayles: but they were the slacker in their doynges, cursynge & vsynge Judas with blasphemyes, and speakynge suche wordes as it becommeth not. But Machabeus cal-hynge vpon the greate Pynne of the worlde (wlych wythoute any battaylle rammes or ordynaunce of warre, dyd caste downe the walles of Jericho, in the tyme of Josue) fell manfully vpon the walles, toke the city, and (thorow the helpe of the Lorde) made an exceadyng greate slaughter: In so much that a lake of two fourlonges brode whyche lape thereby, semed to flowe wyth the bloude of the slayne. Josue.vi.c

Then departed they from thence.bij.C.& L.furlonges, and came to Caraca vnto the Jewes that are called Tubianei. But as for Timotheus, they coulde not get him ther for(one matter dyspatched) he was departed from thence, and had lefte certayne men in a very stronge holde. But Dositheus & Sosipater, whyche were Captaynes wyth Machebeus, slewe those ỳ Timotheus had left in the houle of defence, euen.x. M. men. And Machebeus prepared hym wyth the.bi M. men that were aboute hym, set them in order by companyes, and wente forthe against Tymotheus, which had with him an hundreth and .xx. M. men of fote.ii. M. and D. C. horsemen.

D When Timotheus had knowledge of Judas comynge, he sent the women, chyldren, and the other baggage vnto a castell called Carnion. (For it coulde not be won, & was harde to come vnto, the wayes of the same places were so narrowe) and whē Judas cōpany came fyrst in syght, the enemyes were smytten with feare, thorowe the presence of God which seeth all thynges: In so much that they sleynge one here, another there, were Judith.bij.f 1.Mcg.viii.c 2.Paral.xx.d rather discomfited of their owne people, and wounded wyth ỳ strokes of their owne swerdes. Judas also was very earnest in folowyng vpon them punishyng those vngodlye, & slewe.xxx. M. men of them. Timotheus also hym selfe fell into the handes of Dositheus and Sosipater, whom he besought wyth many prayers, to let him go with hys lyfe: because he had many of the Jewes fathers & brethē in prison, which (if they put hym to deathe) myght be dilapoynted. So whē he had promysed faythfully to deliuer them agayne according to the condityon made, they let hym go without harme, for the health of the brethren. And when Judas had slayne.xxv. M. he wente from Carnion.

E Now after ỳ he had chased away & slaine his enemyes, he remoued the hoste towarde Ephron a stronge cyty, wherin dwelt many dyuerse people of the Heathen, & the stronge ponge men kepte the walles, defendynge the myghtely. In hys cyte was much ordynaunce, and prouysion of dartes. But when Judas and hys company had called vpon Almyghtye God, which wt hys power breaketh the strength of the enemyes: they wanne the cyte, and slewe.xxv. M. of them, that were within. From thence wente they to the cyte of the Scythians, whyche lyeth.bi. C. furlonges from Jerusalem. But whē ỳ Jewes which were in the cyte perceyued, that ỳ city lyens dealte louyngly wyth them, yea and entreated them kyndly in the tyme of their aduersitie, Judas and his company gaue them thanckes, desyrynge them to be frendly styll vnto them: and so they came to Jerusalem the hye feast of the weekes beynge at hande. And after the feast they went forth agaynste Gorgias the gouernoure of Idumea, wyth iij. M. men of fote, & iij. C. horsmen. Whych when they met together, it chaunced a fewe of the Jewes to be slayne. And Dositheus one of the Bacheners a myghty horsma toke holde of Gorgias, and wolde haue take him quycke. But an horsma of Thracia fell vpon hym, and smote of his arme, so that Gorgias escaped & fled into Marcia. Whē they nowe ỳ were of Gorgias syde, had foughten longe & were weary: Judas called vpon the Lorde that he wolde be their helper, & captayne of the felde: and with that, he beganne wyth a manly voyce to take vp a songe of prayse, & a crye: In so much that he made the enemies afrayed, and Gorgias men of warre toke their flyght. So Judas gathered hys hoste, & came into the cyte of Odolla. And when the seuenth daye came vpō them, they cleansed them selues (as ỳ custome was) & kepte the Sabboth in the same place. And vpon ỳ daye folowyng, Judas & his company came to take vp the bodies of thē that were slaine, and to bury thē in the fathers graues. Now vnder the cotes of certayne Jewes whyche were slayne, they founde Jewels that they had take out of the temple & from the Idols of the Jamnyters: which thynge is forbidde the Jewes by the lawe. Then euery man saw that this was the cause, wherfore they were slayne. Deute.vii. Jou.xiij.a

And so euerye man gaue thanckes vnto ỳ G Lorde for his ryghteous iudgement, wlych had opened the thynge that was hyd. They fell downe also vnto their prayers, and besought God, ỳ the fawte which was made, might be put out of remembraūce. Besides that, Judas exhorted the people earnestly, to kepe thē selues from such synne: for so much as they saw before their eyes, that these men were slayne for the same offence. So he gathered of euery one a certayne in so much ỳ he brought together two thousande drachmas of syluer, which he sent vnto Jerusalem that there myght a sacrifice be offred for the vnlyde. In the which place he dyd wel and ryghtly: for he had some consideracyon & pondryng of the lyfe that is after this tyme. For if he had not thought that they, wlych were slaine, dyd yet ryse, it had bene superfluous and vayne, to make any vowe or sacrifice, * for thē that were dead. But for so much as he sawe, that they whych dye in the fauoure & beleue of God, are in good rest and ioy, he thought it to be good and honorable for a to conceiue, to do the same for those whyche * Judge vpon this place what they that prayse for dead men were slayne, ꝑ the offence might be forgeue.

¶ The.xiii. Chapter.

¶ The comming of Eupator into Jewry. The death of Menelaus. Machabeus goyng to fyght against Eupator, moueth hys brethren vnto prayer. He hyreth.xxiii. thousande men to the ayde of Bethsura. He beateth the horsemen of the Jewes to table. Antiochus enterynth into treatye with the Jewes.

In the.C.xlix. yeare gat Judas knowlege, that Antiochus Eupator was comynge with a great power into Jewry, ꝑ Lysias the stewarde and ruler of hys matters wyth hym: haueynge an.C. and.l.M. men of fote. b. M. horsemen. xxii. Elephantes, ꝑ. iii. C. charettes. Menelaus also ioyned hym self with them (but with greate dilceate) and spake fayre vnto the kyng, not for any good of ꝑ countrei, but because he thought to haue bene made some greate men of authoritie. But the kynge of kynges moued Antiochus minde against this vngodly person, ꝑ Lysias informed the kyng, that this Menelaus was the cause of all mischiefe: so that the kyng commaunded to take him, and (as the maner of theym is) to put hym vnto death in the same place.

There was also in the same place a towre of.l. cubytes hygh, braued with alles: but about it was so made, that men myght loke downe on euery syde. Where into the kynge commaunded that shamefull person to be caste amonge the alles, as one that was cause of all vngraciousnesse. And reason it was, that the wretche shoulde dye suche a death, and not to be buryed: for he had done muche mischiefe vnto the aulter of God (whose fyre and alles were holy) therefore was it right, that he hym self also shoulde be destroyed with alles.

But the kyng was woode in hys mynde and came to shewe hym self more cruel vnto the Jewes, then hys father was. Whiche when Judas perceyued, he commaunded ꝑ people to call vpon the Lorde nyght & daye: that he wolde now helpe them also, lyke as he had done alwaye: for they were afraied to be put from their law, from their natural countrey, and from the holy temple: and not to suffre the people (which a litle while afore began to recouer) to be subdued again of the blasphemous nacions.

So when they had done thys together, ꝑ beseought the Lord for mercy, with weepynge and fastyng thre dayes long, flatte vpon the grounde: Judas exhorted them, to make the selfe ready. But he and the elders together desired, to go forth fyrste with their people, afore the kyng brought his hoost into Jewry and afore he beleged the cytie, and so to commytte the matter vnto God.

Wherefore he ascribed the power of all thynges vnto God the maker of the worlde, exhortynge hys people too fyghte manfully, (yea, euen vnto death) for the lawes, the temple, the cyte, their owne native country, and to defende the cytezens: and let hys hoost before Modyn. He gaue theym also that were with hym, a token of the victory of God, cholynge out the manyfest ponyshers, wente vp wyghte into the kynges pauylyon, slewe of the hoost.xviii. M. men, ꝑ the greatest Elephantes, wyth those that sat vppon them. i. Mach. iii.

Thus when they had brought a greate feare and rumour among the tentes of their enemyes, and al thynges went prosperously wyth theym, they departed in the breake of the daye, God beynge their helper and defender. Now when the kynge perceyued the manlynesse of the Jewes, he wente about to take the stronge places by craft, and remoued hys hoost into Bethsura, whyche was a well kepte house of defence of the Jewes: but they were chaced awaye, hurt and discomfited.

And Judas sente vnto them that were in it, suche thynges as were necessary. In the Jewes hoost also there was one Rhodocus, whyche tolde the enemies their secretes: but they sought hym out, and whe they had gotten hym, they put hym in preson. After thys dyd the kynge comen wyth them that were in Bethsura, take truce wyth them, departed ꝑ stroke a battayl wyth Judas, which ouercame hym.

But when he vnderstode, that Philippe whome he had left to be ouerseer of hys busynesses at Antioche, began to rebel against hym, he was astonyed in hys mynde: so that he yelded hym selfe to the Jewes, and made them an othe, to do whatsoeuer they thought right.

Now when he was reconcyled wyth the, he offred, made muche of the temple, gaue great giftes vnto it, enbraced Machabeus, makynge hym captayne and gouernour fro Ptolomais vnto the Gerrenes.

Neuertheles when he came to Ptolomais, the people of the cyte were not contrut with that bonde of frendshippe: for they were afraied, that he wolde breke the couenaunt. Then wente Lysias vp into the seate, and enfourmed the people, shewed them the cause why, and pacified them. So he came agayne to Antioche. Thys is now the matter concernynge the kinges iourney, and his returne.

¶ The.xiiii. Chapter.

¶ By the meanes of the sonne of Demetrius Alcimus to hyll the Jewes. Alcimus maketh a compact wyth the Jewes. Alcimus is brought vnto the kynge. He accuseth Judas & hys brethren. Nicanor is sent to Judea. Alcimus commaundeth Judas to be taken. The boldnesse of Razis.

In the yeare Judas vnderstode, that Demetrius ꝑ sonne of Seleucus was come vp with a great power and shypped thorowe the hauen of Tripolis, to take conuenyent conuenyent places and countreys.

Anno.

agaynste Antiochus & his captayne Lysias. Now Alcimus (which had bene hye prest, & wilfully defyled hym self, in the tyme of the myxyng) seyng, that by no meanes he could be helped, nor have any more intraunce to ꝑ aultare: he came to kynge Demetrius in the hundreth and one & fifty yeare, presentynge vnto hym a croune of golde, a palme and an olyue tree: which (as men thought) belonged to the temple, & that daye he helde his tonge. But whan he had gotten opportunitie for hys madnesse, Demetrius called hym to counsail and asked hym, what thynges or counsayls the Jewes leaned vnto? He answered: The Jewes that be called Assidei (whose captayn is Judas Machabeus) mayntayne warres, make insurrecciõs, and will not let ꝑ realme be in peace.

For I beynge deprayued of my fathers honour (I meane the hye prestlhode) am come hyther: partly because I was faythfull vnto the kynge, and partly because I sought the profit of the cyte selfe. And why? all our people, throwe the wickednesse of them, are not a lytle troubled. Wherfore I beseche the (O kynge) consider all these thynges diligently, and then make some prouision for the lande and the people, according to the kyndnesse ꝑ thou hast offred vnto them. For as longe as Judas hath the vpperhide, it is not possible that men can lyue in peace.

When he had spoken these wordes, other frendes also hauyng euell will at Judas, set the kynge Demetrius on fyre agaynste him. Which immediatly sente Nicanor (ruler of the Elephantes) a captayne, into Jewry: cõmaundynge hym, too take Judas hym selfe alyue, but to slaye them that were with hym, and too make Alcimus hygh preeste of the temple.

Then the Gentyle which fled out of Jewry from Judas, came to Nicanor by flockes thynkyng the harme and decaye of the Jewes to be their welfare. Now when the Jewes herde of Nicanors commynge, and the gatheryng together of the Heathen: they sprenkled their selfes with earth, & besought hym, whiche made them hys people, & euer defendest his owne portion with euident tokens, that he wolde preserue them styll. So at the commaundement of the captayn, they remoued from thence, and came to a toune called Dessalon. And Symon Judas brother fell in hande with Nicanor, but throwe the sodaine comming of the enemies, he was afrayed.

Neuertheles Nicanor hearinge the manlynes of them that were with Judas, and the bolde stomaches that they had too fyghte for their naturall countrey, durste not proue the matter with bloudsheddynge. Wherfore he sent Posidonius, Theodotus & Mathias before, to geue and to take peace. So when they had taken longe aduisement there vpõ, and the captayne shewed it vnto the multitude: they were agreed in one minde, to haue peace. And they appointed a daye to sit vpõ these matters quietly amonge themselues, the stoles also were brought and sette forth. Neuertheles Judas commaunded certayne men of armes to wayte in conuenient places lest there should sodenly aryse any euell thorow the enemyes. And so they commoned reasonably together.

Nicanor, whyle he abode at Hierusalem, ordred him selfe not vnreasonably, but sente awaye the people that were gathered together. He loued Judas euer with his hert, and fauoured hym. He prayed him also to take a wyfe, and to begynge forth chyldren. So he maryed, lyued in rest, and they led a comen lyfe. But Alcimus perceyuyng the loue that was betwyxte them, and howe they were agreed together, came to Demetrius, & tolde him that Nicanor had taken straunge matters in hande, & ordeyned Judas (an enemye of the realme) to be the kynges successour. Then the kynge was sore displeased, & throwe the wicked accusacions which Alcimus made of Nicanor, he was so prouoked, that he wrote vnto Nicanor, sayeng: that he was very angry for the frendlship and agreement, which he had made with Machabeus. Neuertheles he commaunded him in al the haste that he shoulde take Machabeus prysoner, and sende hym to Antioche.

Whych letters when Nicanor had sene, he was at hys wittes ende, and sore greued, that he shoulde breake the thynges wherein they had agreed: specially, seynge Machabeus was the man, that neuer dyd hym harme. But because he myght not withstande the kynge, he sought opportunitie to fulfil his commaundement. Notwithstandyng when Machabeus sawe that Nicanor beganne to be churlysh vnto hym, and that he intreated hym more roughly then he was wõte, he perceyued ꝑ such vnkyndnes came not of good, and therfore he gathered a few of hys men, & withdrewe him self from Nicanor. Which when he knewe that Machabeus had manfully preuented him, he came into the greate and moost holy temple: and commaunded ꝑ preestes (which were doynge their vsuall ofringes) to delyuer hym the man. And when they swate that they coulde not tell where ꝑ man was whome he sought, he stretched out hys hande, and made an othe, sayenge: If ye will not delyuer me Judas captyue, I shall remoue this temple of God into the playne felde, I shall breake doune the aulter, and cõsecrate his temple vnto Bachus. After these woordes he departed.

Then the preestes lyft vp their handes towarde heauen, and besought hym that was euer the defender of their people, sayenge: Thou O Lord of all, which hast nede of nothynge, wouldest that the temple of thy habytacion shoulde be among vs. Therfore now O moost holy Lorde, kepe thys house euer vndefiled, vndefyled, whych lately was cleused. Now was there accused vnto Nicanor, one Razis an Alderman of Hierusalem, a louer of the whole citie, and a mā of good reporte: which for the kynde herte that he bare vnto the people, was called a father of the Jewes. This man ofttymes, when the Jewes were mynded to kepe them selfe vndefiled, defended & delyuered them, beyng content stedfastly to spende hys body and his lyfe for his people.

So Nicanor willyng to declare the hate, that he bare to the Jewes, sent fiue hundreth men to take hym: for he thoughte, if he gatte hym, he should bring the Jewes in great decaye. Now when the people began to rushe in at hys house, to breake the doores, & to sette fyre on it: the beyng now taken, wolde haue defended him self with his swearde: chosing rather to dye manfully, then to yelde him self to those wicked doers: & because of his noble stocke, he had rather haue bene put to extreme cruelte. Notwithstanding what tyme as he missed of his stroke for haste, & the multitude fell in violently betwixte the doores: he ran boldely to the wal, & cast hym self downe manfully among the heape of them, whiche gaue soone place to his fal, so that he fel vpō hys belly. Neuertheles whyle there was yet breath within him, he was kyndled in his mynde, and whyle hys blonde-gushed out exceadingly (for he was very sore wounded) he ranne thorow the middest of the people, and gat hym to the toppe of a rocke. So whē hys blonde was now gone, he tohe out hys own bowels with both hys handes, & threw them vpon the people: calling vpō the Lorde of lyfe & spirite, to reward hym hys agayn, and so he dyed.

¶ The.xb. Chapter.

¶ Nicanor goeth about to come vpon Judas on the Sabboth daye. The blasphemy of Nicanor. Machabeus expoundyng vnto the Jewes the vision, boldeneth their hertes. The prayer of Machabeus. After the hoste of Nicanor is once ouercome, Machabeus commaundeth hys head and hys handes to be cut of, and hys tongue to be geuen vnto foules.

Now when Nicanor knewe that Judas was in the countrey of Samaria, he thoughte with all hys power to stryke a felde vpon hym vpon a Sabboth daye. Neuertheles the Jewes that were compelled to go with hym, sayde: O do not so cruelly & vnkyndly, but honour the Sabboth daye, and worshyp hym that seeth all thynges. For all thys, yet sayde the vngracious persone: Is there a mighty one in heauen, that cōmaunded the Sabboth daye to be kept? And when they sayde: yea, the lyuing God, the mighty Lorde in heauen commaunded the seuenth daye to be kept, he sayde: And I am mighty vpon earth, to commaunde them for to arme them selues, and too perfourme the kynges businesse. Notwithstandyng he myght not haue hys purpose.

Nicanor had deuised with great pryde to ouercome Judas, and too lyuyng awaye the victory. But Machabeus had euer a fast cōfidence and a perfecte hope in God that he wolde helpe hym, and exhorted hys people, not to be afrayed at the comming of the heathen: but alwaye to remembre the helpe that had bene shewed vnto them from heauen, yea, and to be sure now also, that almyghtye God wolde geue them the victory. He spake vnto them out of the lawe and prophetes, puttinge them in remembraunce of the battayles that they had stryken afore, and made them to be of a good courage.

So when their hartes were pacte vp, he shewed them also the vnfaythfulnesse of the heathen, and how they wolde kepe no couenaunt nor othe. Thus he weapened them not with the armoure of shylde and speare, but with wholsome wordes and exhortacion. He shewed them a dreame also, wherewith he made the all glad, which was this: he thought that he sawe Onias (which had bene hye preest, a vertuous and louynge man, sad and of honeste conuersacion, well spoken, & one that had bene exercysed in Godlynes from a chylde) holding vp his handes towarde heauen, and prayeng for hys people. After this there apeared vnto hym another mā, whych was aged, honorable and glorious. And Onias sayde: This is a louer of the brethren, and of the people of Israel. This is he that prayeth muche for the people, and for all the holy cyte: Jeremy the prophete of God. He thought also that Jeremy helde out his right hande, and gaue hym (namely vnto Judas) a swearde of golde, sayeng: Take thys holy swearde, a gyfte from God, wherwith thou shalt smyte doune the enemies of the people of Israel.

And so they were well comforted thorow the wordes of Judas, and toke courage vnto them, so that the yong men were determined in their myndes to fyghte, and to byde stylly at it: In so much that in the thynges whyche they tohe in hāde, their boldnesse shewed the same, because the holy cyte and the temple were in parell: for the which they toke more care, then for their wyues, chyldren, brethē and kynsfolkes. Agayne, they that were in the cyte, were most careful for those which were to fight. Now when they were all in a hope that the iudgement of the matter was at hande, and the enemies darte nye, the hoste beyng set in araye, the Elephantes and horsemen euery one standing in his place: Machabeus considered the comming of the multytude, the ordinaunce of diuerse weapens, the cruelnesses of the beastes, & helde vp his handes towarde heauē, calling vpon the Lorde that doth wonders, which geueth not the victory after the multitude of weapens and power of the hoste (but to them that please hym) accordyng to hys owne wil. Therfore in his prayer he sayde these wordes.

¶ Lorde,

iii Reg.xix.g Psa.xxxvii.f. 4.Mach.vii.c. 6.Ma.viii.d.

O Lorde, thou that dyddest sende thyne Aungell in the tyme of Ezechiah kyng of Iu dea, and in the hoste of Sennacherib slewest an hundreth and fyue and foure score thou sande: sende now also thy good aungel before vs (O Lorde of heauens) in the fearfulnesse and drede of thy mighty arme, that they which come against thy holy people to blas pheme the, maye be afrayed. And so he made an ende of hys wordes. Then Nicanor & thei that were with hym, drewe vpe with thawm mes and songes: but Iudas and hys com pany with prayer and calling vpon God.

With their handes they smote, but with their hertes they prayed vnto the Lorde, and slew no lesse then.xxxv.M. men: For thorow the present helpe of God they were glori ously comforted.

Nowe when they lefte of, and were tur ninge againe with ioye, they vnderstode that Nicanor hym selfe was slayne with the other. Then they gaue a great shoute and a crye, praysinge the almighty Lorde with a loude voyce. And Iudas (who he was euer ready to spende hys body and lyfe for hys ci tesins) commaunded to smyte of Nicanors head, with hys armr and hande, and too be brought to Hierusalem. When he came there he called al the people, and the preistes at the aulter with those that were in the castel, and shewed them Nicanors head, and hys wic ked hãde, which he had presumptiously hol den vp against the temple. He cau sed the tonge also of that vngodly Nicanor to be cut in litle peces, and to be cast to fow les, and the cruell mans hande to be hanged vp before the temple.

So euery man gaue thanckes vnto the Lord, saynge: blessed be he, that hath kepte hys place vndefyled.

An for Nicanors head, he hanged it vp vpon the hye castell, for an euident & playne toke of the helpe of God. And so they agreed all together, to kepe that daye holy, na mely the.xiii. daye of the moneth Adar, whiche in the Syrians language is called the nexte daye before Mardocheus daye. Thus was Nicanor slayne, and from that tyme forth the Iewes had the cytye in possessiõ. And here wil I now make an ende.

Wyllia Tin-
dale vnto the Chysten Reader.

HEre hast thou (moost dear reader) the olde Testament as ryght ryghtly as I can make it, by the grace of God in Christes blood. Wherin I haue labored ernestly all myne lyfe days, that I myght haue it to geve vnto the vnlearned, after I had once translated the fyve bokes of Moses and hoped that other myght haue holpen me to haue finished the rest of the bokes, vnto the tyme of the captivite of Babylon: but no man put his hande vnto it, but lyke as a horse that renneth by kynde in the plough, so I was fayne to stonde wholy alone, and to abide all the brunte myself. Which thynge I shewe vnto the entent that if I haue not holpen other, other maye holpe me hereafter, and that no man wonder why I haue left out the Apocrypha bokes, and haue not set vnto my name and put it out for myne owne. For I had once fully determined to haue done so, and had made an ende of them, and had sent them vnto the printer before I had learned Ebrue, and had seen the Ebrue verite. Which thynge when I had perceaved, I was fayne to call in my bokes, and to put my name out of them, lest I should be counted a lyer in the holy ghost. Which bokes (if they be not corrupted) I holde them worthy to be read, and not vnprofytable to be learned, yf the reader be ware of them, that they be not taken for the scripture of the holy ghost, but for the bokes of men, which they are. And then are they profytable for the knowlege of many thynges in the tonge, and for the knowlege of the hystories and maners of men, and for the better vnderstondynge of the scripture. For they were wrytten by men that were learned in the scripture, and had the spirite of God, and were good men, as it maye be proved by their wrytynges. Yet maye they erre as men, and their wrytynges be examined by the scripture of God, whether they accorde therevnto or no, and accordynge vnto that be they to be allowed or refused. Which bokes, because they were wrytten betwene the olde Testament and the newe, and longe after the prophetes, therefore are they not of equall authorite with the other bokes of the olde Testament, which were wrytten by the prophetes, by the holy ghost, immediately. Yet are they profytable and good bokes, and I wysshe that they were in the hondes of all men, translated into their mother tonge. Which thynge I wysshe for all good thynges that are in the scripture, and not for the apocrypha bokes only. For I am sure that they shall brynge forth more fruite vnto the honoure of God, and vnto the edifyenge of the congregacion of Christ, then the doctrine of men hath done hytherto, or then it wyll do hereafter. For the scripture is the lyght of the holy ghost, and the candell of the lorde, and the sworde of the spirite, and the fode of the soule, and the treasure that maketh rych, and the hony that maketh swete, and the golde that is to be desyred above fyne golde, and the foundacion that all buyldynge muste stonde vpon, and the touche stone wherby all doctrine muste be tryed, and the beame wherby all weyghtes muste be iudged, and the rule that all thynges muste be measured by, and the judge that endeth all controversies in the matters of fayth, and the glasse wherin we muste beholde oure selves, and the lanterne vnto our fete, and the schoolemaister that leadeth vnto Christ, and the preacher that teacheth the true waye, and the comforte that assureth the conscience, and the testament of our last wyll, and the kayes that locke vp heven vnto vs, and open vnto vs the kyngdome of God. Which thynges I wysshe for all good thynges that are in the scripture, and not for the apocrypha bokes only. For I am sure that they shall brynge forth more fruite vnto the honoure of God, and vnto the edifyenge of the congregacion of Christ, then the doctrine of men hath done hytherto, or then it wyll do hereafter. For the scripture is the lyght of the holy ghost, and the candell of the lorde, and the sworde of the spirite, and the fode of the soule, and the treasure that maketh rych, and the hony that maketh swete, and the golde that is to be desyred above fyne golde, and the foundacion that all buyldynge muste stonde vpon, and the touche stone wherby all doctrine muste be tryed, and the beame wherby all weyghtes muste be iudged, and the rule that all thynges muste be measured by, and the judge that endeth all controversies in the matters of fayth, and the glasse wherin we muste beholde oure selves, and the lanterne vnto our fete, and the schoolemaister that leadeth vnto Christ, and the preacher that teacheth the true waye, and the comforte that assureth the conscience, and the testament of our last wyll, and the kayes that locke vp heven vnto vs, and open vnto vs the kyngdome of God. Which thynges I wysshe for all good thynges that are in the scripture, and not for the apocrypha bokes only. For I am sure that they shall brynge forth more fruite vnto the honoure of God, and vnto the edifyenge of the congregacion of Christ, then the doctrine of men hath done hytherto, or then it wyll do hereafter. For the scripture is the lyght of the holy ghost, and the candell of the lorde, and the sworde of the spirite, and the fode of the soule, and the treasure that maketh rych, and the hony that maketh swete, and the golde that is to be desyred above fyne golde, and the foundacion that all buyldynge muste stonde vpon, and the touche stone wherby all doctrine muste be tryed, and the beame wherby all weyghtes muste be iudged, and the rule that all thynges muste be measured by, and the judge that endeth all controversies in the matters of fayth, and the glasse wherin we muste beholde oure selves, and the lanterne vnto our fete, and the schoolemaister that leadeth vnto Christ, and the preacher that teacheth the true waye, and the comforte that assureth the conscience, and the testament of our last wyll, and the kayes that locke vp heven vnto vs, and open vnto vs the kyngdome of God.

W.T. to the Reader.

for his vnthankefulnes take.

And Paule biddeth the Hebr. that they shoulde exhorte one another dayly, while it is called to day, leste any of them be hardened through the deceyte of synne. And Christ sayeth: Watche and praye, that ye entre not into temptation. Wherefore we must dayly call vpon God, that he wil not withdrawe his holy spirite from vs, but that he wil kepe vs in the true knowledge of his worde, and in a liuely faith, that we may bring forth the fruite of the spirite. Amen.

W.T. to the Reader.

Ye haue harde (good Reader) the parable of the vnrighteous Iudge, and of the importune widowe, wherby Christ exhorteth vs to continuall prayer and not to faynte. Nowe let vs harke vnto the parable of the Phariseye and the Publicane, wherby he teacheth vs to what ende we ought to praye. For he that knoweth not to what ende he ought to praye, shall neuer praye aright.

Christ sayeth: Two men went vp into the temple to praye, the one a Phariseye, the other a Publicane. The Phariseye stode and prayed thus with himself: God I thanke thee that I am not as other men are, extortioners, vniuste, adulterers, or as this Publicane is. I fast twise in the weke, I geue tithe of all that I possesse. The Publicane stode afarre off, and would not lifte vp so much as his eyes vnto heauen, but smote vpon his brest, saying: God be mercifull vnto me a synner. I tell you (sayeth Christ) this man went home iustified rather then the other. For whosoeuer exalteth himself shalbe brought lowe, and he that humbleth himself shalbe exalted.

Here we see that the Phariseye stode and prayed with himself, and not with God. For he thought not that he had nede to praye vnto God for any thinge, but to geue him thankes for that he had receiued. Wherefore he was not heard, but the Publicane was heard, because he prayed vnto God for that he had nede of. Now he had nede of mercy, and therefore he prayed for mercy. Wherefore we must learne to praye for those thinges which we lacke, and not for those thinges which we haue already. For God knoweth what we haue nede of before we aske him. Wherefore he wil geue vs nothinge, but that which we aske of him. Now we lacke nothinge but mercy, and therefore we must aske nothinge but mercy. For mercy is the fountayne of all goodnes, and the ende of all our prayer must be, that we may obtayne mercy. For we can not obtayne mercy, but we must first haue it geuen vs. For God wil not be entreated to geue vs mercy, but he wil geue vs mercy first, and then we shall praye for mercy. For he that hath receiued mercy, hath his prayer graunted before he aske. For God knoweth what we haue nede of before we aske him. Wherefore we must learne to praye for those thinges which we lacke, and not for those thinges which we haue already to learne to hope how loftie soeuer, that is to say of loue for Christes, and shall alle lacke the rewarde of oure inheritaunce.

Abrahams.

The new Testamente, is as much for to saye, as a newe couenaunt. The olde Testament is an olde temporal couenaunt made betwene God & the carnall children of Abraham Isaac and Iacob, otherwyse called Israel, bonde the bodye and the ofspringe of a temporall lande. Where the rewarde of the hopyng is temporall lyfe and prosperite in the lande of Canaan, and the beleuyng is rewarded with temporall death and punyshment.

But the new Testament is an euerlastinge couenaunt made vnto the children of God throughe grace in Christe, vpon the deliueraunce of Christe: Where eternall lyfe is promised to all that beleue, and death to all that are vnbeleuynge. By beleue, I hope that lawe are eche vnder with the temporall promises of this lyfe. But if I beleue in Christ, Christes bodye hath purchased for me the eternall promise of the euerlastyng lyfe. If I commit mischiefe vnwitte of myne. I beleue to my rewarde that no man will me. If I hurte no man, I am worthy that no man hurt me. If I helpe my neyghboure, I am worthy that he helpe me againe. So that vnderstonde by beleue, euery where I speake I meane other men, I beleue that other will do vnto me in this worlde: and they extende no further. But Christes bodye extende to lyfe euerlastynge: bare all that beleue. &c. Thus be sufficient in thys place, concerninge the lawe and the Gospel, the olde Testament and the olde: that as there is but one God, one Christ, one faith, and one baptisme: so in deede hath thou that there is but one Gospel, though many wryghte it, and many preache it. For all preache the same Christ and bringe the same glad tydinges. And thynke Paules Epistles with the Gospell of Iohn and his fyrste Epistle, and the fyrste Epistle of S. Peter, are moll pure Gospell, and make playnly and perfectly describe the grace of the grace of Christe: if perequire more of the lawe thinke in the Dialoge to the Romayns and in other places where it is professedly entreated of.

✠ Repentaunce.

Concerninge thys worde repentaunce, as they call penaunce, the Debate hath in the olde Testament generally (Sob) turne to be conuerted. For wyche the translation that the tonge for Latyne Diuersite hath moost parte (Sob) turne or to be conuerted, and (Sobepsus) for Latyne penitentiam. And in the Greke the new Testament hath perpetuall (Metanoeo) to turne in the best and myndc. and to come to the ryghte knowlage, and to a mannes ryghte wyttes agayne. For wyche (Metanoeo) Sainct Hieromie in hall actions hathe sometyme ago penitentiam) I do repent, (sometyme) I repent, (sometyme (penitet) I repentaunce, sometyme (habeo penitentiam) I haue repentaunce, (penitet me) he repenteth me. And Erasmus hathe made thys worde (Resipisco) I come to my selfe, as to my right mynde againe. And the very stryfe and signification both of the Hebrue, and alle of the Greke is vnto to be conuerted and to turne to God with all the herte, to knowe hys will, and to lyue accordyng to hys lawes, and to be sorie of oure synnes nature with the vse of hys lawe, and worke of obedience to hys doctryne. Wyth conuersion as rennynge of it be vnderstonde, godly sorowe to accompanye it, and are enclosed therein. Confession, not in the priestes eare, for that is but mans inuencion, but to God in the herte, before all the congregation of God, how that we be sinners and vnclene, and that oure whole nature is geuen vnto and inclined to synne and all vnrighteousnes, therfore cursed, wretched, and damnable, and hys lawe holy and iuste, by wyche our fleshly nature is rebuked. And alle to our vnrighteousnes, if we haue offended any person particularly. Then confession standeth, that we be suche damnable synners, & not onely haue synned, but are wholy enclined to synne still.

The three partes of repentaunce.

Thyrdely forsakynge of synne: whyche confession haue made no mencion at all in the interpretion of these ye names, that God for Christes sake wolde forgeue vs, and receyue vs to mercy, and to be our lorde, & to heale our corrupt nature. And fourthly satisfaction or amendes makynge vnto God with holy workes, but to my neyghboure whome I haue hurte, and to the congregation of God, whome I haue offended. If any ooth repent be founde in me, is submittynge of a wilfully vnto the congregation or churche of Christ, and to the officers of it vnto me, to haue hys correccion & gouernaunce vpon me, accordynge as the true louynge of Christ. And more ouer: that all sinne shall & amendes makynge to counter vnprofitable before the lorde and a purgynge of the frutes & that the lorde when I haue made a full amendes hath no lawe to complayne: Euen in forth in Christes blode & pourye righteousnesse, and a purgynge of all frutes before God.

Moreouer in that thynge agayne the lawe shall alle agayne the lawe straighte god. And in the seuen commaundementes agayne the seuen deadly synnes, & in the seuen commaundementes agayne the seuen gyftes of the holy ghoste. Finally in Christes blode onelye. For Christ sayeth, Iohn. xvi. Except ye beleue that I am he, ye shall dye in your synnes. Ezec. xx. to saye, if ye repente not that there is any other foundacion or satisfaccion to God ouer then me, ye remayne open in synne before God, hathe seuen vnpleasaunt ye appeare before the lorde. Wherefore when ye call synne, Sathanas, superstycion, vnmercifulnes, or murmure agayne yu God, either vnwillyng &c. Whether ye for synne be conuerted, or vnto God, consider your synnes, as what ye will, I am content to be vnmerciful vnto myne to mende them, as I hope with helpe red.

✠ Mercy.

In the olde Testament the temporall benefites & rewardes of the lawe, wherin hath the gouernaunce ouer the lore as commune people are called mercy, as ye maye se in the boke Exodi. Exodus. Out of wyche ordynge Dauid in his Psalmes, and alle Prophetes call the perfecte and spirituall gouernaunce, wherin are delyuerers and pardon alwaye, whom whether ye call them mercy or pardon, it is to me all one, so that ye be vnderstonde that they be officers and seruauntes of the mercy of God, bycause the whyche all men, bothe lorde and lowe, that will not rebell agayne Christ, muste obeye as long as they preache and rule truly, and no longer.

A Hē Jesus was borne at Bethlē Jurye, in the time of Herode ỹ kinge: Beholde there came wise men frō the east to Jerusalē sayinge. Where is he ỹ is borne kinge of Jewes? We haue sene his starre in the east, and are come to worshippe hym. ☞ When Herode the kinge had herde this, he was troubled, and al Jerusalem with him, and he gathered al the chiefe priestes and scribes of the people, & axed of thē where Christe shoulde be borne. And they sayd vnto hym: at Bethlem in Jury. ffor thus it is written by the prophete. b. And thou Bethlem in the lād of Jury, art not the least cōcerning the Princes of Juda. ffor out of the shal come the captaine, that shall c. gouerne my people Israel.

Micheas. B Then Herode priuily called the wyse men, and diligently enquired of them, the tyme of the starre that apeared, and sent them to Bethlem sayinge: Go and searche diligently for the childe. And when ye haue founde hym, bringe me worde, that I may come and worshippe him also.

When they herde the kynge, they departed: and lo the starre which they sawe in the east went before them, tyll it came and stode ouer the place wher ỹ childe was. When they sawe the starre, they were maruelously glad: and went into the house, and found the chylde with Mary his mother, and kneled downe & worshipped him, and opened their treasures and offred to him giftes, golde, frankincense and myrre. And after they were warned of God in a dreame, that they should not go agayne to Herode, they retourned into their owne countre another waye. ỹ

Then he arose vp, and toke the chylde and his mother, & came into the lande of Israell. But when he heard that Archelaus did raygne in Jurye, in the roume of his father Herode, he was afrayde to go thither. Notwithstanding after he was warned of God in a dreame, he turned a syde into the partyes of Galile, & went & dwelt in a citie called Nazareth, to fulfyl ỹ which was spoke by the prophetes: he shalbe called a Nazarite. ỹ Obseruinge & teachinge.

Of the notes.

a Poore in spirite are such as set not their care vpon the gettinge or heppinge of ryches but labour diligently in their vocation, because God hath commaunded so. And if the ryches of the worlde chaunce to them: they receyue it with thākes, and endeuoure to vse it as God hath commaunded.

b To hunger and thyrste righteousnes, is to be as desyerous of the ryghte vnderstandinge of the worde of God and the frampnge of our lyfe to the same: as the bodye is of meate and drinke.

c Peace makers are called ỹ children of God, not only the makers of outwarde & worldelye peace: but chyefly the peace makers of the conscience who do by the comfortable promysses of the scriptures, make attonemēt betwene God and our consciences.

d. God rewardeth his faithfull seruauntes, not because they be persecuted, but because the persecution cometh for his sake.

e. This obseruinge and teachinge, is not of the outwarde letter: but of thy spirite. Which who so obserueth and teacheth, shall be great in the kingdome of God. That is, mighty in preachinge the worde of God. For his dedes and wordes shall preache both one thinge. This is declared by that, that followeth. Except your ryghteousnes. &c.

The .vi. Chapter.

Of Almes, prayer and fastinge. He forbyddeth the carefull lykynge of worldye thynges. ✣

A Almes.

Take hede to your almes, ỹ ye ge ue it not in ỹ sight of mē, to ỹ intent ỹ ye would be sene of thē. Or els ye get no rewarde of your father whyche is in heauen. Whensoeuer therfore thou geuest thyne almes, thou shalt not make a trompet to be blowen before the, as the hypocrytes do in the synagoges and in the stretes, for to be prai sed of men. Verely I saye vnto you, they haue their rewarde. But when thou doest thine almes, let not thy lyft hande knowe what thy ryght hande doth, that thyne almes may be secrete: and thy father whiche seeth in secrete, shall rewarde the openly. ✣

Trompet.

Prayer.

And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hipocrites are. For they loue to stande and praye in the synagoges, and in the corners of the stretes, and because they wolde be seane of mē. Verely I say vnto you, they haue their rewarde. But when thou prayest, entre into thy chāber, & shut thy doze to the, & praie to thi father which is in secrete: & thy father which seeth in secrete, shall rewarde the openlye.

B Babling.

But when ye praye, babble not much as the Heathen do: for they thinke that they shalbe herde, for their muche babblynge sake. Be ye not lyke them therfore. For your father knoweth whereof ye haue neade, before ye axe of him after this maner therfore pray ye.

Luke. a.

The Pater noster.

c. Our father which art in heauen, halowed be thy name. d. Let thy kingdome come. e. Thy will be fulfylled, as well in earth, as it is in heauen. f. Geue vs this daye our daylye breade. g. And forgeue vs our trespales, euen as we forgeue oure trespalers. h. And lead vs not into temptation. i. But delyuer vs from euyll. For thyne is the kingdome and the power, and the glorye for euer Amen. For if ye shall forgeue other men their trespales, your heauenlye father shall also forgeue you. But and ye will not forgeue men their trespales, no more shall your father forgeue your trespales.

Marc. x. c. Luke. xi. Common tes.

Fastinge.

✣ Moreouer. k. when ye fast, be not sad as the hipocrites are. For they disfygure their faces, that they myght be sene of men how they

they fast. Verely I say vnto you, they haue their reward. But thou, when thou fastest, annoint thine head, & wash thy face that it appeare not vnto men howe y thou fastest but vnto thy father which is in secrete: & thy father which seeth in secret shal reward y openly.

Se that ye gather you not treasure vpon the earth, where rust & mothes corrupte, & where theues breake thoughe & steale. But gather ye treasure together in heauen, where neither rust nor mothes corrupt, & where theues nether breake vp nor yet steale. For where soeuer your treasure is, there wyl your hertes be also.

The.l. yght of thy body is thine eye. Wherfore if thine eye be single, al thy bodye shalbe full of light. But and if thyne eye be wycked then all thy bodye shalbe ful of darkenes. Wherfore if the light that is in the, be darkenes: how great is that darckenes?

No man can serue two maysters. For either he shall hate y one & loue y other: yea or elles he shall leane to the one & despise y other. Ye cannot serue God & Mammon. Therfore I saie vnto you, m. be not careful for you life what ye shall eate or what ye shall drynche, nor yet for your bodye, what ye shall put on, is not the life more worthe then meate, and the body more of value then rayment? Behold the foules of the aier: for y sowe not, neyther reape, nor yet carry into the barnes: and yet your heauenlye father fedethe them. Are ye not muche better then they?

Which of you (though he take thoughte therfore) coulde put one cubit vnto his stature? And why care ye then for rayment? Consider the * lyles of y felde, howe they growe. They labourith not neither spynne. And yet for all that I saye vnto you that euen Solomon in all his royalte was not arayed lyke vnto one of these.

Wherfore if God so clothe y grasse, which is to day in the felde, and to morowe shall be cast in to y fournace: shall he not much more do the same vnto you, o ye of lyttle faythe?

Therfore take no thought saynge: what shall we eate, or what shall we drynche, or wherewith shal we be clothed? After all these thynges seke the gentils. For your heauenlye father knoweth y ye haue nede of all these thynges. But rather seke ye first y kyngdome of heauen and the righteousnes therof, & all these thynge shalbe mynistred vnto you. ¶

Care not them for the morow, but let the morow care for itself: for the day present hath euer enough of his owne trouble.

The notes.

.a. Let not thy lefte hande &c. By this lefte hande is ment the fleshly phantasie, which would haue all thynges done to the pompe of the worlde. She muste not therfore knowe of the workes of the spyrite.

.b. Thou entringe into thy chāber & shutting of thy dore to praye in secrete: is to declare y true prayer is the secrete lyftynge vp of the hert vnto God, all worldly phantasies shut out of the mynde. For it is the eye of y herte that seeweth in the eares of the Lorde. The lyke is in Luke the.xvi.chap.d.

.c. Halowed be thy name. That is, let al them that confesse thy name, haue holyne as thou arte holye, and so shall thy name be sanctified in them.

.e. Thy will be done &c. This petition must alwayes be the ende of all oure prayers and petitions accordynge to the example of oure Sauioure in the.xxvi. of Mathew. Wher he believeth to be delyuered from the dolorouse death of the crosse.

.f. Geue vs this &c. By this petition we are admonished, y all we receyue in this lyfe, is y mere gift of God, though it come chaffe vnto vs by oure owne laboure or otherwyse.

.g. Forgeue vs &c. This petitions teacheth vs to do as we woulde be done by.

.h. Lead vs not &c. By this petition we are admonished of our weakines, how farre vnable we are to stande faste, if God shoulde power vs as he did Abraham: or suffer the Deuell to trye vs as he dyd Job.

.i. But deliuer vs &c. This petitiō declareth mans weanes to be enuironed and beset on euerye syde with euel, that is, the wicked concupiscence of the flesshe, the vayne despyse of the world, and the subtill suggestions of the serpente. For y which God onlye deliuereth.

.k. When ye faste &c. Here is to be noted that faultynge is thre folde. One is hypocrisie which oure Sauioure reprehendeth in the phariseis, as hauyng and to be rewarded wyth the vayne prayse of the worlde. The other two are Godlye & are rewarded according to the cause they procede of. The one procedeth of mercye, when we do so pitye the nedye, that we refraine oure owne fode to geue it vnto them, & that is rewarded with the manifold mercies of God towardes vs Psal.lxxii. The other procedeth of Godlye care to subdue y flesh to the spirite, that the hert may continual lye crie vnto y Lord wyth charitable prayer. And this is rewarded with the plenteous ful fyllynge of all our requestes. Psal.xxxiii.c.

.l. The light &c. This light is knowledge, which if it be wouldye, is ignorance before God. i.Cor.i.

.m. Be not careful &c. Here is not forboden the honeste prouision that men make for them selues and their families (for Paul sayth that suche as make not this prouision wyth their labour, are worse then Infideles) but the miserable feare to lacke, whiche declareth vs to thinke that God is not careful for vs.

He forbiddeth iudgement and reuerence to vngodly, reproueth hypocrisie, exhorteth vnto prayer, warneth to beware of false prophetes, and so concludeth the sermon.

IVdge not, þ ye be not iudged. Luke. vi.f. For as ye iudge so, shall ye be iudged. And with what measur ye mete, with þ same shal it be measured to you agayne. Why seiste thou a moote in thy brothers eye, & perceyuest not the beame that is in thyne owne eye? Or why sayst thou to thy brother: Suffer me to pluche out the moote out of thyne eye, & beholde a beame is in thyne owne eye? Hypocrite, first caste out the beame out of thyne owne eye, and then shalte thou se clearelye to pluche out the moote out of thy brothers eye.

Beware of false Prophetes, whiche come L + to you in shepes clothing, but inwardly they are rauenynge wolues. Ye shall knowe them by their fruites. Do men gaddar grapes of thornes? or figges of bryers? Euen so euery Luke. vi.f. good tre bryngeth forth good fruite. But a corrupt tree, bryngeth forth euyll fruyte. A good tree can not bringe forthe bad fruyte: nor yet a bad tree cā bringe forth good fruite. Euery tree that bryngeth not forthe good fruite shalbe hewen downe, and cast into the fyre. Wherfore by theyr fruytes ye shal knowe them.

Not al they that saye vnto me, Master Maister mai ster. Master, shal entre into the kingdome of heauen: but he that doeth my fathers will which Luke. xiij.f is in heauen. Many will saye to me in that daye: Master, master, haue we not in thy name prophesied? And in thy name haue cast out deuyles? And in thy name haue done Psal. vi. many miracles? And then will I knowledge vnto them, that I neuer knewe the. Departe from me, ye workers of iniquitie.

Whosoeuer heareth of me these sayinges and doethe the same, I wyll lyken hym vnto a wyse mā which buylt hys house on a rocke and aboundaunce of rayne descended, and the floudes came, and the windes blewe and bet vpon that same house, and it fell not because it was grounded on the rocke. And it came to passe, that when Jesus had Mark. i. ended these sayinges, þ people were astouned Luke. iiij. at his doctrine. For he taught them as one hauing power, and not as the Scribes.

The. xij. Chapter. ✠

✠ The disciples plucked the eares of corne. He excuseth them, healeth the dry hande, helpeth the possessed that was blynde and dombe, rebuked the vnfaythfull that woulde neuer haue tokens, and sheweth who is his brother, sister and mother.

AT that tyme went Jesus on the Sabboth dayes thorowe the corne and his disciples were an hungred, and began to pluche the eares of corne and to eate. Whē the Pharisees sawe that they sayde vnto him: Beholde, thy disciples do that which is not lawful to do vpon the Sabboth daye. He sayde vnto them: Haue ye not read what Dauid dyd, when he was an hungred, and they also whiche were with hym? How he entred into the house of God, eate the halowed loaues, which were not lawfull for him to eate, neyther for them which were with him but onlye for the priestes. Or haue ye not read in the law, how that the priestes in the temple breake the Sabboth day, and yet are blamelesse? But I say vnto you: that here is one greater then the temple. Wherfore if ye had wist what this sayinge meaneth: I require mercye and not sacrifice: ye would neuer haue condemned innocentes: For the sonne of man is Lorde euen of the Sabboth day.

And he departed thence, and went into their synagoge: and beholde there was a man which had his hande dryed vp. And they axed him sayinge: is it lawful to heale vpon the Sabboth dayes? because they might accuse him. And he sayd vnto them. Which of you wolde it be, if he had a shepe fallen into a pitte on the Sabboth daye, that wolde not take him and lyft him out? And how muche is a man better then a shepe? Wherfore it is lawful to do a good dede on the Sabboth dayes. Then sayde he to the man: stretch forth thy hande. And he stretched it forth. And it was made wholesome lyke vnto the other. ✠

✠ Then the pharyseis went out, and held a counsel against him, how they might destroy him. When Jesus knewe that, he departed thence, and much people followed him, and he healed them all, and charged them, that they shoulde not make him knowen: to fulfyll that which was spoken by Esaye the prophete, which sayeth. Beholde my chylde, whom I haue chosen my beloued, in whom my soule beleeueth. I wyll put my spirite on him, and he shall shewe iudgement to ✠ gentyls. He shall not stryue, he shal not cry neyther shal any man heare his voice in ✠ stretes. a bruised rede shal not he breake, & flaxe ✠ beginneth to burne he shal

Then was brought to him, one possessed with a deuyll which was both blinde & dombe: and he healed him, insomuch that he which was blinde and dombe, both spake and sawe. And al the people were amased, and sayde: Is not this that sonne of Dauid? But when the Pharyseis hearde that they sayde: This fellowe driueth y deuils no other wyse out but by y helpe of Belzebub the chiefe of y deuils.

Belzebub.

But Jesus knewe their thoughtes, and sayed to them. Euery kingdome deuided with in it selfe, shall be brought to naught. Neyther shall anye cytye or housholde deuided against it selfe continue. So if Sathan cast out Sathan, then is he deuided against him selfe. Howe shall then his kingdome endure? Also if I by the helpe of belzebub cast out deuils: by whose helpe do your children caste them out? Therfore they shalbe your iudges. But if I cast out the deuyls by the spirite of God: then is the kingdome of God come on you?

Either how can a man enter into a strong mans house, and violently take away his goodes: except he first binde the stronge man, and then spoyle his house? ✠ He that is not with me, is against me. ¶ The.xiij. Chapter.

¶ The parable of the sower, of the tares, of the mustard tree, of the leuē of the treasure hyd in the felde, of the pearle, and of the net.

THe same daye went Jesus out of the house, and sate by the sea syde, and much people resorted vnto him, so greatly that he went and sate in a shyppe, and all the people stode on the shore. And he spake many thinges to them in symilitudes, sayinge. beholde, the sower went forth to sowe. And as he sowed, some fell by the wayes syde, and the foules came and deuoured it vp. Some fell fell vpon stonye grounde where it hadde not muche earth: and anon it sprong vp, because it had no depth of earth: & when the sunne was vp, it caughte heate, and for lacke of rotynge wyddred awaye. Some fell among thornes, & the thornes sprong vp and choked it. Parte fell in good grounde, and brought forth good fruite: some an hundred fold, some sixtie folde, some thirtie folde. Whosoeuer hath eares to heare let hym heare.

And the disciples came and sayde to hym: Why speakest thou to them in parables? He answiered and sayde vnto them: it is geuen vnto you to know the secretes of the kyngdō of heauen, but to them it is not geuen. a. For whosoeuer hath to hym shalbe geuen, and he shall haue aboundaunce. But whosoeuer hath not, from hym shalbe taken awaye euen that he hath. Therfore speake I to them in similitudes: for though they se, they se not: and hearyng they heare not: neyther vnderstād. And in them is fulfilled the Prophesye of Esayas, which prophesie sayth: with the eares ye shal heare, and shal not vnderstande, and with the eyes ye shal se, and shall not perceyue. For this people hertes are waxed grosse, and their eares were dull of hearyng, and their eyes haue they closed, lest they should se with their eyes, and heare with their eares, and shoulde vnderstand with their hertes, & should tourne that I myght heale them.

But blessed are youre eyes, for they se: and youre eares, for they heare. Verely I say vnto you, that many Prophetes and perfecte men haue desired to se the thinges whyche ye se, & haue not sene them: and to heare the thynges which ye heare, and haue not heard them. Heare ye therfore the similitude of the sower. Whosoeuer heareth the worde of the .k. kyngedome and vnderstandeth it not, there cometh & euill man, and catcheth awaye & which was sowē in hys hert, and this is he whiche was sowen by the way side. But he that was sowen in the stony grounde, is he which heareth the worde of God, and anone with ioye receyueth it, yet hath he no rootes in hym selfe, and therfore dureth but a season. For assone as tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, by and by he falleth. He that was sowen among thornes, is he that heareth the worde of God: but the care of this world, and the deceytfulnes of riches choke the word, & so is he made vnfruteful. But he whiche is sowen in & good ground, is he that heareth the worde and vnderstandeth it, whiche also beareth frute and bringeth forth, some an .C. folde, some sixtye folde, and some .xxx. folde.

Another similitude put he forth vnto them saying: ✣ The kyngedom of heauen is lyke vnto a man whiche sowed good sede in his felde. But whyle men .s. slept there came his foo and sowed tares amonge the wheate, and went his waye. When the blade was sprong vp, and had brought forth frute, then apeared the tares also. The seruauntes came to the housholder, and sayde vnto hym: Sir sowedest not thou good sede in thy close? From whence then hath it tares? He sayed to them: The enuious man hath done this. Then the seruauntes sayde vnto hym. Wilt thou then that we go and gadder them? But he sayde, nay, lest whyle ye go about to wede oute the tares, ye pluche vp also wyth them the wheat by the roten. Let both growe together tyl haruest come, & in tyme of haruest I wyl saye to the reapers, gather ye fyrst the tares, & bynde them in shewes too be burnt: but gather the wheate into my barne. ✣

✣ Another parable he put forth vnto them saying: The kyngdom of heauen is lyke vnto a grayne of mustard sede, whyche a man taketh and soweth in his felde, which is & leest of all seedes. But when it is growen it is the greatest among herbes, & it groweth vp into a tree: so that the byrdes of the ayre come and bylde in the braunches of it.

✣ Another similitude sayde he to them. The kyngdom of heauen is lyke vnto leuen, which a woman taketh and hydeth in .iij. pecks of mele, tyll all be leuended.

All these thynges spake Jesus vnto the people by similitudes, and without similitudes spake he nothyng to them, to fulfil that which was spoken by the Prophet saying: I wil open my mouth in similitudes, & will speake forth thynges whych haue ben kept secrete from & begynnyng of the world. ✣

✣ Then sente Jesus the people awaye, & came home. And his disciples came vnto him saynge: declare vnto vs the similitude of the tares of the felde. Then answered he & sayed to them. He that soweth the good sede, is the sonne of man. And the felde is the worlde. And the chyldren of the kyngdom, they are & good sede. And the tares are the chyldren of the wycked. And the enemy that soweth them is the deuell. The haruest is the ende of the worlde. And the reapers be the Aungels. For euen as the tares are gadded and burnt in the fyre: so shall it be in the ende of this worlde. The sonne of man shall sende forth his Aungels, and they shall gather out of his kyngedom all thynges that offende, and the which do iniquity, and shall caste them into a fournaye of fyre. There shalbe wayling & gnashyng of teth. Then shall the iuste men shyne as bryght as the sunne in the kyngdō of their father. Whosoeuer hath eares to heare let hym heare. ✣

✣ Agayne the kyngdome of heauen is lyke vnto treasure, hidde in the fielde, the whiche a man spendeth and hydeth: and for ioye therof goeth and selleth all that he hathe, and byeth that felde.

Agayne the kyngedome of heauen is lyke vnto a marchaunt that seketh good pearles, whyche when he had founde one precious pearle, went and solde all that he hadde, and bought it.

Agayne the kyngedome of heauen is lyke vnto

Jhon Baptist is beheded.

T that tyme Herode the .a. Tetrarche heard of the fame of Jesu, & sayd vnto his seruātes. This is Jhon Baptiste. He is risen a gayne from death, and therefore are suche miracles wrought by hym. For Herode had taken Jhon and bounde hym, & put hym in prison for Herodias sake .b. hys brother Philips wyfe. For Jhon sayd vnto him. It is not lawfull for the to haue her. And whē he would haue put hi to death, he feared ỹ people, because they toke him as a Prophet.

But when Herodes birth daie was come, the daughter of Herodias daunced before the and pleased Herode. Wherefore he promised with an othe, that he would geue her whatsoeuer she would axe. Herode might haue answered, that by the lawe of the Jewes, he might marry hys owne sister, being free from other men, as it apeareth in the.xxv. chapi. of the seconde boke of the kynges, betwene Ammon and Thamar hys sister.

Fourthe watche. d. The Hebrewes diuided the nyght into.iiij. partes, whiche they called the foure watches. Wherfore the fourth watche was next to the mornyng, that was called the mornyng watche, as in the Epiſle of the kynges the.xj. C.

The.xv. Chapter.

✠ Christe reproueth hys disciples, and rebuketh the Scribes and Phariſies for transgressing Goddes commaundements, shewyng them how the kyngdome that goeth into the mouth defileth not the man. He healeth the woman of Canaanee beyng a straunger, feadeth the multitude, and with.vij. loaues and a few litle fishes refreshed.viij. thousande men beyng women & chyldren.

A Then came to Jesus Scribes and Phariſies from Hierusalem, saying: why do thy disciples transgresse the traditions of the elders? for they washe not their handes whē they eate bread. He answered and sayd vnto them: why do ye also transgresse the commaundement of God through your traditions? For God commaunded saying: ✠ honoure thy father and mother, and he that curseth father or mother shall suffre death. But ye saye, euery man that sayth to hys father or mother: ✠ which thou desirest of me to helpe the with: is geuen to God, and so shall he not honour hys father or mother. And thus haue ye made that the cōmaundement of God is without effecte, through your traditions. Hypocrites, well prophecied of you Esaias saying: This people draweth nye vnto me with their mouthes, & honoureth me with their lippes, howbeit their hertes are farre from me: but in vayne they worshippe me teaching doctrines, which are nothyng but mens preceptes.

And he called the people vnto hym, & sayd to them, heare and vnderstande. That which goeth into the mouth, defileth not the man: but that which commeth out of the mouthe, defileth the man.

Mat.bij.c What defileth a man.

Then came hys disciples, and sayde vnto hym: Perceyuest thou not, how that the Phariſies .a. are offended in hearing this saying? He answered and sayd. Al plantes whiche my heauenly father hath not planted, shalbe plucked vp by the rootes. Let them alone, they be the blynde leaders of the blynd. If ✠ blynd leede the blynde, both shall fall into ✠ dytche.

Plantes. Luke.vi.f Blynde leaders.

Then answered Peter and sayd to hym: declare vnto vs this parable. Then sayde Jesus are ye yet without vnderstandyng? Perceyue ye not that whatsoeuer goeth in at the mouth, departeth downe into the draught, and is cast out into the draught? But those thynges, whiche procede out of the mouthe, come from the hert and they defyle the man. For out of the hert come euil thoughtes, murther, breakyng of wedlocke, whoredō, theftes, falſe, witnes bearing, blaſphemye. These are the thynges which defyle a man. But to eate with vnwashen handes, defileth not a man. ✠

Mat.bij.c Myth what maner defiles.

✠ And Jesus went thence, and departed into the coastes of Tyre and Sidon. And beholde a woman whych was a Cananite came out of the same coastes, and cryed vnto hym saying: haue mercy on me Lord the sonne of Dauid, my doughter is pytyously vexed with a deuel. And he gaue her neuer a worde to answer. Then came to hym hys disciples, & besought hym saying: sende her away, for she followeth vs crying. He answered, and sayde: I am not sent, but vnto the lost shepe of the house of Israel. Then she came and worshipped him saying master helpe me. He answered & sayde: It is not good, to take the childrens bread, & to cast it to.a. dogges. She answered & sayd: truth Lord, yet eate whelpes of the crommes, whiche fall from their maisters table. Then Jesus answered and sayd vnto her: O woman, great is thy .a. faith, be it to the euen as thou desirest. And her doughter was made whole, euen at that same houre. ✠

Mat.bij.d The woman of Canaane.

Then Jesus went awaye from thence, and came vnto the sea of Galile, and went vp into a mountayne, and sate downe there. And much people came vnto hym, hauyng with them, halt, blynd, dome, maymed, and other many: and cast them downe at Jesus fete. And he healed them, in so muche that the people wondred to se the dumme speake, the maymed whole, ✠ halt to go, and the blynde to se. And they glorified the God of Israel.

Mat.bij.d

Then Jesus called hys disciples to hym & sayd I haue compassion on the people, because they haue continued with me now.iij. dayes & haue nought to eate, and I wil not let the departe fasting, lest they perish in the waye. And hys disciples sayd vnto hym, whence shulde we get so muche breade in the wildernes, as should suffice so great a multitude? And Jesus sayde vnto them: How many loaues haue ye? And they sayde seuen, and a fewe litle fishes. And he commaunded the people to sit downe on the grounde: and toke the seuen loaues and the fishes, and gaue thankes, and brake them and gaue to hys disciples, & the disciples gaue them to the people. And they ate all and were sufficed. And they take vp of the broken meate that was lefte vnto.vij. hampers full. And yet they that eate were.iiij.M. men, beside women and chyldren. And he sent away ✠ people & toke shyp & came into ✠ partes of Magdala.

Offence. a. Offence in this place: signifieth the grudginge of mynde when anye thynketh that an other doeth or sayeth euel, and so grudgeth in his mynde: is offended in his conscience at his doinge or sayinge. Which offence we are not bound to refrain so long as our wordes & dedes be good, and the parties offended be not weake but obstinate. For charitie byndeth vs to beare with the weake, but not with the obstinate.

All plantes. What soeuer goeth in at ỹ mouth. b. These plantes are doctrines and inuentiõs of men, whyche are not grounded on ỹ word of God.

c. Let all men beware that they stumble not at this pece of scripture. For it meaneth nothyng lesse, then that we should thynke it lawfull for vs to powre in meate and drynke whyle ỹ stomake wil hold, but that no kynde of meate, at what tyme or vnder what sorte soeuer it be taken (so it be ouerly for the necessitie of oure bodyes) can defile the man that taketh it with thankes geuynge.

Dogges. d. The Jewes call the Heathen & gentils dogges, because of their idolatrie. But chiefly for their cruell mercy in deuourynge the flocke of Israell.

Faith. e. Thy fayth is grea. The greatnes of euerye mans fayth is knowen by the benefites that we receyue at Goddes hande. For (as Paull wryteth) God geueth hys gyftes to euerye of hys seruauntes, accordynge to the measure of the fayth ỹ is founde in the same. Not because the fayth deserueth them, but because he hath made them meete vessels for so precious honour to be bestowed in.

And when his disciples were come to the other side of the water, they had forgotten too take bread with them. Then Jesus sayd vnto them: Take hede and beware of the .a. leuen of the Phariseis and of the Saducies. And they thought in them selues sayinge: because we haue brought no breade with vs. When Jesus vnderstode that, he sayd vnto them: O ye of litle fayth, why are youre myndes occupied because ye haue brought no bread? + When Jesus came into the coostes of ỹ citie whych is called Cesarea Philippi, he axed his disciples sayinge: whome do men saye that I the sonne of man am? They sayde: some saye that thou arte Jhõ Baptist, some Helyas, som Jeremias, or one of the Prophetes. He sayde vnto them: but whome saye ye that I am? Simon Peter answered and sayde: Thou arte Christ the sonne of the lyuynge God. And Jesus answered and sayde to hym: happy arte thou Symon the sonne of Jonas, for flesche & bloude hath not opened vnto the that, but my father which is in heauen. And I saye also vnto the that thou arte Peeter: and .b. vpon this rocke I wil buylde my congregacion. And the .c. gates of hell shall not preuayle against it. Peter. Byndyng and lowsyng. D

Then he charged his disciples, that they should tell no man, that he was Jesus Christ. From that time forth Jesus began to shew vnto his disciples, how that he must go vnto Jerusalem, and suffer many thinges of the elders, and of the hygh preistes, and of the scribes, and must be kylled; and ryse agayne the thyrde daye. But Peter toke hym aside, and began to rebuke hym saying: master fauer thy selfe: this shall not come vnto the. Then tourned he about and sayd vnto Peeter: come after me .f. Sathã, thou offendest me, because thou sauorest not godly thynges, but worldly thynges.

Peter is Sathan. Christes disciples.

Jesus then sayde to his disciples. If anye man will folow me, let hym .g. forsake hym selfe, and take vp his crosse and folowe me. For whosoeuer will saue his life, shall loose it. And whosoeuer shall loose his life for my sake shall finde it. What shall it profyt a mã though he shoulde wynne al the whole world if he loose his owne soule? Or els what shall a man geue to redeme his soule agayne withall? For the sonne of man shall come in ỹ glorye of his father, with his aungels: & then shall he rewarde euery man accordyng to his dedes. Verely I saye vnto you, some .h. there be among them that here stande, whiche shall not taste of death, till they shall haue sene the sonne of man come in his kyngdom.

AND after. vi. dayes Jesus take Peter and James and Jhon his brother, and brought them vp into an hygh mountayne out of the waye, and was transfigured before them, and his face did shyne as the sunne and his clothes were as whyte as the lighte: & behold there appeared vnto them Moyses & Helyas, talkyng with him. Then answered Peter and sayd to Jesus: master here is good beyng for vs. If thou wilt, let vs make here thre tabernacles, one for the, & one for Moyses, and one for Helyas. While he yet spake, beholde a bryght cloude shadowed them. And beholde there came a voyce out of the cloude, sayenge this is my deare sonne, in whome I delite. a. heare him. The notes.

a. Here are we taught to geue eare to ỹ word of God onely, and not to fayned euel imaginacions. For euen likewise as Peter had vsed to uised to haue the tentes or tabernacles made for Christ, Helias, and Moyses, to dwell in the brightnes of the Godhead allowed them, and the voyce of the father was heard saynge.

This is my welbeloued sonne, heare hym. No who should saye. My wil is not that you sin taiye thinges of youre owne braynes, but that you folowe the doctrine that he shall teache.

Helyas. b. Jhon Baptist is called Helyas, because he preached with the spirite of Helias, that is to saye boldly sharply as Helias did.

Prayer and fastyng. c. Here take the superstitious papistes, great holde for theyr prescripte fastynges, and sette number of prayer. But fondely. For here is nothyng wherevpon to buylde any prescripte dayes or number. For this is all that maye be gathered of the texte. That suche as be once troubled with the wicked spirite of frenesy, cā not be deliuered of hym tyll such tyme as they geue themselues to true prayer (that is to say continual lifting vp of theyr hertes to Godward) and fastyng that is subduynge of the flesh to the spirite by withdrawyng from it, not onely the plentyouse and delicious fode that it deliteth in: but also softe clothyng, and all other thynges that it deliteth in.

So that in this place his meaning is none other then if he had sayde. Notwithstandyng that youre weake fayth were a greate parte of the cause that you could not caste out this deuelysh spirit: yet was there also an other cause. That is on the sike mans behalfe, for he hadde not putte hym selfe wholye into the handes of God, neyther had endeuoured to mortefie his fleshe, by true prayer and fastyng.

Offence d. If Christ had not payed the tol money, he should haue offended the people. That is, his exemple should haue caused the people to withholde the tribute, whiche muste of necessitie be payed vnto kynges.

The .xviij. Chapter.

A Declareth who disciples to be greatest and howe they ought to auoyde occasions of euill, and one to forgeue an other offences.

Matt.xx. Luke.xx. Greatest. AT Whatsome tyme the disciples came vnto Jesus saynge: who is the greatest in the kyngdom of heauen Jesus called a chylde vnto hym, and set hym in the middes of them: and sayde. Verely I saye vnto you: except ye turne, and become as chyldren, ye cannot entre into the kyngedome of heauen. Who soeuer therfore humble hym selfe as this chylde, the same is the greatest in the kyngedom of heauen. And whosoeuer receyueth suche a chylde in my name, receyueth me. But

Matt.xv. Luke.xvij.a. whosoeuer .a. offende one of these litelons, which believe in me: it were better for hym, that a mill stone were hanged about his necke, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea. Woe be vnto the worlde because of offences. Howe be it, it cannot be auoyded but that offences shall be geuen. Howebeit woe be to the man, by whome the offence cometh.

Wherfore if thy hande or thy fote offende thee, cut hym of and cast hym from the. It is better for the to entre into lyfe halte or maymed, rather then thou shouldest hauinge two handes or two fete, be cast into euerlastyng fyre. And if also thyne eye offende the, plucke hym out and cast hym from the. It is better for the to entre into lyfe with one eye, then hauyng two eyes to be cast into hell fyre. Matt.xij. Mark.ix.

See that ye not dispise not one of these litelones. For I saye vnto you, that in heauē their aungels alwayes behold the face of my father which is in heauen. ✠ Yea, and the sonne of man is come to saue that whych is lost. Howe thynke ye? If a man haue an hundred sheepe, & one of them be gone astray, doth he not leaue nyntye and nyne in the mountaynes, and go & seke that one whych is gone astraye. If it happen that he fynde him, verely I saye vnto you: he reioyseth more of that sheepe, then of the nyntye and nyne, which went not astray. Euē so it is not the wil of your father in heauen, that one of these litelons shoulde perish. Luke.xv.b. Luke.xix.a. Hunting sheepe.

✠ Moreouer, if thy brother trespasse agaynst the, go and tell hym hys fault betwene hym and the alone. If he heare the, thou hast wone thy brother. But if he heare the not, then take yet with the one or two, that in the mouthe of two or three witnesses, all thynges may be stablished. If he heare not them, tell it vnto the congregation. If he heare not the congregation, take hym as a heathen man, & as a publican. Verely I saye vnto you, whatsoeuer ye bynde on earth, shalbe bounde in heauen. And whatsoeuer ye lowse on erth, shalbe lowsed in heauen. Goo vnto hym & tell hym Luke.xvij.a Jam.v.b. Leui.xix. Deut.xix. 2.Cor.xiij. Heb.x. Joh.xx.

Agayne I saye vnto you, that if two of you shall agree in earth vpon any maner thyng .b. whatsoeuer they shall desire: it shalbe geuen them of my father whyche is in heauen. For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the middes of them. In the name.

Then came Peter to hym, & sayde: master howe ofte shall I forgeue my brother, if he synne agaynst me, seuen tymes? Jesus sayde vnto hym: I say not vnto the seuen times: but seuenty times seuen tymes. Luke.xvij. Seuen times

✠ Therefore is the kyngedom of heauen lykened vnto a certayne kyng, whyche would take a counters of hys seruauntes. And whē he had begon to reken: one was brought vnto hym: which ought hym ten thousand talentes, whome because he had nought to paye, hys master commaunded him to be solde, and his wyfe, and hys chyldren, and all that he had, & payment to be made. The seruaunt fell downe and besought hym sayinge: Syr geue me respite, and I will paye it euery whyt. Che had the lord pitye on that seruaunt, & lowsed him and forgaue hym the dette. D

And the same seruaut went out & found one of hys felowes, which ought him an hundred pence, & layed handes on him, & tooke him by the throte sayinge: paye me that thou owest. And hys felowe fell downe & besought hym, saying:

saying: haue patience with me, and I will pay the all. But he would not, but went and cast hym into prison till he should pay the det. When hys other felowes saw what was done, they were very sory, and came and told unto theyr Lord all that had happened. Then his Lorde called hym, and sayde unto hym. O evill servaunt I forgaue the al that det, because thou praiest me: was it not mete also that thou shouldest have had compassion on thy felow, even as I had pitie on the? And his lord was wroth and delivered him to the jaylers, til he should pay all that was due to hym. So likewyse shal my heavenly father do unto you. except ye forgeve with your hertes, eache one to hys brother theyr trespasses.

¶ The notes.

a. To offende them that believe in Christ: is to do the thynge that is evill in the sighte of the weakelynges (for suche are called lyttetons or children) whereby they take ensample to do evill. And to receyve one of those littletons in hys name is to entreate them, to beare with theyr weakenes, and to endevour to make the stronge in Christ.

b. Loke the exposition of this in Mathew.b

c. When we have after the order of charite admonished oure brother, and he for hys obstinacie, be worthely accounted as a Publicane by the whole consent of the congregation, then are we sure by this ✝ God bindeth the same in heaven, or loseth, if we bid hys penitent herte remit his faulte, and take him as a felowe member with us of Christes mistical bodye

d. This whatsoever, reacheth no farther then thinges axed in Christes name. And in his name can we axe nothing but we must referre it whole to the will of the father as Christ hym selfe did and taught hys to do, saynge: Not as I will father, but thy will be done.

e. In this parable, it is manifestly declared, that onely the mercifull shall fynde mercy to God. For they onely are the children of God. And this is the onely entente of the parable. Wherefore, all such wordes and scriptures, as do not make directly for this purpose: are not to be taken as thynges worthy to bylde our fayth upon as is this. The Lorde forgaue the det. And yet when he was enformed of hys servauntes unmercifulnes: he revoked hys sentence, and caste hym in prison for the whole. If oure heavenly father, were compared unto this Lorde in this poynt: then shoulde it folowe that he were not the searcher of the hert, but judged according to the bare appearance as men do. Right so is it of all other parables.

The.xix. Chapter.

¶ Christ geveth sentence concerninge mariage, and teacheth who to be chaste, and to whom mariage is free.

ANd it came to passe when Jesus had finished these sayinges, he gat him from Galile, and came into the coostes of Jury beyonde Jordan, and much people folowed hym, and he healed them there. Deuter. 24.a

Then came unto him the Pharises, tempting him, & saying to hym: Is it lawful for a man to put away his wyfe for all maner of causes? He answered and sayde unto them: Have ye not redde, howe that he which made man at the beginning, made them man and woman and sayd: For this thynge, shall a man leave father and mother & cleave unto his wyfe, & they twayne but one flesh. Wherefore now are they not twayne, but one flesh. Let not man therefore put a sunder, that which God hath coupled together. Gene.1.d. Ephe.5.g 1.Cor.vi.d.

Then sayd they to him: why did Moyses commaund to geve a testimoniall of divorcement, & to put her away? He sayde unto them: Moyses because of the hardnes of your hertes suffered you to put away your wyves. But from the beginning it was not so. I say therefore unto you, whosoever putteth away hys wyfe, (except it be for fornication) & marieth another, breaketh wedlocke. And whosoever marieth her, which is divorced, doth commit aboultry. Mar.x.b. Luke.xvi.d 1.Cor.vij.

Then sayde his disciples to him: if the matter be so betwene man and wyfe, then is it not good to marye. He sayde unto them: all men can not awaye with that saying, save they to whome it is geven. There are chaste whiche were so borne out of theyr mothers bealy. And there are chaste whiche be made of men. And there be chaste. which have made them selves chaste for the kyngdom of heaven's sake. He that can take it let him take it. b

Then were brought to him yong children, that he should put his handes on them & pray. And the disciples rebuked them. But Jesus sayd suffre the children and forbid them not to come to me: for of suche is the kyngdome of heaven. And when he had put his handes on them he departed thence. And beholde one came and sayde to him: good master, what good thinge shall I do, that I may have eternall lyfe? He sayde to him: why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, & that is God. But if thou wilt enter into lyfe, kepe the commaundementes. The other sayd to him: Which? And Jesus sayde: Doubt no wedlocke, kyll not, steale not, beare not false witnes, honoure father and mother, and love thy neyghboure as thy selfe. And the yong man sayd unto him: I have observed all these thynges from my youth, what lacke I yet? And Jesus sayde unto him, if thou wilt be perfecte. c. go and sell that thou hast, and geve it to the poore, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven, and come and folowe me. When the yonge man heard that saying he went away mourninge. For he had great possessions. Mar.x.b Luke.xviij.a. c Commaundementes.

a. The Monkes, Freres, and other wyrkes marchaunts, bragged very much of this cha pitre. As though they had made them selues chaste for the kyngedome of God. But they were far wyde. For whether ye take it thus, that as the other, which dyd eyther by nature lacke the strength of generacion, or els were by men made geldynges: so these shoulde ey-ther by medecines destroye the naturall opera cion in their bodyes, or els gelde them selues for the kyngdom of God sake. Or els that they dyd by sore laboure and abstinence, subdue their bodyes, so that they might refrayne the appetite of the flesh: eyther wayes serueth for their purpose. For their rule was to be sure of their pure members, wherfore they might not gelde them selues. Labour they might not and as for their fastynge was but continuall exercise. The maner of geldinge therefore, that Christ willeth men to embrace is spirituall.
Eyther when a man hanging the gifte of the love lyke vnto it to the letting foorthe of Gods worde. Or els beyng gelded by men: lyeth the same to the same ende. Or els beyng a perfect and natural man: taketh hym an honest pooke fellow, and liueth in chaste mariage with her because men shoulde not take occasion by his fleshely lyuyng to misse reporte the kyngdom of God, which is his worde. This shalbe further declared in Paules Epistles, where occasion shalbe geuen.

God onely is good.

b. All the creatures of God are good, because they are his creatures, and serue to the vse he hath appointed them. But God onely is good of him selfe, and for him selfe.

To sell all

c. Christ bad him go sell all, to make him declare him selfe a liar in that he had boasted him selfe to haue kepte all the commaundem-tes. For if he had kepte but the first commaun-dement (that is love God above all thynges)
he woulde not haue stycked to sell his goo-des to be perfecte, that is to be a mete scholer for Christes schole.

D. Theophilactus readeth a Cable. The Gree worde signifieth both Camell and Cable.
But that foreeth not, the meanyng is all one.
It is an impossible that a ryche man, that is to saye (such one as maketh his ryches his treasure) should enter into the kyngdome of God that is should become a true christian: as that eyther a Camel or Cable should passe throwe
the eye of a nedle.

c. This is like as the Sodomites shal iudge the cyties of Juda, that is shall cyte them for farre, that they them selues shall thynke them selues worthy condemnation in comparison of the other. For none shall geue sentence but onely Christ, to whome the father hath geue
all iudgement.

The .xx. Chapter.

¶ Christ teacheth by a similitude, that God is herre to no man, and how he is euyn calling men to his labour. He teacheth his disciples to be lowly, & geueth them bridle ouer their ryghte.

whiche were hyred about the eleuenth houre, came and receyued euery man a peny. Then they murmured agaynst the good man of the house sayng: These laste haue wrought but one houre, and thou hast made them equall

a. The whole purpose of this parable, is to proue that God rewardeth not his workemen according to the time they worke, and prayers that they take in his vineyarde, that is in this world: but according to his mercy. Wo be to you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, which tythe mynte, anyse and commen, and leaue the waighteyer matters of the lawe vndone: iudgement, mercy, and fayth. Wo be to you Scribes and Pharisees hypocrites, for ye are lyke vnto painted tombes, whiche appeare beautifull outwarde, but are within full of dead bones and of all filthines. So are ye, for outwarde ye apeare righteous vnto men, when within, ye are full of hypocrisie and iniquitie.

Painted Sepulchres.

Wo be vnto you Scribes and Pharisees hypocrites, ye buylde the tombes of the Prophetes and garnysh the sepulchres of ỹ righteous, and saye: if we had bene in the dayes of our fathers, we woulde not haue bene partyners with them in the bloude of the Prophetes. So then ye be witnesses to your selues, ỹ ye are the chyldren of them whyche kylled the Prophetes. Fulfil ye likewyse the measure of your fathers. Moises seate

a. It is to be taught that the Jewes had in their temples, som certaine place wherin was a seate or chaire for him that reade the lawe of Moises to the people, to sit on whilst he read (as we have nowe in our churches, for the that read the Epistel and Gospell to the people) which might right wel be called Moises seate, because Moises lawe onlye was read in that place.

Nowe the Scribes and Pharisies were appointed to that seate: wherfore our saviour commaunded his disciples to obserue all that they teache. For while they sate in that seate, they taught Moises lawe onlye. In lyke maner standeth it with us and our pharisies: so longe as they sytte on Christes seate and reade unto us Christe out of the holye Bibell boke: we are by Christes commaundements, bounde to obeye them. But when they runne to their owne traditions: we are as free from them as the Apostles were from the scribes & pharisies of their tyme.

b. Here is the bishoppe of Rome declared a playne Antichriste in that he woulde be called the most holye father, and that all christen me shoulde acknowledge him for no lesse then their spirituall father notwithstandinge these playne wordes of Christe call no man youre father.

To shut the kingdome.

c. To shut up the kingdome of God before men is to dispence with mens consciences for the leauinge of Goddes commaundements undone appointinge them workes of their owne inuention to supplye the same (as our ghostly fathers have bin to do in confessyon.) For this is the kingdome of God, when men be studious to do the will of God, & thinke it not sufficient to leave Gods will undone and then to satisfye after their owne fantasy, wherfore all suche as hinder this study shute the kingdome of God before men.

Woulde not.

d. Upon this place is builded a wonderfull choyse and free will of man. Who may (as the papistes and certayne other Antechristes Imagin) withstande the will of God, which is (say they) that al men shoulde be saued and come to y acknowlegynge of the truthe: which thinge, man maye of him selfe refuse or embrace that then he not blessed in the (christian reader) thou shalt not that the will of God must be conceyued two maner of wayes. First it is eternall inuerutyble and unchangeable, so that it can not be resysted, but must be fulfylled, though all the world woulde say nay. After this maner woulde not Christe have ga thered the Jewes together. For: both Esaye in the vi. chap. & Psalmist xciij. & had prophesyed their obstinate, euen according ye as his eternall will of God had purposed. Secondarye the will of God is to be considered, as it is knowen to men by the scriptures. That is that men shoulde love God above all thynges, and do to other as they woulde be done by.

Esay. vi. g. xxix. d

Psal. xciij. f

After this sorte woulde God have gathered the Jewes together, in declaringe this his will unto them by the prophetes, but they woulde not because they were those stubborne herted people that the vnsearchable will of God, hadde ordayned to se y not perceyue, to heare and not vnderstand, lest they should conuerte and he shoulde heale them.

☞ The. xxiiij. Chapter.

¶ Christe foreseeth and declareth the destruction of the temple, the ende of the worlde and the comynge of the latter daye, and warneth them to watche, for the worlde shall vnwarely perishe.

AND Jesus went out and departed from the temple: and his disciples came to him for to shewe him the building of the temple. Jesus sayde unto them: Se ye not all these thinges? Verely I say unto you there shal not be here left one stone upon another that shall not be cast doune.

A Marc. xiij. a Destruction of the temple.

And as he sate upon the mounte Olivet: his disciples came unto him secretlye saying. Tell us when these thinges shalbe: and what signe shalbe of thy comynge and of the ende of the worlde? And Jesus answered and sayd unto them: take hede that no man deceyue you. For many shal come in my name saying: I am Christe: and shall deceyue many.

Luke. b. b Colos. ii. b Antechriste.

Ye shall heare of warres and of the fame of warres: but se that ye be not troubled. For all these thinges muste come to passe, but the ende is not yet. For nacion shall ryse against nacion and realme against realme: and there shalbe pestilence, hunger and earth quakes in certayne places. All these are the begynnynge of sorowes.

Then shall they put you to trouble, and shall kyll you: and ye shalbe hated of all nacions for my names sake. And then shall many be offended, and shal betray one another, and shall hate one the other. And many false prophetes shall arise, and shall deceyue many. And because iniquite shall have the vpper hande the love of many shall abate. But he that endureth to the ende, the same shall be safe. And this glad tydinges of the kingdome shalbe preached in all the worlde, for a witnes unto all nacions: & then shal y ende come.

false prophe tes.

When ye therfore shall se the abhominacion that betokeneth desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophete, stande in the. a. holye place (let hym that readeth it, understande it) then let them which be in Jurye, flye into the mountaynes. And let him which is on ỹ house toppe not come downe to fetche ought thynge out of his house. Neither let him which is in ỹ fielde returne backe to fetche his clothes. Wo in those daies to them ỹ are with childe, and to them that geue sucke. But praye that youre flyght be not in the. b. Winter, neyther on the Sabboth daye. For then shalbe great tribulacion such as was not from the beginninge of the worlde to this tyme, no: shalbe: yea, and except those dayes should be shortened, there shoulde no fleshe be saued: but for the chosens sake, those daies shalbe shortened. Then if anye man shall saye vnto you: lo here is Christe, or there is christ: beleue it not. For there shall arise false Christes, and false prophetes, and shall do great myracles and wonders. In so much that if it were possyble the very electe should be deceyued. Take hede, I haue tolde you before. Wherfore if they shal saye vnto you: beholde he is in the deserte, in the secrete places beleue not. For as the lyghtenynge commeth out of the east, and shyneth in to the west, so shal the commynge of the sonne of man be. For wheresoeuer a dead carkes is, euen thyther wyll the egles resort.

Immediatly after the tribulacions of those dayes, shall the. c. sonne be darkened: and the mone shall not geue hyr lyght, and the starres shal fall frō heauē, & the powers of heauē shal moue. And then shal apeare the sygne of the sonne of man in heauen. And then shall all the kynredes of the earth mourne, and they shall se the sonne of man come in the cloudes of heauen with power and great glorye. And he shall sende his. f. aungels with the greate voyce of a trompe, and they shall gader together his chosen from the foure windes, and from the one ende of the worlde to the other.

Learne a symylytude of the fygge tree: whē his braunches are yet tender, and his leaues sprynge, ye knowe that sommer is nye, so lykewyse ye, when ye se all these thynges, be ye sure that it is neare euen at the doores. Verely I saye vnto you, that this. g. generation shal not passe tyll all these be fulfylled. Heauen & earth shal perishe, but my wordes shal abide. But of that daye and houre knoweth no man, no not the aungels of heauen, but my father onelye.

As the tyme of Noe was, so lykewyse shal the commynge of the sonne of man be. For as in the dayes before the floude, they did eate & dranke, mary and were maried, euen vnto the daye that Noe entred into the shippe, & knew of nothinge, tyll the floude came and toke thē all awaye. So shal also the commynge of the sonne of man be. Then. h. two shall be in the fielde, the one shalbe receyued, and the other shalbe refused, two shalbe grindinge at the mylle, the one shalbe receyued, and the other shalbe refused.

Wake therfore, because ye knowe not what houre your master wyll come. Of this be sure, that if the good man of the house knewe what houre the theefe would come, he would surelye watche, and not suffer his house to be broken vp. Therfore be ye also redye, for in. i. the houre ye thinke he wouldē not, wyll the sonne of man come. Who is there then a faythfull seruaunt and wyse, whome his master hath made ruler ouer his household to geue them meate in season conuenient: happy is that seruaunt whom his master (when he cometh) shall fynde so doynge. Verelye I saye vnto you, he shall make hym ruler ouer all hys goodes. But and if that cursed seruaunt shall saye in his herte, my master wyll defer hys commynge, and beg̃e to smyte his felowes, yea, and to eate and to dranke with the dronken: that seruauntes master wyll come in a daye when he loketh not for him, and in an houre that he is not ware of, and wyll deuide hym, and geue him his rewarde with hipocrites. There shalbe weping and gnashyng of tethe.

¶ The notes.

a. This holye place is the tēple of God, that is the congregacion of Christe, as Paule wryteth.

b. Here is to be thought, that Christe dyd counsell ye admonish his disciples of the tyme of the vere and daye of the destruction of Hyerusalem. For as Strabo wryteth in hys xvi. booke, Pompeius toke thē on the Saboth daye, and so dyd Titus and Vespasyan also. Ye is mentioned in Frontonius. But yet it is rather to be tought that he vsed these wordes winter and Saboth: to the entente to set forth the greatnes of the trouble that shoulde chaūce in those dayes, to be suche that if it fel in the wynter or in the Saboth daye (when they myght not by the lawe trauell paste one myle) it shoulde not be possyble for them to escape by flenge awaye.

c. It is not possyble that those whom God hath elected from the begynning of the worlde should be seduced so that they shoulde hate or persecute the waye of the Lorde, whiche they haue once professed.

d. Egles are byrdes that flye hygh and feade vpon carion. Wherfore they resorte vnto the dead carkas that lyeth somtyme far from thē. It is therfore a mete symylitude to declare that the Christians (whose conuersation is hyghe in heauen) shall at the laste daye resorte to Christe their fode, from all partes of the worlde.

e. The sunne shalbe darkned, shalbe made as sackcloth or smoke. The mone shal not geue her lyght, shall be tourned into bloude before that daye come and the starres shal fall. No doubt all this muste be spyrytually vnderstande. That is, for the sunne the worde of God whyche is the lyght of the worlde and for the Generacion. g. Generacion is taken here for that empire which was then chefe of the whole worlde, that was Rome. While Rome therfore beareth the name of the chiefe empire of Christendome, shall the latter daye come. h. This declareth, that euen to the daye of iudgement, the good and bad shall dwell together.

The.xxv. Chapter.

The ten virgins, the talentes deliuered to the seruauntes, and of the generall iudgement.

Virgins. THen the. a. kingdome of heauen shalbe lykened vnto ti virgins, which toke their lampes and went to mete the bridegrom. Of whom fyue were wise, & fyue were folysshe. The folysshe toke their lampes, but toke none oyle with them. But the wise toke oyle with them in their vessels with their lampes also. While the bridegrome tarried, al slombred and slepte. And euen at midnight there was a crye made: beholde, the bridegrome cometh, goo out against hym. Then all those virgins arose, and prepared their lampes. And the folysshe sayed to the wise: geue vs of youre oyle for oure lampes go out. But the wyse answered sayinge not so, least there be not. c. enough for vs and you: but go rather to them that sell & by for youre selues.

And whyle they went to bye the bridegrome came: and they that were redye, went in with hym to the weddinge, and the gate was shut vp. Afterwardes cam also the other virgins sayinge: maister maister, open to vs. But he answered and sayd: verely I say vnto you: I knowe not you. d. watche therfore: for ye knowe neither the daye nor houre wher the sonne of man shall come.

Luke.xix.b D + Lykewyse as a certayne man, redye to take iorney to a straunge countre, called hys seruauntes and deliuered to them his goodes. And vnto one he gaue fyue talentes, to another. ii. and to another one: to euery man after his abylite, and straight waye departed. The he that had receyued the. v. talentes, went and occupied them and wan other fyue talentes. Likewise he that receiued two, gained other two. But he that receiued the one, went and digged a pit in the earth and hid his maisters money. After a longe season the Lorde of those seruauntes came and reckened with them.

Talentes. Then came he that had receyued. v. talentes, and brought other. v. talentes, sayinge: maister thou deliuerest vnto me fyue talentes behold I haue gained with them fyue talentes mo. Then his maister sayde vnto him: Well good seruaunt and faithfull. Thou hast ben faythfull in litle, I will make the ruler ouer manye. e. enter in into the ioye of thy maister. Also he that receiued. ii. talentes, came and sayd: maister thou deliuerest vnto me two talentes, beholde I haue wonne two other talentes with them. And his maister sayde vnto him, well good seruaunt and faithfull. Thou hast ben faythfull in litle, I will make the ruler ouer manye: go in into the ioye of thy maister. f

Then he which had receiued the one talent, came & sayde: maister, I considered that thou wast an harde man, which sowest where thou settest not, & gaderest where thou strawest not, and was therfore afrayde, and went and hid thy talente in the earth: beholde, there hast thyne owne. His maister answered and sayd vnto him: thou euyll seruaunte and slouthfull, thou knowest that I reape where I sowed not, and gadder where I strawed not: thou oughtest therfore to haue had my money to the chaungers, then at my comminge shoulde I haue receyued myne owne with vauntage. Take therfore the talent from him, and geue it vnto him which hath ten talentes. For vnto euerye man that hathe. f. shalbe geuen, and he shall haue aboundaunce, and from him that hath not, shall be taken awaye, euen that he hath. And caste that vnprofytable seruaunt into vtter darcknes: there shalbe wepinge & gnashinge of tethe. Luke.xix.a

The iudgement. + When the sonne of man cometh in his glorye, and all the holye aungels with him, then shall he sytte vpon the seate of his glorye, and before him shall be gathered all nacions, and he shall separate them one from another, as a shephearde deuideth the shepe from the gootes. And he shall set the shepe on his right hande, and the gootes on his lefte. Then shall the kinge saye to them on his right hande. Come ye blessed children of my father, enherite ye the kingdome prepared for you from the beginninge of the worlde. For I was an hongred & ye gaue me meate. I thirsted and ye gaue me drinke. I was herbourles and ye lodged me. I was naked and ye clothed me. I was sycke and ye visited me. I was in prysone and ye came vnto me. Then shal the righteous answere him sayinge, maister, when sawe we the an hongred, & fede the, or a thyrst, & gaue the drinke? when sawe we the herbourles, and lodged the? or naked and clothed the? or when sawe we the sycke or in prysone and came vnto the? When hys disciples sawe that, they had indignacyon, sayinge: what nedeth this waste? This oyntment myght haue bene wel solde, and geuen to the poore. When Jesus vnderstode that, he sayed vnto the: why trouble ye the woman? she hath wrought a good worke vpon me. For ye shall haue poore folke alwaies with you, but me shall ye not haue alwayes. And in that she casted this oyntment on my body, she dyd it to burye me with al. Verelye I saye vnto you, wheresoeuer this gospell shalbe preached throughout al the world, there shal also this that she hath done, be told for a memorial of her.

And he went a lytell aparte, and fell flat on hys face and prayed sayinge: O my father, yf it be possible, let this cup passe from me: neuertheless not as I will, but as thou wilte. And he came vnto the disciples, and founde them a slepe, & sayd to Peter: what, could ye not watche with me one houre: watche and praye, that ye fall not into temptacion. f. Mat.xiij.e Luke.xxij.f. Joh.xviij.e. he is taken.

The same tyme sayde Jesus to the multitude: be ye come out as it were vnto a theef with sweardes and staues, for to take me. I sat dayly teachynge in the temple amonge you, and ye toke me not. All this was done that the scriptures of the Prophetes myght be fulfylled. Then all the disciples forsoke hym and fled. And they toke Jesus, and ledde hym to Caiaphas the hye Preist, where the Scribes & the Elders were assembled. And Peter folowed hi a farre of vnto the hye preistes palayce: and went in and sat with the seruauntes, to se the ende.

He is falsifye accused.

The chiefe preistes and the elders, and all the counsell, sought false wytnes against Jesus, for to put hym to death, but founde none in so muche that when many false wytnesses came yet founde they none. At the laste came two false wytnesses, and sayed: This fellowe sayed: I can destroye the temple of God and buylde it agayne in thre daves.

John.ij.b.

And the chief preist arose, and sayd to hym: answerest thou nothynge? How is it that these beare wytnes against the? But Jesus held hys peace: And the chief Preist answered and sayed to hym: I charge the in the name of the liuynge God, that thou tell vs whyther thou be Christ the sonne of God. Jesus sayd to him thou hast sayed. Neuertheles I say vnto you, hereafter shall ye se the sonne of man sittynge on the ryght hand of power, and come in the cloudes of the skye.

Then the hye Preist rent hys clothes sayinge: He hath blasphemed: what nede we of anye more wytnesses? Beholde nowe ye have heard hys blasphemy what thynke ye? They answered and sayde: he is worthy to dye. Then spat they in hys face and bolleted hym with fistes. And other smot hym with the palme of their handes on the face, sayinge tell vs thou Christ who is he that smote the?

Mar.xiiij.f Luc.xxij.f John.xviij.c. Peter denyeth.

Peter sate without in the palayce. And a damsell came to him sayinge: Thou also wast with Jesus of Galile: but he denyed before them all sayinge: I wote not what thou sayst. Whē he was gone onte into the porche, another wenche sawe hym, and sayde vnto them that were there. This fellowe was also with Jesus of Nazareth, and agayne he denyed with an oth that he knew not the man. And after a whyle came vnto hym they that stode by, & sayde vnto Peter: surely thou art euē one of them, for thy speache bewrayeth the. Then began he to curse and to sweare that he knew not the man. And immediatly the cocke crewe. And Peter remembred the wordes of Jesu which sayed vnto hym: before the cocke crowe, thou shalt denye me thryse. And went out at the doore and wept bitterlye.

¶ The notes.

Good worke

a. This good worke is it that the papistes buylde all the pompe and wast of their temples vpon, accountynge it so better bestowed, then vpō the poore. But far wyde. For Christ prayseth it not for a good dede, in that the thyng which myght have ben geuē to the poore was wasted: but because it was bestowed vpō him who (as then stode) nede of it. For the daye of his buryall was at hande when he should nede suche oyntmentes to be buryed accordig to the maner of the Jewes buriynge.

b. In the .xv. chapter of Exodus shalte thou spoke

The daye of swete bread.

fynd the numbre of these dayes to be .lxx. And they are called the dayes of swete bread, because ỹ Iewes myght not in those dayes eate ange leuened bread.

This is my bodye.

Jn these fewe wordes lyeth all the controuersy that had bene & is about the beleue of the Sacramente of Christes bodye and blonde: Some say that when he spake those wordes: he poited to hys owne bodye, as who shoulde saye, he woulde speake one thynge, and poynte another, that none myght vnderstande hys meanynge, but suche as sawe hym onelye. Of these men I woulde aske to what he pointed, when he said this is my blonde, &c. An other sorte saye, that by the vertue of those wordes he turned the bread into hys verye natuall bodye and blonde really and realli. Of these men I woulde knowe whether hys bodye were then corruptible or not. The thirde sorte there be whiche saye, that he neyther pointed to hys owne bodye, nor yet turned the bread into hys bodye: but spake of the bread callonge it hys bodye in signification. As thoughe he shoulde haue saied this bread beynge broken, deuyded amonge you and eaten of you: signifyeth vnto you my bodye, whiche shal be broken for you. These men are called heretykes, but are in dede the true Christians.

Offence.

d. This offence is spoken of .xiiij. in the .xi. chap. c.

The soule.

This soule is the mynde or herte. For so it was the maner of the Hebrues to speake as it appeareth in the Psalmes abundantly.

The spirite is prompt.

f. The occasion that moue Saynoure had to speake these wordes to hys disciples, declareth that this spirite whiche he saieth is readye, is not the spirite of man (which Paul calleth the inward man) but the euyll spirite that tempteth man. For when he had exhorted the to watche and to praye: he shewed the ỹ cause why he will they shoulde be tempted. And the to declare the vehemency they had so to do, he telleth them that the spirite is readye (and as Saynt Peter saieth goeth about seekynge whome he may deuoure) and the flesshe is weake, not able to resist the temptacions.

Slepe hence forth.

g. This is an Ironye, whiche is one thynge spoken, and another mente. For in bydynge the slepe he admonysheth that it were more then needfull for them to slepe for the feruent considerynge how nyghe he was at hande that had betrayed hym.

To laye hande on the swerd.

h. He saieth hand on the swearde, that beynge a priuate person: wyll take in hande to rule ge with the swearde, without any lawe or consent of the contrye to beare hym (yea or rather to constrayne hym) and all suche are threatened to perysshe with the swearde.

Before ỹ cock crowe.

i. Here are two thynges to be noted. Fyrste howe able Peter was to fulfyll hys manfull promyse, whiche was that though he should dye with Christ, yet would he not denye hym. The other, how impossyble it is that the worde of God shoulde not be founde true and fulfylled.

The .xxvij. Chapter.

Christ is deliuered vnto Pilate, Judas hangeth hym selfe, Christ is crucified amonge theues, he dyeth and is buryed. The watchemen kepe the graue.

When the morninge was come, all the chief priestes & the elders of the people held a counsell agaynste Jesus, to put hym to death, & broughte hym bounde and deliuered hym vnto Pontius Pilate the debitie. Mat.xxvj. Luke.xxij. He is deliuered to Pylate.

Then when Judas whiche betraied him, saw that he was condemned, he repented him selfe, and brought againe the .xxx. plates of syluer to the chefe priestes and elders saiynge: I haue synned betrayinge the innocent bloud. And they sayde: what is that to vs? Se thou to that. And he caste doune the syluer plates in the temple, and departed, and went, and honge hym selfe. Judas.

And the chief priestes toke ỹ syluer plates, & sayed: it is not lawfull for to putte them into the treasury, because it is the pryce of blonde. And they toke counsell, and bought with the a potters fylde to bury straungers in. Wherfore that fylde is called the fylde of blonde vnto this day. Then was fulfylled that which was spoken by Jeremy the Prophete saiynge: and they toke thyrty syluer plates the pryce of hym that was valued, whō they bought of the children of Jsrael, and they gaue them for the potters fylde: as the Lorde appointed me. Actu.i. Zacha.xi.

Jesus stode before the debitie: and the debitie axed hym saiynge: Art thou the Kynge of ỹ Jewes? Jesus sayed vnto hym: Thou sayest. And when he was accused of the chief priestes & elders he answered nothynge. Then sayed Pylate vnto hym: hearest thou not how many thynges they laye against the? And he answered hym to never a worde: in so muche that the debitie maruepled greatly. Mat.xxvij. Luke.xxiij. He holdeth his peace

At that feaste, the debitie was wont to deliuer to the people a prysoner, whō they would desyre. He had the a notable prysoner called Barrabas. And when they were gathered together, Pylate sayde to them whether wyll ye that I let loose vnto you Barrabas or Jesu, whiche is called Christe? For he knewe well that for enuye they had delyuered hym. Barrabas

When he was set doune to geue iudgement hys wyfe sent to hym saiynge: haue ỹ nothynge to do with that iuste man. For I haue suffered many thynges this daye in a dreame about hym. But the chief priestes and the elders had perswaded the people, that they shulde aske Barrabas and destroye Jesus. Then the debitie answered and sayd vnto them: whether of the twayne will ye that I let loose vnto you? And they sayed: Barrabas. Pylate sayed vnto them: what shall I do then with Jesus whiche is called Christ? They all sayed vnto hym: let hym be crucified. Then sayed the debitie: what euyll hath he done? And they cried the more saiynge: let hym be crucified. Mar.xv. Luke.xxiij. Joh.xviij.

When Pilate sawe that he preuayled nothyng but ỹ more busynes was made, he toke water water and washed his handes before the people sayinge I am innocēt of the bloude of this iust persone, ye on your perille be it. Thē answered al the people & sayd, his bloude be on vs and on oure childre. Then let he Barrabas louse vnto them, and schourged Jesus, and delyuered hym to be crucifyed.

Then the souldiers of the debyte toke Jesus to the common hall, and gathered to hym all the compayne. And they strypped hym, and put on hym a purpyll robe, and platted a croune of thornes & put vpon his head, and a reed in his ryght hande, & bowed their knees before him and mocked hym, sayinge: hayle kinge of the Jewes, and spitted vpon hym & toke the reed and smote him on the head.

And when they had mocked hym: they toke the robe of hym agayn, and put his owne rayment on hym, and lead him awaye to crucifye hym. And as they came out, they found a man of Cyren named Symon: him they compelled to beare his crosse. And whē they came vnto ỹ place, called Golgotha (that is to saye: a place of dead mens scolles) they gaue hym wronge to drynke mengled with gall. And when he had tasted therof: he would not drinke.

¶ He is crucified.

When they had crucifyed hym: they parted his garmentes, and did cast lottes, to fulfyll that was spoken by the prophete. They deuided my garmentes amonge them, and vpon my vesture dyd they cast lottes. And they sate and watched him there. And they set vp ouer his head the cause of his death written. This is Jesus the kinge of ỹ Jewes. And there were two theues crucifyed with him one on ỹ right hande, and another on the sylte.

He is railed on.

They that passed by, reuyled hym waggynge their heades & sayinge: Thou that destroyest the temple of God and buyldest it in thre dayes: saue thy selfe. If thou be the sonne of God: come downe from the crosse. Lykewise also the hye priestes mockynge hym with the scribes and elders sayde. He saued other, him selfe he can not saue. If he be the kinge of Israel let him now come downe frō ỹ crosse, and we wyll beleue him. He trusted in God, let hym deliuer hym now, if he wyl haue him: for he sayde I am ỹ sonne of God. That same also the theues which were crucified with him cast in his teth.

Psalm. xxi. a

From the sixte houre was there darckenes ouer all the lande vnto the nynthe houre. And aboute the nynthe houre Jesus cryed with a loude voice sayinge: Eli Eli lama sabachani. That is to saye, my God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? Some of them that stode ther, when they hearde that, sayd. This man calleth for Helias. And straight waye one of them ranne & toke a sponge and fylled it full of wenegar, and put it on a rede, and gaue him to drinke. & other sayed, let be let vs se whether Helias wyll come and deliuer hym. Jesus cryed agayne with a loude voyce and yeldeth vp the ghost.

He geueth vp the ghost.

And beholde the vayle of the temple twayne from the toppe to the bottome and the earth dyd quake, and the rockes did rent, and graues did open, and the bodies of many sayntes which slept arose & came out of the graues after his resurrection: and came into the holy cite and appered vnto many.

The vayle of the temple deuyded in ayre.

When the Centurion and they that were with hym watchinge Jesus, sawe the earth quake and those thinges whiche happened they feared greatly sayinge: Of a surete this was the sonne of God.

And many women were there, beholding him a farre of, which folowed Jesus frō Galile, mynistring vnto him. Among which was Mary Magdalena and Mary the mother of James & Joses, and the mother of Zebedeus children.

When the euen was come, there came a riche man of Aramathia named Joseph, which same also was Jesus disciple. He went to Pilate and begged the body of Jesus. Then Pilate cōmaunded the body to be deliuered. And Joseph toke the body, & wrapped it in a cleane linnen cloth, & put it in his newe tombe which he had hewē out, euen in the rocke: and rolled a great stone to the dore of the sepulchre and departed. And there was Mary Magdalene and the other Mary sittynge ouer agaynste the sepulchre.

He is buried.

The nexte daye that folowyth good frydaye the hye priestes and pharises gathe them selues to Pilate and sayd: Syr, we remēber that this deceyuer sayed whyle he was yet alyue. After thre dayes I will ryse agayne. Commaunde therfore that the sepulchre be made sure vntyll the thirde daye lest peraduenture his disciples come, and steale him awaye, and saye vnto the people, he is ryssen from deathe, & the last errour be worse then the fyrste. Pilate sayde vnto them: Take watche men: go, and make it as sure as ye can. And they went and made the sepulchre sure with watche me, and sealed the stone. ¶

They watched for ryssynge again.

¶ The notes.

a. This repentaunce of Judas was greate, for it caused him to hāge hym selfe, but it was not accepted, because it lacked fayth in Christ, whiche shoulde haue caused hym to haue remission and forgeuenes of his faulte.

Hange hym selfe.

b. A wonderful matter. The outwarde obseruation of the lawe sate so byghlye in their conscience that they woulde not put the money that they had hyered the traytour withall, into the treasurye. But the murderinge of the innocentes death, troubled them not at al. Let euery man searche his owne conscience and se whether there be not many lyke affections in these oure dayes.

Unclenesse spirite is cast out.

THe begynnyng of the gospell of Jesu Christ, ye sonne of God, as it is written in the prophetes. Beholde, I sende my messenger before thy face which shal prepare thy waye before the. The voyce of a crier in the wildernes prepare the waye of the Lord: make his pathes straight.

John did baptyse in the wyldernes, and preache the baptisme of repentaunce: for the remission of synnes. And all the lande of Jury and they of Jerusalem went out vnto him, and were all baptysed of him in the ryuer Jordan: confessyng their synnes.

John was clothed with camelles heare, and with a gerdell of a skyn about his loynes. And he did eate locustes, and wilde honey, and preached sayenge: a stronger then I commeth after me, whose shoe latchet I am not worthy to stoupe downe, and vnlose. I haue baptysed you with water: but he shal baptyse you with the holye ghost.

And it came to passe in those dayes, that Jesus came fro Nazareth, a citye of Galile: and was baptysed of John in Jordan. And assone as he was come out of the water, he sawe heauen open, and the holy ghost descendynge vpō him lyke a doue. And there came a voyce from heauē: Thou arte my derre sonne in whō I delyte.

And immediatly the spirite draue him into wyldernes, and he was there in the wyldernes .xl. dayes, and was tempted of Sathā, and was with wylde beastes. And the Aungels mynistred vnto him.

After John was take, Jesus came into Galile, preachynge the gospell of the kyngedom of God, and sayenge: the tyme is come, and the kyngdome of God is at hande, repente and beleue the Gospell.

And as he walked by the sea of Galile, he sawe Simon and Andrewe his brother, castynge nettes into the sea, for they were fishers. And Jesus sayde vnto the: folowe me, and I wyll make you fishers of men: And straight waye they forsoke their nettes, and folowed him.

And when he had gone a lyttell further thence, he sawe James the sonne of Zebede, and John his brother, euen as they were in the shyppe mendynge their nettes. And anone he called them. And they left their father Zebede in the shyppe with his hyred seruauntes, and went their waye after him.

Luke.iii.c

And they entred into Capernaū: and straight waye on the Saboth dayes, he entred into the synagoge and taught. And they merueyled at his learning. For he taught them as one that had power with him, and not as the scribes.

And there was in their synagoge a man vexed with an vncleane spirite, that cryed sayenge: let be: what haue we to do with the thou Jesus of Nazareth? Art thou come to destroye vs? I knowe the what thou arte, euen the holye of God. And Jesus rebuked him, sayenge: hold thy peace, and come out of him. And the vncleane spirite tare him, and cryed with a loude voyce, and came out of him. And they were all amased, in so muche that they demaunded one of another, amonge them selues sayenge: what thyng is this? what a newe doctryne is this? For he commaundeth the foule spirites with power, and they obeye him. And immediatly his fame spred abroade throughout all the region rounde about in Galile.

Mat.viii.b.
Luke.iv.b

And forth with, assone as they were come out of the synagoge, they entred into the house of Simō and Andrew, with James and John. And Symōs mother in law lay sicke of a fever. And anone they told him of her. And he came and toke her by the hande, and lyfte her vp, and the fever forsoke her by and by: and she ministred vnto them.

And at euen when the sunne was downe, they brought to him all that were diseased, and them that were possessed with deuyls. And all the cyte gathered together at the dore, and he healed many that were sicke of sondry diseases. And he cast out many deuyls, and suffered not the deuyls to speake, because they knew him.

And in the morning verey early, Jesus arose and went out into a solytarye place, and there prayed. And Simon and they that were with him folowed after him. And when they had founde him, they sayed vnto him: all men seke for the. And he sayed vnto them: let vs go into the next townes, that I maye preach there also: for truely I came out for that purpose. And he preached in their synagoges, throughout all Galile, and caste the deuyls out.

A leper.
Mat.viii.a
Luke.v.c

And there came a leper to him, beseechynge him, and kneled downe vnto him, and sayde to him: yf thou wylt, thou canneste make me cleane. And Jesus had compassion on him, and put forth his hande, touched him, and sayd to him: I wyll, be thou cleane. And assone as he had spoken, immediatly the lepry departed from him, and he was clensed. And he charged him, and sent him awaye forthwith and sayde vnto him: se thou say nothyng to any man but get the hence, and shewe thy selfe to the preest, and offer for thy clensing, those thyngs which Moyses commaunded, for a testimonial vnto the. But he (assone as he departed) began to tell many thynges, and to publyshe the dede: in so muche that Jesus could no more openlye enter into the cite, but was without in desert places. And they came to him from euerye quarter.

The notes.

The holye ghost.

a. To baptyse with the holy ghost, is to worke that thynge inwardly, of the baptysme in water doeth signifye, that is to say, the sanctifyenge of Christes bloude.

Heauen open.

b. Not withstandynge that John sawe the heauens open, and the holy ghoste descendynge in the lykenesse of a doue, and herynge what voyce there was an other thynge to be noted in his openynge of the heauen. That is, that he had manyfeste knowledge of the Godhead of Christe, and was fullye certifyed, that it was euen he that was sente of God to be the Sauioure of all that shoulde beleue in hym. As it is in Ezechyel.i.a.

Newe doctrine. c. Here mayst thou perceyue (christian reader) of what spirite they be that be so sore offended with the Gospell, callynge it newe doctryne. For sothe euen of the spirite of ignorance, as they were that spake gaue it that name. For had they knowen the scriptures: they woulde haue saied, this is the doctryne that was spoken of by the Prophetes these many hundred yeares sence.

The.ij. Chapter.

B And there were certayne of the scribes, sittynge there and reasounge in their hertes: how doth this felowe so blaspheme? Who cā forgeue synnes, but God onelye? And immediatly when Jesus perceyued in his spirite, y they so reasoned in thē selues, he said vnto thē: why thinke ye suche thynges in your hertes? Whether is it easyer to saye to the sicke of the palsie, thy synnes are forgeuen the: or to saye: aryse, take vp thy bed, and walke? That ye maye knowe that the sonne of mā hath power in earth to forgeue synnes, he spake vnto the sicke of the palsye: I saye vnto the, aryse and take vp thy bedde, and get the hēce into thyne owne house. And vp and by he arose, toke vp the bedde, & wente forthe before them all: in so muche that they were all amased, and glorifyed God sayinge: we neuer sawe it on this fashyon.

And it came to passe as Jesus sate at meate in his house, many publicans and synners sate at meat also with Jesus and his disciples. For there were many that folowed hym. And the disciples of John and the Pharyses vsed fastes: and therfore came and sayde vnto hym. Why do the disciples of John and of the Pharyses fast, and thy disciples fast not. And Jesus sayde vnto them: can the chyldren of a weddyng fast, whyles the bridegrome is with them. As longe as they haue the bridegrome with them they cānot fast. But the dayes will come when the bridegrome shalbe taken from thē, & then shal they fast in those dayes.

In lyke wyse no man powreth newe wyne into olde vessels, for yf he do, the newe wyne breaketh the vessels, and the wyne renneth oute, & the vessels are marred. But newe wyne must be poured into newe vessels.

Newe and agaynst

And it chaunced that he went thorowe the corne fieldes on the Sabboth daye: and his disciples as they wente on their way, began to pluche the eares of corne. And the Pharyses sayde vnto hym: beholde, why do they on the Sabboth dayes that which is not lawfull? And he sayde to them: haue ye neuer redde what Dauid dyd, whē he had nede, & was an hungred both he and they that were with hym? Howe he went into the house of God in the dayes of Abiathar the hye preeste, and dyd eate the halowed loues, which is not lawfull to eate, but for the preestes onelye: and gaue also to them, whiche were with hym? And he sayde to thē: the Sabboth daye was made a. for mā, & not man for the Sabboth daye. Wherfore the sonne of man is Lorde euen of the Sabboth daye.

¶ He healeth the man with the dryed hande, chooseth his Apostles, & casteth out the vncleane spirite which the Pharisees attribute to the Deuyll. The brother, sister and mother of Christe.

A Nd he entred agayne into the synagoge, & there was a mā there which had a wyddred hande. And they watched hi to se, whether he would heale hym on the Sabboth daye, that they myght accuse hym. And he sayde vnto the man whiche had the wyddred hande: aryse and stand in y myddes. And he sayde to them: whether is it lawfull to do a good dede on the Sabboth dayes, or an euyll? to saue lyfe or kyll? But they held their peace. And he stretched it out. And hys hande was restored euen as whyle as the other. ¶

D And the Pharyses departed, and straight waye gathered a counsel with them that belonged to Herode agaynste hym that they might destroye hym. And Jesus auoyded with hys disciples to the sea. And a great multitude followed him from Galile, and from Jurie, and from Hierusalem, and from Idumea, and frō beyonde Jordane, & they that dwelled about Tyre and Sydon, a great multitude: whiche when they had hearde what thynges he dyd came vnto hym.

And he commaunded hys disciples, that a shyp shoulde wayte on hym, because of the people, lest they shoulde throunge him. For he had healed many, in so much that they preased vpon hym, for to touche hym as many as had plagues. And when the vncleane spirites sawe him: they fell doune before hym, and cryed, sayinge: thou art the sonne of God And he straytly charged thē that they should not vtter hym.

D And he wente vp into a mountayne, and called vnto hym whome he would, and they came vnto hym. And he ordeyned the.xij. that they shoulde be with hym, & that he myght sende them to preache, and that they myght haue power to heale sicknesses, and to caste oute deuyls. And he gaue Symō, to name Peter. And he called James the sonne of Zebede and John, James brother, and gaue thē Boanarges to name: whiche is to saye, the sonnes of thounder, and Andrew, and Philip, & Bartelmew, and Mathew, & Thomas, & James the sonne of Alphey & Taddeus, & Symō of Cane, and Judas Iscarpoth, which same also betraied hym.

E D And they came into an house, & the people assembled together agayne, so greatly & they had not leasure so much as to eate bread. And when they that longed vnto hym hearde of it, they went out to holde him. For they thought he had bene beside hym selfe. And the scribes which came from Jerusalem, sayde: he hathe Beelzebub, and by the power of the chefe deuyll casteth out deuyls. And he called thē vnto hym, and sayd vnto thē in similitudes.

D How can Sathan dryue out Satan? For if a realme be deuyded agaynst it selfe, that realme can not endure. And if a house be deuyded against it selfe, that house cannot endure: So yf Satan make insurrection agaynst hym selfe and be deuyded, he can not endure, but is at an ende. No man can entre into a strong mans house and take awaye hys goodes, except he fyrste bynd that stronge man, and then spoyle hys house. Verelye I saye vnto you: all synnes shalbe forgyue vnto mens childre and blasphemie wherwith they blaspheme: But he that blasphemeth the holye ghost, shall neuer haue forgyuenes, but is in daunger of eternal damnacio, because they said: he had an vncleane spirite.

D Then came his mother and his brethren, & stode theare, and sent vnto hym & called hym. And the people sate about him, & sayd vnto hym: beholde thy mother and thy brethren seke for the without. And he answered them sayinge: who is my mother and my brethren? And he lokyd rounde about on hys disciples, which sate in a compasse about him, & sayd: beholde my mother & my brethē. For whosoeuer doth the will of god he is my brother, my sister, and mother.

And he taughte them manye thynges in similitudes: and sayde vnto them in hys doctrine. Her kenne. Beholde, there went out a sower to sow. And it fortuned as he sowed, that some fell by the waye syde, & the fowles of the ayre came & deuoured it vp. Some fell on stony grounde, where it had not muche earth, & by & by sprang vp, because it had not depth of earthe, but assone as the sonne was vp it caught heate, and because it had not rotes withered awaye. And some fell among the thornes, and the thornes grew vp & choked it so that it gaue no frute. ¶ He deliuereth the possessed from the vncleane spirite. He woundeth from the stoupe ryse, and raysed the Captaynes doughter.

AND they came ouer to the other syde of the sea into the coūtre of Gaderenites. And when he was come out of the shyppe, there met hym out of the graues a man possessed of an vncleane spirite, whiche had hys abydyng among the graues. And no man coulde bynde hym: no not with chaynes, because that when he was often bounde with fetters and chaynes, he plucked ꝑ chaynes a sunder, & brake the fetters in peces. Neyther coulde any man tame him. And alwayes both nyght and daye he cryed in the mountaynes & in the graues, and bet hym self with stones. And streightwaye her fountayne of bloude was dryed vp, and she felt in her bodye, that she was healed of the plague.

¶ And Jesus immediatly felte in hym selfe, the vertu that went out of hym, and tourned him rounde about in the prace, & sayde: who touched my clothes? And his disciples sayde vnto him: seest thou the people thrulle the, and yet axest, who did touche me? And he loked rounde about, for to se her that had done that thing. The woman feared and trembled (for she knew what was done within her) and she came and fell doune before him, and tolde the trueth of euery thinge. And he sayde to her: Doughter, thy fayth hath made the whole: go in peace, and be whole of thy plage.

¶ Whyle he yet spake, there came frome the ruler of the Synagoges house, certayn which sayde: thy doughter is dead: why diseasest thou the master any further? Assone as Jesus herd that worde spoken, he sayd vnto the ruler of the Synagoge: be not afrayed, onely beleue. And he suffered no man to folowe him no then Peter and James and Jhon the brother of James. And he came vnto the house of the ruler of the Synagoge, and sawe the wondringe, & them that wepte and wayled greatly, & went in and sayde vnto them: why make ye this a do and wepe? The mayden is not dead, but slepeth. And they laught him to scorne. Then he put them all out, and toke the father & the mother of the mayden, & them that were with hym, and entred in where the mayden laye, & toke the mayden by the hande, and sayd vnto her: Talitha cumi: which is by interpretacion: mayden I saye vnto the aryse. And streyght the mayden arose, and went on her fete. ffor she was of the age of twelue yeres. And they were astonyed at it out of measure. And he charged them straytely that no man shouldе know of it, and commaunded to geue her meate.

Then axed hym the Pharisees and Scribes, why walke not thy disciples accordynge to the traditions of the elders, but eate breade with vnwashen handes? He answered and sayde vnto them: well prophesied Esayas of you hypocrites, as it is wryten: This people honoureth me with their lippes, but their hert is farre from me: In vayne they worship me, teachynge doctrines whyche are nothyng but the commaundementes of men. For ye laye ye commaundement of God apart, and obserue the traditions of men, as the washyng of cruses and of cuppes, and many other suche lyke thinges ye do.

Esa.xxix.b Hoseas commaundements.

And he sayde vnto them: wel, ye caste aside the commaundement of God too maintayne your owne traditions. For Moyses sayde: Honour thy father and thy mother: and whosoeuer curseth father or mother, let him dye for it. But ye saye a man shall saye to father or mother Corban: whiche is, that thou desyrest me to helpe the with, is geuen God. AND he called all the people vnto hym, and sayde to them. Herken to me, euery one of you and vnderstande. There is nothinge without a man that can defile him when it entereth into him: but those thinges which proceede out of hym are those, which defile the man. If any man haue eares to heare, let hym heare. And when he came into an house from the people his disciples axed him of the similitude. And he sayde to them: Are ye so without vnderstandyng. Do ye not perceyue that, whatsoeuer thinge from without entreth into a man it can not defile him, because it entreth not into his herte, but into his bealy: and goeth out in to the draught that purgeth out all meates.

Mat.15.b. That goeth in, defileth not. That cōmeth out of a man defileth.

And he sayde that defileth a man, whiche cometh out of a man. For from within, euen out of the herte of men, proceede euel thoughtes: aduoutry, fornication, murther, theft, couetousnes, wickednes, deceyte, vncleannesse and a wicked eye, blasphemy, pryde, foolishnes: all these euell thinges come from within and defile a man.

¶ The miracle of the seuen loues. The Pharisees aske a signe. The leuen of the Pharisees. The blynd receaueth his sight. ✣

IN those dayes when there was a very great company, and had nothinge to eate. Jesus called his disciples to hym and sayde vnto them: I haue compassion on this people, because they haue nowe bene with me three dayes, and haue nothyng to eate. And if I shoulde send them away fastynge to their owne houses, they should faynte by the waye. For diuers of them came from farre. And his disciples answered him: whether might a man haue breade here in the wildernes to satisfie these? And he asked them: how many loues haue ye? They sayde seuen. And he commaunded the people to sit doune on the grounde. And he toke the seuen loues, gaue thankes, brake, & gaue to his disciples to set before the. And they did set them before the people. And they had a few smale fishes. And he blessed them and commaunded them also to be set before the: And they ate and were satisfied. And they

And he came to his disciples, & saw muche people about them, and the Scribes disputing with them. And straight waye all the people when they beheld hym, were amased, & ranne to hym to hym, and saluted hym. And he sayde vnto the Scribes: what dispute ye with them?

¶ + And one of the company answered & said: Master, I haue brought my sonne vnto the which hath a domme spirite. And whensoeuer he taketh hym, he teareth hym, and he foameth and gnasheth with his teethe, & pyneth away. And I spake to thy disciples that they should caste him out, and they could not.

He answered him and sayd: O generatiō without fayth, how long shall I be with you? How long shall I suffer you? Bryng hym vnto me. And they brought hym vnto him. And assone as ✝ spirite saw him, he tare him. And he fell doune on the grounde, walowing and fompyng. And he axed his father: howe long is it a go, seuce this hath happened him? And he sayde, of a chylde: & ofte times casteth him into the fyre, and also into the water too destroye him. But if thou canste do any thing, haue mercy on vs, and helpe vs.

And Jesus sayd vnto him: yea, if thou coul dest beleue, all thinges are possible to him that beleueth. And straight way the father of the chylde cryed with teares saying: Lorde I beleue, helpe myne vnbeleefe.

When Jesus sawe that the people came runnyng together vnto him, he rebuked the foule spirit, saying vnto him: Thou domme & deafe spirite, I charge the come out of him, & enter no more into him. And the spirit cryed & rent him sore, and came out. And he was as one ✝ had bene dead, in so much that many sayd, he is dead. But Jesus caught his hande and lyft him vp: and he rose. And when he was come into the house, his disciples axed him secretly why could not we cast him out? And he saied vnto them: this kynde can by no nother meanes come forth but by prayer and fastinge. ✝

¶ + And they departed thence, and toke theyr iourney through Galile, and he would not that any man should haue knowē it. For he taught his disciples, and sayde vnto them: the sonne of man shalbe deliuered into the handes of mē, and they shall kyll hym, and after that he is kylled he shall ryse agayne the thyrde daye. But they wiste not what that saying meante, and were afrayed to axe hym.

¶ And he came to Capernaum. And whē he was come into an house, he axed them: what was it that ye disputed betweene you by the waye? And they helde their peace: for by the waye they reasoned among them selues, who should be the chiefest. And he sate doune and called the twelue vnto hym, and sayde vnto them: if any mā desire to be first, the same shal be last of all, & seruaunt vnto all. And he toke a chylde, & set him in the middes of the: & toke hym in his armes and sayde vnto them: Who soeuer receyueth any such a chyld in my name receyueth me. And whosoeuer receyueth me, receyueth not me, but him that sent me. ✝

Jhon answered him saying: ✝ Master, we sawe one castinge out deuels in thy name whiche followeth not vs and we forbade hym, because he followeth vs not. But Jesus sayd: forbid him not. For there is no man that shall do a miracle in my name, & can lightly speake euill of me. Whosoeuer is not agaynst you, is on your part. And whosoeuer shall giue you a cuppe of water to drinke for my names sake, because ye belonge to Christe, verely I saye vnto you, he shall not loose his rewarde.

And whosoeuer shall offende one of these litle ones, that beleue in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neche, & that he were caste into the sea. Wherefore if thy hande offende the, cut hym of. It is better for the, to enter into lyfe maymed, then hauing two handes, go into hel, into fyre that neuer shal be quenched, where their worme dyeth not, and the fyre neuer goeth out. Likewise if thy fote offende the, cut him of. For it is better for the to go halt into lyfe, then hauing two fete to be caste into hell, into fyre ✝ neuer shalbe quenched: where their worme dyeth not, and the fyre neuer goeth out. Euen so if thyne eye offende the, pluche hym out. It is better for the to go into the kyngedome of God with one eye, then hauing two eyes to be caste into hel fyre: where their worm dyeth not, and the fyre neuer goeth out. ✝

Euery man therfore shalbe salted with fyre. And euery sacrifice shalbe seasoned with salt. Salt is good. But if the salt be vnsauery what shall ye salte therwith? Se that ye haue salt in your selues, & haue peace amonge your selues, one with another.

And agayne he sente an other and hym they killed: and many other, beatynge some, and killyng some.

Yet had he one sonne whom he loued tenderlye: hym also he sente at the laste vnto the, sayinge: they will feare my sonne. But the tenauntes sayed amonge them selues: this is the heyre: come let vs kyll hym, and the enheritaunce shall be ours. And they toke hym, & killed hym, & cast hym out of the vyneyarde. What shall then the Lorde of the vyneyarde do? He will come and destroye the tenauntes, and let oute the vyneyarde to other. Haue ye not read this scripture? The stone which the buylders dyd refuse, is made the chefe stone in the corner: this was done of the Lorde, and is meruayloule in our eyes. And they wente about to take hym. The pallyes of Christ. Of hys tenthe and bytyall.

AND anone in the dawnynge the hye priestes helde a counsell with the elders, and the scribes, and the whole congregacion & bounde Jesus and ledde him awaye, & delyuered him to Pilate. And Pylate axed him: arte thou the kynge of the Jewes? And he answered and sayde vnto him: thou sayest it. And the hyghe Priestes accused him of manye thynges. Wherfore Pylate axeth him agayne, saying: Answerest thou nothyng? beholde howe manye thinges they laye vnto the charge: Jesus yet answered neuer a worde, so that Pylate merueyled.

At that feaste Pylate was wonte to delyuer at their pleasure a prysoner, whosoeuer they wolde desyre. And there was one named Barrabas, whiche laye bounde with them that made insurrection, and the insurrection committed murther. And the people called vnto him, & began to desyre, accordyng as he had euer done vnto the: Pylate answered them, & sayd: Will ye that I lowse vnto you the kyng of the Jewes? For: he knewe that the hye priestes had deliuered him of enuye. But the hye priestes had moued the people that he shoulde rather delyuer Barrabas vnto them.

And Pylate answered agayne, & sayd vnto the: what wyl ye then that I do with him, whom ye call the kynge of the Jewes? And they cryed agayne: crucifye him. Pylate sayd vnto them: what euyl hath he done? And they cryed the more feruentlye: Crucifye him.

☞ And so Pylate wyllyng to content the people, lowsed the Barrabas, and delyuered Jesus, when he had scourged him, for to be crucifyed. And the soudyers ledde him awaye in to the common hall, and called together the whole multytude, and they clothed him with purple, and they platted a croune of thornes and crowned him with al, and began to salute him: Hayle kynge of the Jewes. And they smote him on the head with a rede, and spatte vpon him, and kneled doune & worshipped him.

And when they had mocked him, they toke the purple of him, and put his owne clothes on him, and led him out to crucifye him. The rentyng of whiche vayle signified, that the shadowes of Moyses law should vanyshe away at the ryghtshynge lyght of the Gospell. b. Centurion, is a captayne, that hath vnder hym an hundred men.

The.xvi.Chapter.

¶ Christe is ryssen against, and appeareth to the Apostles, to whome he commaundeth the preachyng of the Gospell.

ANd when the Sabboth was past. Mary Magdale, and Mary Jacobi, and Salome, bought her odoures, that they myght come & anoynt hym. And very early in the mornynge the next daye after the Sabboth daye they came to the sepulchre, whe the sunne was ryssen. And they sayed one to another: who shal rolle vs awaye the stone from the dore of the sepulchre? And when they loked, they sawe howe the stone was rolled awaye: for it was a very great one. And they wente into the sepulchre, and sawe a yonge man syttyng on the ryght syde, clothed in a lōg white garmēt, & they were abashed.

¶ A Prologe upon the Gospell of sayne Luke.

W7.

Luke was Paules companion, at the first made from the .xvi. of the actes forthe, and went with him in all his ambassages. And he wrote vnto Theophile as the table gathers to Diascorides. And fro thence he followeth Paul to Cesarea where he lyeth .ii. yeares in prison. And from Cesarea he wente with Paule to Rome, where he lyeth .ii. other yeares in prison. And he was with Paule when he wrote to the Colossians, as he calleth him the .iiii. chapt. Saynge the beloued Luke the Physition saluteth you. And he was with Paule when he wrote the seconde Epistle to Timothe, as he saieth in the fourth chapt. Saynge: Onely Luke is with me. Marke ye (I the authoure of mine) one of what credence and reuerence the writinges of Luke the .iii. and thirde of whom he learned the losse of his Gospell, as he him selfe saieth, howe that he learned it and searched it out with all diligence of them that sawe it and were also partakers of the doynge. And as by the actes of the Apostles he was at the doynge of them (at the leastwise the moste parte and had his parte therin, and therfore wrote of his owne experience.

The fyrste chapter.

¶ The conception and birth of Iohn Baptiste. The salutacion of Marie. The thanksgeuing songes of Zacharye and Elizabeth.

There was in the dayes of Herode kynge of Iurye, a certaine preiste named Zacharias, of the course of Abia. And his wyfe was of the doughters of Aaron and her name was Elizabeth. Both were perfect before God, and walked in al the lawes and ordinaunces of the Lorde, that no man coulde fynde fawte with the. And they had no childe: because that Elizabeth was barren, and both were well stricken in age. I Pa. xviii. a Zacharias. Elizabeth.

¶ And it came to passe, as he executed the preistes office before God, as his course came (according to the custome of the preistes office) his lot was to burne incense. And wente into the temple of the Lorde and the whole multytude of the people were without in prayer while incense was a burninge. And there appeared vnto him an Aungell of the Lorde standynge on the ryght syde of the al- Exod. xxx. b Leuit. xvi. b tare of incense. And when Zacharias sawe him, he was abashed, and feare came on him.

℣ And the aungel sayde vnto him: feare not Zacharye, for thy prayer is heard: And thy wyfe Elyzabeth shall beare the a sonne, & thou shalt call his name John, and thou shalt have ioye and gladnes, and manye shall reioyce at his birth. For he shalbe greate in the syghte of the Lorde, and shall neyther drinke wyne nor stronge drinke. And he shalbe fylled with the holy ghost, euen in his mothers wombe: and manye of the children of Israel shal he turne to their Lorde God. And he shall go before hym in the spyrte of power of Helyas, to turne the. a. hertes of the fathers to the children and the vnbeleuers to the wisdome of the iust me, to make the people redy for the Lord.

Psal.cxxxi. Mal.iii.b Matth.xi.b A sygne is gyuen.

And Zacharias sayde vnto the aungel: wherby shal I knowe this? for I am olde and my wyfe well stryken in yeares. And the aungell answered and sayd vnto hym, I am Gabryel that stande in the presence of God, and am sente to speake to the: & shewe the these glad tidynges. And beholde thou shalt be dombe, and not able to speake vnto the tyme that these thinges be performed, because thou beleuest not my wordes whiche shalbe fulfylled in their season. And the people wayted for Zacharias, and maruayled that he taryed in the temple. And when he came out he coulde not speake to them. Whereby they perceyued that he had sene some vysyon in the temple. And he beckened vnto them, and remayned speacheles.

✣ And it fortuned assone as the time of his office was out, he departed home into his owne house. And after those dayes his wyfe Elyzabeth conceyued and hid her selfe .v. monethes, sayenge. This wyse hath God dealt with me in the dayes when he. b. loked on me, to take from me the rebuke that I suffred amonge men. And in the .vi. monyth the aungell Gabriel was sent from God, vnto a cyte of Galile, named Nazareth, to a virgin spoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of Dauid, and the virgins name was Mary. And the aungel went in vnto her, & sayde. c. Haple full of grace, the Lorde is with the: blessed art thou amonge women.

When she sawe hym, she was abashed at his sayenge: and caste in her mynde what maner of salutacion that shoulde be. And the aungell sayed vnto her: feare not Mary: for thou haste founde grace wyth God. For thou shalt conceyue in thy wombe & shalt beare a sonne, and shalt call his name Jesus. He shalbe greate, and shalbe called the sonne of the hyest. And the Lorde God shal geue to hym the seat of his father Dauid, and he shall raigne ouer the house of Jacob for euer, & of his kingdome shall be no ende. Then sayde Mary to the aungell. How shall this be, seynge I knowe not a man? And the aungell answered and sayd vnto her: The holye ghoste shall come vnto the, and the power of the hyest shall ouer shadowe the. Therfore also that holye thynge whiche shall be borne shalbe called the sonne of God. And beholde thy cosyn Elyzabeth hath also conceyued a sonne in her age: & this is her syxt moneth though she be called barren: for with God can nothing be vnpossyble. And Mary sayde: beholde the handmaide of the Lord, be it vnto me euē as thou hast said. And the aungel departed from her.

✣ And Mary arose in those dayes, & went into the mountaines with haste, into a cyte of Iurye, and entred into the house of Zacharye, and saluted Elisabeth. And it fortuned as Elysabeth hearde the salutacion of Mary, the babe sprange in her belly. And Elizabeth was fylled with the holye ghost, and cryed wyth a loude voice, and sayde: Blessed art thou amōg women, and blessed is the fruite of thy wombe. And whyter happeneth this to me that the mother of my Lorde shoulde come to me? For lo, assone as the voice of thy salutacion sounded in myne eares, the babe sprange in my bellye for ioye. And blessed art thou that beleuedest: for those thinges shall be performed, whiche were tolde the from the Lorde. And Mary sayde: My soule magnifyed the Lorde. And my sprite reioyceth in God my sauiour.

And when they were ended he afterwarde hungred. And the deuyll sayde vnto him: If thou be the sonne of God, commaunde this stone that it be bread. And Jesus answered him sayinge: It is written, man shall not lyue by bread onlye, but of euerye worde of God.

And & deuyll toke him vp into an hye mountayne, and shewed him all the kyngdomes of the worlde euen in the twinchinge of an eye. And the deuyll sayde vnto him: all this power will I geue thy euerye whit and the glorye of them for that is delyuered to me & to whom soeuer I wyll, I geue it. If thou therfore wilt worshyp me, they shalbe all thine. Jesus answered him and sayde, Gone from me Sathan. For it is writte: Thou shalt honoure the Lord thy God and him onlye serue.

B And he caryed him to Jerusalem, and set him on a pynacle of the temple, and sayde vnto him. If thou be the sonne of God caste thy selfe downe from hence: for it is written, He shall gyue his aungels charge ouer the to kepe the and with their handes they shall lyft the vp that thou dashe not thy foote agaynst a stone. Jesus answered and sayde to him, it is sayde: Thou shalt not tempt the Lorde thy God. Assone as the deuyll had ended all his temptacion, he departed from him for a season.

C + And Jesus returned by the power of the spyrite into Galile, and there went a fame of him throughout all the regyon rounde about. And he taught in their synagoges, and was commended of all men.

D And he came to Nazareth where he was nourished: and as his custome was, went into the synagoge on the Sabboth dayes, & stode vp to reade. And there was delyuered vnto him the boke of the prophete Esaias. And when he had opened the boke, he founde the place where it was written: The spyrite of the Lorde vpon me, because he hath anointed me: to preache the gospell to the poore he hath sent me, and to heale the broken herted, to preache deliuerance to the captiue, and sight to the blynde, and freely to set at liberte them that are bruised, and to preache the acceptable yeare of the Lorde.

And he closed the boke, and gaue it againe to the minister, and sate downe. And the eyes of all that were in the synagoge were fastened on him. And he began to saye vnto them, This daye is this scripture fulfylled in youre eares. And all bare him witnes, and wondred at the gracious wordes which proceded out of his mouthe, & sayde: Is not this Josephs sonne?

And he sayde vnto them: Ye maye verye well saye vnto me this parable: Physicion, heale thy selfe. + Whatsoeuer we haue herde done in Capernaum, do the same here in thine owne countrye. And he sayde: verely I saye vnto you. No prophete is accepted in his owne countrye.

But I tell you of a truthe, manye widdowes were in Israel in & dayes of Helias, whe heauen was shut thre yeares & syx moneths when great famyne was throughout all the lande, and vnto none of them was Helias sent, saue vnto Sarepta beside Sydon vnto a woman that was a widowe. And manye lepers were in Israel in the tyme of Helyseus the prophet, and yet none of them was healed, saynge Naaman of Syria.

And as many as were in & synagoge when they heard that, were fylled with wrath: and rose vp, and thrust him out of the citye, & ledde him euen vnto the edge of the hyll, where on their cytye was built, to cast him downe hedlynge. But he went his way euen through & myddes of them. + And came into Capernaum a cytye of Galile, and there taught them on the saboth dayes. And they were astonyed at his doctryne, for his preachinge was with a power.

And in the synagoge there was a man which had a spyrite of an vncleane deuyll, and cried with a loude voyce sayinge: let me alone, what haue we to do with the, thou Jesus of Nazareth? Art thou come to destroye? I knowe the what thou arte, euen the holye of God. And Jesus rebuked him sayinge: holde thy peace & come out of him. And the deuyll threwe him in the myddes of them and came out of him and hurte him not. And feare came on them all and they spake amonge the selues sayinge what maner of thinge is this? For with authoryte and power he commaundeth the vnclene spirites, and they come out. And the fame of him spread abroade throughout all places of the countrye rounde about. +

+ And he arose vp & came out of the synagoge, and entred into Simons house. And Simons mother in lawe was taken with a great feuer and they made intercession to him for her. And he stode ouer her, and rebuked the feuer, and it left her. And immediatly she arose and ministred vnto them.

When the sunne was downe, all they that had sicke, take with diuerse diseases, brought them vnto him, and he layde his handes on euery one of them, and healed them. And deuyls also came out of many of them cryinge and sayinge: thou arte Christ & sonne of God. And he rebuked them, and suffered them not to speake: for they knewe that he was Christe.

Assone as it was daye, he departed & went awaye into a desert place, & the people sought him and came to him, and kept him that he shoulde not departe from them. And he sayde vnto them: I muste to other cytyes also preache the kyngdome of God: + For therfore am I sent. And he preached in the synagoges of Galile.

¶ Christ preacheth in the ship. The disciples forsake all and followe him. He cleanseth the leper, healeth the man of the palsie, calleth Matthewe the publicane, & eateth with open synners.

Math. iiii.c Marc.i.b

T came to passe as the people preased vpō him to heare the worde of God, that he stode by the lake of Genezareth: and sawe two shippes stande by the lake syde, but the fisher men were gone out of them, and were washynge their nettes. And he entred into one of the shippes, which pertayned to Symon, and prayed him, that he would thrust out a lytle from the lande. And he sat doune and taught the people out of the shippe.

B When he had left speakynge, he sayed vnto Simon: launce out into the depe, and let slip your nettes to make a draught. And Simon answered and sayed vnto hym: Master, we have labored all nyght, and have taken nothynge. Neverthelater at thy worde I will lose fourth the net. And when they had so done, they enclosed a greate multytude of fyshes. And their net brake: but they made sygnes to their fellowes which were in the other shyp that they shoulde come and helpe them. And they came and filled both the shippes that they sonke againe.

When Simon Peter sawe that, he fell doune at Jesus knees sayinge: Lorde go from me for I am a synfull man. For he was vtterlye astonyed and all that were with hym at the draughte of fyshe, which they toke: and so was James and John the sonnes of Zebede, which were partners with Symon. And Jesus sayed vnto Simon: feare not, from hence forth thou shalt catche men. And they brought the shippes to lande, and forsoke all and followed hym.

C And it fortuned as he was in a certayne cyte: beholde, there was a man full of leprosye: Math. viii.a Marc.i.d. and when he had spyed Jesus, he fell on his face, and besought hym sayinge: Lorde, if thou wylt thou canst make me cleane. And he stretched forth the hande and touched hym sayinge: I wyl, be thou cleane. And immediatlye the lepre. Leuit. xiiij. a leprosye departed from him. And he charged hym that he shoulde tell no man but that he should go and shewe him selfe to the preeste and offer for his cleansyng, according as Moyses comaunded was, for a witnes vnto the.

But so much the more went there a fame abroad of him, & much people came together to heare and to be healed of him, of their infirmyties. And he kepte him selfe aparte in the wyldernesse, and gaue him selfe to prayer.

D ✠ And it happened on a certayne daye, that he taught, and there sate the pharisies and the doctours of lawe, which were come out of all the townes of Galile, Jury, and Hierusalem. And the power of the Lorde was to heale them. And beholde men brought a man lynge in his bedde which was taken with a palsy: palsy. & sought meanes to bringe him in, and to laye him before him. And whē they could not finde by what way they might bring him in, because of the prease, they went vp on the toppe of the house, and let him doune thorowe the tylyng, bedde & all in the middest before Jesus. When he sawe their faith, he sayed to him: man, thy synnes are forgeuen the. And the scribes and pharyseis began to thinke saynge: What fawlse is this which speaketh blasphemye? who can forgeue synnes but God onlye?

E When Jesus perceiued their thoughtes, he answered and sayd vnto them: What thinke ye in your hertes? Whether is it easyer to say, thy synnes are forgeuen the, or to saye: ryse & walke? But that ye may knowe that the sonne of man hath power to forgeue synnes on earth, he said to the sycke of the palsye, I say to the, aryse, take vp thy bed & go home to thy house. And immediatlye he rose vp before them, and toke vp his bed wherein he lay, and departed to his owne house praysing God. And they were all amased, and they lauded God & were filled with fear saying: We have seen straung thinges to daye.

And after that he went forth and sawe a Publican named Leui, sittinge at the receite of custome and bade vnto him: folowe me. And he left al, rose vp and folowed him. And the same Leui made him a great feaste at home in his owne house. And there was a great compayne of publicans and of other that sate at meat with him. And the scribes and pharyseis murmured againste his disciples saynge: Why eate ye, and dronke ye with publicans and synners? Jesus answered and sayde vnto them: They that are whole nede not of the physicians: but they that are sicke. I am not come to call the righteous, but synners to repentaunce.

F Math. ix.a Marc.ii.b Leui. Publicans & synners. Math. ix.b.

Then they sayed vnto him: Why do the disciples of Jhon faste often and praye, and the disciples of the pharisies also: and these eate and dronke? And he sayed vnto them: Can ye make the children of the weddinge faste, as longe as the bridgrome is present with them? The dayes will come, when the bridgrome shall be taken awaye from them: Then shall they faste in those dayes. Marc.ii.c. The disciples faste not.

G Then spake he vnto them in a symylytude. No man putteth a pece of a newe garmente, into an olde vesture: for if he do, then breaketh he the newe and the pece that was taken out of the newe agreeth not with the olde. Also no man poureth newe wine into olde vessels. For if he do, the newe wyne breaketh the vessels, and runneth out it selfe, and the vessels perishe: But newe wyne muste be poured into newe vessels, and both are preserued. Also no man that drinketh olde wyne, strayght Newe and olde agree not.

A Math.xii.a Marc.ii.d Luke.vi.

IT happened on an after saboth, that he went through the corne fyelde, and that his disciples plucked the eares of corne and eate, and rubbed them in their handes. And certayne of the pharyseis sayde vnto the: Why do ye that whiche is not lawfull to do on the saboth dayes? And Jesus answered them and sayde: Haue ye not read what Dauid did when he him selfe was an hongred, and they which were with hym: how he went into the house of God and toke and eate the loues of halowed breade, & gaue also to them which were with him, which was not lawfull to eate, but for the preestes onlye. ✚ And it fortuned in another saboth also, that he entred into the synagoge and taught. And there was a man whose right hande was dried vp. And the scribes and pharyseis watched him, to see whether he would heale on the saboth daye, that they myght fynde an accusacion against him. But he knewe their thoughtes, and sayde to the man which had the withered hande: Aryse vp and stande forth in the middes. And he arose and stepped forth. Then sayde Jesus vnto them: I will axe you a question: Whether is it lawfull on the saboth dayes to do good or to do euyll? to saue lyfe, or for to destroye it? And he beheld them all in compasse, and sayde vnto the manne: Stretche forth thy hande. And he dyd so, & his hande was restored, and made as whole as the other. WHē he had ended al his sayinges in the audience of ỹ people, he entred into Capernaum. And a certayne Centurions seruaunt was syche and redye to dye, whom he made much of. And when he herd of Iesu, he sent vnto him the elders of the Iewes, beseching him that he wolde come & heale his seruaunte. And they came to Iesus and besought him instauntly sayinge: He is worthye that thou shouldest do this for him. For he loueth oure nacion, and hath bylt vs a synagoge. And Iesus went with them.

And whē he was not farre from the house ✠ the Centurion sent frendes to him sayinge vnto him: Lorde trouble not thy selfe, for I am not worthy that thou shouldest enter vnder my rofe. Wherfore I thought not my selfe worthy to come vnto the: but saye the worde and my seruaunte shalbe whole. For I lyke wise am a man vnder power, and haue vnder me souldiers, and I saye vnto one, go and he goeth. And to an other, come: and he cometh. And to my seruaunte, do this: and he doeth it. Whē Iesus herde this, he marueiled at him, & tourned him about & saide to ỹ people that folowed him: I saye vnto you, I haue not founde so greate fayth, no, not in Israel. But Abraham sayd vnto him. Sonne, remembre that thou in thy lyfe tyme, receyuedest thy pleasure, and contrary wyse Lazarus payne. Nowe therfore is he conforted, and thou arte punyshed. Beyonde all this, betweene you and vs there is a great space set, so that they whiche would go from hence to you can not, neyther maye come from thence to vs.

Then he sayed: I praye the therfore father, sende him to my fathers house. For I haue fyue brethren, for to warne them lest they also come into this place of tormente. Abraha said vnto him: they haue Moyses and the Prophetes: let them heare them. And he sayd: nay father Abraham, but yf one came vnto them from the dead, they would repent. He sayed vnto him: yf they heare not Moyses, and the Prophetes, neyther will they beleue, though one rose from death agayne. Moyses & ye Prophetes is the olde Testament.

The parable to be frequent in prayer continually. Of the Phariye and the Publican. The kyngdome of God belongeth vnto children. Christ commaundeth the ryche and worldly rulers vnto all sortes to distribute vnto the poore, and foloweth him. The blynde and is restored to hys syghte.

AND he put forth a symylitude vnto the signifyeng that men ought alwayes to pray, & not to be wery, saynge.

Eccle.xviij.c. Thes.b.d Wicked iudge.

There was a Judge in a certayne cyte, which feared not God, neyther regarded man. And there was a certaine wedowe in the same cite whiche came vnto hym saynge: auenge of myne aduersarye. And he wouldē not for a whyle. But afterwarde he sayde to hym selfe, though I feare not God, nor care for man, yet because thys wedowe troubleth me, I wil auenge her least at ỹ least she come and hagge on me.

And the Lord sayed: heare what the vnrighteous iudge sayeth. And shall not God auenge his elect, which crye daye and nyght vnto hym, ye though he defarre them? I tell you, he wil auenge them, and that quickly. ✠ Neuertheles when the sonne of man commeth, suppose ye, that he shall fynde fayth on earth?

✠ And he put forth thys similitude vnto certayne, which trusted in them selues that they were perfecte, and despyseth other. Two mē went vp into the temple to praye, the one a pharise and the other a publican. The Pharyse stode and prayed thus with hym selfe: God I thanke the, that I am not as other men are, extortioners, vniust, aduouterers, or as this publican. I faste twyse in the weke, I geue tythe of all ỹ I possesse. And the Publicane stode a farre of, and wouldē not lyft vp his eyes to heauen, but smote his brest, saynge: God be mercyfull to me a synner. I tell you: this man departed home to his house iustifyed more then the other. For euery man that exalteth hym selfe, shalbe brought lowe. And he that humbleth hym selfe, shalbe exalted. ✠

They brought vnto hym also babes: that he shoulde touche them. When his disciples saw that they rebuked them. But Jesus called them vnto hym, and sayed: Suffer children to come vnto me, and forbyd them not. For of suche is the kyngdome of God. Verely I say vnto you: whosoeuer receyueth not the kyngdome of God, as a chylde, he shall not enter therin.

And a certayne ruler axed him, saynge: Good Master, what ought I to do, to obtayne eternall lyfe? Jesus sayde vnto hym: Why callest thou me good? No mā is good, saue God onlye. Thou knowest the commaundementes: Thou shalte not committe aduoutrye. Thou shalte not kyll. Thou shalt not steale. Thou shalte not beare false wytnesse: Honoure thy father and mother. And he sayed: al these haue I kepte from my youth. When Jesus hearde that, he sayed vnto hym. Yet lackest thou one thynge. Sell all that thou hast, and distribute it vnto ỹ poore, and thou shalt haue treasure in heauen, and come, & folowe me. When he hearde, that he was ryche: for he was very ryche.

When Jesus sawe hym morne, he sayed: with what difficultye shall they that haue ryches, enter into the kyngedome of God: it is easyer for a camel to go thorowe a nedels eye then for a ryche man to enter into the kyngdō of God. Then sayed they that hearde that: And who shall then be saued? And he sayed: Thynges which are vnpossyble with mē are possyble with God.

Then sayed Peter: Loo we haue lefte al, & folowed the. And he sayed vnto thē: Verely I saye vnto you, there is no man that leaueth house, other father or mother, other brethē or wyfe or children, for the kyngdom of Goddes sake, which same shall not receyue much more in thys worlde: and in the world to come, lyfe euerlastynge.

✠ He toke vnto hym twelue, and sayed vnto them. Beholde we go vp to Hierusalem, & all shal be fulfylled that are wryten by ỹ Prophetes of the sonne of mā. He shalbe deliuered vnto the gentils, and shalbe mocked, and shalbe dyspytefully entreated, and shalbe spitted on, and when they haue scourged him, they wyll put hym to death, and the thyrde daye he shall ryse agayn. But they vnderstode none of these thynges. And this saying was hyd frō them. And they perceyued not the thynges whiche were spoken.

And it came to passe, as he was come nye vnto Hiericho, a certayne blynde man sat by ỹ waye syde beggynge. And when he harde the people passe by, he axed what it meante: And they sayed to him, that Jesus of Nazareth passed by. And he cryed, saynge: Jesus the sonne of Dauid, haue thou mercye on me. And they whiche wente before, rebuked hym, that he shoulde holde his peace. But he cryed so much ymore, ỹ sonne of Dauid haue mercy on me. And Jesus stode still, and commaunded hym to be brought vnto hym.

And when he was come neare, Jesus axed hym, saynge: What wilt thou that I do vnto the? And he sayde: Lorde that I maye receyue my syght. Jesus sayde vnto hym: receyue thy syght: thy fayth hath saued the. And immediatly he sawe, & folowed hym, praysyng God. And all the people when they sawe it, gaue laude to God. ✠

Mat.xviii.b.

As they hearde these thynges, he added therto a similitude, because he was nye to Hierusalem, and because also they thoughte that the kyngdome of God should shortly appere. Mat.xxv.b. Ten pounde

He sayde therfore: ✣ A certayne noble man wente into a farre countre, to receyue him a kyngdome, and then to come agayne. And he called hys ten seruaunte, ỹ deliuered the ten pounde sayenge vnto them: bye and sell tyll I come. But hys citizens hated hym, and sente messengers after hym, sayenge: we will not haue thys man to reygne ouer vs.

C And it came to passe, when he was come agayne, and had receyued hys kyngdome, he commaunded these seruaunte, to be called to hi (to whom he gaue hys money) to wyt what euery man had done. Then came the fyrste sayenge: Lorde, thy pounde hath encreased ten pounde. And he sayde vnto hym. Well good seruaunte, because thou waste faythfull in a very lytell thynge, take thou authoryte ouer ten cities. And the other came, sayenge: Lorde thy pounde hath encreased fyue pound. And to the same he sayde, and be thou also ruler ouer .v. cities. And the.iii. came ỹ sayde: Lorde, behold here thy pounde, whiche I haue kept in a napkyn, for I feared the, because thou art a straight man, thou takest vp that thou laydest not downe, and reapest that thou dyddest not sowe. D And he sayde to him: Of thyne owne mouthe iudge I the thou euil seruaute. Knowest thou ỹ I am a straight man takyng vp that I layde not downe, and reapyng that I did not sowe? Wherfore then gauest not thou my money in to the banke, that at my comminge I might haue requyred myne owne with aduauntage.

And he sayed to them that stode by: take frō hym that pounde, and geue it hym that hath ten pounde. And they sayde vnto him: Lorde, he hath ten pounde. I saye vnto you, that vnto all them that haue, it shalbe geuen: and frō hym that hath not, euen that he hath shalbe taken from hym. Moreouer those myne enemyes which woulde not that I should raigne ouer them, bryngē hyther, and slea thē before me. And when he had thus spoke, he procedēd forthe ascendyng vp to Jerusalem ✣

Lowse him, and bring him hyther. And yf any man axe you, why that ye lowse him: thus say vnto him: ỹ Lorde hath nede of him. Mat.xxi.a. Mar.xi.a Bethphage Bethanye Luke.

They that were sente, wente they: wayed ỹ founde as he had sayed vnto them. And as they were alowsynge the colte, the owners sayed vnto them: why lowse ye the colte? And they sayed: for the Lorde hath nede of him. And they brought hym to Jesus. And they caste their rayment on the colte, and set Jesus theron. And as he wente, they spredde their clothes in the waye. John.xii.b

And when he was nowe come, where he shoulde go doune frō the mount Oliuete, the whole multitude of the disciples began to reioyce, and to laude God with a loude voyce for all the myracles that they had sene, sayeng: Blessed be the kyng that cometh in the name of the Lorde: peace in heauen, and glorye in ỹ hyest. And some of the Pharises of the cōpanye sayde vnto him: Master rebuke thy disciples. He answered and sayed vnto them: I tell you, yf these shoulde holde their peace, ỹ stones would crye. F

✣ And when he was come neare, he behelde the citie, and wept on it, sayeng: yf thou haddest knowen those thynges which belong vnto thy peace, euen at this thy tyme. But nowe are they hydde from thyne eyes. For ỹ dayes shall come vpon the, that thyne enemyes shall cast a banke about the, ỹ compasse the round and kepe the on euery syde, and make the euē with the grounde, with children whiche are in the. Against which time brethren, he wrote both his Gospell and also in his fyrste Epistel, and in the beginninge of his Gospell confuteth the heyght of things that at the beginninge was with God, & was also very God, and that all thinges there created & made by it, and that it was also made flesh, that is to say, christened mans man. And he doeth amonge his fyrste he, and not alone his gospell.

And in the beginninge of his Gospell, he speaketh of three pointes of his things: that was frō the beginning, which also we haue, & we with our eyes, and our hādes handled. And agayne the fyrste pointe rehearsynge he, that was with the father and appeared to vs, and we heard and sawe. &c. In that he speaketh that it was from the beginninge and that it was eternall he, & that it was with God, he abydeth him to be very God. And that he speaketh we heard, sawe, and felte, he witnesseth that he was very man also. Then also where I also and therfore counted not the ioye that the other had compyled. But myssyth moche of the fyrste and principle, and of the kyngdome of Christe. This he subscribeth concerninge the ende. Exemplyfyeth, and then Authorysyth, and myssyth to be beleued.

The Gospell of Saynt Jhon.

The fyrste Chapter.

✣ The everlastynge byrth of Christe, and howe he became man. The testymonye of Jhon. The callynge of Andrewe Peter. &c.

IN the begyn. ning was the worde, and the worde was with God, & the worde was God. The same was in the begynninge with God. All thynges were made by it and without it was made nothynge that was made. In it was lyfe, and the lyfe was the lyght of men, & the lyght shyneth in the darkenes, but the darkenes comprehended it not.

Mat. iij. a Mar. i. a

There was a man sent from God, whose name was Jhon. The same came as a witnes to beare witnes of. a. the lyght, that all men through him myght beleve. He was not that lyght lyght but to beare witnes of the lyght. That was a true lyght, which lyghteth all men that come into the worlde. He was in the worlde, & the worlde was made by him, & yet the worlde knewe him not.

b (Owne) is his owne people. Ffathe maketh be the sonnes of God. Matth.x. Luke.ii.d Joh barre wit nes 1.John.ni.b

He came amonge his (owne) & his owne receaued him not. But as many as receaued him to them he gaue power to be the sonnes of God in that they beleaued on his name: which were borne not of the blonde nor of the wyll of the flesh, nor yet of the wyll of man: but of God.

And the worde was made flesh & dwelt amonge vs, and we sawe the glorye of it, as the glorye of the onlye begotten sonne of the father, which worde was full of grace & verite. ‡

‡ John bare witnes of him & cried sayinge: This was he of whō I spake, he that cometh after me was before me, because he was yet then I. And of his fulnes haue all we receaued. rnem. h. (grace) for grace. For the lawe was geuen by Moyses, but grace and truthe came by Jesus Christ. No man hath sene God at anye tyme. The onlye begotte sonne which is in the bosome of the father, he hath declared hym. ‡

c ‡ And this is the recorde of John: When the Jewes sent prestes and Leuites from Jerusalem, to aske him what arte thou? And he confessed and denied not, and sayd plainlye: I am not Christe. And they axed hym what then? Art thou Helias? And he sayed: I am not. Art thou a Prophete? And he answered no. Then sayed they vnto him: what art thou? that we may geue an answere to them that sent vs? What sayest thou of thy selfe? He sayde: I am the. b. voice of a cryar in the wyldernes, make straight the waye of the Lorde, as sayde the Prophete Esaias.

Matth.iii.a Marc.i.a Luke.iii.a Esay.xl.a

d And they which were sent, were of the phareses. And they axed him and sayd vnto him: why baptysest thou then if thou be not Christ, nor Helias, neyther a Prophete? John answered them sayinge: I baptyse with water, but one is come amonge you whō ye knowe not, he it is that cometh after me, which was before me, whose shoe latchet I am not worthy to vnlose. These thinges were done in Bethabara beyonde Jordane wher John did baptyse. ‡

‡ The nexte daye John sawe Jesus commynge vnto him, and sayde: behold the lambe of God, which taketh away the synne of the worlde. This is he of whom I sayde. After me cometh a man which was before me, for he was yet then I, and I knewe him not: but that he shoulde be declared to Israel, therfore am I come baptysynge with water.

Lambe.

e And John bare recorde sayinge: I sawe the spirite descende from heauen, lyke vnto a doue, and abide vpon him, and I knewe him not. But he that sent me: to baptyse in water, the same sayde vnto me: vpon whom thou shalt se the spirite descende and tarye stylle on him, the same is he, which baptyseth with the holye ghost. And I sawe and beare recorde that this is the sonne of God.

Matth. iii.b Marc.i.b Luke.iii. b

The next daye after John stode againe, and two of his disciples. And he beholde Jesus as he walked by, & sayde: beholde the lambe of God. And the. ii. disciples hearde him speake & folowed Jesus. And Jesus turned about and sawe them folowe, and sayde vnto them: what seke ye? They sayde vnto him: Rabbi (which is to saye by interpretacion, Maister) wher dwellest thou? He sayed vnto them: come and se. They came and sawe wher he dwelte: and abode with him the daye. For it was about the tenth houre.

f One of the two which hearde John speake and folowed Jesus, was Andrew Simon Peters brother. The same founde his brother Simon first, and sayde vnto him: we haue founde Messias, which is by interpretacion, anointed: and brought him to Jesus. And Jesus behelde him and sayde: thou art Simon the sonne of Jonas, thou shalt be called Cephas: which is by interpretacion, a stone.

Andrew. Peter.

g The daye folowinge Jesus woulde go into Galyle, and founde Philip, and sayde vnto him: folow me. Philip was of Bethsaida the cyte of Andrewe and Peter. And Philipp founde Nathanael, and sayde vnto him. We haue founde hym of whom Moyses in the lawe, and the prophetes did write: Jesus the sonne of Joseph of Nazareth. And Nathanael sayd to him: Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth? Philip sayde to him: come and se.

Philippe. Nathanael. Gene.xlix. Deut.xviii. Esay.xi. Eze.xxxiiii. Dan.ix.

h Jesus sawe Nathanael commynge to him and sayde of him: Beholde a right Israelyte, in whom is no gyle. Nathanael, sayde vnto him: wher knewest thou me? Jesus answered, and sayde vnto him: Before that Philipp called the when thou wast vnder the frygge tree, I sawe the. Nathanael answered & sayde vnto him: Rabbi, thou art the sonne of God, thou art the kynge of Israel. Jesus answered and sayde vnto him: Because I sayde vnto the: I sawe the vnder the frygge tree, thou beleuest. Thou shalt se greater thinges then these. And he sayed vnto him: Verely verely, I saye vnto you: here after shall ye se heauen open, and the angels of God ascendinge and descendinge ouer the sonne of man,

The ii. Chapter.

✠ Christe turneth the water into wyne, and dryueth the byers and sellers out of the temple.

A Mariage Cane of Galile.

ANd ỳ thyrd day, was ther a mariage in Cana a citie of Galile: & the mother of Jesus was ther. And Jesus was called also & his disciples vnto the mariage. And when the wyne fayled, the mother of Jesus sayde vnto him: they haue no wine. Jesus said vnto her: woman, what haue ✱ I to do with the? Myne houre is not yet come. His mother sayd vnto the mynysters: whatsoeuer he saith vnto you, do it. And ther were standing there, sixe waterpots of stone after the maner of the purifying of the Jewes containinge two or three fyrkins a peece.

Or rather what haue I to do?

Water into wyne.

And Jesus sayd vnto them: fill the waterpottes with water. And they filled them vp to ỳ brymme. And he sayd vnto them: drawe out now, & beare vnto ỳ gouerner of ỳ feaste. And they beare it. When the ruler of ỳ feaste had tasted the water ỳ was turned vnto wyne, & knew not whence it was (but the mynysters whyche drue the water, knewe) he called the bridegrome, and sayd vnto him: All men at ỳ beginning, set forth good wine and a. when men be dronke, the that which is worse. But thou hast kept back ỳ good wine vntil now.

a. This beginning of miracles did Jesus in Cana of Galile, and shewed his glory, & hys disciples beleued on him. ¶ After that he descended into Capernaum, and his mother and his brethren, and his disciples: but continued not many dayes there.

✠ And the Jewes easter was nye at hande, & Jesus went vp to Jerusalem, and founde syttinge in the temple those ỳ solde oxen & sheepe and doues and chaungers of money. And he made a scourge of smal cordes: and draue the all out of the temple with the sheepe and oxen, and poured out the chaungers money, and ouerthrue the tables, and sayd vnto them that solde doues: Haue these thinges heuce & make not my fathers house an house of marchaundise. And his disciples remembred how that it was written: the zele of thyne house hath eaten me.

Sellers in the temple, are cast out.

Psal.lxviij.b

Then answered the Jewes & said to him: what token shewest thou vnto vs, seyng that thou doest these thinges? Jesus answered and said vnto them: destroy this temple & in three dayes I will reare it vp again. Then said the Jewes. xlvi. yeres was this temple a buildynge, and wylt thou reare it vp in. iij. daies? But he spake of the temple of his bodie. Assone therfore as he was risen from death again, his disciples remembred that he thus said. And they beleued the scripture, and the wordes whyche Jesus had sayd.

Mat.xxvi.f Mar.xiiij.f

Psal.xvj.b. Act.ij.c

When he was at Jerusalem at easter in the feaste many beleued on his name, when they sawe his miracles which he dyd, but Jesus put not hi self in their hades, because he knewe all men, and neded not that any man shuld testify of man. For he knew what was in man. ¶

¶ The communication of Christ with Nicodemus. The doctrine and baptisme of Jhon, and what materials he bestowed of Christe.

THer was a man of ỳ Pharises named Nicodemus a ruler amonge the Jewes. The same came to Jesus by nyghte & sayd vnto him: Rabbi, we knowe that thou art a teacher whiche art come from God. For no man coulde do such miracles as thou doest, except God were with him. Jesus answered & said to him: verely verely, I say vnto the: except a man be borne a. a newe, he can not se the kingdome of God. Nicodemus said vnto him: how can a man be borne whē he is olde? can he enter into his mothers wombe and be borne againe? Jesus answered verely, verely, I saye vnto the: except that a man be borne of water and of the spirite, he can not enter into the kyngdome of God. That whyche is borne of the flesshe is flesshe: and that whyche is borne of the spirite, is spirite. Marueyle not that I said to ỳ, ye must be borne a newe. The wynde bloweth whēr it listeth: and thou hearest the sounde therof: but canst not tell whence it cometh and whyther it goeth: So is every man that is borne of the spirite.

A Nicodemus.

And Nicodemus answered and said vnto him: how can these thinges be? Jesus answered & said vnto him: art thou a master in Israel, and knowest not these thinges? Verely, verely, I say vnto ỳ we speake that we know and testify that we haue seue, & ye receyue not our witnes. If whē I tell you earthly thinges ye beleue not: howe shuulde ye beleue if I shall tell you of heauenly thinges?

And no man. b. ascendeth vp to heaue, but he that came doune from heauen, that is to say, the sonne of man which is in heauen. And as Moyses lyfte vp the serpent in the wyldernes, euen so must the sonne of man be lyft vp, that none that beleueth in him perish, but haue eternall life. ¶

Nu.xxi.f Serpent.

✠ For God so loueth the. e. worlde, ỳ he hath geuen his only sonne, that none that beleue in him, should perishe: but should haue euerlastinge lyfe. For God sent not his sonne into ỳ world, to condemne the worlde: but that the world though him, might be saued. He that beleueth on him, shal not be condemned. But he that beleueth not is condemned alredy, because he beleueth not in the name of the only sonne of God. And this is the condemnacion, that light is come into the worlde, and the men loued darknes more then lyght, because their dedes were euyll. For euery man that euyll doeth, hateth the light: neither commeth to the lyght: lest his dedes shuulde be reproued. But he that doeth truth, commeth to the light that his dedes myght be knowen, how that they are wrought in God. ¶

Condemnacion.

After these thinges came Jesus & his disciples into the Jewes lande, and there he tarried ted with them & baptised. And John also baptised in Enon beside Salim, because there was much water there, & they came and were baptised. For John was not yet cast into prison.

D ✠ And there arose a question between Johns disciples and the Jewes about purifyinge. And they came unto John, and sayed unto him: Rabbi, he that was with þ beyond Jordan, to whom thou bearest witnes, Behold the same baptyseth, and all men come to him. John answered, and sayed: A man receyue nothing at all except it be geuen him from heauen. Ye youre selues are witnesses how that I sayde: I am not Christ, but am sent before him. He that hath the bryde is þ bridegrome. But the frend of the bridegrom, which standeth by and heareth him rejoyseth greatlye of the bridegromes voyce. This my ioye is fulfilled. He must increase: and I must decrease.

✠ He that commeth from an hye is above al. He that is of the earth, is of the earth, & speaketh of the earth. He that commeth from heauen, is above all, and what he hath seue and heard: that he testifyeth: but no man receiueth his testimony. Howbeit he that hath receiued his testimony hath set to his seale that God is true. For he whom God hath sent, speaketh the wordes of God: c. For God geueth not þ spirite by measure. The father loueth þ sonne and hath geuen all thinges into his hand. He that beleeueth on the sonne, hath euerlasting life, and he that beleeueth not þ sonne shall not se life: but þ wrath of God abydeth on him. ✠

✠ The louynge communication of Christe with the Women of Samarie by the Welles syde. How he teacheth the ryghte sonne.

A S sone as the Lord had knowledge, how the Pharisees had hearde, that Jesus made & Baptised more disciples then John (though that Jesus him self baptised not: but his disciples) he left Jewry, & departed agayne into Galile. And it was so þ he must nedes go through Samaria. Then came he to a citie of Samaria called Sichar, beside the possessyon that Jacob gaue to his sonne Joseph. And there was Jacobs well. Jesus then wearied in his iourney, sate thus on the wel.

Gen. xlviij. & xxxiij. d

B And it was about .x. the vi. houre: and there came a woman of Samaria to draw water. The woman And Jesus sayed unto her: geue me drinke of Samaria. For his disciples were gone away unto the towne to bye meate.

Then sayde the woman of Samarya unto him: howe is it, þ thou beynge a Jewe, axest drynke of me which am a Samaritane? for the Jewes medle not with the Samaritans. Jesus answered & sayd unto her: if thou knewest the gyfte of God, and who it is that sayeth to the geue me drynke, thou wouldest haue axed of him, and he would haue geuen the water of lyfe. The woman sayd to him: Sir thou hast nothinge to drawe with, and the well is depe: from whence then hast thou that water of lyfe? Art thou greater, then our father Jacob, whyche gaue us this well, and he him selfe dranke therof, and his children, and his cattell?

✠ Jesus answered & sayde unto her: whosoeuer drynketh of this water: shall thyrste agayne. But whosoeuer shall drinke of þ water that I shall geue him, shall neuer be more a thyrste: but the water that I shall geue him, shall be in him a well of water, springinge up into euerlasting lyfe. The woman sayde unto him: Sir geue me of that water, that I thyrst not neyther come hither to draw. Jesus sayd unto her: Go and call thy husbande, and come hither. The woman answered and sayde to him: I haue no husbande. Jesus sayde to her, Thou hast well sayed, I haue no husbande. For thou hast had fyue husbandes and he whome thou nowe hast is not thy husbande. That saydest thou truelye.

The woman sayd unto him: Sir I perceiue that thou art a prophete. Oure fathers Deutr.xij.a worshipped in this mountayne: and ye saye Regū.viij.f þ in Jerusalē is the place where men ought to worship. Jesus sayd unto her: woman beleeue me, the houre cometh, when ye shal neyther in this mountayne, nor yet at Jerusalem worshippe the father. Ye worshippe, ye wote not what: we knowe what we worshippe. For saluation cometh of the Jewes. But the houre howe and cometh and nowe is, when the true worshyppers shal worshippe the father in spyrite and in wythe truth. For verelye such the father requireth shyppers, to worshipp him. God is a spyryte, and they that worshipp him, must worshipp him in spyryte and truth.

The woman sayd unto him: I wot well Messias that shall come, whiche is called Christe. When Ioh.iij.d he is come, he will tell us all thinges. Jesus sayd unto her: I that speake unto the am he. And euen at that poynte, came his disciples, & merueyled that he talketh with the woman. Yet no man said unto him: what meanest thou, or why talkest thou with her? The woman then left her waterpotte, and went her way into the citie, and sayed to the men. Come se a man whiche told me all thynges that euer I dyd. Is not he Christ? Then they went out of the cytye, and came unto him.

And in the meane while his disciples praied him

hym saying: Master, eate. He said vnto them: I haue meate to eate, that ye knowe not of. Then said the disciples betwene them selues: hath ayne manne brought hym meate? Jesus said to them: my meate is to do the wil of him that sent me. And to fulfille his workes. Saye not ye: there are yet foure monethes, and then cometh heruest? Behold I saye vnto you, lyfte vp youre eyes, and loke on the regions: for they are whyte al ready vnto haruelte. And he that reapeth receyueth rewarde, and gathereth fruite vnto lyfe eternall: that both he that soweth, and he that reapeth might reioyce together. And herein is the saynge true, that one soweth, and another reapeth. I sente you to reape that wherein ye bestowed no labour. Other men laboured, and ye are entred into their labours.

F Many of the Samaritans of that citie beleued on hym for the saynge of the woman, whyche testified, he tolde me all thynges that euer I did. Then when the Samaritans were come vnto him they besought hym that he would tarye with them. And he abode ther. ij. daies. And many more beleued because of his owne wordes, & said vnto the woman. Now we beleue not because of thy saying. For we haue heard hym our selues, & knowe that this is euen in dede Christe the Sauioure of the worlde.

Mat. xiij. Mar. vi. a. Luke. iiij. c. After ij. daies he departed thence, and went awaye into Galile. And Jesus him selfe testified, that a Prophet hath no honoure in his own countrye. Then assone as he was come into Galile, the Galileans receyued him whych had sene al the thynges that he did at Hierusalē at the feaste. For they went also vnto the feaste daye. And Jesus came againe into Cana of Galile: where he turned water into wine.

Ruler. G And there was a certayne ruler, whose sonne was sicke at Capernaum. Assone as the same heard that Jesus was come out of Jury into Galile, he went vnto him, and besoughte him, that he would descende and heale his sonne: for he was euen readye to dye. Then saied Jesus vnto him: except ye se signes and wonders ye can not beleue. The ruler said vnto him: Sir come awaie or euer my childe dye. Jesus said vnto him: Go thy waie, thy sonne liueth. And the man beleued the wordes that Jesus had spoken vnto him, and went his waye. And anone as he went on his waye, his seruauntes mette him and tolde him saynge, thy childe liueth. Then enquered he of the the houre when he began to amende, and they said vnto him yesterdaye the seuenth houre the feuer left him. And the father knewe that it was the same houre in whyche Jesus said vnto him: Thy sonne liueth. And he beleued and al his houshold. This is againe the seconde miracle, that Jesus did after he was come out of Jury into Galile.

¶ The notes.

The bi. houre a. The Jewes reckened the houres of their daies frome the sunne vprisynge to the sunne settynge, so the syxte houre was .xij. houres after the sunne vprisynge whych at the time of the yere, was about none.

I haue meate to eate. b. Thys meate is to do the wil of his father, the chiefe thinge of his fathers will, is to preach the Gospell to all the worlde, whyche thynge was euen nowe at hande to be done, as when corne is ripe, men muste fall to heruest.

The. v. Chapter.

The diuers kyndes of men that were sicke, receyue speed. The Jewes accuse him, he answereth for him selfe and reproueth them.

S Exod. xxiij. a Deut. xvi. a After that there was a feast of the Jewes and Jesus went vp to Jerusalem. And ther is at Jerusalē by the .s. Shepherdes, a pole called in the Ebrue tonge .b. Bethesda, hauing .v. porches, in which lay a greate multitude of sycke folke, of blinde halt and withered, waityng for the mouyng of the water. For an angell went downe at a certaine season into the pole and troubled the water. Whosoeuer then fyrste after the steringe of the water, stepped in, was made whole of whatsoeuer disease he had. And a certayne man was there whyche had ben diseased .xxxviij. yeares. Whē Jesus sawe him lye and knewe that he nowe longe tyme had bene diseased, he said vnto him: Wylt thou be made whole? The sicke man answered him. Sir: I haue no man when the water is troubled to put me into the pole. But in the meane time while I am about to come, another stepped downe before me.

The man that lay .xxxviij. yere by the pole is healed

B And Jesus sayde vnto him: Aryse take vp thy bed, and walke. And immediatly the man was made whole, and toke vp his bedde, and went. And the same day was the Sabboth daye.

The Sabboth is broken. Jerem. xvij. c The Jewes therfore sayd to him that was made whole it is the Sabboth day, it is not lawful for the to carye thy bed. He answered them: he that made me whole, said vnto me: take vp thy bed, and get the home. Then axed they him what man is he whyche said vnto the, take vp thy bed & walke. And he that was healed, wiste not who it was. For Jesus had gotte him selfe awaye, because there was preasse of people in the place.

C And after that, Jesus found him in the temple & said vnto him: behold thou arte made whole, synne no more, lest a worse thynge happe vnto the. The man departed & told the Jewes that it was Jesus, which had made him whole. And therfore the Jewes did persecute Jesus, and soughte meanes to slea him, because he had done these thinges on the Sabboth daye. And Jesus answered them: my father worketh hether to & I worke. Therfore the Jewes soughte the more to kill him not only because he had broke the Sabboth, but said also that God was his father, and made him selfe equal with God.

D Then answered Jesus and said vnto them: verely verely, I say vnto you: the sonne can do nothynge of him selfe, but that he seeth the father do. For whatsoeuer he doth, that doeth the sonne also. For the father loueth the sonne, & sheweth him all thynges, whatsoeuer he him selfe doeth. And he will shewe him greater workes then these, because ye should marueile.

Christ is mad ge ouer all.

For lykewyse as the father rayseth vp the dead, and quickeneth them: euen so the sonne quickeneth whom he wyll. Neyther iudgeth the father anye man: but hath committed all iudgement vnto the sonne, because that all me should honoure the sonne, euē as they honour the father. He that honoureth not the sonne: the same honoureth not the father, which hath sent him. Verely, verely I say vnto you he that heareth my wordes, and beleueth on him that sent me, hath euerlasting lyfe, & shal not come into damnacio: but is escaped from deathvnto lyfe.

Faith.

D Verely verely, I saye vnto you: The tyme shall come, and nowe is, whē the dead shall heare the voyce of the sonne of God. And they that heare shall lyue. For as the father hath lyfe in him selfe, so hath he geuen to the sonne to haue lyfe in him selfe, and hath geuen him power also to iudge, in that he is the sonne of man. Marueile not at this, the houre shall come in the which, c. all that are in the graues, shal heare his voice, and shall come forth: they that haue done good, vnto the resurrection of lyfe, and they that haue done euil, vnto the resurrection of damnacion. ✠

Resurrection.

E He that seketh his owne wyll, iudgeth not truelye.

✠ I can of myne owne selfe do nothynge at all. As I heare, I iudge: and my iudgement is iust, because I seke not mine owne wyll but the wyll of my father which hath sent me. If I beare witnes of my selfe, my witnes is not true. There is another that beareth witnes of me, and I am sure that the witnes which he beareth of me, is true.

Ye sent vnto John, and he bare witnes vnto the truth. But I receyue not the record of man. Neuertheles, these thynges I say that ye might be safe. He was a burninge and a shyninge light: and ye would for a season haue reioyced in his light. But I haue greater witnes then the witnes of John. For the workes which the father hath geuen me to fynysshe the same workes which I do, beare witnes of me that the father sent me. And the father himselfe which hath sent me, beareth witnes of me. Ye haue not heard his voice at anye tyme nor ye haue seene his shape. Hereto his wordes haue ye not abydinge in you. For whom he hath sent, him ye beleue not.

Deut.xviii.c.

F Searche the scripture.

Searche the scriptures, for in them ye thinke ye haue eternall lyfe: and they are they which testifye of me. And yet will ye not come to me that ye might haue lyfe. I receyue not prayse of men. But I knowe you, that ye haue not the loue of God in you. I am come in my fathers name, and ye receyue me not. If another shall come in his owne name, him will ye receyue. Howe can ye beleue which receyue honoure one of another, and seke not the honoure that commeth of God only?

He that seketh honour can not beleue.

Fter these thynges Jesus went his way ouer the sea of Galile, whyche is also called Tyberias. And a great multitude folowed him, because they had seene his miracles which he did on them that were diseased. And Jesus went vp into a mountayne, and there he sate with his disciples. And easter a feast of the Jewes was nye. ✠

✠ Then Jesus lift vp his eyes, and sawe a company come vnto him, and sayd vnto Philip: whence shall we bye bread, that these might eate? This he sayde to proue him, for he him selfe knewe what he would do.

B Philip answered him, two hondred pens worth of bread are not sufficient for them, that euerye man haue a lytel. Then sayde vnto him one of his disciples, Andrew Symō Peters brother. There is a lad here, which hath fyue barly loues and two fyshes: but what is that among so many? And Jesus sayde: make the people sytte downe. There was much grasse in the place. And the men sate doune, in nombre, about fyue thousande. And Jesus toke the bread and gaue thankes, and gaue to the disciples, and his disciples to them that were set doune. And likewyse of the fyshes as much as they would.

Fyue loues & two fyshes.

Math.xiiii.c Marc.vi.f Luke.ix.b.

When they had eaten enough, he sayd vnto his disciples: gather vp the broken meate that remayneth: that nothinge be lost: And they gathered it together and fylled twelue hallettes with the broken meate, of the fyue barly loues and two fyshes which broken meate remained vnto them that had eaten. Then the men when they had seene the miracle that Jesus did, sayde: this is of a truthe the prophete that shoulde come into the worlde. ✠

C When Jesus perceiued that they would come, & take him vp to make him kyng, he departed

ted againe into a mountaine him selfe alone. And when euen was come his disciples went vnto the sea and entred into a shippe and wet ouer the sea vnto Capernaum. And anone it was darke, and Jesus was not come to them. And þ sea arose vp a great winde þ blewe. And whē they had rowen about a xxv. or a.xxx. furlonges, they sawe Jesus walke on the sea, and drawe nye vnto the shippe and they were afraped. And he sayde to them. It is I: be not afraped. Then would they haue receyued him into the shippe, and the shippe was by and by at the lande whither they wente.

D The daye folowinge, the people which stode on the other syde of the sea, sawe that ther was none other shipp ther saue that one wherein his disciples were entred and that Jesus went not in with his disciples into the shipp but that his disciples were gone awaye alone. How be it there came other shippes from Tiberias nye vnto the place wher they eate breed when the Lorde hath blessed. Then when the people sawe that Jesus was not there neyther his disciples, they also toke shippinge and came to Capernaum seking for Jesus.

And when they had found him on the other syde of the sea, they sayde vnto him: Rabbi when camest thou hither? Jesus answered the and sayde verely, verely I say vnto you ye seke me, not because ye sawe the miracles, but because ye eate of the loues, and were fylled.

+Labour not for the meate which perysheth, but for the meate that endureth vnto euerlasting lyfe, which meate the sonne of mā shall geue vnto you. For him hath God the father. a. sealed.

Then sayde they vnto him: what shall we do þ we might worke the workes of God? Jesus answered and sayde vnto them: This is the worke of God, that ye beleue on him: whom he hath sent. They said vnto him: what signe shewest thou them that we may se and beleue the? What doest thou worke? Our father did eate manna in the desert as it is written. He gaue them breed from heauen to eate. Jesus sayde vnto them: verely, verely I say vnto you: Moyses gaue you not breade from heauen: but my father geueth you the true breade from heauen. For the. b. bread of God is he which commeth downe from heauen, and geueth lyfe vnto the worlde.

Then sayde they vnto him: Lord euermore geue vs this breade. And Jesus sayde vnto them: I am that breade of lyfe. He that cōmeth to me, shall not hunger: and he that beleueth on me shall not thirste. +

But I saye vnto you: that ye haue seue me, and yet beleue not. All that the father geueth me shall come to me, and him that cometh to me, I cast not awaye. For I came downe from heauen: not to do myne owne will, but his will which hath sent me. And this is the fathers will which hath sent me, that of all whyche hath geuen me, I shulde lose nothinge: but shulde rayse it vp agayne at the laste daye. And this is the will of him that sent me: that euerye man which seeth the sonne and beleueth on him haue euerlasting lyfe. And I will rayse him vp at the laste daye.

The Jewes the murmured at him, because he sayd: I am that bread which is come downe from heauen. And they sayde: Is not this Jesus the sonne of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? How is it then that he saieth: I came downe from heauen? Jesus answered and saide vnto them. Murmure not amonge youre selues. + No man can come to me excepte the father which hath sent me drawe him. And I will rayse him vp at the laste day. It is written in the prophetes: that they shalbe all taught of God. Euery man therfore that hath heard and hath learned of the father commeth vnto me. Not that anye man hath seue the father, saue which is of God, the same hath seue the father.

Verely, verely, I say vnto you, he that beleueth on me, hath euerlasting lyfe I am that bread of lyfe. Youre fathers did eate Manna in the wyldernes and are dead. This is that bread which commeth from heauen that he which eateth of it, shoulde also not dye. I am that lyuinge bread: which came downe frō heauen. If any man eate of this bread, he shall lyue forever. And the bread that I will geue is my flesh, which I will geue for the life of the worlde. +

And the Jewes stroue amonge them selues saynge: How can this felowe geue vs his flesh to eate? Then Jesus sayde to them. Verely, verely, I say vnto you: except ye eate the flesche of the sonne of man and drinke his bloude, ye shall not haue lyfe in you. Whosoeuer eateth my flesh, and drinketh my bloude, hath eternal lyfe: and I will rayse him vp at the laste day.

+ For my flesh is meate in deede, and my bloude is drinke in deede. He þ eateth my flesh, and drinketh my bloude, dwelleth in me and I in him. As the liuinge father hath sent me, euen so lyue I by my father, and he that eateth me shall lyue by me. This is the bread which came from heauen: not as your fathers haue eaten Manna and are dead. He that eateth of this breade, shall lyue euer. +

These thinges sayde he in the synagoge as he taught in Capernaum. Many therfore of his disciples, when they had herde this sayd: this is an harde saynge: who can abide the hearinge of it? Jesus knewe in him selfe, that his disciples murmured at it, and sayde vnto them: Doth this offende you? What and if ye shall se the sonne of man ascende vp wher he was before? It is the spirite that quickeneth, the flesh profiteth nothing. The wordes that I speake vnto you, are spirite and lyfe. But there are some of you that beleue not. For Jesus knewe from the beginninge, which they were that beleued not, and who should betraye him. And he sayde: therfore said I vnto you that no man cometh vnto me, except it were geuen vnto him of my father.

From that tyme many of his disciples
wente backe, and walked no more with him.
Then sayde Jesus to the twelue: will ye also

And the Scribes and Pharisees brought vnto hym a woman taken in aduoutrye, and set her in the middest, and sayed vnto hym: Master, this woman was taken in aduoutrye, euen as the dede was a doynge. Moyses in the lawe commaunded vs ỹ suche shoulde be stoned. What sayest thou therfore? And this they sayed to tempte hym, that they myghte haue, wherof to accuse hym. But he him selfe sayd: I am even he. They

Then spake they vnto the blynde agayne.
What sayest thou of him, because he hath

But the Jewes dyd not beleue on the fo- D that

that yf any man dyd confesse that he was Christe, he shoulde be excommunicate out of the synagoge, therfore sayd hys father & mother: he is olde ynough, aske hym.

E Then agayne asked they the man that was blynde, & sayd vnto hym: Geue God y prayse we knowe that this man is a synner. He answered and sayde: Whither he be a synner or no, I can not tell, one thyng I am sure of, that I was blynde, and now I se. Then sayd they to hym agayne: What dyd he to the? Howe opened he thyne eyes? He answered them: I tolde you yet whyle, and ye dyd not heare. Wherfore wolde ye heare it agayne? wyll ye also be his disciples? Then raued they hym, & sayde: thou arte his disciple: we be Moyses disciples. We are sure that God spake wyth Moyses, this felowe we knowe not from whence he is.

F The man answered, and sayd vnto them: This is a meruelous thynge, that ye wote not whence he is, seyng he hath opened myne eyes. For we be sure that. b. God heareth not synners. But yf any man be a worshypper of God, and do hys wyll, hym heareth he. Sence the worlde began: was it not hearde that any man opened the eyes of one that was borne blynde. If this man were not of God, he coulde haue done nothynge. They answered, and sayde vnto hym: thou arte all together borne in synne, and doest thou teach vs? And they cast hym out.

Jesus hearde, that they had excommunicate hym, he sayde vnto hym: doest thou beleue on the sonne of God? He answered, and sayde: Who is it Lord that I myght beleue on him? And Jesus sayde vnto hym: Thou haste sene hym, and he it is that talked with the. And he sayde: Lorde I beleue & worshypped hym. ✠ Jesus sayd: I am come vnto iudgement into this worlde, that they which se not myght se, and they which se, myght be made blynde. And some of the Pharises whiche were with him, hearde these wordes, and sayde vnto hym: are we then blynde? Jesus sayde vnto them: yf ye were blynde, ye shoulde haue no synne. But now ye saye: we se, therfore your synne remayneth.

The notes.

The nyght. a. This nyght is the tyme of ignorance, wherein the knowledge of Christ how he only iustifyeth, is lost. Then can no man worke a good worke in the sight of God, how glorious so euer hys workes appeare.

God heareth no synner. b. That is, he heareth none that repente not, nor are in mynde to leaue their euyll lyfe.

The .x. Chapter.✠

Of Christe is the true shepherde, and the dore of the shepe. Some false. Christ hath the deuell, and is mad. Other say that he speaketh not the wordes of one that hath the deuell, because he restoreth the blynde. The Jewes take vp stones to caste at him as a blasphemer, and go about to take him. ✠

Verely verely I saye vnto you: he that entreth not by the dore, into the shepe folde: but climeth vp some other waye, the same is a theefe and a robber. He that entreth in by the dore, is the shepeherde of the shepe, to him the porter openeth, and the shepe heare hys voyce, and he calleth hys owne shepe by name, and leadeth them out. And when he hath sente forth hys owne shepe, he goeth before them, and the shepe folowe him, for they knowe hys voyce. A straunger they wyll not folowe, but will flye fro him, for they knowe not the voyce of straungers. This similitude spake Jesus vnto them: But they vnderstode not what thynges they were whiche he spake vnto them.

A Dore. Joh.viij.b

D Then Jesus sayd vnto them agayne: Verely verely I saye vnto you: I am the dore of yͤ shepe. All, euen as many as came before me, are theues and robbers: but the shepe dyd not heare them. I am the dore: by me yf any man enter in, he shalbe safe, and shall go in & out, and fynde pasture. The theefe commeth not, but for to steale, kyll, and destroye. I am come, that they might haue lyfe, and haue it more aboundantly.

Christ is the dore.

✠ I am the good shepherde. The good shepherde geueth hys lyfe for the shepe. An hyred seruaunte, which is not the shepeherde, neyther the shepe are hys owne, seeth the wolfe comynge, and leaueth the shepe, and fleeth, and the wolfe catcheth them, & scatereth yͤ shepe. The hyred seruaunte fleeth, because he is an hyred seruaunte, and careth not for the shepe. I am that good shepeherde, and knowe myne and am knowen of myne. As my father knoweth me, euen so knowe I my father. And I geue my lyfe for the shepe: and other shepe I haue whiche are not of this folde. Them also muste I bynge that they maye heare my voyce, and that there maye be one flocke, and one shepeherde.

Therfore doth my father loue me, because I put my lyfe from me, that I myght take it agayne. No man taketh it from me, but I put it awaye of my selfe. I haue power to put it from me, and haue power to take it agayne. This commaundemente haue I receyued of my father. And there was a dyuision agayne among the Jewes for these sayenges, & many of them sayd: he hath the deuel, and is madde: why heare ye hym? Other sayd: these are not the wordes of hym that hath the deuyll. Can the deuyll open the eyes of the blynde?

✠ And it was at Jerusalem the feaste of the dedication of the temple, and it was wynter, & Jesus walked in Salomons porche. Then came the Jewes rounde about hym, & sayed vnto hym: Howe longe dost thou make vs doubte? yf thou be Christe, tell vs playnely. Jesus answered them: I tolde you, and ye beleue not. vnto youre my sheepe heare my voice, & I knowe them, and they folowe me, and I geue vnto them eternall lyfe, and they shall neuer perish neyther shall any man plucke them out of my hande. My father which gaue them me, is greater then all, and no man is able to take them out of my fathers hande. And I and my father are one.

Then the Iewes agayne toke vp stones to stone hym with all. Iesus answered them: many good workes haue I shewed you frō my father: for whiche of them wyll ye stone me? The Iewes answered him, sayinge: For thy good workes sake we stone the not, but for thy blasphemye, and because that thou beynge a man, makest thy selfe God. Iesus answered them: is it not written in youre lawe, I sayde: ye are gods? If he called them Gods vnto whom the worde of God was spoken (& the scripture can not be broken) sayde ye then to hym, whom the father hath sanctified, & sent into the worlde, thou blasphemest, because I sayed, I am the sonne of God? If I do not the workes of my father, beleue me not. But if I do them though ye beleue not me, yet beleue the workes, that ye maye knowe and beleue, that the father is in me, and I in hym.

Agayne they went about to take hym: but he escaped out of their handes, and went awaye agayne beyonde Iorden, into the place where Iohn before had baptysed, and there abode. And many resorted vnto hym, & sayed: Iohn dyd no miracle, but all thynges that Iohn spake of this man, are true. And many beleued on hym there.

The .xi. Chapter.

¶ Christ raiseth Lazarus from death. The high priestes and Pharisees gather a counsayle agaynste him to geue him out of the waye.

A Certayne man was sicke, named Lazarus of Bethania, the towne of Mary and her sister Martha. It was that Mary whiche anoynted Iesus with oyntment and wyped his fete with her heire, whose brother Lazarus was sicke, and his sisters sente vnto hym, sayinge: Lorde, beholde, he whome thou louest, is sicke. When Iesus heard, that he sayed: this infirmitie is not vnto death, but for the laude of God that the sonne of God myght be praysed by the reason of it. Iesus loued Martha and her sister and Lazarus. The after he had heard that he was sicke, yet abode he two dayes styll in the same place, where he was.

Mat.xvi.a.

B Then after that sayde he to his disciples: Let vs go into Iewry agayne. His disciples sayde vnto hym: Master, the Iewes late lye sought meanes to stone the, and wylt thou go thyther agayne? Iesus answered: are there not .xii. houres in the daye? If a man walke in the daye, he stombleth not, because he seeth the lyght of this worlde. But if a man walke in the nyght, he stombleth, because there is no lyght in him. This sayed he, and after that, he sayed vnto them: oure frende Lazarus sleepeth but I go to wake him out of slepe. The sayed his disciples: Lorde if he slepe, he shall do well ynough. Howbeit Iesus spake of his death: but they thought that he had spoken of the naturall slepe. Then sayd Iesus vnto the plainly: Lazarus is dead, and I am glad for youre sakes, that I was not there, because ye may beleue. Neuertheles let vs go vnto him. Then sayde Thomas which is called Didymus, vnto the disciples: Let vs also go, that we maye dye with hym.

Then went Iesus, and founde that he had lyen in his graue foure dayes already. Bethanye was nye vnto Hierusalem aboute .xv. furlonges of, and many of the Iewes were come to Martha and Mary to comforte the ouer their brother. Martha allone as she hearde that Iesus was commynge, went, and met hym: but Mary sat styll in the house.

C

✝ Then sayde Martha vnto Iesus: Lorde, if thou haddest ben here, my brother had not ben dead: but nevertheles, I knowe that what soeuer thou aske of God, God wyll geue it the. Iesus sayde vnto her: thy brother shall ryse agayne. Martha sayed vnto him: I knowe that he shall ryse agayne in the resurrection vpon the laste daye. Iesus sayed vnto her: I am. a. the resurrection and the lyfe. He that beleueth on me, yee though he were dead, yet shall he lyue. And whosoeuer lyueth, and beleueth on me, shall neuer dye. Beleuest thou this? She sayd vnto him: ye Lorde I beleue that thou arte Christe the sonne of God, which should come into the worlde. ✝

Luke.xiij.

D And allone as she had so sayd, she went her waye, and called Mary her sister secretely, sayinge: The master is come, and calleth for the. And she allone as she heard that, arose quickly, and came vnto him. Iesus was not yet come into the towne, but was in the place where Martha met him. The Iewes then which were with her in the house and comforted her, when they sawe Mary, that she arose vp hastely, and went out, and folowed her, sayinge: She goeth vnto the graue, to wepe there.

Then when Mary was come, where Iesus was, and sawe him, she fell doune at his fete, sayinge vnto him: Lorde if thou haddest ben here, my brother had not ben dead. When Iesus sawe her wepe, and the Iewes also wepe which came with her, he groned in the spirite, and was troubled in him self, & sayd: Where haue ye layed him? They sayde vnto him: Lorde, come and se. And Iesus wepte. Then sayde the Iewes: Beholde, howe he loued him. And some of them sayde: coulde not he which opened the eyes of the blynde, haue made also that this man shoulde not haue dyed? Iesus agapne groned in hym selfe, and came to the graue: it was a caue and a stone layde on it.

And Jesus sayde: take ye away the stone. Martha the sister of hym that was dead, sayd vnto him: Lorde by this tyme he stinketh: for he hath bene dead foure dayes. Jesus sayd vnto her: Sayd I not vnto the, that yf thou beleuedest, thou shouldest se ỹ glory of God. Then they toke awaye the stone from ỹ place where the dead was layde. And Jesus lyft vp his eyes, and sayde: ffather I thanke the because that thou haste hearde me. I wote that thou hearest me alwayes: but because of the people that stande by, I sayed it, that they may beleue that thou hast sent me.

And when he thus had spoken: he cryed with a loude voyce: Lazarus come forth. And he ỹ was dead, came forth, bounde hand and fote with graue bandes, and his face was bounde with a napkin. Jesus sayd vnto them, louse him, and let him go. Then many of the Jewes which came to Marye, and had sene the thynges which Jesus dyd, beleued on hym. But some of them went their wayes to the Pharises, and tolde them what Jesus had done.

Then gathered the hye Prestes and Pharyses a counsell and sayd: What do we? This man doth many miracles: yf we let hym scape thus, all men will beleue on hym, & the Romaynes shall come and take away our countrey and the people. And one of them named Caiphas which was the hye prieste that same yeare sayde vnto them: ye perceyue nothynge at all, nor yet consyder that it is expedyent for vs, that one man dye for the people, & not that all the people perysshe. This spake he not of hymselfe, but beynge hye Prieste that same yeare he prophesyed that Jesus shoulde dye for the people, and not for the people only, but that he shoulde gather together in one the chyldre of God which were scattered abrode. Fro that daye forth they helde a counsell together, for to put hym to death.

Jesus therfore walked no more openlye amonge the Jewes, but went hys waye thence vnto a countrey nygh to the wyldernes, into a cotye called Ephraim, & there haunted with his disciples. And the Jewes Easter was nye at hande, and many went out of the countrey vp to Jerusalem before the Easter, to purifie themselues. Then sought they for Jesus, and spake amonge themselues, as they stode in ỹ temple: What thynke ye, seynge he commeth not to the feast? The hye prestes and Pharyses had geuen a commaundement, that yf any man knewe, where he were, he shoulde shewe it, that they myght take hym.

The notes.

a. Christ calleth hym selfe the resurrection and lyfe: because he is the authoure of the resurrection and lyfe. As he sayth. Those that beleue in me, will I rayse vp at the last day into lyfe euerlastynge, and those that are dead, shall lyue by me, because they beleued in me.

Resurrection and lyfe.

The xij. Chapter.

¶ Mary anoynteth Christes fete. Judas murmureth. Christe entreth into Jerusalem. The Greekes desyre to se Jesus.

Then Jesus .vi. dayes before Easter, came to Bethanye where Lazarus was which was dead, and whom Jesus raysed from death. There they made hym a supper, & Martha serued: but Lazarus was one of them that sate at the table with hym. a Mary.

Then take Mary a pounde of oynement called Nardus, perfecte and precyous, and anoynted Jesus fete, and wyped his fete with her heare, and the house was fylled with the sauioure of the oynement. Then sayed one of his disciples named Judas Iscariot, Symons sonne, which afterwarde betrayed hym: why was not this oynement solde for thre C. pens and geuen to the poore? This sayed he, not that he cared for the poore, but because he was a thefe, and kepte the bagge, and bare that whiche was geuen. Then sayed Jesus Let her alone, against the daye of my buriynge she kept it. The poore alwayes shall ye haue with you, but me shall ye not alwayes haue.

Muche people of the Jewes had knowledge that he was there, & they came not for Jesus sake onely, but that they myghte se Lazarus also whom he raysed from death. The hye prestes therfore helde a counsell, that they myght put Lazarus to death also, because that for his sake many of the Jewes went away, and beleued on Jesus. b

On the morowe muche people that were come to the feast, when they hearde that Jesus shoulde come to Jerusalem, toke braunches of palme trees, and went and met hym, and cryed: Osanna, blessed is he that is in the name of the Lorde cometh hynge of Israell. Jesus gotte a yonge asse, and sate thereon, accordynge to that which was wrytten, feare not doughter of Sion, beholde thy kynge cometh, sittynge on an asses colte. These thinges vnderstode not his disciples at the fyrst: but when Jesus was glorifyed, then remembred they that suche thynges were written of him, and that suche thynges they had done vnto him. Matt.xxi.a Mar.xi.a Luke.xix.d c Osanna. Zacha.ix.b

The people that was with hym, when he called Lazarus out of his graue, and raysed him from death, bare witnesse. Therfore met him the people, because they hearde that he had done suche a miracle. The Phariseis therfore sayed amonge themselues: perceyue ye howe we preuayle nothyng: beholde ỹ worlde goeth after him.

There were certayne Grekes among thē, that came to feaste at the feaste: the same came to Philippe which was of Bethsaida a cotye in Galile, and desyred him, sayenge: Syr we wolde fayne se Jesus. Philip came and told Andrewe. And agayne Andrewe and Philip tolde Jesus. And Jesus answered them, sayenge: The houre is come that the sonne of man shall be glorifyed.

The.xiij. Chapter.

>✠ Christ washeth the disciples fete, teacheth them of loue the traytour, and commaundeth them eernestly to loue one another.

BEfore the feast of Easter when Mat.xvi. Jesus knewe that his houre was Luke.xvi. come, that he shulde depart oute
Mar.xiij. of this worlde vnto the father.
When he loued his which were in the worlde, vnto the ende he loued them.
And when supper was ended, after that the deuyl had put in the herte of Judas Iscarioth Simons sonne, to betraye him. Jesus knowyng that the father had geuen all thynges into his handes, and that he was come from God, and went to God, he rose from supper, and layde aside his vpper garmentes, & toke
a towell, and gyrde himselfe. After that poured he water into a bason, & began to wash Jesus wa-his disciples fete, and to wype them with a shed his ditowell, wherewith he was gyrde. sciples fete.

Then came he to Symon Peter. And Peter sayde vnto him: Lorde shalt thou washe
my fete? Jesus answered, and sayed vnto hi:
what I do, thou wotest not nowe, but thou shalt knowe hereafter. Peter sayed vnto him:
thou shalt not washe my fete whyle y worlde standeth. Jesus answered him: if I washe thee not, thou shalte haue no parte with me. Si mon Peter sayed vnto him: Lorde not my fete onely: but also my handes and my heade. Je sus sayed vnto him: he that is washed, nee-deth not saue to washe his fete, and is cleane euery whyt. And ye are cleane: but not al. For he knewe his betrayer. Therfore sayed he: ye are not all cleane.

After he had washed their fete, and receyred his clothes, and was set downe agayne, Mat.xx
he sayed vnto them. Wote ye what I haue Luke.xxij done to you? Ye call me maister and Lorde, & ye sape well, for so am I. If I then your lord and maister haue washed your fete, ye also ought to wash one anothers fete. For I haue geuen you an ensample, that ye shoulde do as I haue done to you. Verelye verelye I say vn to you: the seruaunte is not greater then his master, neyther the messenger greater then he that sent him.

If ye vnderstande these thynges, happye L are ye if ye do them. I speake not of you all. I Psalm.xl.c knowe whome I haue chosen. But that y scripture myght be fulfylled, he that eateth bread with me, hath lyft vp his hele against me.
Nowe tell I you before it come, that when it come to passe, ye myght beleue that I am he.
Verelye verelye I saye vnto you. He that receyueth whomesoeuer I sende, receyueth me.
And

And he that receyueth me, receyueth him that sent me.

When Jesus had thus sayed, he was troubled in the spirite, and testifyed, sayinge: verely verely I saye vnto you, that one of you shall betraye me. And then the disciples loked one on another, doubtinge of whom he spake. There was one of hys disciples which leaned on Jesus bosome whome Jesus loued. To hi beckened Simon Peter that he should aske who it was, of whom he spake. He then as he leaned on Jesus breste sayed vnto hym: Lorde who is it? Jesus answered, he it is to whom I geue a sop, when I haue depte it. And he wet a soppe, and gaue it to Judas Iscarioth Simons soune. And after the sop, Satan entred into hym.

Then sayde Jesus vnto hym: that thou doest, do quickly. That wist no man at the table, for what intent he spake vnto hym. Some of them thought, because Judas had ỹ bagge, that Jesus had sayed vnto hym, bye those thinges that we haue nede of against the feast: or that he shoulde geue some thyng to the poore. Assone then as he had receyued the sop, he went immediatlye out. And it was nyght. When he was gone out, Jesus sayde: nowe is the soune of man glorifyed. And God is glorifyed by hym. ỹf God be glorifyed by hym, God shall also glorifye hym in hym selfe, and shall strayghte waye glorifye hym.

✠ Deare children, yet a lytell whyle am I with you, ye shall seke me, and as I sayde vnto the Jewes: whyther I go, thyther can ye not come. Also to you saye I nowe A newe commaundement geue I vnto you, that ye loue together, as I haue loued you, that euen so ye loue one another. By thys ✶ shall all men knowe that ye are my disciples, yf ye shall haue loue one to another. Simon Peter sayed vnto hym. Lorde whyther goest thou? Jesus answered hym: Whyther I go thou canste not folowe me nowe, but thou shalt folowe me afterwarde. Peter sayde vnto him: Lorde, why can not I folowe the nowe? I will geue my lyfe for thy sake. Jesus answered hym: wilte thou geue thy lyfe for my sake? Verely verely I saye vnto the, the cocke shall not crowe, tyll thou haue denyed me thryse.

a. He washed theyr fete, to declare that he came to minister vnto other, and not to be ministred vnto. And further to teache by thys washynge, that hys ministracyon was, to purge and washe away the fylthe of synne, whyche is done by the sheadyng of hys blood for the blood of Christ sprinkled into our heartes by the worde of hys gospell, and receyued by fayth: cleuseth vs from synne.

The.xiiij. Chapter.

The argument of the.xiiij. chapter. Christ comforteth agayne the troubled and perplexed hartes with the sure ground of the hope of eternall lyfe. ✠

Lod he sayd vnto hys disciples: Let not youre hertes be troubled. Beleue in god, ỹ beleue in me. In my fathers house are many mansyons. yf it were not so, I wolde haue told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And yf I go to prepare a place for you, I wyll come agayne, and receyue you vnto my selfe, that where I am, there may ye be also. And whyther I go, ye knowe, and the waye ye knowe.

Thomas sayde vnto hym: Lorde we knowe not whether thou goest. Also howe is it possyble for vs to knowe the waye? Jesus sayd vnto hym: I am the waye, the truthe and ỹ lyfe. And no man commeth to the father, but by me. yf ye had knowen me, ye had knowne my father also. And nowe ye knowe hym, ỹ haue sene hym.

Philip sayde vnto hym: Lorde shewe vs the father, and it sufficeth vs. Jesus sayd vnto hym. Haue I bene so longe time with you, and yet haste thou not knowen me, Philip, he that hath sene me, hath sene the father. And howe sayest thou then: shewe vs the father? Beleuest thou not ỹ I am in the father, ỹ father in me? The wordes that I speake vnto you, I speake not of my selfe: but the father ỹ dwelleth in me, he doth the workes. Beleue me that ỹ I am in the father, and the father in me: At the least beleue me for the very workes sake. Verely, verely I saye vnto you, he that beleueth on me, the workes that I do, shall he do, and greater workes then these shall he do, because I go vnto my father. And whatsoeuer ye aske in my name that will I do. a. ỹ ỹ father myght be glorifyed by the soune. yf ye shall aske any thyng in my name, I wyll do it. ỹ

A promyse. Mat.vij.a Mat.xxi.c

✠ yf ye loue me, kepe my ✶ commaundementes, ỹ I will praye the father, and he shall geue you another comforter, that he may byde with you euer, whych is b. the spirite of truth whom the worlde can not receyue, because the worlde seeth hym not, neyther knoweth hym. But ye knowe hym. For he dwelleth with you, ỹ shall be in you. I will not leaue you comfortlesse, but will come vnto you.

By ỹ keping of the commaundementes is ment that he knoweth man knoweth God.

Yet a lytell whyle and the worlde seeth me no more: but ye shall se me. ffor I lyue, and ye shall lyue. That daye shall ye knowe that I am in my father, and you in me, and I in you. He that hathe my commaundementes and keepeth them, the same is he that loueth me. And

Who loueth shall.

I he

he that loueth me, shal be loued of my father: And I will loue hym, and will shewe myne owne selfe to him. Judas (sayd unto hym (not Judas Iscariothe) Lord what is the cause that thou wilte shewe thy selfe unto us, & not unto the worlde? Jesus answered and sayd unto hym, yf a man loue me, and will kepe my sayinges, my father also will loue hym & we will come unto hym, and will dwell in hym.

Who keepeth Christes sayinges.

He that loueth me not, keepeth not my sayinges. And the worde which ye heare, are not myne, but the fathers which sent me.

D These haue I spoken unto you, beynge yet present with you. But that comforter which is the holy ghost, whome my father wil send in my name) he shal teache you all thinges, & bringe all thinges to youre remembraunce whatsoeuer I haue tolde you.

Peace.

Peace I leaue with you, my peace I geue unto you. Not as the worlde geueth, geue I unto you. Let not your hertes be greued, neyther feare ye. Ye haue heard how I sayde unto you. I go and come agayne unto you. Yf ye loued me, ye would verely reioyce, because I sayde: I go unto the father. For the father is greater then I. And nowe haue I shewed you before it come, that whē it is come to passe, ye might beleue.

Here after will I not talke many wordes unto you. For the ruler of this world cometh and hath nought in me. But that the worlde maye knowe that I loue the father: therfore as the father gaue me commaundement euen so do I. Aryse, let vs go hence.

The notes.

That the father maye be glorified

a. The father is glorified by the sonne, when we acknowledge and geue thankes, that he gaue his sonne for vs to saue vs.

The spirite of truth.

b. He is called the spirite of truth, not onlye because he is true, but because he maketh the man unto whome he entreth, true. Where as all that they do without the spirite is nought other thyng but lyes.

The.xv. Chapter.

¶ The true vine and the husbandman. 2 Barrenes of fruit, and a threte. 3 Loue and persecution. ✠

I Am the true vyne, and my father is an husbandman. Euery braunche that beareth not fruite in me, he wyll take away. And euerye braunche that beareth fruite, wil he pourge, that it maye bryng more fruite. Now are ye clene through the wordes which I haue spoken unto you. Byde in me, and let me byde in you. As the braunche can not beare fruite of it selfe, except it byde in the vyne: no more can ye except ye abyde in me.

Vyne

¶ I am the vyne, and ye are the braunches. He that abydeth in me, and I in him, the same bryngeth forth muche fruite. For without me can ye do nothyng. Yf a man byde not in me, he is cast forth as a braunche, and is wyther'd: and men gather it, and cast it into the fyre, and it burneth.

Yf ye byd in me and my wordes abyde in you: aske what ye wyll, and it shalbe done to you. ✠ Commaun.

Here is my father glorified that ye beare muche fruite, and be made my disciples. B

As the father hath loued me, euen so haue I loued you. Continue in my loue. Yf ye shal kepe my commaundementes, ye shall byde in my loue, euen as I haue kepte my fathers commaundementes, and abyde in hys loue. To kepe the fathers and Christes commaundementes is ryghte to loue of the nature of Christe. Ephe.5.a

These thynges haue I spoken unto you, that my ioye myght remayne in you, and yᵗ your ioye myght be full. 1.Thes.4.b

✠ This is my commaundement, that ye loue together as I haue loued you. Greater loue then this hath no man, then ✠ a man bestowe his life for his frendes. Ye are my frendes, yf ye do whatsoeuer I commaunde you. Henceforth call I you not seruauntes: for the seruaunt knoweth not what his lorde doth. But you haue I called frendes, for all thynges ✠ I haue heard of my father, I haue opened vn to you. 1.John.3.b

¶ Ye haue not chosen me, but I haue chosen you and ordeyned you, ✠ ye go & bringe forth fruite, and that your fruite remayne, and that whatsoeuer ye shall aske of the father in my name, he thoulde geue it to you. ✠

✠ This commaunde I you, that ye loue together. C

Yf the worlde hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hatred you. Yf ye were of the worlde, the worlde would loue his owne. Nowe be it because ye are not of the worlde, but I haue chosen you out of the worlde, therfore hateth you the worlde. Remember ye saying that I sayde unto you: the seruaut is not greater then his lorde. Yf they haue persecuted me, so wyll they persecute you: yf they haue kept my sayinges, so wyll they kepe yours. 1.John.3.b

But all these thynges wyll they do unto you, for my names sake, because they haue not knowen him that sent me. Yf I had not come, and spoken unto them, they should not haue had synne: but now haue they nothynge to cloke their synne with all. He that hateth me, hateth my father. Yf I had not done workes amōg the which none other man dyd, they had not had synne. But now haue they seen, & yet haue hated both me & my father: euē ✠ the saying might be fulfilled that is writē in their lawe: they hated me without a cause. ✠ Matt.23.and xxiij.a.

✠ But when the comforter is come, whome I will sende unto you from the father, which is the spirite of truth, which proceadeth of ✠ father, he shall testifye of me. And ye shall beare witnes, also because ye haue bene with me from the beginnynge. Psal.xxxv.a Luke.xxiiij.b

The notes.

a. He that will abyde in Goddes loue, must kepe Gods commaundement. To abyde in Gods loue What.

b. In the.b. chapter of this Gospell, Christe sayeth that he receyueth no witnes of man. But here he sayth that his disciples shal bear him witnesse. Understande therfore, that for hym selfe he needeth not witnesse, But for

The.xvi. Chapter.

¶ Consolacyon agaynst trouble, prayers are heard thorowe Christe.

1 Mat.xxiiij.a. THese thynges haue I spoken vnto you, because ye shoulde not be offended. They shall excommunicate you: ye the tyme shall come, that whosoeuer kylleth you, wil thinke that he doeth god seruice. And suche thinges shall they do vnto you, because they haue not knowen the father, nether yet me. But these thynges haue I tolde you, that when that houre is come ye myght remember them that I tolde you of. ✠ These thynges spake I not vnto you at the begynnynge, because I was present with you.

5 ✠ But nowe I go my waye to hym that sent me, and none of you axeth me, whyther goest thou? But because I haue spoke suche thynges vnto you, youre hertes are full of sorowe. Nevertheles I tell you the truth, it is expedient for you that I go awaye. For yf I go not awaye, that comforter wil not come vnto you. But yf I departe, I wil sende hym vnto you. And when he is come, he wil rebuke ỹ world of synne, and of ryghteousnesse, and of iudgement. a Of synne, because they beleue not on me: of ryghteousnesse, because I go to my father, and then ye shall not se me, and of iudgement, because the chefe ruler of this worlde is iudged alreadye.

Synne. Ryghteousnes. Iudgement.

12 ✠ I haue yet many thynges to say vnto you, but ye cannot beare them awaye now. Howe be it when he is come (I meane the spirite of truth) he wyll lead you into all truth. He shall not speake of hym self, but whatsoeuer he shal heare, that shall he speake, and he wyll shewe you thynges to come. He shall glorifye me, for he shall receyue of myne, and shall shewe vnto you. All thynges that the father hath, are myne. Therfore sayd I vnto you, that he shal take of myne, and shewe vnto you. ỹ

16 ✠ After a whyle ye shall not se me: & agayne after a whyle ye shall se me: for I go to the father. Then sayed some of hys disciples amonge them selues: what is this that he sayeth vnto vs? after a whyle ye shall not se me, & agayne after a whyle ye shall se me, and that I go to the father. They sayd therfore, what is it that he sayeth, after a whyle? we can not tell what he sayth.

19 ✠ Iesus perceyued that they wolde axe him and sayde vnto thē. This is it that ye enquire of amonge your selues that I sayde after a whyle ye shall not se me, and agayne after a whyle ye shall se me. Verely verely I say vnto you: ye shall wepe and lament, & the world shall reioyce. Ye shall sorowe, but your sorow shalbe turned into ioye.

21 ✠ A woman when she trauayleth, hathe sorowe, because her houre is come: but assone as she is deliuered of ỹ child she remembreth no more the anguish, for ioye that a man is borne into the worlde. And ye now are ye sorowfull but I wyll se you agayne, and your hertes shall reioyce, and your ioye shall no man take fro you. ✠ And in that day shal ye axe me no question. ✠ Verely verely I say vnto you: what soeuer ye shall axe the father in my name, he wyll geue it you. Hytherto haue ye axed nothyng in my name. Axe and ye shall receyue, that your ioye maye be full.

Mat.vij.a. Mat.xxi.c Luke.xi.b. Iacob.i.a. Prouerbe.

25 These thynges haue I spoken vnto you in prouerbes. The tyme will come when I shall no more speake vnto you in prouerbes: but I shall shewe you plainly from my father. At that day shall ye axe in my name: And I say not vnto you that I wyll speake vnto my father for you. For the father hym self loueth you, because ye haue loued me, and haue beleued, that I came out from God. I went out from the father, and came into the worlde, and I leaue the worlde agayne, and go to ỹ father.

29 ✠ Hys disciples sayde vnto hym: lo now speakest thou plainly, and thou vsest no prouerbe. Nowe knowe we that thou vnderstandest all thynges, and nedest not that any man shoulde axe the any question. Therfore beleue we that thou camest from God. ✠ Iesus answered them: Now ye do beleue. Beholde, the houre draweth nye, and is all redye come that ye shalbe scattered euery man hys waye, and shall leaue me alone. And yet am I not alone, for the father is with me.

Mat.xxvi.c Mat.xxiij.d

33 These wordes haue I spoken vnto you, ỹ in me you myght haue peace. For in ỹ worlde shall you haue tribulacyon: but be of good cheare. I haue ouercome the worlde.

¶ The notes.

a. The worlde is rebuked of synne, because they beleue not. So is vnbeliefe the synne that condemneth the worlde (by the worlde vnderstand the wicked, repugnant, and vnfaythful, & not all the creatures that be in the worlde) and sayth in the ryghteousnes of beleuers. And because the worlde and naturall reason wyl not knowe thys thynge, but will be iustified and saued by their owne workes the holy ghoste shall rebuke the worlde, and shewe that they shalbe iustly condemned. ¶ The mediatour betyx and amonge mankynde of Christ vnto his father, his office to glorifye his father.

1 THese wordes spake Iesus, & lyfte vp his eyes to heauen, and sayde: Father the houre is come: glorifye thy sonne, that thy sonne maye glorifye the: as thou hast geuen hym power ouer all flesh, that he should geue eternall lyfe to as many as thou hast geuen hym. This is ye eternall lyfe that they myght knowe, the that onely very God, and whome thou hast sente Iesus Christ. Eternall lyfe.

C ✠ Holy father kepe in thyne owne name, the whom thou hast geuen me, that they maye be one, as we are. Whyle I was with them in ye worlde, I kept them in thy name. Those that thou gauest me, have I kept, and none of the is lost, but that lost chylde, that the scripture myght be fulfylled.

Nowe come I to the, and these wordes speake I in the worlde, that they myghte have my ioye full in them. I have geuen them thy wordes, and the worlde hath hated them, because they are not of the worlde, euen as I am not of the worlde. I desyre not that thou shouldest take them out of the worlde: but that thou kepe the fro euyl. ✠ They are not of the worlde, as I am not of the world. Sanctifye the with the truthe, thy sayeng is truthe. As ye thoudest sende me into the world, euen so have I sent the into the worlde, & for their sakes sanctifye I my selfe, that they also myght be sanctified through the truth.

D I praye not for them alone: but for the also which shall beleue on me through their preachyng that they all maye be one, as thou father art in me, and I in the that they maye be also one in vs, that the worlde maye beleue ye thou haste sent me. And that glorye that thou gauest me, have I geuen them, that they may be one, as we are one. I in them, and thou in me, that they maye be made perfect in one, & that the worlde maye knowe that thou haste sent me, & hast loued the as thou haste loued me. Father, I will that they which thou haste geuen me, be with me where I am, that they maye se my glorye which thou hast geuen me. For thou lovedest me before the makynge of the worlde. O righteous father, ye verye world hath not knowen the: but I have knowen the, and these have knowen that thou haste sente me. And I have declared vnto the thy name, & will declare it that the love wherewith ye haste loued me, be in them, and that I be in them.

The.xviij.Chapter.

C Christe is betrayed. The woordes of hys mouthe smyte the ofhyers to the grounde. Peter smyteth of Malchus eare. Jesus is brought before Anna, Caiphas and Pylate.

When Jesus had spoke these wordes, he wente forth with his disciples ouer the broke Cedron, where was a garden into the whiche he entered with his disciples. Judas also which betrayed hym, knewe the place: for Jesus ofttymes resorted thither with hys disciples. Judas then after he had receyued a bande of men, and ministers of the hye priestes and Pharisees, came thyther with lanternes and fyrebrandes, and weapons. The Jesus knowyng all thynges that should come on hym, wente forth, and sayed vnto the: whom seke ye? They answered hym: Jesus of Nazareth. Jesus sayed vnto them: I am he. A Mat.xxvi. Mar.xiiij. Luke.xxij. Iohn.xviij. Malchus

Judas also which betrayed hym, stode with them. But assone as he had sayd vnto them: I am he, they went backwarde, and fell to the grounde. And he asked them agayne: whome seke ye? They answered: Jesus of Nazareth. Jesus answered: I sayde vnto you: I am he. If ye seke me, let these go their waye. That the sayenge myght be fulfylled which he spake of them which thou gauest me, have I not loste one. B

Simon Peter hadde a swerde, & drewe it, and smote the hye Priestes seruaunte, and cut of hys right eare. The seruauntes name was Malchus. Then sayed Jesus vnto Peter: put vp thy swerde into the sheath: shall I not drinke of the cup whiche my father hathe geuen me? Then the company and ye captaine and the ministers of the Jewes, toke Jesus & bounde hym, and led hym awaye to Anna firste: for he was fatherinlawe vnto Caiphas, whiche was the hye priest that same yeare. Caiphas was he that gaue counsell to the Jewes, that it was expedient, that one man shoulde dye for the people. C

And Simon Peter folowed Jesus, & another disciple: that disciple was knowne of the hye priestes, and went in with Jesus into the palace of the hye priest. But Peter stode at the dore without. Then went oute that other disciple whiche was knowne vnto the hye priestes, and spake to the damsell that kepte the dore, & brought in Peter. Then sayed the damsell that kepte the dore, vnto Peter: Arte not thou one of thy mans disciples? He sayed: I am not. The seruauntes and the ministers stode there and had made a fyre of coles, for it was colde, and they warmed them. Peter also stode amonge them, and warmed hym selfe. Mat.xxvi. Mar.xiiij. Luke.xxij. D

The hye Priest axed Jesus of hys disciples and of hys doctryne. Jesus answered him: I spake openly in the world. I euer taught in the synagoge, and in the temple whyther all all the Jewes resorted, and in secrete haue I sayde nothynge. Why axest thou me? Axe the Mat.xxvi.f Mar.xiiii.f Luke.xxii.f whiche hearde me, what I sayde vnto them. Beholde, they can tell what I sayde. When he had thus spoke, one of the ministers which stode by, smote Jesus on the face, sayinge: answerest thou the hye preest so? Jesus answered hym: If I haue euyll spoken, beare wytnes of the euyll, yf I haue well spoken, why smytest thou me? And Annas sent him bounde vnto Caiphas the hye preest.

E Symon Peter stode and warmed him self and they sayed vnto hym: arte not thou also one of hys disciples? He denyed it, and sayde: I am not. One of the hye preestes seruauntes (hys cosin whose eare Peter smote of) sayde vnto him: dyd not I se the in the garden with him? Peter denyed agayne, and immediatlye the cocke crewe.

F Then led they Jesus from Caiphas into Mat.xxvii.a Mar.xv.a. Luke.xxiii.g the hall of iudgement. It was in the morninge and they themselues went not into the iudgement hall leaste they shoulde be defyled, but that they might eate the paschall lambe. Pylate then wente oute vnto them, and sayde: what accusacion bringe ye agaynste this man? They answered, and sayed vnto him. If he were not an euyll doer, we woulde not haue delyuered him vnto the. Then sayed Pilate vnto them: take ye hym, and iudge hym after youre owne lawe. Then the Jewes sayed vnto hym: It is not lawfull for vs to put any man to death. a. That the wordes of Jesus might be fulfylled, whiche he spake, signifynge what death he shoulde dye.

Then Pilate entred into the iudgemente
Mat.xxvii.c. Mar.xv.b Luke.xxiii.b. hall agayne, and called Jesus, and sayd vnto hym: arte thou the kynge of the Jewes? Jesus answered: sayest thou that of thy self, or dyd other tell it the of me? Pylate answered Am I a Jewe? Thyne owne nacion and hye preestes haue delyuered the vnto me. What hast thou done? Jesus answered. b. my kyngdome is not of this worlde. If my kyngdome were of this worlde, then woulde my ministers surely fyght, that I shoulde not be delyuered to the Jewes, but now is my kyngdom not from hence.

G Pilate sayed to him: Arte thou a kynge then? Jesus answered: Thou sayest that I am a kynge. For this cause was I borne, and for this cause came I into the worlde, that I shoulde beare wytnes vnto the trueth. And al that are of the trueth heare my voyce. Pylate sayde vnto him: what thynge is trueth?

And when he had sayd that, he wente oute agayne to the Jewes, and sayd vnto them: I fynde in him no cause at al. Ye haue a custome that I shoulde deliuer you one lose at Easter. Wyll ye that I lose vnto you the kyng of the Mat.xxvii. Mar.xv.b Luke.xxiii Jewes. Then cryed they all agayne, sayinge: Not hym, but Barrabas, that Barrabas was a robber.

¶ The notes.

a. He had sayd that he shoulde be crucifyed of the gentyls, and therfor must Pilate geue sentence on hym, and not the Jewes, for the performaunce of hys wordes.

b. That is, my kyngdome is not a worldlye kyngdome, that consisteth in strengthe in armes, in men in the swerde, and in the fashyons of bodely thynges, but my kyngdom is spirituall, which is in ỹ hertes of the faithfull, who are not ruled by the swerde, but by the Gospell.

¶ Christ is crucifyed. The communycacion had vnder the crosse. Johan, hauynge hys mother, and is buryed.

A Then Pylate toke Jesus and scourged hi. And the souldyers wouid a croune of thornes, and put it on hys heade. And they dyd on hym a purple garmente and sayde: haple kyng of the Jewes: and they smote him on the face. Pylate went forth agayne, and sayd vnto them: beholde I bringe hym forth to you, that ye maye knowe, that I fynde no faute in hym. Then came Jesus forthe wearynge a croune of thornes and a purple robe. And Pylate sayde vnto them: Beholde the man. Whē the hye Preestes and ministers sawe him, they cryed, sayinge: Crucifye him, crucifye him. Pylate sayde vnto them: Take ye hym, and crucifye hym, for I fynde no cause in him. The Jewes answered hym: we haue a lawe, and by Leuit xxiiii.f our lawe he oughte to dye: because he made hym selfe the sonne of God.

B When Pilate hearde that sayinge, he was the more afrayd, and went agayne into ỹ iudgement hall, and sayde vnto Jesus: whence are thou? But Jesus gaue hym none answere. Then sayde Pylate vnto him: Speakest thou not vnto me? knowest thou not that I haue power to crucifye the, and haue power to louse the? Jesus answered: Thou couldest haue no power at all agaynst me, except it were geuē the from aboue. Therfore he that deliuered me vnto the, is more in synne. And fro thence forth sought Pylate meanes to louse him: but the Jewes cryed, sayinge: yf thou let hym go, thou arte not Cesars frende. For whosoeuer maketh hym selfe a kynge, is agaynst Cesar.

C When Pylate heard ỹ sayinge, he brought Jesus forth, and sate doune to geue sentence in a place called the pauement, but in the Hebrue tonge Gabbatha. It was the Saboth euē which falleth in the easter feast, and about the sixt houre. And he sayed vnto the Jewes. Beholde youre kynge. They cryed, awaye with hym, awaye with hym, crucifye hym. Pylate sayd to them: Shall I crucifye youre kynge? The hye Preestes answered: we haue no kyng but Cesar. Then delyuered he hym vnto them to be crucifyed. And they toke Jesus, and led D
Mar.xvi.d Mat.xv.b Luke.xxiii.a hym awaye, and he bare his crosse, and went forth into a place called the place of dead mens sculles, which is named in Hebrewe Golgotha. Where they crucifyed hym, and two other with hym, on eyther syde one, and Jesus in the myddest. And Pylate wrote hys title and put it on the crosse. The writyng was Jesus of Nazareth, kynge of the Jewes. This title red many of the Jewes. For the place where Jesus was crucifyed, was nye to the cyte. And it was written in Hebrue, Greke and Latyn. Then sayde the hye priestes of the Jewes to Pylate. Write not kynge of the Jewes: but that he sayde. I am kyng of the Jewes. Pylate answered: what I haue written that haue I written.

Then the souldyers, when they had crucyfyed Jesus toke hys garmentes, and made foure parties, to euery souldyour a parte, and also hys cote. The cote was without seame, wrought vpon thorow out. And they sayde one to another. Let vs not deuyde it, but caste lottes, who shall haue it: That the scripture myght be fulfylled which sayeth. They parted my raymentes among them, and on my cote dyd they caste lottes. And the souldyours dyd such thynges in dede.

There stode by the crosse of Jesus his mother, and hys mothers sister. Mary the wyfe of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalen. When Jesus sawe his mother, and the disciple standyng whome he loued, he sayed vnto his mother: woman beholde thy sonne. Then sayed he to the disciple: beholde thy mother. And from that houre the disciple toke her for hys owne.

After that when Jesus perceyued that all thynges were performed, that the scripture myght be fulfylled, he sayed: I thyrst. There stode a vessell full of vynegre by. And they fylled a spunge with vynegre, and wounde it about with hyssope, and put it to hys mouthe. Assone as Jesus had receyued of the vynegre he sayed: It is fynished: and bowed hys head, and gaue vp the ghoste.

The Jewes then because it was the saboth euen, that the bodyes shoulde not remayne vpon the crosse on the saboth day (for that Saboth daye was an hye daye) besought Pylate that they: legges myghte be broken, and that they myghte be taken downe. Then came the souldyers, and brake the legges of the fyrst & of the other, which was crucified with Jesus. But when they came to Jesus, and sawe that he was dead alreadye, they brake not hys legges: but one of the souldyers with a speare thrust hym into the syde and forth with came there out bloude and water.

And he that sawe it, bare recorde, and hys recorde is true. And he knoweth that he sayeth true, that ye myght beleue also. These thynges were done, that the scripture shoulde be fulfylled: Ye shall not breake a bone of hym. And agayne another scripture sayeth: They shall loke on hym whome they pearced.

After that Joseph of Armathea (whiche was a disciple of Jesus, but secretely for feare of the Jewes) besought Pylate that he myght take downe the bodye of Jesus. And Pylate gaue hym leaue. And there came also Nicodemus (whiche at the begynnyng came to Jesus by nyght, and broughte of myrre & aloes myngled together aboute an hundred pounde wayght. Then toke they the body of Jesu, & wounde it in lynnen clothes with the odoures, as the maner of the Jewes is to burye. And in the place where Jesus was crucifyed, was a garden, and in the garden a new sepulchre, wherein was neuer man layde. There layde they Jesus because of the Jewes saboth euen, for the sepulchre was nye at hande.

The.xx. Chapter.

¶ The resurrection of Christe: who appeared to Mary Magdalen, and to all hys disciples to their great comforte.

THe morowe after the Saboth daye came Mary Magdalene early when it was yet darcke, vnto the sepulchre, and sawe the stone taken awaye frō the sepulchre. Then she ranne, and came to Simon Peter, and to the other disciple whom Jesus loued, and sayde vnto them. They haue taken awaye the Lorde out of the toumbe, and we cānot tell where they haue layde hym. Peter wēt forth and that other disciple dyd out runne Peter, & came fyrste to the sepulchre. And he stouped downe, and sawe the lynnen clothes lyeng, yet went he not in.

Then came Simon Peter folowyng him and went into the sepulchre, and sawe the lynnen clothes lye, and the napkyn that was aboute hys head, not lyenge with the lynnen clothe, but wrapped together in a place by it selfe. Then went in also that other disciple which came fyrste to the sepulcher, and he sawe & beleued. For as yet they knewe not the scriptures that he should ryse agayne frō death. And the disciples went awaye agayne vnto their owne home.

Mary stode without at the sepulchre weepynge. And as she wepte, she bowed her self, and loked into the sepulchre, and sawe two angels in whyte sittynge, the one at the heade, & the other at the fete, where they had layde the bodye of Jesus. And they sayd vnto her: Woman, why wepest thou? She sayed vnto them: For they haue taken awaye my Lorde, and I wote not where they haue layed hym. When she had thus sayde, she tourned her self backe, and sawe Jesus standynge, and knewe not, that it was Jesus. Jesus sayde to her: woman why wepest thou? Whome seekest thou? She supposynge that he had bene the gardener, sayed vnto him: Syr yf thou haue borne him hence, tell me where thou hast layed hym, that I maye fet him. Jesus sayde vnto her: Mary. She turned her selfe, and sayd vnto him: Rabbony, whiche is to saye: Mayster. Jesus sayd vnto her: touch me not, for I am not yet ascended to my father. But go to my brethern, & saye vnto them: I ascende vnto my father and youre father: to my God and your God. Mary Magdalene came and tolde the disciples ples that she had sene the Lord, and that he had spoken suche thinges vnto her. ✠

E ✠ The same day at night, which was the morowe after the saboth day, when ỹ doores were shut, wher the disciples were assembled together for feare of the Jewes, came Jesus and stode in the myddes, and saide to them: peace be with you. And when he had so sayed, he shewed vnto them his handes, and hys syde. Then were the disciples glade when they sawe the Lorde. Then sayde Jesus to them agayne: peace be with you. As my father sente me, euen so sende I you. And when he had sayd: that he breathed on them and sayde. Receyue the holy ghost. Whosoeuers synnes ye remyt they are remitted vnto them. And whosoeuers synnes ye retayne, they are retayned. ✠

And he said vnto them: except I se in hys handes the print of the nayles, and put my fynger into the holes of the nayles, and thrust my handes into hys syde, I will not beleue. And after viii. dayes agayne, hys disciples were within, and Thomas with G them. Then came Jesus when the doores were shut, and stode in the middes and sayd: peace be with you. After that sayde he to Thomas: bringe thy fynger hyther, and se my handes, and bringe thy hande and thrust it into my syde: and be not faithlesse, but beleuinge. Thomas answered and said vnto him: My Lord and my God: Jesus sayd vnto him: Thomas because thou hast sene me, therfore thou beleuest. Happie are they that haue not sene, and yet haue beleued.

And many other synges dyd Jesus in the presence of hys disciples, whyche are not written in this boke. These are written that ye myght beleue, that Jesus is Christe the sonne of God, and that in beleuinge ye might haue lyfe thorow hys name.

The. xxi. Chapter.

Christ appeared to hys disciples agayne at the sea of Tyberias, and commaunded Peter earnestly to feede hys flocke.

21 After that Jesus shewed hym selfe agayne at the sea of Tyberias. And on this wise shewed he hym selfe. There were together Symon Peter and Thomas, whyche is called Didimus, and Nathaniell of Cana a cytie of Galile, and the sonnes of Zebedei, and two other of the disciples. Simon Peter sayd vnto them: I go a fyshinge. They sayd vnto hym: we also will go with the. They went their way and entred into a shyppe straight waie, and that nighte caught they nothyng. But when the morning was nowe come, Jesus stode on the shore: neuertheles the disciples knewe not that it was Jesus. Jesus sayd vnto them: lyue ye ought meate? They answered him: no. And he sayd vnto them: caste out the net on the ryght syde of the shyppe, and ye shall fynde. They caste out, and anone they were not able to drawe it for the multytude of fyshes.

H ✠ Then sayde the disciple whom Jesus loued vnto Peter: It is the Lord. When Simon Peter hearde that it was the Lorde, he gyrde hys mantel to him (for he was naked) and sprange into ỹ sea: The other disciples came by shippe for they were not farre fro land, but as it were two hundred cubites, and they drewe the net with fyshes: Assone as they were come to land, they sawe hote coles and fyshe, layde thereon and breade. Jesus said vnto them: bringe of the fishe whych ye haue now caught. Simon Peter stepped forth, and drewe the net to lande full of great fyshes an hundred and liii. And for all there were so many, yet was not the net brokē. Jesus sayde vnto them: come and dyne. And none of the disciples durst aske him, what art thou? for they knewe that it was the Lord. Jesus then came and toke bread, and gaue them, and fyshe lykewyse. And this is nowe the thyrde tyme that Jesus appeared to hys disciples after that he was ryssen agayne from deathe. ✠

I ✠ When they had dyned, Jesus sayd to Simon Peter: Simon Joanna, louest thou me more then these? He sayd vnto him: ye Lorde thou knowest that I loue the. He saide vnto him: fede me. a. lambes. He sayed to him agayn the seconde tyme: Simon Joanna, louest thou me? He sayed vnto him: yea Lorde thou knowest that I loue the. He sayed vnto him: fede me shepe: He sayed vnto him the thyrde tyme: Simon Joanna, louest thou me? And Peter sorowed, because he sayd to him the thirde time, louest thou me, and said vnto him: Lord, thou knowest all thinges: thou knowest that I loue the. Jesus sayd vnto him: fede me shepe.

Christ geueth hys shepe and lambes

Verelye verelye, I saye vnto the, when thou K waste ponge, thou girdest thy selfe, and walkedst whither thou wouldest: but when thou arte olde, thou shalt stretche forth thy handes, and another shall gyrd the, and lead the whither thou wouldest not: That spake he, signifyeng by what death he should glorifie God. ✠ And when he had sayed thus, he sayed to him: folowe me. Peter tourned about, and sawe that disciple whom Jesus loued folowinge which also leaned on his breste at supper and sayed: Lord which is he that shal betraye the? When Peter sawe him, he sayde to L Jesus: Lord what shall he here do? Jesus sayde vnto him: yf I will haue him to tarye tyll I come, what is that to the? folow thou me. Then went this sayinge abrode amonge the brethren, that that disciple shoulde not dye. Yet Jesus sayde not to him, he shall not dye,

✠ The comminge of the holye Ghost. The sermon of Peter before the congregation at Hierusalem, and the successe of the same.

When

21 When the fyfty daye was come, they were all with one accorde together in one place. And sodainly there came a sounde frō heauen, as it had bene the comynge of a myghty wynd, and it filled al the houfle where they sate. And there appeared vnto them clouen tounges, lyke as they had bene fyre, and it sate vpon eche of them, and they were all filled with the holye ghoste, and began to speake wyth other tounges, euen as the spyryte gaue them vtteraunce.

22 And there were dwelling at Hierusalem Iewes, deuout men, whyche were of all nations vnder heauen. When this was noysed abroade, the multitude came together & were astonied, because that euery man hearde them speake hys owne toung. They wondred all & merueyled saynge among them selues: Behold are not al these which speake of Galile? And how heare we euery mā his own tonge wherin we were borne? Parthians, Medes, and Elamites, and the inhabiters of Mesopotamia, of Iewry, and of Cappadocia, and of Pouthus and Asia, Phrygia, Pamphilia, and of Egypte, and of the parties of Libia, which is beyde Syren, and straungers of Rome, Iewes, and conuertes, Grekes, and Arabians: we haue heard them speake: wyth our owne tounges the great workes of God. ✠ They were all amased, and woundered saynge one to another: what meaneth this? PEter and John wente vp together into the temple at ỹ houth houre of prayer. And ther was a certayne man halte from his mothers wombe, whome they broughte and layed at the gate of the temple called beutifull, to axe almes of them that entred into the temple. Whyche same when he sawe Peter and John, that they wouldē into the temple, desired to receyue an almes. And Peter sadfastened his eyes on hym with John and sayed: Loke on vs. And he gaue heede vnto them, trusting to receyue somethinge of them. Then sayed Peter: Syluer and gold haue I none, suche as I haue gene I the. In the name of Jesu Christ of Nazareth, ryse vp & walke. And he toke hym by the right hande, and lyft hym vp. And immediatlye his fete and ancle bones receyued strength. And he sprange, stode and also walked, and entred with them into the temple, walkynge and leapynge and laudinge God.

b And all the people sawe hym walke and laude God. And they knewe hym that it was he whyche sate and begged at the beutyfull gate of the temple. And they wondred & were sore allowed at that, which had happened vnto hym. And as the halte whych was healed held Peter and John, all the people ranne amased vnto them in Salomons porche.

c When Peter saw that, he answered vnto the people: ✣ ye men of Israel why marueile ye at this or why loke ye so stedfastly on vs as though by our owne power or holines, we had made this man go. By the handes of the Apostles were many signes and wonders shewed amonge the people. And they were all togethre with one accorde in Salomons porch. And of other durst no man ioyne him selfe to them: neuertheles the people magnified them. and speake in the temple to the people all the wordes of this lyfe. When they heard ỹ, they entred into the temple early in the mor-vnynge and taught.

E The chiefe Priest came & they that were with hym, and called a counsell together, and all the elders of the children of Israell, & sent to the prison to fetche them. When the officers came and founde them not in the prison, they returned and tolde sayinge: The prison founde we shut as sure as was possible, and the keepers standinge without before the dores. But when we had opened, we founde no man within. When the chiefe Priest of al and the rulers of the temple and the hye Priestes heard these thinges, they doubted of them
what vnto thys woulde growe.

F ☞ Then came one and shewed them: behold
the men that ye put in prison, stande in the temple, and teache the people. Then went the rulers of the temple with ministres, and brought them without violence. For they feared ỹ people: least they should have bene stoned. And when they had brought them, they sat them before the counsell. And the chiefe Priest axed them, sayinge: Did not we straytely cõmaũde

And behold ye have fylled Hierusalem with your doctrine, and ye intended to bringe this mannes bloude vpon vs.

And the people gaue hede vnto those thinges, whiche Philippe spake, wyth one accord, in that they heard and sawe the miracles which he dyd. For vncleane spyrites crynge with loude voyce, came out of manye that were possessed of them. And manye taken wyth palsyes, and manye that halted, were healed.

and bewitched the people of Samarye, sayinge that he was a man that coulde do greate thinges. Whom they regarded, from the leste to the greatest, saynge: this felow is the great power of God. And hym they set much by: because that of long tyme he had mocked them with sorcery. But assone as they beleued Philippes preachinge of the kyngedome of God and of the name of Jesu Christe, they were baptysed both men and women. Then Symon hym selfe beleued also, and was baptysed, sled, and continued with Philip, and wonderd beholdinge the miracles & signes whiche were shewed.

E ✣ When the Apostles whiche were at Jerusalem hearde saye, that Samaria had receiued the word of God, they sente vnto them Peter and John. Whyche when they were come prayed for them that they myght receiue the holy ghost. For as yet he was come on none of them, but they were baptysed onlye in the name of Christ Jesu. Then laid they their handes on the, a & they receiued the holy ghost. F

Laying on of handes.

F When Simon sawe that through laying on of the Apostles hādes on the, the holy ghoste was geuen, he offred the money saying: Geue me also this power, that on whosoeuer I put the handes, he may receiue the holy ghost. Then sayd Peter vnto him: thy money perishe with the, because thou weenest that the gift of God may be obteyned with money. Thou hast neither parte nor fellowshippe in this busynes. For thy herte is not right in the sight of God. Repent therfore of this thy wickednes, and praye God, that the thought of thyne herte may be forgeuen the. For I perceiue, that thou art full of bitter gal, & wrapped in iniquite.

D Then answered Simon, and said: praye ye to the Lord for me, that none of these thinges, which ye haue spoke fal on me. And they when they had testified and preached the worde of the Lorde returned towarde Jerusalem, & preached the Gospel in many townes of the Samaritans.

✣ Then the aungel of the Lorde spake vnto Philippe, saynge: aryse and go Southward vnto the way, that goeth downe from Jerusalem vnto Gaza, which is in the desert. And he arose and went on. And beholde a man of Ethiopia, whyche was a chamberlayne, and of greate auctorite with Candace queene of the Ethiopians, and had the rule of all her treasure, came to Hierusalem for to praye. And as he returned home againe sittinge in his charet, he reade Esay the prophete.

E Then the spyrite sayd to Phylippe: Go neare, and ioyne thy selfe to ponder charete. And Philippe ranne to him, and hearde him reade the Prophete Esaias and said: Vnderstandest thou what thou readest? And he said: howe can I except I had a gyde? And he desired Philpp, that he would come vp and syt with him. The tenoure of the scripture whiche he reade, was this. He was led as a shepe to be slaine, and lyke a Lambe dombe before his shearar, so opened he not his mouth:

Esa.liij.b

b. Because of his humblenes, he was not exalted: who shall declare his generacyon? for his lyke is taken from the earth. The chamberlayne answered Philippe, and sayed: I praye the of whō speaketh the Prophete this: of him selfe, or of some other man?

F And Philippe opened his mouth, and began at the same scripture, and preached vnto him Jesus. And as they went on their waye, they came vnto a certaine water, and the chamberlaine sayed: Se here is water, what shall let me to be baptysed? Philpp sayde vnto him: If thou beleue with all thyne herte, thou maiest. He answered and said, I beleue that Jesus Christe is the sonne of God. And he commaunded the charete to standestyll. And they went downe both into the water: both Philippe and also the chamberlayne, and he baptysed him. And assone as they were come out of the water, the spyrite of the Lorde caught awaye Philip, that the chamberlayne sawe him no more. And he went on his waye reioysinge: but Philippe was found at Azotus. And he walked thorow out the countre preachynge in their cytyes, tyll he came to Cesarea. F.

✣ Saul is conuerted, and confoundeth the Jewes. Peter raiseth Tabytha.

A SAUL yet breathynge out threatenynge & slaughter against the Disciples of the Lorde, went vnto the hye preest, and desired of him letters to Damascus to the synagoges that if he founde anye of this way, whether they were men or women, he might bring them bound vnto Hierusalem. But as he went on his iourneye, and was come nye to Damasco, sodenly there shyned rounde about him a lyght from heauen, & he fell to the earth, and hearde a voice saying to him: Saul, Saul why persecutest thou me? And he said: what art thou Lorde? And the Lorde said: I am Jesus whom thou persecutest it shalbe hearde for the to kycke against the prycke. And he both trembling and astonied sayde: Lorde what wylt thou haue me to do? And the Lorde sayde vnto him: arise, and go into the cytye, and it shal be tolde what thou shalt do.

Saule is conuerted.

Then the men whiche iourned with him B stode amazed, for they heard a voice, but sawe no man. And Saul arose from the earth, and opened his eyes, but sawe no man. Then led they him by the hande, and brought him into Damasco. And he was thre dayes vnsyght & neyther eate nor dranke. And ther was a certaine disciple at Damasco, named Ananias, & to him sayd the Lorde in a vision: Ananias. And he sayd: beholde I am here Lorde.

B4 And

And the Lorde sayd vnto him: aryse, and go into the strete, whiche is called Straight, and seke in the house of Judas, after one called Saul of Tharsus. For behold he prayeth, & hath sene in a vision a man named Ananias comynge in to hym, and puttyng hys handes on him that he myght receyue hys sight.

K ¶ Then Ananias answered: Lord, I have heard by many of this man, how much euyll he hath done to thy saynctes at Jerusalē, and here he hath auctorite of the hye Prestes to bynd all that call on thy name. The Lorde sayd vnto hym: go thy wayes for he is a chosen vessel vnto me, to beare me name before the gentyls and kynges, and the chyldren of Israel. For I wil shew hym howe greate thynges he muste suffer for my names sake.

Ananias went hys waye and entred into the house, and put his handes on him, & sayd: brother Saul the Lord that appeared vnto the in the waye as thou camest, hath sent me, that thou myghtest receyue thy sight, and be fylled with the holy ghoste. And immediatly there fel from hys eyes as it had bene scales, and he receyued sight and arose and was baptised, and receyued meate, and was confested.

D Paul preached Christ.

Then was Saul certaine dayes with the dysciples whyche were at Damasco. And straight way he preached Christ in the Synagoges, howe that he was the sonne of God. All that heard him, were amased and sayde: is not this he that spoiled them, whiche called on this name in Hierusalem, and came hyther for the intente to at he shoulde bynge them bounde vnto the hye prestes? But Saul encreased in strength, and confounded the Jewes whiche dwelte at Damasco affirminge that this was verye Christe.

E ¶ And after a good whyle, the Jewes toke counsell together to kyl him. But their layinge awaite was knowen of Saule. And they watched at the gates day and night, to kyl hym, then the dysciples toke hym by nyght and put hym thorow the wall, and let him doune in a basket.

Paule is persecuted. 2.Cor.11.g

And when Saule was come to Hierusalē he assayed to couple him selfe with the dysciples and they were all afraid of him and beleued not that he was a dysciple. But Barnas toke hym and brought hym to the Apostles and declared to them, howe he had sene the Lorde in the waye, and had spoken with hym: and howe he had done boldlye at Damasco in the name of Jesu. And he had his conuersation with them at Hierusalem, and quit hym selfe boldlie in the name of the Lorde Jesus. And he spake and disputed with the Grecians: and they went about to slea him. But when the brethren knewe of that, they brought him to Cesaria, and sent him forth to Tharsus. Then had the congregations rest thorowe out all Jewry and Galile and Samarie, and were edified, and walked in the feare of the Lorde, and multiplied by the comfort of the holy ghoste.

And it chaunced that as Peter walked thorow out al quarters, he came to the saynctes, whiche dwelt at Lydda, and there he founde a certaine mā named Eneas, which had kepte his bed. viij. yere sycke of the palsey. Then sayed Peter vnto hym: Eneas, Jesus Christe make the whole. Aryse, and make thy bed. And he arose immediatlie. And all that dwelte at Lidda and Sarron, sawe hym, and turned to the Lorde. Eneas.

Ther was at Joppa a certaine woman, (which was a disciple named Tabitha, which by interpretation is called Dorcas) the same was ful of good workes and almes dedes, whiche she did. And it chaunced in those daies that she was sicke and dyed. When they had washed her, and layed her in a chamber: Because Lidda was nye to Joppa, and the disciples had heard, that Peter was there, they sent vnto hym, desiringe hym that he would not be greued to come vnto them. Peter arose and came with them & when G he was come, they brought him into the chamber. And all the wydowes stode round about him weppynge and shewynge the cotes & garmentes, whyche Dorcas made whyle she was with them. And Peter put them al forth and kneled doune, and prayed and turned him to the bodye, and sayed: Tabitha, aryse. And she opened her eyes, and when she sawe Peter she sat vp. And he gaue her the hande, and lyft her vp, and called the Saynctes and wydowes, and sheweth her alyue. And it was knowen thorowe out all Joppa, and many he leued on the Lorde. And it fortuned that he taried many dayes in Joppa with one Simō a tanner.

¶ The notes.

a. In the scripture, al such are called Saynctes as do beleue and truste the promises of God & frame their lyuing to the rule of Goddes holye worde. And al such are Saynctes euen whyle they yet lyue on the earth. It neadeth not therfore to tarye for the Popes canonization to make them Saynctes an hūdred yeres after theyr death. Saynctes.

The.x.Chapter.

¶ The vision that Peter sawe. Howe he was sente to Cornelius. The heathen also receyue the spirite and are baptysed.

THere was a certain man in Cesaria, called Cornelius, a captaine of the souldiers of Italy, a deuout man, & one that feared God with all his housholde which gaue much almes to the people, and prayed God alway. The same man sawe in a vision openlye about the ninth houre of the daye, an aungel of God comynge in to hym, and sayinge vnto him: Cornelius. When he loked on hym he was afraid and sayd, what is it Lord? He sayed vnto hym: a. Thy prayers and all thy almesse are come vp into remembraunce before God. A Cornelius.

¶ And now sende men to Joppa and call for one

one, Symon named also Peter. He lodgeth in one Symon a tanner, whose house is by the sea syde. He shall tell the, what thou oughtest to do. When the aungell whiche spake unto Cornelius, was departed, he called two of his housholde seruauntes, and a deuout souldier of them that waited on him and told them all the matter, and sent them to Joppa.

9 On the morowe as they wente on their iournepe, and drewe nye unto the cytie, Peter wente up into the toppe of the house to praye about the.vi. houre. Then were he an hongred, and would haue eaten. But whyle they made ready, he fell into a traunce, and sawe heauen opened, and a certaine vessel come downe unto hym as it had bene a greate sheete hanged at the.iiii. corners, and was let downe to the earth, wherein were all maner of.iiii. footed beastes of the earth, and beastes and wormes, and foules of the ayer. And there came a voyce to hym: ryse Peter kyll and eate. But Peter saied: God forbydde Lorde, for I haue neuer eaten anye thynge that is comen or vncleane. And the voyce spake unto hym agayne the seconde tyme: what God hath cleensed, that make thou not comme. This was done thryse, and the vessell was receyued up againe into heauen.

Peters vision.

10 While Peter mused in himself what this vision, whiche he had sene, meant: beholde, the men whiche were sente from Cornelius had made inquisicion for Symons house, & stode before the dore. And called out and axed, whether Simon, whiche was also called Peter were lodged there. While Peter thought on this vision, the spyryte saied unto hym: Beholde men seke the, aryse therfore, get the downe, and go with them, and doubt not, for I haue sent them. Peter went downe to the men, whiche were sent unto hym from Cornelius, and saide. Beholde, I am he whom ye seke, what is the cause, wherfore ye are come? And they sayde unto him: Cornelius the captaine, a iuste man, and one that feareth God, and of good reporte amonge al the people of the Jewes, was warned by an holye aungel to sende for the into his house, and to heare wordes of the. Then called he the in, and lodged them.

11 And on the morowe Peter went awaye with them, and certaine brethren from Joppa accompanyed him. And the thyrd daye entred they into Cesaria. And Cornelius waited for them, and had called together his kinsmen, and speciall frendes. And as it chaunged Peter to come in, Cornelius met him, and fell downe at his fete, and worshipped him. But Peter toke him up saienge: Stand up: for even I my selfe am a man. And as he talked with him he came in, and founde manye that were come together. And he sayde unto them: Ye knowe howe that it is an vnlaufull thynge for a man that is a Jewe, to companye or come unto an alyaunt: but God hath shewed me that I should not call any man common,

12 or vncleane: therfore came I unto you without gaynesaye, assone as I was sente for. I aske therfore, for what intente ye sent for me.

13 And Cornelius sayde: Thre daye unto this houre I fasted and at the nynthe houre I prayde in my house: and beholde, a man stode before me in bright clothinge, and sayde: Cornelius, thy prayer is heard, and thine almes deades are had in remembraunce in the sight of God. Send therfore to Joppa, and call for Simon whiche is also called Peter. He is lodged in the house of one Simon a tanner by the sea syde, the which assone as he is come, shall speake unto the. Then sent I for the immediatly, and thou hast well done for to come. Nowe are we all here present before God, to heare al thinges that are commaunded unto the of God.

14 Then Peter opened his mouth and saide: Of a trueth I perceyue, that God is not partiall, but in all people he that feareth him and worketh righteousnes, is accepted with him.

15 Ye knowe the preachinge that God sent unto the children of Israel, preachinge peace by Jesus Christe, whiche is Lorde over all thinges. ✣ Which preaching was published throwe out all Jewry, and begonne in Galile, after the baptisme, whiche John preached, howe God had anoynted Jesus of Nazareth with the holy ghost, and with power. Whiche Jesus went about doynge good, and healinge all that were oppressed of the deuile for God was with him. And we are witnesses of all thinges whiche he did in the lande of the Jewes and at Jerusalem: whom they slewe and honge on tree. Him God reysed up the thyrd daye, and shewed him openlye, not to all the people, but unto us witnesses chosen before of God, whiche eate and dronke with him, after he arose from death.

16 And he commaunded us to preache unto the people & testifye that it is he that is ordered of God a iudge of quicke and deade. To him gyue all the Prophetes witnes, that through his name, all that beleue in him, shall receyue remission of sinnes. ✣

✣ While Peter yet spake these wordes the holye Ghoste fell on all them whiche heard the preaching. And they of the circumcision, whiche beleued, were astonied, as many as came with Peter, because that on the Gentiles also was shed out the gyfte of the holy ghoste. For they heard them speake with tonges & magnifye God. Then answered Peter. Can any man forbydde water that these shulde not be baptysed, whiche haue receyued the holye ghoste as well as we? And he commaunded them to be baptysed in the name of the Lorde. ✣ Then prayed they him to tarye a fewe dayes.

Peter preacheth the remission of sinnes. The holye ghost cometh without laynge on of handes.

¶ The notes.

a. This prayer and almes were acceptable in the sight of God, because they were the fruites of liuely of fayth. For it is not to be thoughte ꝑ Cornelius was without beleue, because he had not hearde the Gospel preached, but he had ensued the same fayth that the fathers of the olde lawe had conceiued and professed of Christe to come, and out of thys fayth sprōge theyr prayers and almes dedes of hys, whiche it pleased God to accepte, and to rewarde wyth the knowledge of the Gospel preached vnto hym by Peter. Here is to be noted the blyndnes of them that mayntayne the iustification by workes, by thys peece of scripture, affirminge that before Cornelius beleued, he was so iust and acceptable in the syght of God, that he deserued by hys workes to haue the fayth of Christe preached vnto hym, and the gyfte of fayth geuen hym. These men consider not the doctrine of Paule, whyche is that whatsoeuer worke it be, that proceedeth not of fayth, is synne in the syght of God. No remedye therfore Cornelius muste dedes haue fayth before he coulde do anye worke that myght be acceptable in the sight of God.

The.xi.Chapter.

✠ Peter declareth the cause wherefore he went to the heathen. Barnabas and Paul preach vnto the heathē. Agabus prophesieth of the derth to come.

The Apostles were here fyrste taught and certified by ꝑ holye ghost of ꝑ conuersiō of the gētyle.

AND the Apostles and the brethrē ꝑ were thorowout Iewry, harde say that the heathen had also receyued the word of God. And when Peter was come vp to Hierusalem, they of the circumcysion reasoned with him saying: Thou wentest in to men vncircumcysed, and eatest with them.

☞ Then Peter began and expounded the thing in order to them saying: I was in the cyte of Joppa prayenge, and in a trauce I sawe a vision, a certayne vessell descende, as it had bene a large lynnen cloth, let downe from heauen by the fower corners, and it came to me. Into the which when I had fastned myne eyen, I consydered and sawe fower foted beastes of the earth, and bestes, wormes, and foules of the aure. And I hearde a voice saying vnto me, aryse Peter slee & eate. And I saide: God forbid Lord, for nothyng. s. common or vncleane, hath at anye tyme entred into my mouth. But the voice answered me agayne from heauen, count not thou those thinges cōmen, whiche God hath cleansed. And this was done thre times: And all were taken vp againe into heauen.

B ☞ And beholde immediatly there were three men come vnto the house where I was, sent from Cesarea vnto me, that I should go with them, wythout doubting. Moreouer these fyue brethren accompanied me: and we entered into the mans house. And he shewed vs how he had sene an Angel in hys house, whiche stode and saied to him. Sende men to Joppa, and call for Simon named also Peter, he shal tell the worde, wherby both thou and all thyne house shal be saued. And as I began to preach, the holy ghost fell on them, as he dyd on vs at the beginninge.

Then came to me remembraunce ꝑ wordes of the Lorde, howe he saied: John Baptised with water, but ye shal be baptysed wyth the holy ghost. For as much the as God gaue them lyke giftes, as he dyd vnto vs, when we beleued on the Lord Jesus Christe: what was I that I shoulde haue withstand God? Whē they heard thys, they held their peace & glorysed God, saynge: then hath God also to the gentyls graunted repentaunce vnto lyfe. L Mat.iij.a Mar.i.b Luk.iij.a

☞ They whiche were scattered abroade thorowe the affliction that arose about Stephē, walked thorowe oute tyll they came to Phenices and Cypers, and Antioche, preachinge the worde to no man, but vnto the Iewes onely. Some of them were men of Cypers & Syrene, whyche when they were come into Antioche spake to the Grekes, and preached the Lorde Jesus. And the hande of the Lorde was with them, and a greate nombre beleued and turned to the Lorde. D

Tydinges of these thynges came to the eares of the congregation, which was at Hierusalem. And they sent forth Barnabas that he shoulde go vnto Antioche. Which when he was come, and had sene the grace of God, was glad, and exhorted them all that wyth purpose of hert they would cōtinually cleaue vnto the Lorde. For he was a good man, and ful of the holy ghoste and of faith: and much people was added vnto the Lord. Then departed Barnabas to Tharsus for to seke Saul. And when he had founde hym, he brought him vnto Antioche. And it chaunced that a whole yere they had theyr conuersation with ꝑ congregation there, and taught much people: in so much that the disciples of Antioche were ꝑ fyrst that were called christians. Barnabas is sente to Antioche. Barnabas seketh Paule

In those dayes came Prophetes from Hierusalē vnto Antioche. And there stode vp one of them, named Agabus, and signified by the spyrite that there shoulde be greate derth thorowe out all the world, whiche came to passe in the Emperour Claudius dayes. Then the disciples every man accordinge to his ability, purposed to send succoure vnto the brethren, which dwelt in Iewry. Whiche thynge they also dyd, and sente it to the elders, by the handes of Barnabas and Paule.

¶ Herode persecuteth the Christians. Iames and Peter is put in prison. Whom the Lorde deliuereth by an Angell. The death of Herode. ✠

In that

A James ꝑ bro ther of John is spilled. Peter is taken.

IN that tyme Herode the kynge stretched forth hys handes to vexe certayne of the congregacyon. And he killed James the brother of John wt the swearde and because he sawe that it pleased the Jewes he proceaded further, and toke Peter also. The were the dayes of swete bread. And when he had caught hym, he put hym in prison, & delyuered hym to .xvi. a quaternions of soudyers to be kept, entendynge after Easter to bryng hym forth to the people. The was Peter kept in prison. But prayer was made without ceasing of the congregacyon vnto God for hym: And when Herode wouldē haue brought him out to the people, the same nyght slept Peter betwene two soudiours bound with two chaynes, and the kepers before the dore kepte the prison.

Quaternions of soudiours is four companies of soudyours

B Peter is waked.

And beholde the aungell of the lorde was there presente, and a light shyned in ꝑ lodge. And he smote Peter on the syde, and stered hym vp, saynge: aryse vp quickly. And hys chaynes fell of from hys handes. And the aungell saied vnto him: gyrde thy selfe, and bind on thy sandales. And so he dyd. And he saied vnto hym: cast thy mantle about the, & folow me. And he came out, and folowed hym, and wist not that it was truthe, whiche was done by the aungell, but thought he had sene a vision. When they were past the fyrste and the second watche, they came vnto the Iron gate, that leadeth vnto the citie which opened to thē by his owne accorde. And they went oute and passed thorowe one strete, and vp and by the aungell departed from hym.

Sandales are soles to be bound vnder the fete.

C And when Peter was come to hym selfe, he sayde. Nowe I knowe of a suretye, that the Lorde hath sent hys aungell, and hath delyuered me out of the hande of Herode, and from all the waytyng for of the people of ꝑ Jewes. And as he consydered the thynge, he came to the house of Mary the mother of one John whych was called Marke also, where many were gathered together in prayer. As Peter knocketh at the entry dore, a damell came forth to herken, named Rhoda, when she knewe Peters voyce, she opened not the entry for gladnes, but ran in and tolde, how Peter stode before the entry. And they sayde vnto her: thou arte mad. And she bare thē doune that it was euen so. Then sayde they it is hys Aungel. But Peter contynued knockynge. And when they had opened the dore, and sawe hym, they were astouned. And he beckened vnto them with the hande to holde their peace, and tolde them by what meanes the Lord hath brought hym out of the prison And he sayde: go shewe these thynges vnto James, and to the brethrē. And he departed, and went into another place.

Thys John is the same Marke, that wrote the Gospell of Marke.

D Allone as it was daye, there was no litell a do amonge the soudyers, what was become of Peter. When Herode had called for hym, and founde hym not, he examined the kepers, and commaunded them to be carped awaye.

And he descended from Jewry to Cesarea, & there abode. Herode was displeased with the of Tyre & Sydon. And they came all at once, and made intercession vnto Blastus ꝑ kinges chamberlayne, & desyred peace, because their countrey was nourysshed by the kynges lande. And vpon a daye appoynted Herode arayed hym in royall apparell, and sat hym in hys seate, and made an oracyon vnto them. And ꝑ people gaue a shout, saynge: it is the voyce of a God, and not of a man. And immediatly ꝑ aungell of the Lorde & smote hym, because he gaue not God the glorye, and he was eaten of wormes, and gaue vp the ghost.

Herode is slayne and eaten of wormes.

And the worde of God grew and multyplyed. And Barnabas and Paul returned to Hierusalem, when they had fulfylled their office, and toke with them *John whyche also called Marcus.

John is Marke the Euangelist.

The.xiij. Chapter.

Paul and Barnabas are called to preache vnto the gentyls and heathen. Of Sergius Paulus & of one Elymas a sorcerer. Paul preacheth at Antioche.

A

HEre were at Antioche in the congregacyon certayne. a. Prophetes and teachers: as Barnabas and Symon called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, & Manahen. Herode the Tetrarches nourseforowe, and Saule. As they ministred to the Lorde and fasted, the holy ghost sayde: separate me Barnabas and Saule, for the worke where vnto I haue called them. Then fasted they and prayed, and .b. put their handes on them, & let them go. And they after they were sent of the holye ghost, came vnto Seleucia, & from thence they sayled to Cyprus. And whē they were come to Salamyne, they shewed ꝑ word of God in the synagoges of the Jewes. And they had John to their minister.

Barnabas & Paule are sent to preach.

B When they had gone thorowout the yle vnto the citie of Paphos, they founde a certayne sorcerer, a false Prophet which was a Jewe named .c. Barsen, whiche was with the ruler of the countrey one Sergius Paulus a prudent man. The same ruler called vnto hym Barnabas and Saule, and desyred to heare the word of God. But Elymas the sorcerer (for so was hys name by interpretacyon) withstode thē, & sought to turne awaye the ruler from ꝑ faith. Then .d. Saul which also is called Paul beyng full of the holy ghost set hys eyes on hym, & sayde. O full of all subtilte and bolerye children of the deuell, and the enemye of all ryghteousnes, thou ceasest not to peruerte the streyghte wayes of the Lorde. And nowe behold the hande of the Lorde is vpon the, and thou shalte be blynde, and not se the sunne for a season. And immediatly there fell on hym a myste and a darckenes, and he wente about seekynge them that shoulde lede hym by the hande. Then the ruler when he sawe what had happened, beleued, and wondered at the doctryne of the Lorde.

Barsen. Sergius Paulus. Elymas. Paule.

Marke the Euangeliſt otherwyſe called John departeth cõpany.

When they that were with Paule, were departed by shippe from Paphus, they came to Pergam a cyte of Pãphilia: and there John departed from them, and returned to Jeruſalem. But they wandred thorow the coũtreys from Perga to Antioche a citie of the coũtrye of Piſidia, and went into the ſynagoge on the Saboth daye, and ſat doune. And after ỹ law and the prophetes we read, the rulers of the ſynagoge ſent vnto them, ſaying: Ye mẽ and brethern, yf ye haue any ſpeache to exhort the people, ſaye on.

Then Paule ſtode vp, and beckened with the hande, and ſayde: Men of Iſraell, and ye that feare God, geue audience. The God of this people choſe our fathers, and exalted the people when they dwelt as ſtraungers in the lande of Egypte, and with a myghtye arme brought them out of it, and about the tyme of xl. yeares ſuffred he their maners in ỹ wyldernes. And he deſtroyed vii. nacyons in the lande of Canan, and deuyded their lande to them by lot. And afterwarde he gaue vnto them iudges about the ſpace of .cccc.l. and.l. yeares vnto the tyme of Samuel the prophet. And after that, they deſyred a kyng, and God gaue vnto them Saul the ſonne of Cis, a man of the tribe of Beniamin by the ſpace of .xl. yeares. And after he had put him doune, he ſet vp Dauid to be their kynge of whom he reported ſayenge: I haue founde Dauid ỹ ſonne of Jeſſe, a man after myne owne hert, he ſhall fulfyll all my wyll.

Of whoſe ſeed hath God accordynge to his promes brought forth to the people of Iſraell a ſauyour, one Jeſus, when John had firſte preached before his comynge the baptiſme of repentaũce to Iſrael. And when John had fulfylled his courſe he ſayde: whome ye thinke that I am, the ſame am I not. But behold there cometh one after me, whoſe ſhewes of his fete I am not worthy to lowſe.

Ye men and brethern, children of the generacyon of Abraham, and whoſoeuer amonge you, feareth God, to you is this worde of ſaluacyon ſente. The inhabiters of Jeruſalem & their rulers, becauſe they knowe him not, nor yet the voices of ỹ prophetes which are reade euery Saboth daye, they haue fulfylled the in condemnynge hym. And when they found no cauſe of death in hym, yet deſyred they Pylate to kyll hym. And when they had fulfilled all that were written on hym, they toke hym doune from the tree, and put hym in a ſepulcher. But God raiſed hym agayne frõ death, and he was ſene many dayes of thẽ whiche came with hym from Galile to Jeruſalem, Which are his witneſſes vnto the people.

And we declare vnto you, how that the promes made vnto the fathers, God hath fulfylled vnto vs their children, in that he raiſed vp Jeſus agayne, As it is written in the firſte pſalme: Thou arte my ſonne, this ſame daye begat I the. As concerninge that he raiſed hym vp from death, nowe no more to returne to corrupcion, he ſayed on this wyſe. The holy promyſes made to Dauid, I wyll geue them faythfully to you. Wherfore he ſayth alſo in another place: Thou ſhalte not ſuffer thyne holy one to ſe corrupcyon. Howbeit Dauid after he had in his tyme fulfylled the wyll of God, he ſlepte, and was layde with his fathers, and ſawe corrupcyon. But he whome God raiſed agayne, ſawe no corrupcyon.

Be it knowen vnto you therfore ye men & brethern, that thorowe this man is preached vnto you the forgeuernes of ſynnes, and that by hym are all that beleue iuſtifyed from all thynges from the which ye coulde not be iuſtifyed by the lawe of Moſes. Beware therfore leſte that fall on you, whiche is ſpoken of in ỹ Prophetes: Beholde ye deſpyſers, and wonder, and peryſhe ye: for I do a worke in your dayes, whiche ye ſhall not beleue, yf a man woulde declare it you.

When they were come out of the Synagoge of the Jewes, the gentyls beſought ỹ they would preache the folowyng wordes to the on the Saboth. When the congregacyõ was broken vp, many of the Jewes & deuoute cõuerts, folowed Paule and Barnabas, which ſpake to them, and exhorted them to continue in the grace of God. And the next Saboth daye came almoſt the whole citie together, to heare the worde of God. When the Jewes ſaw the people, they were ful of indignacyon & ſpake agaynſte thoſe thynges, whiche were ſpoken of Paule, ſpeakynge agaynſt it, and railynge on it.

Then Paule and Barnabas waxed bolde, and ſayed: it was mete that the worde of God ſhoulde firſte haue ben preached to you. But ſeynge, ye put it from you, and thynke youre ſelues vnworthy of euerlaſtyng lyfe: lo, we turne to the gentyls: for ſo hath the Lorde cõmaunded vs: I haue made the a lyghte to the gentyls, that thou be thẽ ſaluacion to the ende of the worlde.

The gentyls heard and were glad & glorifyed the worde of the Lorde, and beleued euery as many as were ordeyned vnto eternal lyfe. And the worde of the Lorde was publyſhed thorowout all the regyon. But the Jewes moued the worſhypfull and honeſt women, & the chiefe men of the citie, and raiſed perſecucyon agaynſte Paule and Barnabas, & expelled them out of their coſtes. And they ſhoke of ỹ duſt of their fete agaynſt them, and came vnto Iconium. And the diſciples were ſpilled with ioye and with the holy ghoſte.

Paule and Barnabas preache at Iconium. Some believe, some stere up (enuyous. At Lystra they wolde do sacrifice to Barnabas and Paule, whyle they labored to withdraw the people to worshipp the true God. Paul is stoned. After that come they to Derba, Lystra, Iconium and Antioche.

A

And it fortuned in Iconii, that they went both together into the synagoge of the Jewes, and so spake that a greate multitude bothe of the Jewes, and also of the grekes beleued. But the unbeleuynge Jewes stered up, and vexed the myndes of the gentyls against the brethern. Long tyme abode they there, and quyt themselues boldely with the helpe of the Lorde, whych gaue testimonye unto the worde of hys grace, & caused signes and wonders to be done by theyr handes. The people of the cite were deuyded: and parte helde with the Jewes, and parte with the Apostles.

B

When there was a fault made both of the gentyls, and also of the Jewes with theyr rulers, to put them to shame and to stone them, they were ware of it, and fled unto Lystra & Derba, cities of Lycaonia, and unto the regyon that lyeth rounde about, and there preached the Gospel. And there sate a certayne man at Listra weake in hys fete, beyng creple from hys mothers wombe, and neuer walked. The same hearde Paule preache. Whiche behelde hym, and perceyued that he had sayth to be whole, and sayed with a laude voyce Stande upryght on thy fete. And he sterte up, & walked. And when the people sawe, what Paule had done, they lyfte up theyr voyces, sayenge in the speache of Lycaonia: Goddes are comne downe to us in the lykenes of men. And they called Barnabas Jupiter and Paul Mercurius, because he was the preacher. Then Jupiters preeste whiche dwelte before theyr cite, brought oxen and garlandes to the churche porche, and would have done sacrifice with the people.

Creple is healed.

But when the Apostles Barnabas & Paul hearde that, they rent theyr clothes, and ran in amonge the people, crienge, and sayenge: Syrs why do ye thus? We are mortall men lyke unto you, and preache unto you, that ye should turne from these vanities unto the lyuynge God, which made heauen and earthe and the sea, and all that in them is: the whiche in tymes paste suffered all nacyons to walke in theyr owne wayes. Neuertheles he left not hym selfe without wytnes, in that he shewed hys benefytes, in gruynge us rayne from heauen, and fruteful seasons, fylling our hertes with fode and gladnes. And with these sayenges scarce restrayned they the people, y they had not done sacrifice unto them.

Thyther came certayne Jewes from Antioche and Iconium, and obteyned the peoples consent, and stoned Paul, and drewe him out of the cite, supposyng he had bene dead. Howbeit as the disciples stode rounde about him, he arose up, and came into the cite. And y next daye he departed with Barnabas to Derba. After they had preached in that cite, and had taughte manye, they returned agayne to Lystra, and to Iconium and Antioche, and strengthed the disciples soules exhortynge them to continue in the faith, sayenge that we must throughe muche tribulation entre into the kingdome of God. And when they had ordeyned them elders by election in every congregacion, and after they had prayed and fasted, they commended them to God on whom they beleued. And they went throughout Pysidia and came into Pamphylia, and when they had preached the worde of God in Perga, they descended into Attalia, and thence departed by shippe to Antioche, from whence they were delyuered unto the grace of god, to the worke which they had fulfylled. When they were come & had gathered the congregacion together, they rehearsed all that God had done by them, and how he had opened the dore of fayth to the gentyls. And there they abode longe tyme with the disciples.

The. xv. Chapter.

Circumcision about circumcision. The Apostles gyue her sentence at Jerusalem. Paul and Barnabas parte at Antioche.

A

Then came certayne fro Jewry, and taughte the brethern: Except ye be circumcised after the maner of Moyses, ye can not be saued. And when there was no lytle debatynge and disputynge unto Paul and Barnabas against them. They determyned that Paule and Barnabas, and certayne other of them, should ascende to Jerusalem unto the Apostles and elders about this question. And after they were brought on theyr waye by the congregacyon, they passed ouer Phenice and Samaria declarynge the conuersyon of the Gentyls, and they brought great ioye unto all the brethern. And when they were come to Jerusalem, they were receyued of the congregacyon, and of the Apostles and elders. And they declared what thynges God had done by them. Then arose there

Counsell.

And when there was muche disputynge, Peter rose vp, and sayde vnto them: Ye men and brethren ye knowe howe that a good whyle ago, God chose amonge vs that the gentils by my mouth shoulde heare the worde of the Gospell, and beleue. And God which knoweth ỹ herte bare them wytnes, and gaue vnto them the holy ghost, euen as he dyd vnto vs: and he put no difference betwene them and vs, but purifyed their hertes by faith. Now therfore why tempte ye God, that ye woulde put a yoke on the disciples neckes, which neyther our fathers nor we were able to beare. But we beleue that through the grace of the Lorde Jesu Christ, we shalbe saued, as they do. Then all the multitude was peased, and gaue audience to Barnabas and Paul which told what tokens and wonders God had shewed amõg the gentils by them.

And when they helde their peace, James answered, sayenge: Men and brethren herken vnto me. Simon told, how God at the begynnynge dyd visite the gentils, and receyued of them people vnto his name. And to this agreeth the wordes of the Prophetes, as it is wryten. After this I will returne, and will buylde agayne the tabernacle of Dauid which is fallen downe, and that whiche is fallen in decaye of it, will I buylde agayne, & I will set it vp, that the residue of men myghte seke after the Lorde, and also the gentils b. vpon whome my name is named (sayth the Lorde) which doth all these thynges: knowen vnto God are all his workes from the beginning Wherfore my sentence is that we trouble not them whiche from among the gentils are turned to God, but that we write vnto them, that they abstayne them selues frõ fylthynes of ymages, from fornicacyon, frõ c strangled and from bloude. Then pleased it the Apostles and elders with the whole congregacion, to sende chosen men of their owne company vnto Antioche w Paule and Barnabas. They sent Judas called also Barsabas and Silas, whiche were chefe men among the brethrẽ, and gaue them letters in their handes after this maner.

The Apostles, elders, and brethren sende gretynges vnto the brethren whiche are of the gentils in Antioche, Syria, and Cilicia. For as muche as we haue herde that certayne whiche departe from vs, haue troubled you with wordes, and combred your myndes, sayenge: Ye must be circumcysed, and kepe the lawe, to whom we gaue no suche commaundement. It semed therfore to vs a good thynge, when we were come together with one accord to sende chosen men vnto you, with our beloued Barnabas and Paule, men that haue iuperded their lyues for the name of our Lorde Jesu Christ. We haue sent therfore Judas & Silas, whiche shall also tell you, the same thinges by mouth. For it semed good to the holye ghost & to vs, to put no greuous thyng to you more then these necessarye thynges, that is to saye that ye abstayne from thynges offered to ymages, from bloude, from strangled and fornicacion. From which yf ye kepe your selues ye shall do well. So fare ye well.

When they were departed, they came to Antioche, and gathered the multitude together, and delyuered the Epistle. When they had reade it, they reioyced of that consolacion. And Judas and Silas beynge e prophetes, exhorted the brethren with muche preachyng, and strengthed them. And after they had tarryed there a space they were let go in peace of the brethren vnto the Apostles. Notwithstandynge it pleased Silas to abyde there styll. Paule and Barnabas continued in Antioche teachynge and preachynge the worde of the Lorde with other manye.

But after a certayne space, Paule sayd vn to Barnabas: Let vs go agayn and visite our brethren in euery cyte where we haue shewed the worde of the Lorde, and se howe they do. And Barnabas gaue counsell to take with them: John called also Marke. But Paule thoughte it not mete to take hym vnto their companye whiche departed from them at Pãphilia, and went not with them to the worke. And the dissencyon was so sharpe betwene them, that they departed asunder one from ỹ other, so that Barnabas tooke Marke and sayled vnto Cyprus. And Paule chose Silas and departed, delyuered of the brethren vnto the grace of God. And he went throughe al Syria and Cilicia, stablyshynge the congregacions, commaundyng to kepe the preceptes of ỹ Apostles and elders.

¶ Timothe is circumcysed. Paule preacheth at Philippos, and there is he put in prysone.

Then came he to Derba and to Lystra. And beholde a certayne disciple was there named Timotheus, a womans sonne which was a Jewesse and beleued: but his hys father was a Grecke. Of whom reported well, the brethren of Lystra and Iconii. The same Paule woulde that he shoulde go forthe with hym, and toke and circumcysed hym, because of the Jewes whiche were in those quarters: for they knewe all, that hys father was a Grecke. As they went through the cities, they delyuered them the decrees for to kepe, ordeyned of the Apostles and elders, whiche were at Jerusalem. And so were the congregacions stablysheth in the fayth, and encreased in nombre daylye.

¶ When they had gone through oute Phrygia, and the regyon of Galacia, and were forbidden of the holy ghost to preache the worde in Asia they came to Mysia, and sought to go into Bethynia. But the spirite suffered them not. Then they went ouer Mysia, and came downe to Troada. And a vysyon appeared to Paule in the nyght. There stode a man of Macedonia, and prayed hym, sayinge: come into Macedonia, and helpe vs. After he had sene the vysyon, certifyed that the Lorde had called vs for to preache the Gospell vnto the. Then lowsed we forth frō Troada, and with a straight course came to Samothracia, and the nexte daye to Neapolym, and from thence to Philyppos, which is the chefe cite in the partes of Macedonia, and a free cite.

We were in that cite abydynge certayne dayes. And on the Saboth dayes we wente out of the cite besyde a ryuer, where men were wonte to praye. And we sate downe, and spake vnto the wemē which resorted thyther. And a certayne woman named Lydia a seller of purple of the cite of Thiatyra, which worshypped God, gaue vs audience. Whose hart the Lorde opened, that she attended vnto the thynges whiche Paul spake. When she was baptysed and her houlholde, she besought vs sayinge: If ye thynke that I beleue on ỹ Lord come into my house, and abyde there. And she constrayned vs.

¶ And it fortuned as we went to prayer, a certayne damsell possessed with a spirite that prophesyeth, met vs, which brought her mayster and maysters muche vauntage with prophesynge. The same folowed Paul and vs, & cryed, sayinge: These men are the seruauntes of the moste hye God, which shew vnto vs ỹ waye of saluacyon. And thys dyd she manye dayes. But Paule not contrut turned aboute, and sayed to the spirite: I commaunde the in the name of Jesu Christe, that thou come oute of her. And he came out the same houre.

¶ And when her mayster and maysters sawe, that the hope of they: gaynes was gone, they caughte Paule and Silas, and drue them into the market place vnto the rulars, & brought them to the officers sayinge: These men trouble oure cite, whiche are Jewes, and preache ordinaunces whiche are not lawfull for vs to receyue, neyther to obserue, seynge we are Romayns. And the people came on them, and the officers rent they: clothes, and commaunded them to be beaten with rodes. And whē they had beaten them sore, they calle them into prison, commaundynge the iayler to kepe them surelye. Which iayler when he had receyued such commaundemente thruste them into the inner prison, and made they: fete fast in the stockes.

1.Cor.vi.f.

¶ At mydnyght Paule and Silas prayed, & lauded God. And the prisoners hearde them. And sodenly there was a great earthquake, so that the foundacion of the prison was shaken, and by and by all the doores opened, and euery mannes bondes were lowsed. When ỹ keper of the prison waked oute of hys slepe, and sawe the prison doores open, he drue oute hys swearde, and woulde have killed hym selfe, supposynge the prisoners had bene fled. But Paule cryed with a lowde voyce, sayinge: do thy selfe no harme, for we are all here.

¶ Then he called for a lyght, and sprang in, and came trembling, and fell downe before Paule and Silas, and brought them out and sayde: Syr what muste I do to be saued? And they sayd: beleue on ỹ Lord Jesus & ỹ shalt be saued & thy housholde. And they preached vnto hi the worde of the Lorde, & to all ỹ were in hys house. And he toke them the same houre of the nyght, and washed they: woundes, and was baptysed with all that belonged vnto him straight waye. When he had brought them into hys house: he set meate before them, and reioyced that he with all hys houlholde beleued on God.

And when it was daye, the officers sente the ministers sayinge: Let those men go. The keper of the prison tolde this sayinge to Paul: the officers have sent wordes to loose you. Now therfore get you hence, and goo in peace. Then sayde Paule vnto them. They have beaten vs openly vncondemned, for all that we are Romayns, and have caste vs into prison: & now woulde they sende vs awaye preuely? Nay nay so, but let them come themselues, and fet vs out. When the ministers tolde these wordes vnto the officers, they feared when they hearde that they were Romayns, and came and besought them, and brought them oute, & desyred them to departe out of the cite. And they went oute of the prison, and entred into the house of Lydya, and when they had sene the brethren, they comforted them, and departed.

The. xbij. Chapter.

Paule comyth to Thessalonica, where the Jewes be the cause of an vproare. Paule departeth to Athens, where he preacheth the vnknowen God.

AS they made they: iourney through Amphipolis, and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where was a synagoge of ỹ Jewes. And Paule as his maner was, went in vnto them, and three Sabboth dayes declared oute of the Scriptures vnto the, openynge and alledgynge that Christe muste nedes have suffered and ryssen agayne from deathe, death, and that thys Jesus was Christe, whō (sayed he) I preache to you. And some of them beleued and came, and companyed with Paul and Silas: also of the honorable Grekes a greate multytude, and of the chief womē not a fewe.

B But the Jewes which beleued not, hauing indignacyon, toke vnto them cupl men which were vagabondes, and gathered a companie, and set all the cite on a rore, and made assaulte vnto the house of Jason, and sought to bryng them out to the people. But when they found them not, they drue Jason and certayne brethern vnto the heades of the cite, cryenge: these that trouble the worlde are come hyther also, which Jason hath receyued pryuely. And these all do contrary to the decrees of Cesar, alleadyng another kynge, one Jesus. And they troubled the people and the officers of the cite, when they hearde these thynges. And when they were sufficiently answered of Jason, and of the other, they let them go.

C And the brethern immediatly sente awaye Paule and Silas by nyghte vnto Berrea. Whiche when they were come thyther, they entered into the synagoge of the Jewes. These were the noblest of byrthe among the of Thessalonia whiche receyued the worde with all diligence of mynde, and searched the scriptures dayly whether those thynges were euen so. And many of them beleued: also of worshipfull women which were Grekes, and of men not a fewe. When the Jewes of Thessalonia had knowledge that the worde of GOD was preached of Paul at Berrea, they came and moued the people there. And then by and by the brethern sente awaye Paule to go as it were to the sea: but Silas and Timotheus abode there styll. And they that gyded Paule brought hym vnto Athens, and receyued a cō maundement vnto Silas & Timotheus for to come to hym anone and came they awaye.

And they toke hym, and brought hym into Marsestrete, saynge: maye we not knowe what thys newe doctrine whereof thou speakest is? For thou bringest straung tydynges to our eares. We wolde knowe therfore what these thynges meane. For all the Athenians and straungers which were there, gaue them selues nothynge els, but eyther to tell or to heare newe tydynges. And when they spake contrary and blaspheamed, he shoke his rayment and sayed vnto them, youre bloude vpō youre owne heades, I frome henceforth I goo blameles vnto the gētils. And he departed thence, I entered into a certayne mannes house named Iustus a worshypper of God, whose house ioyned harde to the synagoge. How be it one Crispus the chiefe ruler of the Synagoge beleued on the Lorde with al his houshold, I many of the Corinthians gaue audience I beleued, and were baptised. The spake the Lorde to Paule in the nyght by a vision: be not afrayde, but speake, and hold not thy peace: for I am with the, and no man shal inuade the that shal hurt the. For I haue much people in this citie. And he continued there a yeare and sixe monethes, and taught them the word of God.

¶ When Gallio was ruler of the countre of Achaia the Jewes made insurrection with one accorde against Paule, I brought him to the iudgement seate sayinge: this felowe counselleth men to worship God contrary to the lawe. And as Paul was aboute to open his mouthe. Gallio sayde vnto the Jewes: yf it were a matter of wrōge, or an euyl dede (o ye Jewes) reason would that I should heare you: but if it be a questiō of wordes or of names, or of your law, loke ye to it your selues. For I wil be no iudge in suche matters and he draue them from the seate. Then toke all I the greekes Sosthenes the chiefe ruler of the Synagoge, I smote him before the iudges seate. And Gallio cared for none of those thinges. ¶ Paule after this, taried there yet a whyle, and then toke his leaue of the brethren, I sayled thence into Syria, Priscilla and Aquila accompanyinge him. And he shaue his heade in Cenchrea, for he hadde a vowe. And he came to Ephesus and lefte the there: but he him self entred into I synagoge, and reasoned with the Jewes. When they desyred him to tary longer tyme with them, he consented not but bad them fare well sayinge. I must nedes at this feaste I cometh, be in Jerusalem: but I will returne agayne vnto you, yf God will. And he departed frō Ephesus and came into Cesarea: I ascended and saluted the congregacion, and departed vnto Antioch, and when he had tarryed there a while he departed. And went ouer al the countrey of Galacia and Phrigia by order, strengthinge al the disciples.

Apollos. ¶ And a certayne Jewe named Apollos, borne at Alexandria, came to Ephesus, an eloquente man and mighty in the scriptures. The same was informed in the waye of the Lorde, and spake fermently in the spirit, and taught diligently thinges of the Lorde, and knewe but the baptisme of Johan only. And the same began to speake boldely in the Synagoge. And whē Aquila I Priscilla had hearde him, they toke him vnto the I expounded vnto him I waye of God more perfectly. ¶ And when he was disposed to goo into Acaia, the brethren wrote exhortynge the disciples to receyue hym. After he was come thether, he holpe them much which hadde beleued throwe grace. And mightely he ouercame the Jewes, and that openly, shewinge by the scriptures that Jesus was Christe.

And this was knowen to all the Jewes and Grekes also, which dwelt at Ephesus, and feare came on them al, and they magnified the name of the Lord Jesus.

D ☞ And many that beleued, came and confessed, and shewed their workes. Many of them, whiche vsed curious craftes, broughte their bokes and burned them before al men, and they counted the price of them, & founde it fyfty thousand * syluerlinges. So myghtyly grew the word of God, and prouayled. After these thynges were ended, Paul purposed in the spyryte, to passe ouer Macedonia and Achaia, and to go to Jerusalem, saynge: After I haue ben there, I must also se Rome. So sent he into Macedonia two of them that ministred vnto hym Timotheus & Erastus: but he hym selfe remayned in Asia for a season. The same tyme there arose no lyttell adoo about that way. For a certain man named Demetrius, a syluersmith, whiche made syluer shrynes for Diana, was not a lytel beneficial vnto the craftes men. Whiche he called together with the workemē of like occupacion, & sayde: Syrs ye knowe that by this craft we haue substance. Moreouer ye se & heare that not alone at Ephesus, but almoste thorough out al Asia, this Paule hath persuaded and turned away moche people: saying that they be not Goddes, whiche are made with handes. So that not onelye this our craft cometh into perel to be set at nought: but also that the temple of the great Goddas Diana shoulde be despised, and her magnificence should be destroyed, which al Asia, and the world worshyppeth.

E When they hearde these sayinges, they F were full of wrath, and cryed out sayinge: Great is Diana of the Ephesians. And all the cyte was on a roze, and they rushed into the common hal with one assent, & caughte Gaius and Aristarchus, men of Macedonia, Paules companyons. When Paul woulde haue entered in vnto the people, the disciples suffered hym not. Certayne also of the chefe of Asia, whiche were his frendes, sent vnto him, desiringe hym that he woulde not prease into the common hall. Some cryed one thynge, and some another, and the congregacion was all out of quiete, and the more parte knewe not wherfore they were come together.

Some of the company drewe forth Alex- G ander, the Jewes thrustyng hym forwardes. Alexander beckened with the hand, & would haue geuen the people an answere. When they knewe that he was a Jewe, there arose a shoute almost for the space of two houres, of all men cryinge, greate is Diana of the Ephesians.

E When the towne clarke had ceased the people he sayde: ye men of Ephesus, what man is it that knoweth not how that the cyte of the Ephesians is a worshypper of the great Goddas Diana, and of the ymage, which.b. came from heauen. Seyng then that no man sayth her agaynst, ye ought to be contente, & to do nothyng rashlye, for ye haue brought hether these men, which are neither robbers of churches, nor yet despysers of your Goddas. Wherfore yf Demetrius and the craftes men, whiche are wyth hym haue any sayinge to any man, the law is open, and there are rulers let them accuse one another. Yf ye go about any other thynge, it may be determined in a lawful congregacio. For we are in ieoperdy to be accused of this dayes busines. For as much as there is no cause whereby we may geue a rekening of this cōcourse of people. And when he had thus spoken he let the congregacyon departe.

¶ Paule goeth into Macedonia and into Greece. At Troas he rayseth vp a dead body. At Ephesus he calleth elders of the congregacyon together, telleth the herynge of Gods fleshe vnto them, warneth them of false teachers, maketh his prayer with them, and departeth to Hyry.

AFter the rage was ceased: Paule called the disciples vn- A to him, & toke his leaue of the, & departed for to go into Macedoma. And whē he had gone ouer those partes, and geuen them large exhortacyons he came into Greece, and there abode thre mouethes. And when the Jewes layde wayte for him as he was about to sail into Syria, he purposed to returne thorough Macedonia. declared, he was the more ouercome with slepe, and fell downe from the thirde lofte, and was taken vp dead. Paule wente downe and fell on hym, and embraced hym, and sayed:
make nothynge a do, for hys lyfe is in hym. When he was come vp again, he brake bread and talked, and communed a longe whyle euē tyll the mornynge, and so departed. And they brought the yonge man alyue, and were not a lytle comforted.

And we went afore to shyppe, and loosed vnto Asson there to receyue Paule. For so had he appointed and wolde hym self go afore.
When he was come to vnto Assone, we toke hym in and came to Mitelenes. And we sailed thence, and came the next daye ouer against Chios. And the next daye we arryued at Samos, and tarryed at Troguilio. The neyte daye we came to Mileton, for Paule had determyned to leaue Ephesus as they sayled, because he wolde not spende the tyme in Asia. For he hasted to be (yf he coulde possible) at Jerusalē at the daye of Pentecoste. Wherfore frō Mileton he sent to Ephesus, and called the elders of the cōgregacyō. And when they were come The sermon of Paule to the Ephesyans. to hym, he sayde vnto them. Ye knowe from the fyrste daye that I came into Asia, after what maner I haue ben with you at all ceasōs seruynge the Lorde with all humblenes of mynde, and with many teares, and temptacy-ons whiche happened to me by the layenges awayte of the Jewes, and howe I kept backe nothyng that was profytable, but that I haue shewed you, and taughte you openlye, and at home in your houses, wytnessyng both to the Jewes, and also to the Grekes, the repentaūce towarde God and fayth towarde our Lorde Jesus.

And now beholde I go bounde in the spy-Repentaūce, and fayth. rite vnto Jerusalem, and knowe not what shal come on me there, but that the holy ghost wytnesseth in euery cite, sayenge: that bōdes and trouble abyde me. But none of these thyn-ges move me: neyther is my lyfe dere vnto my selfe: that I myght fulfyl my course with ioye, and the mynistracyon whiche I haue re-ceyued of the Lord Jesus, to testifye the gospell of the grace of God. And now beholde, I am sure that hereafter ye all (though whō I haue gone preachyng the kingdō of God) shal se my face no more. Wherfore I take you to recorde this same daye that I am pure from the blood of all men. For I haue not kept backe, but haue shewed you all the counsell of God.
Take hede therfore vnto youre selues, and to all the flocke wherof the holy ghoste hath made you ouerseers, to rule the congregacyon of God, which he hath purchased with his bloude.
For I am sure of this, that after my departig Grevous wolues. shall grevous wolues enter in amonge you, which wyll not spare the flocke. Moreouer of your own selues shal men arise speakyng per-uerse thinges to draw disciples after them. Therfore awake and remember, that by the space of iij.
yeares I ceased not to warne euerye one of you both nyght and daye with teares.

And nowe brethren I commende you to God, and to the worde of his grace, which is able to buylde further, and to geue you an inheritaunce amonge all them which are sanctififyed. I haue desyred no mans syluer, golde or rayment. Ye knowe well that these hādes haue mynistred vnto my necessities, and to them that were with me. I haue shewed you all thinges, how that so labouryng ye ought to receyue the weake and to remember the wordes of the lorde Jesu, how that he sayde: it is more blessed to geue then to receyue.

When he had thus spoke, he kneled doune and prayed with them all. And they wept all abodantly, and fell on Paules necke, and kyssed him sorowynge moste of all for the wordes which he spake, that they should se his face no more.
And they accōpanied him vnto the shyppe.

The.xxi.Chapter.

¶ Paules iourney by shyppe. Of Philippe the Euangelist, and Agabus the Prophet who warned Paule not to go to Jerusalem. He remayneth seuēdaies in two partes, and is taken in the temple.

And it chaunced that assone as we had launched forthe, and were departed frō them, we came with a straight course vnto Coon, and the daye following vnto Rhodes, and frō thence vnto Patara. And we found a shyppe ready to sayle vnto Phenices and went aborde and set forthe. Then appeared vnto vs Cyprus, and we left it on the lefte hande, and sayled vnto Syria, and came vnto Tyre. For ther the shyp vnladed her burthen. And when we had founde disciples, we taryed there vij. dayes.
And they tolde Paule through the spirite that he shoulde not go vp to Jerusalem. And when the dayes were ended, we departed and went our wayes, and they all brought vs on our way, with their wyues and children, tyll we were come out of the cite. And we kneled doune in the shore and prayed. And when we had taken our leaue one of another, we toke
shyp, and they returned home agayne.

When we had full ended the course from Tyre we arryued at Ptolomaida, and saluted
the brethren, and abode with them one daye.
The neyte daye, we that were of Paules com-panye, departed and came vnto Cesarea. And we entred into the house of Philip the Euan-gelist, which was one of the vij. deacons, and Philippe.
abode with him. The same man had foure doughters virgins which dyd prophesy. And as we tarryed there a good manye of dayes,
there came a certayne Prophete from Jewry, named Agabus. When he was come to vs, he Agabus.
toke Paules gyrdell, and bounde his handes
and fete, and sayed: thus sayeth the holye Ghoste: so shall the Jewes at Jerusalem
bynde the man that owneth this gyrdell,

and shall delyuer hym into the handes of the gentyls.

When we herde thys, both we and other
C of the same place, besoughte hym, ℣ he would not go vp to Jerusalem. Then Paul answerred and sayd: what do ye weppynge and brakynge myne hert? I am ready not to be bound onelye: but also to dye at Hierusalem for the name of the Lorde Jesus. When we coulde not turne hys mynde, we ceased saynge: the wyll of the Lorde be fulfylled. After those dayes we made oure selues readye, and went vp to Hierusalem. There wente vp with vs also certayne of the disciples of Cesarea, and brought with them one Mnason of Cyprus, an olde disciple with whom we should lodge. And when we were come to Hierusalem, the brethren receyued vs gladlye. And on the morowe Paule wente in with vs vnto James. And all the elders came together. And when D he had saluted them, he tolde by order all thynges that God had wroughte amonge the Gentyles by hys ministracyon. And when they herde it, they glorifyed the Lorde, and sayed vnto hym: thou seest brother, howe manye thousande Jewes there are that beleue, ℣ they are all zelous ouer the lawe. And they are informed of the, that thou teachest all the Jewes whiche are amonge the gentyls, to forsake Moyses, and sayest, that they ought not to circumcyse their children, neyther to lyue after the customes. What is it therfore? The multytude must nedes come together. For they shall heare that thou arte come. Do therfore thys that we saye to the.

E We haue foure men which haue a vowe
C on them. Them take and purifye thy self with them, and be coste on them that they maye shaue their heades, and all shall knowe that those thynges, whyche they haue heard, concernynge the, are nothynge: but that thou thy selfe also walkest and kepest the lawe. For as touchynge the Gentyles whiche beleue, we haue written and concluded, that they obserue no such thynges: but that they kepe them selues from thynges offered to Idols, from bloude, from strangled, and from fornicacyon. Then the next daye Paule toke the men, and purifyed hym selfe with them, and entred into the temple, declaringe that he obserued the dayes of the purifycatyon, vntyll that an offerynge shoulde be offered for euerye one of them.

Num.vi.c

E And as the seuen dayes shoulde haue ben ended, the Jewes which were of Asia when they sawe hym in the temple, they moued all the people, and layed handes on hym, cryenge: Ye men of Israell, healpe. This is the man that teacheth all men euerye where agaynste the people and the lawe, and this place. Moreouer also he hath brought Grekes into the temple, ℣ hath polluted thys holy place. For they sawe one Trophimus an Ephesian with hym in the cyte. Hym they supposed Paule had brought into the temple. And all the cyte was moued, and the people swarmed together. And they toke Paule, and drue hym out of ℣ temple, and foorthwith the dores were shut to.

As they went about to kyll hym, tydyngs came vnto the hye captayne of the souldyers, that all Jerusalem was moued. Whiche immediatlye toke souldyers and vndercaptaynes, and ran doune vnto them. Whe they sawe the hyper captayne and the souldyers, they left smottynge of Paule. Then the captayne came neare, and toke hym: and commaunded hym to be bounde with two chaynes, and demaunded what he was, and what he had done. And one cryed thys, another that, amõg the people. And when he coulde not know the certaintye for the rage, he commaunded hym to be carryed into the castle. And when he came vnto a greece, it fortuned that he was borne of the souldyers, for the violence of the people. For the multytude of the people folowed after cryenge awaye with hym.

E And as Paule shoulde haue bene carryed
G into the castle, he sayde vnto the hye captayne: maye I speake vnto the? Which sayde: canste thou speake Greke? arte not thou that Egyptian whiche before these dayes made an vprore, and led oute into the wyldernes .iiij. M men that were murtherers? But Paule sayd: I am a man which am a Jewe of Tharsus a cite in Cicyll, a cytezyn of no vyle cyte, I beseche the, suffer me to speake vnto the people. When he had geuen hym licence. Paul stode on the stoppes, and beckened with the hande vnto the people, and there was made a great silence. And he spake vnto them in the Hebrew tonge, saynge.

The.xxij. Chapter.

¶ Paule answereth the Jewes, is couerged & layed to perfon agayne.

Men, brethren, and fathers: heare myne answere whiche I A make vnto you. When they heard that he spake in the Hebrue tonge to them: they kept ℣ more silence. And he sayd: I am verely a man which am a Jewe borne in Tharsus, a cite in Cicil: neuertheles yet brought vp in thys cite at ℣ fete of Gamaliel, and informed diligentlye in the lawe of the fathers, and was feruent myn ded to godwarde, as ye all are this same day, and I persecuted thys waye vnto the deathe, byndynge and delyuerynge into pryson both men and wome, as the chefe prest doth beare me witnes and all the elders, of whome also I receyued letters vnto the brethren, and went to Damasco to bring them which were there bounde vnto Jerusalem for to be punished.

And it fortuned as I made my iorney and B was come nye vnto Damasco about noone, that sodenlye there shone fro heauen a greate lyght rounde about me, and I fell to the earthe, and heard a voyce, saynge vnto me: Saul, Saule, why persecutest thou me? And I answered: what arte thou Lorde? And he sayde vnto me: I am Jesus of Nazareth whō

thou persecutest. And they that were with me sawe verelye a lyghte and were afrayde: but they hearde not the voyce of hym that spake with me. And I sayde, what shall I do Lorde? And the Lorde sayed vnto me. Aryse and go into Damasco, and there it shalbe tolde the of all thynges which are appoynted for the to do. And when I sawe nothynge for ỳ brightnes of that lyght, I was ledde by the hand of the ỳ were with me, and came into Damasco.

And one Ananias a perfecte man, and as pertayninge to the lawe hayinge good reporte of all the Iewes whiche there dwelte, came vnto me, and stode, and sayde vnto me: brother Saule, looke vp. And that same houre I receyued my sighte, and sawe hym. And he sayde: the God of oure fathers hath ordeyned the before, that thou shouldeste knowe hys will, and shouldeste se that which is ryghtfull: and shouldest heare the voyce of hys mouth: for thou shalte be hys witnes vnto all men of those thynges whiche thou haste sene and hearde. And now, why ta ryest thou? aryse and be baptysed, and washe awaye thy synnes in callynge on the name of the Lorde. Baptisme.

D And it fortuned when I was come againe to Ierusalem, and prayde in the temple that I was in a traunce, and sawe hym, saying vnto me: Make hast, and get the quickly out of Ierusalem: for they will not receyue the witnes that thou bearest of me. And I sayde: Lorde, they knowe that I pursued and beate in euery synagoge them that beleued on the, and when the bloude of thy witnes Stephan was shedde: I also stode by, and consented vnto his death, and kepte the rayment of thē that slewe hym. And he sayd vnto me: depart, for I will sende the a farre hence vnto the gentyls. They gaue audience vnto this worde, and then lyft vp their voyces, and sayde: awaye with suche a felowe from the earthe, it is not mete that he shoulde lyue. And as they cryed, and caste of their clothes, and threwe dust into the ayre, ỳ captayne bad hi to be brought into the castel and commaunded hym to be scourged, and to be examyned, that he myght knowe wherfore they cryed on hym. And as they bounde hym with thonges, Paule sayde to the Centuryon that stode by. Is it lawfull for you to scourge a man that is a Romayne and vnrebuked? When the Centurion hearde that, he went, and tolde the vpper captayne sayinge: What intendest thou to do? This man is a Romayne.

Then the vpper Captayne came, and said to hym: tell me, arte thou a Romayne? he sayde: Yea. And the captayn answered: with a great some obtayned I this freedome: And Paul sayd: I was free borne. Then straight waye departed from hym, they which should haue examyned hym. And the hye Captayne also was afrayde, after he knewe that he was a Romayne: because he had bounde hym.

On the morowe because he wolde haue knowen the certaintye wherfore he was accused of the Iewes, he loosed hym from his bondes, and commaunded the hye Prestes and all the counsell to come together, and brought Paule and set hym before them.

The.xxiij.Chapter.

Paule commeth before the counsaile. Beyng reuyled amonge the people. The captayne delyuereth hym. God comforteth hym.

PAul beholde the counsell ỳ sayd: men and brethern, I haue lyued A in al good conscience before God vntyll this day. The hye preest Ananias commaunded them that stode by, to smyte hym on the mouth. Then sayde Paul to hym: God smite the thou paynted wall. Sittest thou and iudgest me after the lawe, and commaundest me to be smytten contrarye to the lawe? And they that stode by, sayde: reuylest thou Gods hye preest? Then sayde Paule: I wyste not brethern that he was the hye preest. For it is written: thou shalt not curse the ruler of thy people. Exo.xxij.b

When Paule perceyued that the one part B were Sadducs, and the other Pharyses: he cryed out in the counsell: Men and brethern, I am a Pharisey, the sonne of a Pharysey. Of the hope and resurrection from death. I am iudged. And when he had so sayde, there arose a debate betwene the Pharyses and the Sadducs, and the multytude was deuyded: For the Sadducs saye, that there is no resurrection, neyther aungell, nor spirite. But the Pharyses graunte both. And there arose a great cry, and the Scribes whiche were of the Pharyseys parte arose and stroue, saying: we fynde none euyll in this man. Yf yngbe a spirite or an aungell haue spoken to hym, let vs not stryue agaynst God. Sadducs. Pharises. Phil.iij.b Act.xxiij.a

And when there arose great debate, the captayne fearynge lest Paule shoulde haue ben plucked a sunder of them, commaunded the souldyers to go downe, and to take hym from among them, and to bryng hym into the tallye. The nyght folowynge, God stode by hym and sayd: be of good cheare Paule: for as thou haste testified of me in Ierusalē, so must thou beare witnes at Rome. C

When daye was come, certayne of the Iewes gathered them selues together, & made a bonde, sayinge, that they wolde neyther eate nor drynke, tyll they had kylled Paul. They were aboue .xl. which had made this conspiracy. And they came to the chefe preestes and elders, and sayde: we haue bounde our selues with a bonde, that we will eate nothynge vntyll we haue slayne Paule. Nowe therfore goo ye knytte ridge to the vpper captayne & to the counsell, that he bryng hym forthe vnto you, as though ye wolde enquyre some thynge more perfectly of hym: But we, or euer he come nere, are redye to the murder readye to kyll hym. When Paules systers sonne heard of their layinge awayte: he went & entred into the castle, and tolde Paul. D

And Paul called one of the vnder captaynes to hym, and sayde: bringe this yongemen to the hye captayne, for he hathe a certayne thynge to shewe hym. And he toke hym, & led hym to the hygh captayne, & sayde: Paul the presoner called me vnto hym, and prayed me to bringe this yonge man vnto the whiche hath a certayne matter to shewe the.

The hye captayne toke him by the hande, and went aparte with hym out of the way, and axed hym, what haste thou to saye vnto me? And he sayde: the Iewes are determyned to desyre the that thou wouldest bringe forthe Paule to morowe vnto the counsell, as though they wolde enquyre some what of him more perfectly. But folowe not their mynedes: for there lye in wayte for hym of them, mo then xl. men, which haue bounde them selues with a vowe, that they will neyther eate nor drinke till they haue kylled hym. And now are they redye, and loke for thy promes. The vpper captayne let the yonge mā departe, & charged hym: se thou tell it out to no man that thou hast shewed these thynges to me. And he called vn to hym two vnder captaynes, sayinge: make redye two hundred soudyers to go to Cesarea, and horsmē thre score and ten, and speare men two hundred at the thirde houre of the nyght. And delyuer the beastes that they may put Paule on, and bring hym safe vnto Felix the hye debyte, and wrote a letter in this maner.

Claudius Lisias to the moste myghtye ruler Felix sendeth gretynges. This mā was taken of the Iewes, and shoulde haue ben kylled of them. Then came I with soudyers and rescewed hym, and perceyued that he was a Romayne. And when I wolde haue knowē the cause, wherfor they accused hym, I brought hym forth into their counsell: there perceyued I that he was accused of questyons of their lawe: but was not gylty of any thynge worthy of death or of bondes. Afterward when it was shewed me, how that the Iewes layde wayte for the man, I sent him straight waye to the, and gaue commaundement to his accusers, yf they had ought agaynste hym to tell it vnto the. Fare well.

Then the soudyours as it was commaunded them, toke Paule and brought hym by nyght to Antipatras. On the morowe they lefte the horsmen to go with hym and returned vnto the castle. Which when they came to Cesarea, they delyuered the Epistle to the debyte, and presented Paul before hym. Whē the debyte had redde the letter, he axed of what countreye he was: and when he vnderstode that he was of Cycil: I will heare the (sayde he) when thyne accusers are come also: and commaunded hym to be kepte in Herodes Pallayce.

The.xxiiij. Chapter.

Paul vnto Felix before Festus, he confoundeth his false accusers.

After fyue dayes Ananias the hye preiste descended with the elders and with a certayne oratour named Tertullus, and enfourmed the rular of Paul. Whē Paule was called forth, Tertullus began to accuse hym, sayinge: Seynge that we lyue in a great quietnes by the meanes of the: & that many good thynges are done vnto this nacyon through the thy prouidence: that alowe we euer and in all places, most myghty Felix, with all thankes. Notwithstandyng that I be not tedyous vnto the, I praye the that thou wouldest heare vs of thy curtesy a fewe wordes.

We haue founde this man a pestylent felowe, and a mouer of debate vnto all the Iewes throughout the world, and a mayntayner of the secte of the Nazarites, and hath also enforsed to pollute the temple. Whome we toke, and wolde haue iudged accordynge to our law, but the hye captayne Lysias came vpon vs, and with great violence toke hym awaye out of our handes, commaundyng his accusars to come vnto the. Of whome thou mayest (yf thou wilt enquyre) knowe the certaintye of all these thynges, whereof we accuse hym. The Iewes likewyse affirmed, sayinge: that it was euen so.

Then Paule (after that the ruler him selfe had beckened vnto hym that he shoulde speake) answered: I shall with a more quyet mynde answere for my selfe, forasmuche as I vnderstande that thou hast bene of many yeares a iudge vnto this people, because yͭ thou mayest know that there are yet but xij. dayes sence I wente vp to Jerusalem for to praye, & that they neyther founde me in the temple disputynge with anye man, eyther rayssynge vp the people neither in the synagoges, nor in the cite. Neyther can they proue the thynges whereof they accuse me.

But this I confesse vnto the, that after that waye (which they call heresye) so worshippe I the God of my fathers, beleuynge all thynges which are written in the lawe and the Prophetes, and haue hope towardes God (as these them selues loke for also) shall be both of iuste and vniuste. And therfore studye I to haue a clere conscience towarde God, and towarde man also.

But after many yeares I came & brought almes to my people and offrynges, in the whiche they founde me purified in the temple, neyther with multytude, nor yet with inquyetnes. Howbeit there were certayne Iewes out of Asia, which ought to be here present before the, & accuse me, yf they had ought agaynste me: or els let these same here saye, yf they haue founde anye yll doynge in me, whyle I stande here in the counsell: excepte it be for this one voyce that I cryed standynge amōge them, of the resurrection from death, am I iudged of you this daye.

When Felix heard these thynges he defer-

ffred them, for he harde herde well of that wap, and saied when Lisias the captayne is come, I wil knowe the utmost of youre matters. And he commaunded an vnder captaine to kepe Paul, and that he shoulde haue reste, and that he shoulde forbidde none of hys ac-quaintaunce to minister vnto hym, or to come vnto him.

¶ And after a certaine daies came ffelix and his wyfe Drusilla, which was a Jewesse, and called fouth Paul, and heard him of the fayth which is towarde Christ. And as he preached of righteousnes, temperaunce and iudgmēt to come. ffelix trembled and answered: thou haste done enough at this tyme, departe. Whē
I haue a conuenient tyme, I wil send for the.
He hoped also, that money should haue bene
geuē hym of Paul, that he myght louse him:
wherfore he called him the oftener, and communed with hym. But after .ij. yeare ffestus Portius came into ffelix roume. And ffelix wyllynge to shewe the Jewes a pleasure, left Paule in prison bounde.

The. xxv. Chapter.

¶ The Jewes accuse Paule before Festus. He appealed to the Emperour. And is sent to Rome.

Festus. Portius.

NOw when ffestus was come into ꝑ prouince, after iij. dayes, he ascended from Cesarea to Hieru salem. Then enformed hym
the hye priestes and the chefe of the Jewes, of Paule. And they besought hym, and desired fauoure against him, that he would sende for him to Hierusalem: and layed awaite for him in the waye to kyl him.
ffestus answered, that Paul shoulde be kepte
at Cesaria, but that he him selfe would shortly departe thyther. Let them therfore (saied he) whyche amonge you are able to do it, come doune with vs and accuse him, if there be any faulte in the man.

When he had taried there more then .x.
dayes he departed vnto Cesarea, and the next daye sate doune in the iudgemente seate, and commaunded Paule to be brought. When he was come, the Jewes, whyche were come from Hierusalem, came about hym and layd many and grieuous complaintes against Paul, whyche they could not proue as longe
as he answered for him selfe, that he had neither against the lawe of the Jewes, neither against the temple, nor yet against Cesar, offended any thynge at all. ffestus willing to do the Jewes a pleasure, answered Paule & sayd. Wylt thou go to Hierusalem, and there be iudged of these thinges before me? Then saied Paule: I stand at Cesars iudgement seate, where I ought to be iudged. To the Jewes haue I no harme done, as thou beryst wel knowest. yf I haue harte them, or committed anye thynge worthye of deathe, I refuse not to dye. yf none of these thinges are, wherof they accuse me, no man ought to deli-uer me to them. I appeale vnto Cesar. Then Paule appealed.

spake ffestus with the counsell, and answered. Thou haste appealed vnto Cesar, vnto Cesar shalt thou go.

After certaine daies, kynge Agrippa and Bernice came vnto Cesaria to salute ffestus. D Agrippa.
And when they had bene there a good season,
ffestus rehersed Paules cause vnto the kynge saynge: there is a certaine man left in prison of Felix, about whom when I came to Hieru
salem, the hye priestes, and elders of ꝑ Jewes informed me, and desired to haue iudgemente against him. To whome I answered: It is not the maner of the Romaynes to Deut. xix. c. deliuer any man that he shoulde perishe, before that he whiche is accused, haue the accusers before hym, & haue licence to answere for him selfe concernynge the crime layde against him: when they were come hither, without delaye on ꝑ morowe, I sate to geue iudgemente, E
and commaunded the mā to be brought forth.
Against whome when the accusers rose vp,
they brought none accusation of such thinges
as I supposed, but had certaine questions against him of their owne superstition, and of one Jesus, whyche was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be aliue. And because I doubted of such maner questions, I axed him whether he would go to Jerusalem, and there be iudged of these matters. Then when Paul had appealed to be kept vnto the knowledge of Ce sar: I cōmaunded him to be kept, tyll I might send him to Cesar.

Agrippa saied to ffestus: I would also F heare the man my selfe. To morowe (saide he) thou shalt heare him. And on the morow whē Agrippa was come, and Bernice with greate pompe, & were entered into the counsell house with the captaines, and chefemen of the cytye: at ffestus commaundement Paule was brought forth. And ffestus said. Kynge Agrippa, and all me which are here present with vs se this man about whom all the multitude of the Jewes haue bene with me both at Hierusalem & also here, crying that he ought not to liue anye lenger. Yet founde I nothynge G worthy of death that he had committed. Ne-uertheles synce that he hath appealed to Ce sar: I haue determined to sende him. Of whō
I haue no certaine thynge to write vnto my Lorde.

Wherfore I haue brought him vnto you,
and specially vnto the, kynge Agrippa, that after examinacion had, I myght haue some what to write. For me thinketh it vnreasonable, for to sende a prysoner, & not to shewe
the causes, whyche are layed against him.

The. xxvi. Chapter.

¶ Kynge Agrippa heareth Paule, who telleth vnto
his accusers cause from the beginninge.

AGrippa sayd vnto Paule: thou A art permitted to speake for thy selfe. Then Paule stretched fo-the the hand, and answered for before

this day before ye, of all thinges wherof I am accused of ye Jewes, namely because thou art exparte in all customes and questions, which are amonge the Jewes. Wherfore I beseche the to heare me paciently.

B My lyuinge of a childe, whiche was at the fyrst amonge myne owne nacion at Jerusalem, knowe all the Jewes, whyche knew me from the beginninge if they would testifye it. For after the most straytest secte of oure lawe, lyued I a pharisye, and now I stand, & am iudged for the hope of the promis made of God vnto our fathers vnto whyche promys our.xij. tribes instantly, serueinge God day and nyght hope to come. For whyche hopes sake, kinge Agrippa, I am accused of ye Jewes. Why should it be thought a thinge vncredible vnto you, that God should raise agayne the dead?

C I Verely thought in my selfe, that I ought to do many contrarye thinges, clene agaynste the name of Nazareth, which thinge I also dyd in Jerusalem. Where many of ye sainctes I shut vp in prison, and had receiued authorite of the hye priestes. And when they were put to death, I gaue the sentence. And I punished them ofte, in euery synagoge, and compelled them to blaspheme, and was yet more madde vpon them, and persecuted them euen vnto straunge cities. Aboute which thinges as I went to Damasco with authorite and licence of the hye priestes, euen at mydday (O kinge) I sawe in the way a lyght from heauen, aboue the brightnes of the sunne, shyne rounde aboute me, and them whyche iourneyed with me.

When we were all fallen to the earth: I D heard a voice speakinge vnto me, and saynge in the Hebrue tonge: Saul Saul, why persecutest ye me? It is hard for the to kicke against the pricke. And I said, Who art thou Lorde? And he sayd: I am Jesus whom thou persecutest, but ryse and stand vp on thy fete. For I haue appeared vnto the for this purpose, to make the a minister, and a witnes both of those thinges, whiche thou hast sene, and of Mark.13.a. those thinges in the which I will appeare vnto the deliuering the from the people, and from the gentils, vnto whiche now I sende the, to open their eyes, that they myght turne from darcknes to lyght, and from the power of Satan vnto God: that they maye receiue forgeuenes of synnes, and inheritaunce amonge them, whyche are sanctyfyed by faith in me. Faith.

E Wherfore kinge Agrippa I was not disobedient vnto the heauenly vision: but shewed fyrst vnto them of Damasco, and at Hierusalem and throughout all the coastes of Jewry, and to the gentyls, that they should repent, & tourne to God, and do the ryght workes of repentaunce. For this cause the Jewes caught me in the temple, and went about to kyll me. Neuertheles I obtayned helpe of God, and continue vnto this daye wytnessinge both to small and to great, sayinge none other thinges, then those which the prophetes and Moyses dyd saye should come that Christe should suffer, and that he should be the fyrste, that should ryse from death, and should shewe lyght vnto the people, and to the gentyls.

As he thus answered for himselfe, Festus F sayed with a loude voyce. Paul, thou art beside thy selfe. Muche learninge hath made the mad. And Paul sayd: I am not mad, most deare Festus, but speake the wordes of trueth & sobernes. The kinge knoweth of these thinges, before whom I speake freely, neither thinke I that anye of these thinges are hydden from hym. For this thinge was not done in a corner. Kinge Agrippa beleuest thou the prophetes? I wote well thou beleuest. Agrippa sayed to Paule: Some what thou temptest me in mynd for to become a Christian. And Paul sayde: I would to God that not onlye thou: but also all that heare me to daye, were not some what onelye but altogether suche as I am, exceptе these bondes. And whē he had G thus spoken: the kynge rose vp, and the debite, and Bernice and they that sate with them. And when they were gone aparte: they talked betweene them selues saying. This man doth nothinge worthy of death, nor of bōdes. Then sayde Agrippa vnto Festus: This man myght haue bene loused if he had not appealed vnto Cesar.

The.xxvij. Chapter.

¶ Paule shippeth towarde Rome. Iulius the Chapitayne entreateth him courteously, at the last they suffered shipwracke.

NOw it was concluded that we shoulde sayle into Italye, A they deliuered Paule, and certayne other prisoners vnto one named Julius, an vnder capitayne of Cesars souldiers. And we entred into a ship of Adramicium, and lowsed from land, appointed to sayle by the coastes of Asia, one Aristarcus out of Macedonia, of the cōstrey of Thessalia, bringe with vs. And the nexte daye we came to Sidon. And Julius courteously entreated Paule, and gaue him libertie to go vnto his frēdes, and to refreshe him selfe. And from thence launched we, and sayled hard by Cyprus, because the windes were cōtrarie. Then sayled we ouer the sea of Cylicia, and Pamphylia, and came to Myra a citie in Lycia. 1.Cor.xi.l.

B And there the vnder capitayne founde a shyp of Alexander redy to sayle into Italye & put vs therin. And whē we had sailed slowly manye dayes, and scace were come ouer againste Gnidon (because the wynde withstode vs) we sayled harde by the coastes of Candy, ouer againste Salmo, and with much worke sayled beyonde it, and came vnto a place called good porte. Nye whervnto was a cyte called Lasea. When muche tyme was spente and saylinge was nowe ieoperdous, because also that we had ourelonge fasted, Paul C put them in remembraunce, and sayed vnto them Sirs: I perceiue that this viage wille

wyth hurte and much domage, not of the lodynge. And ship ouerp: but also of ourr liues. Neuertheles the vnder captaine beleued the gouerner & the master, better then those thinges, which were spoken of Paule. And because the hauen was not commodious to winter in, many toke counsell to departe thence, if by anye meanes they might attaine to Phenices, and there to winter, which is an hauen of Candy, and lyeth to the southwest and northwest wind. Whē the south wind blewe, they supposynge to obtayne their purpose, louted vnto Asson and sailed paste al Candy.

D But anone after there arose against their purpose, a stowre of winde out of ỹ southeaste. And when the shyp was caughte, and coulde not resiste the winde, we lette her go & drawe with the wether. And we came vnto ample named Clauda, and had muche worke to come by a bote, whiche they toke vp and vsed helpe, vndergerdinge the shippe, fearinge lest they shoulde haue fallen into Syrtes and we let doune a vessell and so were saued. The nexte daye, when we were tossed with an exceadinge tempest, they lightened the shippe, & the third daye we cast out with oure owne handes, the tackelinge of the shippe. When at the laste neither sunne nor starre in many dayes appeared, and no smal tempest laye vpon vs, all hope that we shoulde be saued, was then taken awaye.

Then after longe abstinence, Paul stode forth in the middest of them and saied: Syrs ye shoulde haue herkened to me, and not haue louted from Candy, neyther to haue brought vnto vs this harme and losse. And nowe I exhoute you to be of good chere, for there shall be no losse of anye mans lyfe amonge you, saue of the shyppe onelye. For there stode by me this nyght the aungell of God. Whose I am, and whom I serue, sayinge. Feare not Paule, for thou muste be brought before Cesar. And lo, God hath geuen vnto the all that sayle wyth the. Wherfore Syrs be of good cheare: for I beleue God, that so it shal be ryght as it was tolde me. How be it we must be cast into a certaine Ilande.

But when the fourtenth nyght was come, as we were carped in Adria about midnyght, the shipmen demed that there appeared some countrey vnto them: and sounded, and founde it.xx. fadoms. And whē they had gone a litle further, they sounded againe, and founde. xv. fadoms. Then fearing lest they should haue fallen on some Rocke, they cast.iiii. ancres out the sterne, and wyshed for the day. As the shipmen were about to flee out of the shyp, & had let doune the bote into the sea, vnder a colour, as though they would haue cast ancres out of the forshyppe: Paule saied vnto the vnder captaine, and the souldiers: except these abyde in the shyp, ye can not be safe. Then the souldiers cut of the rope of the bote, and let it fall awaye.

And in the meane tyme betwixt that and daye, Paule besought them all to take meate, sayinge: this is the fourtenth daye, that ye haue tarried, and continued fastinge, receiuinge nothinge at all. Wherfore I praye you take meate: for this no hinder is for your healthe: for there shall not an heire fal from the heade of anye of you. And when he had thus spoken, he toke bread, and gaue thankes to God in presence of them all, and brake it, and began to eate. Then were they all of good cheare, and they also toke meate. We were all together in the shippe, two hundreth three score and sixteene soules. And when they had eaten inough, they lyghtened the shippe, & cast out the wheate into the sea.

When it was daye, they knewe not the land, but they spied a certaine hauen wyth a banke, into the which they were minded (if it were possible) to thrust in the shippe. And whē they had taken vp the ancres, they committed them selues vnto the sea, and louted ỹ rudder bondes, and hoysed vp the mayne sayle to the winde and drawe to lande. But they chaunced on a place, whiche had the sea on both the syders, and thruste in the ship. And the fore part stucke fast and moued not, but ỹ hynder brake wyth the violence of the waters.

The souldiers counsel was to kyll ỹ prysoners, lest anye of them, when he had swomme out, shoulde flee awaye. But the vnder captaine willing to saue Paule, kepte them from their purpose, and commaunded that they ỹ could swyme, should cast them selues first into the sea, and scape to land. And the other he commaunded to go, some on bourdes, & some on broken peces of the shyp. And so it came to passe, that they came al safe to lande.

The notes.

Syrtes. 4. Syrtes be perilous Candye places in ỹ sea, about the coastes of Affrica, of the nature of whirlpoles.

The.xxviij. Chapter.

The voyage of the Hyper knowen vnto Paules frendes: He healeth Publius father, and preacheth Christ at Rome.

A AND when they were scaped, then they knewe that the Ile was called Mylete. And ỹ people of the countrey shewed vs no litel kyndnes: for they kindled a fyre, and receiued vs euery one, because of the present rayne, and because of the colde. And when Paule had gathered a bundel of stykes, and put them into the fyre, there came a viper out of the heate, and lept on his hand. When the men of the countrey sawe the wourme hange on his hande, they sayd amonge them selues: this man must nedes be a murtherer. Whom (though he haue escaped the sea) yet vengeaunce suffereth not to liue. But he shooke of the wourme into the fyre and felt no harme. Howe be it they wayted when he should haue swollen: or fallen downe dead sodenly. But after they had loked a greate whyle, and sawe no harme come to him, they chaunged their mindes, and said that he was a God.

In the same quarters the chefe man of the yle whose name was Publius had a lordeshyp: the same receaued vs, and lodged vs the dayes courteously. And it fortuned that ỹ father of Publius lay sicke of a feuer and of a bloudy flixe. To whom Paule entred in and prayed, and layed his handes on him, and healed him. When this was done, other also which had diseases in the yle came and were healed. And they dyd vs great honoure. And when we departed they loded vs with thinges necessary.

Laying on of handes.

¶ After thre monethes we departed in a shyppe of Alexandria, whiche had wintred in the yle whose badge was a. Castor and Pollux: And when we came to Syracusa, we taried there.iij. dayes. And from thence we fet a compasse and came to Regium. And after one daye the south wynd blew, and we came the next daye to Putiolus: where we founde brethren, and were desired to tarye with them seuen dayes, and so came to Rome. And from thence, when the brethren hearde of vs, they came against vs to Appiphorum, and to ỹ three tauernes. When Paule sawe them, he thanked God, and waxed bold. And when he came to Rome, the vndercaptaine deliuered the prisoners to the chiefe captaine of the host: but Paule was suffred to dwelle by him selfe with one souldier that kepte him. And it fortuned after thre dayes that Paul called ỹ chefe of the Jewes together. And when they were come, he saide vnto them: Men and brethren though I haue committed nothinge against the people or lawes of oure fathers: yet was I deliuered prisoner from Jerusalem into the handes of ỹ Romaynes. Whiche when they had examined me, wolde haue let me go, because they found no cause of death in me. But when the Jewes cryed contrary, I was constrayned to appeale to Cesar: not because I had ought to accuse my people of. For this cause haue I called for you, euen to se you, and to speake with you: because that for the hope of Israell, I am bounde with this chayne.

¶ And they saide vnto him: We neyther receaued letters out of Jewry pertayninge vnto the, neyther came any of the brethren that shewed or spake any harme of the. But we will heare of the what thou thynkest. For we haue hearde of this sect that every where it is spoken against. And when they had appointed him a daye, there came many vnto him into his lodgynge, to whom he expounded and testified the kingedome of God, and preached vnto them of Jesu: both out of the Prophetes, euen from morninge to nyghte. And some beleeued the thinges, whyche were spoken, and some beleeued not.

¶ When they agreed not amonge themselues, they departed, after that Paule had spoken one worde: Well spake the holy ghoste by Esai.vi.c. Mat.xiij.b

Esay the prophet vnto oure fathers, saynge: go vnto this people, and saye: with youre eares shall ye heare, & shall not vnderstande: and with youre eies shal ye se and shall not perceyue. Mat.xiij. Luk.viij. John.xij. Rom.xj.

For the hert of this people is waxed grosse and their eares were thicke of hearinge, and their eyes haue they closed: lest they should se with their eyes, and heare with their eares, and vnderstande with their hertes, and should be conuerted, and I should heale them. Be it knowen therfore vnto you, that this saluation of God is sente to the gentyles, and they shall heare it. And when he had saied that, the Jewes departed, and had greate disputacion among them selues.

¶ And Paule dwelt two yeares full in his lodgynge, and receyued all that came to him, preaching those thynges, whyche concerned the Lorde Jesus with all confydence vnforboden.

¶ The notes.

a. These in olde tyme were esteemed as Goddes. Who if they appeared both together, were counted fauourable, and lucky to mariners, and suche as trauayled the seas. If one after an other or one alone: vnfortunate and cruell. The owner of the ship carryed the badge of them, not without great confidence therin, that these two Goddes would prosper his viage, because he honoured them with the carying therof. Here endeth the Actes of the Apostles.

A Prologe

vpon the Epistel of S. Paule to the Romayns.

W.T.

For as much as this Epistle is the principall and most excellent part of the newe testamente, and moste pure euangelion, that is to saye, glad tydynges, and that we call Gospell, and also a light and a maner in, vnto the whole scripture: I thynke it meete, that euery Christen man, not onely learne it by hert and without the booke: but also exercise him selfe therin continually, as with the daylye breade of the soule. No man beleue can ymagine it to ofte, or study it to well, for the more it is studyed the tougher it is, the more it is chewed, the pleasanter it is, and the more groundes of it searched, the preciouler thinges are founde in it, to geue matter of spirituall thynges vnto the therein.

I will therfore beforne my labour and beginninge, shewe two lytle preface or Prologes, to prepare a waye vnto them: to forthwith as God shall geue me grace, that it may be vnderstonde of euery man. For it hath ben hitherto euil darckened with glosis and wonderfull dreames of Sophisters, that no man could fynde out the ryght and meaninge of it, whyche neuertheles yet of it selfe, is a playne light, and sufficient to geue light vnto all the Scripture. First we will marke diligently the maner of speakinge of the Apostle, and when it ryngeth hardly, what Paule gyueth mercyth he shall wynne the Lawe, Grace, Glory, Eareth, Righteousnesse, Godly, Spirite, and lastly life, as the reste shall it neuer to ofte, thou shalt but lose thy labour. Thus maye Lawe workes not be performed here, after the commune maner, and to the Pawles terme, after the manner of men or after mannes iudgement thou wonderest (sir, the lawe hath in thys place three meninges, but learninges. Wherby teacheth what ought to be done, and what ought not to be done, as it goeth with mennes lawe. Where the law is fulfilled with outwarde workes onely though the herte be neuer so farre of. But God iudgeth the ground of the herte, as and the thoughtes and the secrete meninges of the mynde, and therfore hys lawe requyreth the grounde of the herte and loue from the bottome thereof, and so not contente with the outwarde workes onelye: but rebuketh thole workes most of all, which spring not of loue from the grounde and lawe bottome of the herte, though they appere outwarde ful of good workes.

For all men are naturallye enclined vnto euyll and hate the lawe, we fynde in oure selues buluft and tendernesse to do good, but lufte and delectacion to do euyll. Now where no free lufte is to do good, there the bottome of the herte fulfilleth not the lawe, and there no doubte is alle synne, and worth to be forsaken before God, though there be neuer so greate an outwarde dedes and appearance of honeste ipnage.

For thys cause concludeth Paule in the seconde chapter, that the Iewes are all synners and trauigressours of the lawe, though they make men believe thorough hypocrisy of outwarde workes, howe that they fulfyll the lawe, and sayeth that he onelye which doeth the lawe is righteous before God. Herafore knowe therfore, that no man with outwarde workes, fulfylleth the lawe.

Thou sayest he is the Iewe, teacheth that a man shoulde not breake wedlocke, and yet breakest wedlocke thy selfe, wherein thou iudgest an other man therin condemnest thou thy selfe, for thou thy selfe doest euen the selfe same thinges, whiche thou iudgest. As though he woulde say, thou iudgest outwardly well in the workes of the lawe, and yet doest thou euyll in the bottome of the lawe, and yet doest thou true not so. Thou teachest other men, and lerest a mote in an other mannes eye, but art not aware of the beame, that is in thine owne eye. For though thou kepe the lawe outwardely with workes, for feare of ye lawe, shame and punishment, or other for loue of rewarde, aduantage, and honor, ye are but hollow and all rotteness false and lame towarde the lawe, and hatedest leuer a great deale otherwyse to do, if thou durste not feare the lawe. Yea imagenest in thine herte thou wouldest that there were no lawe, no not yet GOD, the author and bringer of the lawe, if it were possible, to perchall it to bene the, to how myne appointed reckenynge, and to be happe bonne.

Wherfore then it is a playne conclusion, that thou from the grounde and bottome of thine herte arte and enemye to the lawe. What pretendest it now that thou teachest another man not to steale, when thou thyne owne selfe arte a theefe in thine herte, and outwardly wouldest fayne steale if thou durste? though that the outwarde deede abyde not alwayes betwene thefe false hypocrites and dissemblers, but breaketh forthe amonge men as an euyl frutte as a pache can not alwayes be kept in with busines of mennes.

Thou teachest another man but teachest not thy selfe, yea thou teachest not what thou teachest, for thou understandest it not the lawe aright, bycause it can not be fulfylled and forsaken, but with an hatefull love and affection, so genelye it can not be fulfilled with outwarde dedes and workes onelye. Moreouer the lawe exceadeth farre, as he sayeth in the .vii. chapter, because that man is an enemye to the lawe, for as muche as it requyreth to myne thynges

The law exceadeth synne.

agaynst nature, and nature to the lawe, and to fulfyll one poynte it cyrcle as the lawe requyreth it. Now therfore are the more greuous, and have greater luft to breake it.

For whych cause saith he sayeth in the seuenth Chapter that the lawe is spirituall: as though he would saye, all the lawe were shadowes and the more beclerne, it maybe be fulfylled, sacrifices, and dedes lay bourynges taken. But notice to the lawe gostly, and no man fulfylleth it, except he be of the spirite of loue sprynge of loue from the bottome of the herte. Gyue a newe herte and lusty courage vnto the lawe to me, make thou newe men by of myne owne strength and ordynaunce, but by the operacion and workynge of the spirite.

The spirite is required yet we can kepe ye lawe.

For the spirite of God onely maketh a man spirituall, and lyke vnto the lawe, so that now vnwillyngly he doeth outwarde of feare, as the lawe, as bondage folke, as of myne owne, but of a free herte and of the inwarde lufte. The lawe is spirituall, and myne onely loued and fulfylled of a spirituall herte, and therfore of necessitye requyreth of the spirite that maketh a mannes herte free, and gyueth hym lufte and courage vnto the lawe inwarde, where fache a spirite is not, there is nameth synne growyng, and hateful against the lawe, though the lawe moueth vnto good, righteousnesse and holye.

To do the dedes of the lawe, and to fulfyll the law are two thynges.

Acquayne the felfe therfore with the maner of speakynge of the Apostell, and let vs now thinke felfe in thine herte, that it is not inough to do the dedes and workes of the lawe, and to fulfyll the lawe. The workes of the lawe is whatsoeuer a man worketh, as can do of his owne free wyll, of his owne proper strength and endeuynge.

Moreouer though there be many to greate workynge, yet so longe as there remayneth in the herte hatrede, vnkyndnesse, grudgynge, enuye, parua', lothfulnesse, and corruption towarde the lawe, so longe are all the workes vnperfecte holye, yea and damnable in the syghte of GOD. Thus meaneth Paule in the .iii. Chapter, where he sayeth by the dedes of the lawe shall no fleshe be iustyfyed in the syghte of GOD. Marke by perfecte thou, that thole sophisters are but deceyuers, whyche teache that a man maye and maketh prepare him selfe to grace, and to the fauoure of GOD with good workes, before he haue the spirite and true loue of Christe. Howe can they prepare them selues vnto the fauoure of GOD, and to that whyche is good: when they them selues can do no good, no not once thynke a good thought as conforme to be good, the deuill poysenynge their hertes, myndes and thoughtes vnpure and vnclene. Can thole sophisters make GOD thynke: thou, whyche are lame with gyrdle, sower and sowrelooke myne as thou wyll, with a courtesy and grauynge maner? O holy S. Hyeronyme, how mighty myne to. Seruyces of Paule speaketh thou vnfauoure thys matter, shame O thou, an hundreth yeres ago, as thou seest, to fulfyll the lawe, to do the workes thereof, o wretched lawe commaundeth myne to loue, and to serue all men, and to forgeue iniuryes, and to loue Gode with all herte, mynde, and myght, and without compulsion of the lawe, euen as though there were no lawe at all: thou lufte and free spirite to the lawe, comest onely by the workynge of the spirite in the herte, as he sayeth in the fyrst Chapter.

Prosper.

To fulfyll the lawe, what it is.

Now is the spirite none otherwyse geuen then he sayeth onely, in that we beleue the promyses of God without wauerynge, holdynge that God is true and wyll fulfyll all hys good promyses towarde vs for Christes bloudes sake, as it is playne in the fyrste Chapter. I am not ashamed (sayeth Paule) of Christes glad tydynges, for it is the power of God vnto saluacion, to all many as beleue. For as soone as ye herte is The spirite cometh by fayth. ouercome by fayth onely, euen by fayth ye myth be holpen by hearynge the glad tydynges preached to vs, the holy ghost entreth anon herein, and kyndleth the hoarce of the herte, wherin he before rested cold herte in vnbeliefe, and holdeth them that we cannot howe we shall to the well of God in the lawe. And so the spirite cometh by fayth onely, euen by fayth ye myth be holpen by hearynge the worde of God, which Christ is preached. Herfore that he so often times and many a fyle, both and often ouerthrowe for our fathers, as he sayth in the three and .4. Chapter. All ouer withstandynge them cometh by fayth, and fayth and the spirite are one of God, and not of vs. Where the fyre, there ouercometh the spirite, so not to be vnderstand, as ye fayth betweene the spirite or that the spirite is not ye fyrste in vs before fayth. For the spirite is euer to be, and fayth to the gyftes and workynge of the spirite. But whyche ye spirite, ye spirite beginneth to worke in vs.

Fayth cometh by hearynge the glad tydynges.

And as he preachynge the lawe, he worketh the feare of God: so preachynge the glad tydynges, he worketh fayth. And notice where he sayeth are come vnder the covenaunte of GOD, then are we lore of the spirite by the promyse of God, and then the spirite accompanyeth faieth inseparably, and we begin to fele hys workynge. And so faieth receyveth vs of the spirite, and also bringeth the spirite with her, vnto the workynge of all other giftes of grace, and to the workynge out of the rule of our saluacion, whych we have altogether ouercome (yn, death, hell, and Sathan, and are come to the euerlastynge lyfe of glorye. And for thys cause saye we faieth bringeth the spirite.

Faieth onely iustifyeth.

Herevf cometh it that faieth onelye iustifyeth, maketh righteous, and iustifieth the lawe, for it bringeth the spirite through Christes deserueynge, the spirite bringeth loue, loue the herte, maketh them fre, setteth them at libertye, and geueth them strength to worke the dedes of the lawe with loue, euen as the lawe requireth. Then at the laste ende of the same faieth is workynge in the herte, bringe all good workes by them alone accepte. That meaneth he in the thirde chapter, by seyenge he hath caste awaye the workes of the lawe, to that he soundeth as though he wolde vtterly abolysshe and dyscanull the lawe, whereto faieth: he answereth to that maye be layd agaynste hym, saynge: we dellroye not the lawe through faieth but maynteyne, harder or stablyshe the lawe through faieth. That is to saye, we fulfyll the lawe through faieth.

Workes bringe of faieth.

Seynge as the scripture is not called that outwarde worke onelye committeth by the bodelye but all the whole substance and whatsoeuer accompanyeth, moueth or styreth vnto the outwarde dede and that whence the workes springe as vnbelefe, pryde, and reuenge vnto the dede in the grounde of the herte, with all the powers, affections and appetites, wherevnto we can but synne. So that we fore saye a man then synneth, when he is forced ageynste walkynge into synne, altogether as muche as he is, of his gostly inclynacion and corrupt nature wherein he is conceyued and borne.

For there is none ouerwarde synne committed, except a man be forced afore altogether, with lyke loue, herte, lyking, lufte and mynde thereto. The scripture calleth irregularities vnto the herte, and vnto the rote and originall fountayne of all synne, whyche is vnbelefe in the bottome of the herte. For as faieth onelye iustifyeth and bringeth the spirite and lufte vnto the outwarde good workes, euen so vnbelefe onelye hampreth and hyndreth vnto the spirite, prouoketh the fleshe, and diuerteth by lufte vnto the cursed outwarde workes, as happened to Adam and Eue in paradyse. Genesis. iij.

For thys cause Christe calleth synne vnbelefe, and that notably in the. xvi. chapter of S. Iohn. The spirite (saieth he) shall rebuke the worlde of synne, because they beleue not in me. And Iohn. viij. I am the lyghte of the worlde. And therefore in the xij. of Iohn he bydeth them whyle they have lyghte to beleue in the lyghte, that ye maye be the chyldren of lyghte. He that walketh in darcknes wote not whether he goeth. Agayne as Christe is the lyghte, so is the ignoraunce of Christe that darcknes where of he speaketh. In whyche he that walketh wote not whether he goeth: that is to saye not howe to worke a good worke in the lyghte of GOD, or what a good worke is. And therefore in the xv he speaketh as longe as I am in the worlde, I am the lyghte of the worlde: but there commeth nyghte when no man can worke, whyche nyghte is but the ignoraunce of Christe in whyche no man can fe to do anye worke to please GOD. And Paule ephesyeth. v. that they walke not as other heathen, whyche are strangers from the lyfe of GOD, through the ignoraunce that is in them. And agayne in the same Chapter. Put of (sayeth he) the olde man, whyche is corrupt through the lustes of errour that is to saye ignoraunce. And Roma. xvij. Let vs caste awaye the dedes of darcknes, that is to saye of ignoraunce and vnbelefe. And 1. Peter. i. Fashion not youre selues vnto youre olde lustes of ignoraunce. And 1. Iohn. ij. He that loueth his brother dwelleth in lyghte, and he that heateth his brother walketh in darcknes, and wote not whether he goeth for darcknes hath blynded his eyes. By lyghte he meaneth the knowledge of Christe, and by darcknes the ignoraunce of Christe. For it is impossible that he that knoweth Christe truelye, (thanke be to hys worthy Fosteremayd, to purchase vs these thynges most dearely vnto vs all) that he is our righteousnes, that is our perfyte satisfaccion for all our synne & maketh the fulfyller of the commaundementes before. Vnto the fulfyll commaundementes belongeth two thynges: The Loue GOD is one God, and thou shalte loue thy Loude GOD with all thyne herte, with all thy soule, with all thy power, and with all thy mynde. And the whole cause why I sey agayne all the inferiours precepte, is that thys loue is not in myne herte, for were thys loue wrapped in myne herte, and were full and perfyte in me (whych wolde hope myne herte from commynge vnto euyll) vnderstonde that he made all and ruleth all, and that whatsoeuer is done to me, whether it be good or bad, is put hys will, and that he owghte to the Loude that ruleth and doeth it. And wythe thereto what thys worde myne meaneth: that is to saye: yf myne herte beleuyth and felt the infynyte bountefes and kyndenes of GOD to me warde, and vnderstode and remembre beleuyth the manyfolde sownaunces of mercye, wherewyth, GOD hath bounde hym selfe, to be myne wholy and altogether with all hys power, loue, mercye, and myghte, then shoulde I loue hym with all myne herte soule, power, and myghte, and of that loue kepe hys commaundementes. So is ye playne, that as faieth is the mother of all goodnes and of all good workes: so is vnbelefe the grounde and rote of all euyll, and all cursed workes. Finally, yf any man that hath forsaken synne, and is comaunded to put his trust in Christe, and to kepe the lawe of God, be fall or a tyme the cause is, that the fleshe through negligence hath choked the spirite and oppressed her, and taken from her the rode of her strength, whyche rode is her redy recourse in GOD, and in hys mouthefull promyses, and in the manyfolde sownaunces of hys mercye. Wherefore then before all good workes (as bad frutes) there muste nedes be vnbelefe in the herte, as in the rote, fountayne, well and strength of all synne, whyche vnbelefe and ignoraunce is rulled the head of the serpente and of the olde dragon, whyche the woman the Christe muste treade vnder foote, as it was prophesied vnto Adam.

Grace and gyfte haue thys differaunce, Grace properlye is Gods fauour, benyuolence or kyndenes towarde vs of hys owne fre wyll, without deserueynge of vs, he beareth to vs, wherevnto he was moued and enclined to geue Christe vnto vs, with all hys other giftes of grace. Gyfte is the holye ghoste and hys workynge wroom he powreth into the herte of them, on whom he hath mercye, and whom he fauoureth. Though the giftes of the spirite increase in vs dayly, and haue not yet their full perfeccion, yea and though there remayne in vs yet euyll lustes and synne, whyche fyghte agaynste the spirite, as he speaketh here in the seuenth Chapter, and in the fyfte to the Gala. and as it was spoken before in the third chapter of Genesis, of the debate betwene the womans sede, and the sede of the serpente: yet neuertheles Godden fauoure is so greate, and is strong ynto vs for Christes sake that we are counted for full, hole, and perfecte before GOD. For Goddes fauoure towarde vs bringeth not her fyfte, excepte ynge a lyfe and a lyfe, as we the giftes, but receyueth vs hole altogether in full lyue for Christes sake oure intercessor and mediatour, and bycause that the giftes of the spirite and the battayle betwene the spirite and euyll lustes, are begon in vs already.

Grace. Gyfte.

Of thys worde vnderstonde then the seuenth Chapter, where Paule accuseth hym selfe as a synner, and yet in the viij. Chapter sayeth, there is no dampnacion to them that are in Christe, and that because of the spirite and because the giftes of the spirite are begonne in vs. Synners we are because the fleshe is not full holye and mercyfull. Neuertheles in as muche as we beleue in Christe, and haue the frutes and begynnynge of the spirite, and trouble (agaynst be perfecte) GOD is so louynge and fauourable vnto vs that he wyll not laye no lustes synne, neyther will counte it as synne, but will beare wyth vs accordynge to oure beleue in Christe, and accordynge to hys promyse, vntyll he haue brought vs to, lyuyth the synne be full ouer and mastered by death. Faieth is not mans opynion and dreame, as some papystes and sayne, when they heare the Gospel of the Gospel. But when they se that they folowe no good workes nor mendement of lyuynge, though they heare, and can dispute neuer so many sermons of faieth yet when they fall from the ryghte waye, and sayne, faieth onelye iustifyeth not, a man muste haue good good maketh alle, yf the herte be ryghtwyse and faithe. The cause is when they heare the gospell or glad tydinges they fayne of their owne brought conceyued imaginacions and thoughtes in their herte (saying I haue herde the Gospell, I remember the Gospell, I beleue. And that they counte ryght fayth which nevertheles as it is but mere presumpcion and fayning, cause to profyte it not neyther foloweth there any mendemente of lyuynge.

Faieth is not a worke of man.

Ryght fayth is of the working of the spirit of god.

But ryghte fayth is a thinge wrought by the holy ghoste in vs, whiche chaungeth vs into a newe nature and begetteth vs a newe in God, and maketh vs the sonnes of God, as thou redest in the first of Ihon, and kylleth the olde Adam, and maketh vs altogether newe in the herte, mynde, will, lust and in all other affections and power of the soule the holy ghoste euer accompanyenge her and ruelinge the herte. Fayth is a lyuely thinge, mightye in workinge, boysterous and stronge, euer doinge, ever fruytfull. In that it is impossible that he whiche is endued therewith, shulde not worke all maner good workes without ceasinge. He asketh not whether good workes are to be done or not, but hath done them alredye ere occasion be made of them and is all maye doinge, fruytfull in his nature: now ryseth fayth in the herte and lyuely mouynge of the spirite hyde him therunto. Of holynesse worketh not good workes is an vnbelefull monge persons and superstycyous and taketh rekenynge about groppinge after fayth and good workes, and wotteth not what fayth or good workes meane, though he babbell never so many thinges of fayth and good workes. Fayth is then a lyuely and stedfast trust in the fauour of God, wherevpon the conscience relyeth all together vnto God, and that trust is so surely grounded and stedeth so fast in euery herte, that a man wolde not once doute of it, though he shoulde dye a thousande tymes therefore. And such trust wrought by the holye ghost through fayth maketh a man glad, lusty, cheerfull, and true hearted vnto God and to all creatures. By the meanes wherof, willyngnes and without compulsion he is glad and redy to do good to euery one to suffer all thinges that God maye delight and please, whiche hath geuen him such grace to that it is impossible to seperate good workes from fayth, euen as it is impossible to seperate heat and burninge from fyre. Therefore take hede, and beware of these other fantastycall workes or iuges of fayth and good workes, wyll feme wyse, when in dede they are dawbe pinnes and of all thinges most faithe. Prayse God that he wyll vouchsafe to worke faith in thine herte: so shalt thou perceyue euermore spirite, fayre fyre, imagen thou, enforce thou, thoughte worth thy selfe, and do what thou wilt. &c.

Fayeth what it is.

Fayeth is righteousnes.

Righteousnesse is euen faithe fayeth, and is called Goddes righteousnes, or righteousnes that is of value before God. For it is Goddes gyfte and it alowyth a man and chaungeth him to a newe spirituall nature, and maketh him free and liberall to pay euery man his dutie. For thereby fayeth is a man purged of his synnes, and obteyneth lust vnto the lawe of God, wherby he geueth God his honoure and payeth him that he oweth him, and vnto men he doeth (as muche as in him lyeth) what he can, and payeth euery man his dutie. Suche ryghteousnes can nature, for myght, and our owne strength neuer bringe to passe. For as no man can geue him selfe fayeth: so can he not take away vnbelefe, how ofte so ever he take paine and trauaile at it. Wherefore al to fayle hypocrysie and feyned lyuynge is done without fayth as an vnbeliefe, as it is euident in the fourth chapter vnto the Romayns, though it appere neuer so glorious, as hereafter ouerwardes.

Fleshe and spirite maketh thou not here bodye and soule as though fleshe were only that which the pestylent hath vnto lecherie: and the spirite that which onlye pertayneth to the heate, but Paule calleth fleshe here as Christe doeth. Ihon. iij. All that is borne of fleshe, that is to wyte, the whole man hyeth left vnto bodye, wyt, myll, reason, and what soeuer he is or hath myth in and without, because that there all and all that is in man. Borne after the worde and the spirite. Call fleshe therefore what soeuer (so longe as we are without the spirite of God) we speake or speake, of God, of fayeth, of good workes, and of spirituall matter. Call fleshe also all workes whiche are done without grace and without the mouynge of the spirite, holy to euer good before and spirituall they seme to be: as thou maiest paint by the.xij. Chapter to the Galathians where Paule nombreth, hostelrynges of Idols, witchcrafte, Enuye, and sinne, among the deedes of the fleshe, and by the.v. chapter to the Romayns where he sayth that the lustes of the fleshe is warre, inmytie or not vnderstandyng of the goodnesse of God, but of al sinnes, and moste specially of vnbelefe, whych is a lyfe most spirituall, and gyuen of all synnes.

Spiritual.

And so then calleth Paule whatsoeuer is not ruled with the spirite, and bryng against the spirite, euen all the lustes, euen the purest maner of the deedes and workes, the holynesse, holynesse, and contemplacion of the mynde, the preachinge, teachinge, and fastes of the Prestes, buildynge of churches, honourynge of sayntes, gyuynge of almes deedes, masses, and whatsoeuer he doth, (though it be neuer spirituall and after the lawes of God, shulde he conceyue myth and hert spirituall, myght to resyste in Christe, and all the other myghtes (gyftes of fayeth, seme they neuer so godly) as the tydinges of the Gospell here bore by Christe, and Paules sythinge after the resurrection, yea and all the deedes of mortyfyenge are gone spirituall, yf they procede of fayeth and obedience to bene vnto the lawes of God, thoughte in the mynde of the doere, as the purest myghtes of heauen and fayth (the beholdynge gostes they appere ourwarde. Without doubtynge of holy Workes, can't thou neuer beleeue thus ryghte of Paule, neyther any other place in the holye Scripture. Take hede therfore, lay inwardest vnderstandyth thou with a other spirit, the same vnderstandyth not Paule, what soeuer he be. Marke well the purpose ouer taken to the Epistle.

The fyrste chapeter.

¶ Paule maketh as it behoueth the preacher of Christes glad tydinges, fyrst thorowe experyence of the lawe: to rebuke al thinges, and to geue al thinges scope, that pacte be one of the spirite and of fayeth in Christe, and to plante all vnto fayeth and obedyence of mouth by experyence, and bycause that he speaketh to their nature, and that by nature they can none other myth be then frame, and that myth to abate the pryde of man, and to bringe him vnto the knowledge of him selfe, and of his synne and wretchednesse, that he myght better labor. Ouer is he doeth S. Paul, and beginneth in the fyrste chapetre to rebuke vnbelefe and gentle synnes wherin all men lye, as Idolatrye, and as the gentyl synnes of the heathen were, and as the Iewes now are of all them which lyue in ignorance without fayeth and without the fauour of God. The myght of God of heauen appereth thorowe the Gospel vpon all men for their vngodlynesse and vnbelefe (saye.c. Fo though it be hydeous, and harde vnderstande by the creatures that there is but one God: yet is nature of her selfe without the spirit and grace, to ignorante and to gentlenes, that men neyther can thanke him as they ought, neyther can thanke him as they ought, neyther can thanke him as they ought, but become, but wexe them selues ouer fonde, whether feedinge into mere sotte, euen yeyell they come into worshippynge of Images and pictures of shameful lustes inwarde are vnbeneuolent and vnpacable, and more ouer suffer the same vnrebuked to other thinges beastiales and pleasures therin.

ii. Chap.

In the seconde Chapter he prouyeth further and rebuketh all thole whose purple alle maner myschefe and lone to the lathe, that will outwardely lyue in the face of the worlde, and contemne other gyltines in the manner of all hypocrites to rayse them selues vnto pure or reliquie of open synnes, and yet have the latter vnlouerdes, and are full of vnmercifulnes and enuy and of all vnkyndnesse. Ihon. in the.viij. chapter. Thole are they which despise the goodnesse of God, and accordynge to the hardnesse of their hertes heape together for them selues the wrath of god. Furthermore S. Paul as a true superintendent of the lathe, sufferyth no man to be vnrighteous them but sufferyth that all they are vnder synne, subiecte of the myll and of nature, and that he will, and sufferyth them not to be better then the open synners yea he calleth them here lewde, and lathe as one and vngodly.

iii. Chap.

In the.iij. Chapter he mengleth both together both the Iewes and the gentyls, and sayeth that the one is as the other, both Iewes and gentyls. Ouer that the Iewes had the lawe of God commytted vnto them. And though many of them beleeued not therein, yet is God truethe and powerful therby neither were ouercomlich: and he taketh in the mene and vnderstandyth the lawe of the.I. Deut. that God myght also be true in his sayinges and ouercome when he is iudged. After that he reasoneth as the gentyls a vayne and gayneth by the Iewes, that al men without difference or exception are lyners, and that by the myghtes of the lawe no man is iustified: but ouer

The lawe iustifyeth not but discouereth & sygnifyeth synne and condemneth.

the lawe was geuen to euer and to beleue vnto euery . Then he begynneth and declareth the ryghte wayes vnto ryghteousnesse by what meanes men muste be made ryghteouse and iuste, and layeth: They are all synners and vnrighteous people before God, and muste without them. Other deliuerynges be made ryghteouse then the faythe in Christe, whyche hath declared vnto vs ryghteousnes for to ende to become vnto vs Goddes mercye: Also for the remission of synnes that are paste through oure fayth in Christes ryghteousnesse whyche commeth vnto the obedyent faythe, helpeth to obteyne . Whyche ryghteousnes, sayeth he is nowe declared throughe the Gospell, and was testified of before by the lawe and the Prophetes . Further more (sayeth he) the lawe so helpe and furthereth thereto: sayeth , Though that the workes thereof with all their boste are brought to nought & ground not to sauiffye.

iii. Chap.

In the fourthe Chapter (after that noble by the vse of the fyrste Chapters , the synnes are opened , and the myght of fayth vnto ryghteousnesse lerned:) he begynneth to answere to certain obiections and cauillacyons. And fyrste he putteth forthe those obiections, whyche communelye they that will be iustified by their owne workes are wonte to make when they heare that fayth onelye without workes iustifyeth. Sayinge: shall men do no good workes , yea and yf men onely iustifye what neadeth a man to endeuor him to do good workes ? He putteth forth there fore Abraham for an ensample sayinge: what did Abraham worth his workes ? Was it in vayne? Came his workes to no good? And to reuiue with that Abraham worthout and before all workes was iustified and made righteouse In so muche that before the worke of circumcision he was graffed of the fayth yeare and called righteouse by his fayth onlye God. in the gr. So that he did not the worke of circumcision for to be helpe thereby vnto ryghteousnes, which yet God commanded him to do, and was a good worke of obedience.

Outwarde workes are sygnes & wytnesses of the inward fayth.

So vnlykewyse no doubt none other workes helpe any thinge at all to a mans iustifyinge . But as Abrahā circumcision was an outwarde signe where by he declared his righteousnesse whyche he had by fayth and his obedience and redines vnto wyll of God euen so are all other good workes outwarde frutes of fayth and of the spirite , whyche iustifye not a man, but they that a man is iustified already before God inwardly in the harte throughfayth and through the spirite geuckened by Christes bloud.

Here with name Gabriel S. Paule his doctrine of fayth after reherseth in the iii Chapter and bringeth alle testimony of Dauid in the xxxii. Psal. wherin calleth a man blessed not of workes , but to whom God imputeth ryghteousnesse without good workes , when he is euen iustifyed . For we are iustifyed and receyue the spirite faythe do good workes , neyther were it other wyse possible to be good workes except we had fyrste the spirite.

Blessednes he & harthe hym spoken vpon.

For how is it possible to be anye thynge well in the sight of God, while we are yet in captiuitie and bondage and the Deuyll possesseth vs all together and holdeth oure hertes , so that we can not ones consent vnto the will of God . No man therefore can procure the spirite in doing good but the spirite must fyrste come , an make him out of the hepe and teare with the thunder of the lawe from him , and breake him into nothinge , and bruse him into a mylsonable ashes and smyttebones, and make him ashamed and bare him felfe and to despise helpe, and then comforte him againe with the pleasaunt wordes of the Gospell , that is to saye , with the swete promyses of God in Christe , and then by fayth in him to beleue the promyses . Then when he beleueth the promyses , as God was mercyfull to promyse , so he is true to fulfyll them , and wyll geue him the spirite and strength , both to loue the wyll of GOD and to worke there after . So is it not that God geueth vs the spirite accordynge to the Scripture vnworthy all in all thynges , vnworthy a manner sufficynge , (almaner and healthe , yea and powerth fauors and pleasure , fulle to loue Goddes wyll and strenght to fulfyll the same were he , euen as riches to powerth vnto a welfull, and fyue of his good wyll and purpose and not of our deseruynges and merytes , gotten and geuen in promyses , and truth in fulfyllinge his promyses. For this he, and not we our selues. And therfore to all laude, prayse and glorye , to be geuen vnto GOD for his mercye and truth , and not vnto vs for oure merytes . Where that he throweth two examples out agaynste all other good workes of the lawe and ceyueth that the Iewes can not be Abrahams heyres, because of bloude and kynred onlye and muche lesse by the workes of the lawe , but make inheritors Abrahams fayth, of them wyll be the ryghte heyres of Abraham : for as muche as Abraham before the lawe , both of Circle and of circumcision was ryghteous fayth made ryghteous, and called the father of all them that beleue , and not of them that workes . Moreouer the lawe worketh wrath, in so muche as no man can fulfyll it with loue and lyste. And as longe as lustes grudgynge, hate, and impatiaunce agaynste the lawe remayneth in the hert and is not taken awaye by the spirite that commeth by fayth, so longe (no doubte) the wrathe of the lawe, declare euydently that the wrath of GOD is vpon vs and not fauoure . Wherefore fayth onelye receyueth the grace promysed vnto Abraham . And thus examples were not written for Abrahams sake onelye (sayeth he) but for oures also, to whom yf we beleue, fayth shall be reckened lykewyse for ryghteousnes as he fayth in the ende of the Chapter.

In the fyfte chapter he commendeth the frutes and workes of fayth, as are peace, reioysinge in the confidence, inwarde loue to God and manne, moreouer, patience, truthe, confidence and a stronge and a lusty mynde, and stedfaste hope in tribulacion and sufferynge . Yea all suche felowes where the ryghte fayth is, for the aboundaunte graces lake and gyftes of the spirite, whyche God hath geuen vs in Jesu Christe, in that he gaue him to dye for vs, yet vs enemyes . Marke heare me then, that fayth onelye before all workes iustifyeth, and that is proued, not yet therfore that a man shulde do no good workes , but that the ryghte chapen workes aboue not behynde, but attendaunte fayth; euen as brightnes downe the beame, and are called of them the frutes of the spirite . Where the spirite is there is no slouthe slepe , and there are alwayes good frutes, that is to saye: good workes . Thys is Dauids ofter , that good workes Good workes are the frutes of ye spirite. spronge of the spirite, the spirite commeth by fayth and fayth commeth by heringe the worde of GOD , when the glad tydynges and promyse, whyche God hath made to vs in Christe, are preached truelye, and receyued in the grounde of the herte wythoute mayseynge or doubtynge after that the lawe hath pulled vnto vs , and hath humbled oure conscyences. Where the worde of GOD is preached purelye and receyued in the herte, there is fayth and the spirite of GOD , and there are also good workes of necessytye wythoute occasion to geuen.

Where Goddes Worde is not purelye preached, but menne dreames, traditions, Imaginacions, inuencions, ceremonyes and superstycions, there is no fayth and consequently no spirite that cometh of God. And where Gods spirite is not, there can be no good workes, euen as where an appel tree is not there can growe no appels , but there is buberlefe, the deuyls spirite and euyll workes. Of these Goddes spirite and his frutes , haue oure fathers hypocrytes not ones knowen , hetherto yet rested holy. Lyuete they are , though their fayre mayde good workes of their owne Imaginacions, to be satisfyed with all, in which is not one sponne of true fayth or spirytuall loue or of inwarde ioye, peace and quyetnes of conscience , for as muche as they haue not the Worde of God by them, that suche workes please God, but they are euen the rotten frutes of a rotten tree.

After that he hathe fully spoke, and rounded at large and throughe inherite both Iewe, and ryghteousnes, blame and lyfe eterne . And he compareth Adam and Christe together , that lyfe is commen and deliuerynge, that Christe myght haue come as a Grounde Adam to make vs heyres of the ryghteousnes and raysen a newe spirytuall birth, wherbeine oure forefathers ouerth of the fyrste Adam made vs heyres of synne, thassoone the bodely generacion, wherin oure oure forefathers . Wherby is euydently knowen and proued to the vnderstande, that no man can bringe him selfe out of synne vnto ryghteousnes no more then by nature haue inprisonde that he him selfe broke. And that is proued herewith for as muche as the lawe lyfte of God, wherbie all ryghte Maydne hath holye, yf oure synnes scathe haue holye, nor anye thinge come and helpeth vs, but rather encreaseth synne, because that the euyll and corrupted nature to offende and hateth the righteousnes with the lawe, and the more the is styrred by the lawe, the more is the grounde, and

vi. Chap.

Baptisme is a wytnes betwen God & vs þ we have promised to mortify þ lustes and synne that remayneth in the flesshe.

To bynder þ law what it is.

To bynder the lawe.

To be loused frō the lawe.

fore a lyve to fulfyll and fulfylle the lustes. By the lawe then we see clerelye that we make nether become Christe to mekelye be lyfted vpo grace, and to be ye nature.

In the. vi. chap. he setteth forth the chefe and principall workes of faythe, the mayster of the synne agaynst the flesshe, bothe the spirite laboureth and endeavoth to kyll the remnaunte of synne and lustes wherthe remayneth in the flesh, after our baptysyng. And this chapter teacheth vs, that we are not to lye from synne therefore sayth, that we shoulde boldelyeth go by and bydwe yelde ourselfe and fare of our seruaunt, as though there were nether no more synne in vs, yea there is synne remayninge in vs, but it is not reigned, because of faythe, and of the spirite which fyghte agaynst it.

Wherfore we have enough to do all our lyues long to tame oure bodyes, and to compell the membres to obey the spirite, and not the appetites, that thereby we myghte be lyke vnto Christes death and resurrection, and myght fulfyll oure baptisme, which signifieth the mortifyinge of synnes, and the newe lyfe of grace. For thys battell endeth not in vs tyll the laste breath, and tyll that synne be vtterlye slayne by the death of the bodye.

Thys thynge (I meane to tame the bodye and to fasshe) we are able to do (sayeth he) farynge we are vnder grace and not vnder the lawe, what is it, not to be vnder the lawe, he hym selfe expoundeth. For not to be vnder the lawe is not to be vnderstande, that every man may do what hym lusteth. But not to be vnder the lawe, is to have a fre herte reioyed vpoth the spirite, so that thou shalt lusthe vnmercifly of thyne owne accorde to do that wherto the lawe commaundeth, wythout compulsion, yea thoughe there were no lawe. For grace that is in vs ouercommeth sinnes owne fleshe burne be bitterly flayne and we altogether spirituall.

In the viii. Chapter, he comforteth suche fyghters, that thy despeare not because of suche fleshe lyther thynke that they are lefte in fauoure with God. And he teacheth howe that frayle temptacyons ys to be hartedly not for there is no daunger for them that are in Christe, whyche walke not after the fleshe but fyghte agaynste it. And he expoundeth more largely, what the nature of the fleshe and of the spyrite is, and howe the spyrite commeth by Christe, whyche spyrite maketh vs spirituall, ryseth fleshe, and mortyfyeth the fleshe, and ceryfyeth vs that we are neuertheles the sonnes of God, and also assureth vs that frayle synfull nature is vnable to vnder vs, so longe as we folowe the spyrite and fyghte agaynste hym to hell and mortyfye it. And because nothynge is so good to the mortyfyenge of the fleshe as the crosse and tribulacyon: he comforteth vs in oure sufferynge and afflictions, by the assistence of the spyrite, whyche maketh intercession to God for vs, mightely with groninges that passe mannes vnderstandinge, so that mans speache can not comprehende them, and with the mourninges also of the creatures with vs of grefe before that they have their vayne lyberte from syn and corruption of the fleshe. Se ye that chap. bid. bid vs do none other thynge so much as to pray to haue the ryghte worke of fayth, whych is to kyl the olde man, and mortifye the fleshe.

The xi. x. & xi. Chap. | In the ix & xi Chapter he treateth of Gods predestinacyon, whereof ys spronge all together, whether the shal believe or not, be louyde from eyr or not. By whych predestinacyon, oure callynge and saluacyon are cleane taken oute of oure handes and put in the handes of God onely, whyche thynge is moste necessary of all. For we are so weake and vncertayne that yf it stode in vs, there wolde of a trueth no man be saued, the deuyll no doubte would deceyue vs. But neyther is God sure that his predestinacyon can not deceyue hym, neyther can any man withstande or let hym, and therfore have we hope and truste agaynste tyme that here make a worke he set vnto shall vnquyet, halt and lyghe styrrynge spyrites, beare fayre that shall go: whyche fruite of all beynge better then: hyghe reasons and pregnant wyttes, and begynne hyde from vs lyght, to fasten the vnsearchable secretes of Gods predestinacyon, whether they predestynate vs or not. Thele maye neuer serue vnto them leaues bound bookbynge into be-fore-tyme, as the comment them selues to fyr chaunge aprelay. Put fasshyne thou the ayder of thye Epystle, and holde the lyght with Christe, and learne to vnderstande what the lawe and the Gospell meane, and the office of both two, that thou mayest in the one knowe thy lyttle, and howe that thou hast of thy selfe no strength, but to synne and in the other the grace of Christe. And then if thou fyghte a-gaynste synne, and the fleshe, as the. vii. fyrste Chapter teacheth the. After that wyll thou arte come to the viii. Chapter, and arte vnder the crosse and sufferynge of tribulacyon, the necessitye of predestinacyon wyll more shyne, and thou shalt well fele howe gracyous a ryghte it is. For except thou have founde the crosse of aduersytye and temptacyon, and holde fyne the lyttle wrangler vnto the bottome of delperacyon, yea and haue hell gaped thou canst neuer smelle with the sentence of predestinacyon. Wherfore thynke other worse, and lyghtnesse ye more vnsavy and grudgynge infinitely against God for otherwyse it shall not be possible for the to fynde that God is rygteous and iuste. Thynge shall thou be well mortyfyed and the fleshly wyttes brought vtterly to nought, yer that thou maysest awaye with this ryngle, and vnpacke it wronge wyse. Take hede therfore vnto the lyttle, that thou breake not wyne, whyle thou gest yet but a lyttle wronge. For euery lesynge hath her spunne, mesure and age and in Christ ys there a certayne chyldehode, in whych a man muste be content with the fyrst lessons, tyrryl he wore stronge and growe vp vnto a perfect man in Christe, and be able to rule of more stronge meate.

This do yf thou wylte vnderstand.

vii. Chap. | In the viii. Chapter he geueth consolacyon. For thus maner oftentymes Paule in all his Epystles, fyrste he teacheth Christ and the fayeth, then exhorteth he to good workes, and here commyneth many sufferynge of the lesse. So leaue teacheth he good workes in deede, and the true sufferynge of God, and maketh all mon Sprytuall, to offer vp, not money and beastes, as the manner was in the tyme of the lawe, but ryghte synne betwyxt, tyrryl sufferynge and mortyfynge of the lustes of the fleshe. After that he declareth the outwarde conuersacyon of Christen men, howe they ought to be vnto them selues in spyrytuall thynges, howe to teache, preache and rule in the congregacyon of Christe, to serue one another to further all thynges prosperously, and to commit the wreake and vengeaunce to God. In conclusion howe a Christen man ought to behaue him selfe vnto all men, to frend, foe, or whatsoeuer he be. Thele are the ryghte workes of a Christen man, whyche spynge out of fayth. For fayth hepeth not haue hare, neyther suffereth anye man to be pole, wherefoeuer he dwelleth.

Anno 1534

In the xiii. Chap. he teacheth to honoure the temporall swearde. For thoughe that many lawes and ordinaunces make not a man good before God, yet are they ordeyned for to maintayne peace to punysshe the euyll and to defende the good. Therefore ought the good to honoure the temporall swearde and to haue yt in reuerence, though as concerneynge them selues they nede yt not, but wolde abstayne from euyll of their owne accorde, yea and be good without mans lawe, but by the lawe of the spirite whiche gouerneth the herte and guideth yt vnto all that is the wyll of God. Finallye he comprehendeth and knytteth vp all in loue. Loue of her owne nature hedgeweth all that she hath, and euen her owne selfe on that whyche she loueth. Thou nedest not to byde a lyttle mother to be louynge vnto her owne son. Whyche lytle spirituall loue whyche hath eyen geuen her of God, nedeth many lawe to teache her to be her burse. And so in the beginninge he did put forth Christ as the cruse and authoure of oure ryghteousnesse, and so here foorth he sheu forth as an enlample to counterfayte, that as he hath done to vs, euen so shoulde we do one to another.

Loue is the fulfyllynge of the law.

In the xiiii. Chap. he teacheth to vse libertye with the conuersacon of the weake in the fayeth, whyche vnderstande not yet the libertye of Christe perfectly enough, and to fauer them of Christen loue, and not to vse the libertye of the spirit vnto vnkyndenesse but vnto the forbearaunce and sufferynge of the weake. For where suche consideration is not there folowyth debate and despysynge of the Gospell. It is better therfore to forbeare the weake a whyle, tyrryll they wax stronge, then that the lose synne of the Gospell shoulde come vnder fote. And fynde wayes to the fyrgatter weake of loue: to where that is perfecte, there maye neadye be such a respecte vnto the weake. Thynges that Christe commaunded and charged to be had aboue all thynges.

xv. Chap. | In the xv. Chap. he setteth forth Christe agayne as he folowed, that we also be vnto enlample should suffre other that are yet weake, as the that are fraple, open synners, vnlearned, vnexpert and of lest some maners, and not to caste them alwaye forth with, but to suffre them tyll they wax better, and exhorte them in the meane tyme. For so dealte Christe in the Gospell and natue dealeth with be harde, sufferynge oure imperfectnes and weaknes, not yet fashioned after the doctrine of the Gospell, but smell of the fleshe, yea and sometyme breake forth into outwarde dedes. After that he concludeth with al ye wytheth them aslurace of fayeth peace and ioye of conscience, prayseth them and commyteth them to God, and magnifyeth hys office, and administracion in the Gospell and subscribe and with greate diligence beseecheth successors a ryde of them for the poore sayntes of Jerusalem. and yet to all pure loue that he speaketh of dealeth with all.

I

So fynde ye in this epistle wonderfully howe the newelle, what is ouer a Christen man or woman ought to knowe, that is to wyt, what the lawe, the Gospell, synne, grace, fayeth, rygteousnes, Christe, God, good workes, loue, hope, and the crosse, are, and euen where in the perth of all that perteyneth to the Christen fayeth standeth, and howe a Christen man ought to behaue him selfe vnto euery man, be he perfecte as a frende, good or bad, stronge or weake, frende or foe, and in conclusion howe to behaue euery lymbe vnto other, and howe to be vnto God and towarde oure selues also. And all thynges are profoundely grounded in the Scriptures, and declared with enlamples of hym selfe, of the fathers and of the prophetes, that a man can desire nothyng more.

This epistle to the Ro. is the doore into al the scripture, yea & the keye to vnderstande it and hyngeth men to the true vnderstanding of it.

Wherfore ye apperely exhorte you Readers moste that ye comprehende herebye in this epistle all the hole learninge of Christes gospell, and to prepare an instruction vnto all the olde testament. For hereafter whatsoeuer hath thys epistle perfectly in hys herte, the same hath the light and the sence of the olde testamente wyth him: wherefore let euerye man herehaue specyall diligence in thys holie storie to vnderstande it, and enbrede yt wyght and daye continually, tyrryll he be full acquainted therewith.

The lesse

The laste Chapter of to.a Chapter of rehearsynge wherein he yet mangleth a good mooncion that he should be ware of the rehearsers and perverters of god, whyche begyle the symple wyth fayre speches, and wyth wronge that he not after the Gospell, and turne them from Christe and not all them in doubte and feare, and (as Paule calleth them in the epistle to the Galathians) in bodyerly ceremonyes for the moment, that they moulde lyue in lustes pleasures and be in carnall rytes, and be rathers as Christ, yea and ennoye Christ, and lye in the temple of God, that is to wete in the congregacion of men, where God onely lyue maie, and lyue Christ ought to lone. Compare therfore all maner scripture of holy wryt the togyther, and it farther they agree ye not. And remember the fyrst where and all togyther wyth Christ, and it shall be wyth the: leave skoppyng, and wyth all the holsome wordes in the texte.

The summe and hole entent of the mayneng of this epistle, is to proue that a man is iustified by fayth onely, wherby gospellers men Who so beleeve to be in no nott onely this epistle and all that Paule wryteth, but also the whole scripture is lyeden by, that he that wolde vnderstande it to the soules healthe. And to bringe a man to the vnderstandynge and beleefe that fayth onely iustifyeth: Paule proueth that the whole nature of man is so poysoned and so corrupt, yea and so dead concerning Godly thynge ye Godly stynkyng, that es impossible for her to fulfyll the lawes in the sight of God that is to saye, to loue it, and of love and lyke to do it as naturally as a man eateth of hys meate and drynketh, except the be quyckened agayne wyth a newe lyfe wrought wyth fayth.

And by iustifyenge, vnderstande none other thinge then to be reconcyled to God and to be receaued into hys fauoure, and to haue the synnes forgeuen the. For when I saye, God iustifyeth vs, vnderstande thereby, that God for Christes sake, merites and deserueynges onely, receaueth vs into hys mercye, fauoure and grace, and forgeueth vs oure synnes. And when I saye Christe iustifyeth, vnderstande thereby that Christ onely hath reconcyled vs, brought and delyuered vs out of the bondage of God and damnacion, and hath wyth hys bloodde onely purchased vs the fauoure, the kyndnesse and grace of God, and the forgeuenes of oure synnes. And when I saye that fayth iustifyeth, vnderstande thereby that fayth and trust in the mercy of God sent vs by the merye promysed vs for Christes sake, and for hys deserueynges and woordes sake, doth quyete the conscience and certifyeth her that oure synnes be forgeuen, and we in the full fauoure of God.

Further more, to before sayne that Christes woordes and threte stonde woordes. Christes woordes onely iustifye for hys sake: Confession for my synne and synne stonde woordes not. That is to saye, quyeteth the conscience, and maketh the sure that the synnes are forgeuen the, and not synne stonde woordes. For the promyth of mercy to make the for Christes woordes sake, and not for synne stonde woordes sake. Wherefore strayght God hath not promyssed that synne stonde to others shall saue the, therefore fayth in synne stonde woordes can neuer quyete the conscience, and therefore yt before God when God spaketh to iudge and to take a rekenynge, that thy synnes are forgeuen the. Wherunder all synne, synne stonde woordes can neuer therefore the lawe, as pore her ever I offer her. For I offer the lawe to loue her wyth all myne herte, soule, powre and myght. Whyche thynge to pore I am neuer able worde I am compelled wyth Christe. For I can not once begynne to loue the lawe, except I be fyrst sure by fayth that God loueth me and forgeueth me. Frewhye that we have fayth onely iustifyeth, ought to offende no man. For if there be none that Christe onely receaueth be, Christe onely bleed oure synnes, made satisfaccion for them, and purchased to the fauoure of God, the will is mete to wyn that the truthe onely in Christes sufferynge and in the promyssion of God the fyrster made be for Christes sake, hath ende quyet the conscience and certifyeth her that the synnes are forgeuen. And when they have a man made repente, forsake synne, and bere a purpose to synne no more as we do be can, and bere the fauoure of God thynge fayth alone iustifyeth me. I conclude that and all the argumentes are wronge and vaine to reply. I must repente and be sory, the godly shulde so preache me, and I must beleeve, or else I can not be partaker of mercye, whyche Christ hath bought for me. Ergo Christ onely iustifyeth me not, as Christe onelye hath not made satisfaccion for my synnes. So ther is a wronglye argumented, to to the other.

Forme ye to reader, and remembrage to the entre of Paules thynkyng, entende to vnderstande the fyll thinge ye in the fauoure of God, and to receaue the same bouldenesse. Greedelye receaue Christ even to Christe, and to there the exchange mercy of the mother Christ and lounge Father. Thyrdly remember that Christe maye not stye ye ceremonyes that were Godes will vnder God at that season to the Iewes and not vnto them. Therefore be ware that no man deceaue you by ceremonyes, as I beseche you earnestly that ye shoulde neuer (as I saye) vse ceremonyes and ymages in the churche, but to be a true congregacion, and vse a native lyfe after the lawe of God, and not of the flesshe. And be wayghtes wyth the ceremonyes wherin ye have been ouerlayed, and ouerlayed when they were newe and shoulde haue been layed aside long ago.

The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paule to the Romaynes.

The fyrste Chapter.

S. Paule declareth his loue toward the Romaynes, sheweth what the Gospell is, with the fruites therof, and reproueth the blyndnesse of the Iewes.

PAule the seruaunte of Jesus Christ called to be an Apostle, put aparte to preache the Gospel of God, whyche he promised afore by hys Prophetes in the holye scriptures that make mention of hys sonne, the whyche was begotten of the sede of David (as pertayninge to the flesshe) and declared to be the sonne of God, wyth power of the holye ghoste that sanctifyeth, sence the tyme that Jesus Christ our Lorde rose againe from death, by whom we haue receyued grace and Apostleshyp, to bringe all maner heathen people vnto the obedience of the fayth that is in his name: of the whyche heathen are ye a parte also, whyche are Jesus Christes by vocation. 1 Act.xiii.b.4

To all you at Rome beloued of God, and 2 Sanctes by callynge. b. Grace be wyth you 3 and peace from God our father, and from our Lorde Jesus Christ. First verelye I thanke my God thrugh Jesus Christe for you all, because your fayth is published throughout all the worlde. For God is my witnes, whom I serue wyth my spyrite in the Gospel of hys sonne, that wythout ceasinge I make mencion of you alwayes in my prayers, beseechinge that at one tyme or other, a prosperous iourney (by the will of God) myght fortune me, to come vnto you. For I longe to se you that I myght bestowe amonge you some spirituall gyfte, to strength you wyth all, that is that I might have comfortes on together wyth you through the common fayth, whyche both ye and I have.

I would be that ye shoulde knowe brethren, howe that I have often tymes purposed to come vnto you (but have been let hytherto) to have some fruite amonge you, as I have amonge other of the Gentyls. For I am debtor both both to the Grekes and to them, whyche are no Grekes, vnto the learned and also vnto ỹ vnlearned. Lykewyse as much as in me is. I am redy to preache ỹ Gospel to you of Rome also. ffor I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, because it is the power of God vnto saluacion to all that beleue, namely to ỹ Jewe and also to the .c. gentyle. ffor by it the righteousnes, which commeth of God is opened from fayth. d. to fayth. As it is written: the iust shall lyue by fayth.

¶ ffor the wrath of God appeareth frō heauen a gaynste all vngodlynesse and vnrighteousnes of mē, whyche wyth holde the trueth in vnrighteousnes, saying: what maye be knowē of God, that same is manifest amōge them. ffor God hath shewe it vnto them. So that his inuisible thinges, that is to saye, his eternall power and Godhead, are vnderstād e by the workes from the creation of the worlde. So that they are wythout excuse, in as muche as when they knewe God, they glorifyed him not as God, neither were thankful, but waxed full of vanities in their Imaginations, and their fonisshe hertes were blinded. When they counted them selues wyse, they became foles, and toured the glorye of the immortall God, vnto the ỹ similitude of ỹ Jmage of mortall man, and of birdes, and foure fotyd beastes, and of serpentes. Wherfore God lykewyse gaue them vp vnto their hertes lustes vnto vnclennes, to defyle their owne bodies betwene them selues: whyche turned his truth vnto a lye, and worshipped and serued the creatures more thē the maker, whyche is blessed for euer. Amen. ffor this cause God gaue them vp vnto shamefull lustes. ffor euen their women dyd chaunge the naturall vse vnto the vnnaturall. And lykewyse also the men lefte the naturall vse of the woman, and burnt in their lustes one on another. And men with men wroughte filthynes, and receiued in them selues the reward of their errour, as it was accordinge.

And as it semed not good vnto them to be a knowen of God, euen so God deliuered thē vp vnto a lewd minde, ỹ they should do those thinges, whyche were not comly, beyng full of all vnrighteous doing, of fornicacio, wickednes, couetousnes, maliciousnes, full of enuye, murther, debate, disceite, euyll condicioned, whysperers, backbiters, haters of God, doers of wronge, proude, boosters, inuyngers vp of euyll thinges, disobedient to father and mother, wythout vnderstondynge, couenaunt breakers, hurtelesse, frute breakers and mercyles. Whyche men though they knewe the rytghteousnes of God, howe that they which such thinges commit, are worthy of death, yet not onely do the same, but also haue a. pleasure in them that do them.

¶ The notes.

a. All suche as are called to be true Christians, that is to walke in the workes of the Gospell throwe the fayth in Christ: are sainctes by calling, that is to saye, men called from the damnable way of sinne, to leade an holy lyfe. ffor Sanct is as muche to saye in our tounge, as holy.

Sainctes by calling.

b. Here, and throwout this epistle, grace is taken for the free mercy of God. And by peace is ment the quietnes of conscience throwe the sure fayth in Christ. Grace.

c. That, is by the preaching of the Gospel, is declared that great mercy of God, wherby he forgeueth our synnes and accepteth vs righteous in his sight. ffor by it the rytghteousnes &c.

d. Some enterprete this, from the vnperfecte, to the perfecte, from the weake to the stronge, and from our battaile of faith to another &c. But in my iudgement, the meaninge of Paul was, that the Gospel declareth all rightuousnes, as wel of the fathers of the olde lawe as of the faythfull folowers of Christe, to be Christes. Who listeth to waigh the text, shall easily perceiue that it geueth the same sence. From fayth to fayth.

e. To haue pleasure in other mens sinne, is greater wickednes, then to synne thy selfe. Other mens synne.

The.ii. Chapter.

¶ He rebuketh the Jewes, who as vnthankefull synners were lyke the heathen, yea worse then they.

THerfore arte ỹ inexcusable (O man) whosoeuer thou be .a. that iudgest. ffor in that same wherin thou iudgest another, thou condemnest thy selfe. ffor thou that iudgeste doest euen ỹ same selfe thynges. But we are sure that the iudgement of God is according to treuth against them, which committe suche thinges. Thinkest thou this (O thou man that iudgeste them, whiche do suche thinges) and yet dost euen the very same, that thou shalt escape the iudgement of God? Eyther despysest thou the riches of his goodnes, patience and longe sufferaunce? and remembrest not howe that the kindnes of God leadeth the to repentaunce? A Mat.vii.a

¶ But thou after thyne harde herte that can not repente, heapest the together the treasure of wrath against the daye of vengeaunce, when shall be opened the righteous iudgement of God, whyche wyll rewarde euery man according to his .b. deedes: that is to say, praise, honour and immortalytye, to thē whyche continue in good doynge and seke eternall lyfe. But vnto them that are rebellious and disobey the trueth, and folowe iniquitie, shall come indignacion and wrath, tribulacion and anguishe, vpon the soule of euery man that doeth euyll: of the Jewe fyrst, and also of the gentyll. To euery man that doth good, shall come prayse, honour, and peace, to the Jewe fyrst, and also to the gentyll. ffor there is no parcialitie with God. But whosoeuer hath synned without lawe, shall perishe wythout lawe. And as many as haue synned vnder the lawe, shalbe iudged by the lawe. ffor before God they are not rytghteous B Mat.xvi.d Act.x.c. whiche haue the lawe: but the .e. doers of the lawe shalbe iustified. For yf the Gentyls whiche haue no lawe do of nature the thynges contayned in the lawe: then they hauynge no lawe, are a lawe vnto them selues, which shew the dedes of the lawe wrytten in theyr hertes: whyle theyr conscience beareth witnes vnto them, and also theyr thoughtes, accusynge one another, or excusynge at the daye when God shall iudge the secretes of me by Iesus Christ accordynge to my Gospell.

L ¶ Beholde, thou art called a Iewe, and trustest in the lawe, and reioycest in God, & knowest hys will, and haste experience of good, and bad, in that thou arte informed by the lawe, and beleuest that thou thy selfe arte a guyde vnto the blynde, a lyght to them which are in darkenes, an instructer of them whiche lacke discrecyō, a teacher of vnlearned, which haste the ensample of that whiche ought to be knowen, and of the trueth, in the lawe. Wut thou whiche teachest noo another, teachest not thy selfe. Thou preachest, a man shoulde not steale, and yet thou stealest. Thou sayst, a mā shoulde not commyt aduoutrye: and thou breakest wedlocke. Thou abhorrest ymages, and robbest God of hys honoure. Thou reioycest in the lawe and thou ow breakynge the law, dishonourest God. For the name of god is euyll spoken of amonge the gentyls thorow you, as it is wrytten.

D Esay.lij.b. Ezy.xxxvi.c

¶ Circumcysyon verelye profyteth, yf thou kepe the lawe. Wut yf thou breake the lawe, thy circumcysyon is made vncircumcysyon. Therfore yf the vncircumcised kepe the ryght thynges contayned in the lawe: shall not hys vncircumcysyon be counted for circumcision? And shall not vncircumcysyon whiche is by nature (yf it kepe the lawe) iudge the, whiche hearynge vnder the letter and circumcysyon, doest transgresse the lawe? For he is not a Iewe, whiche is a Iewe outwarde. Neyther is that thynge circumcysyon, whiche is outewarde in the flesshe: but he is a Iewe, which is hyd within, and the circumcysyon of the herte in the true circumcysyon, whiche is in y spirite & not in the letter, whose prayse is not of men, but of God.

Circumcysyō was a wytnes of y couenaunte betwene the and God, & holp not, but after as it put them in remembraunce to be leue in God & to kepe the lawe.

¶ The notes.

Judge not. a. To iudge, in thys place (as in many other) is to condemne other as vnrighteous & to esteme ones selfe righteous.

To rewarde standyng to b. As the fruites do declare the tree: so do the workes declare the man. Yf a mans workes therfore do declare hym to be faythfull, he shall haue the rewarde of the faythfull, that is eternall lyfe. Yf the workes do declare hym to be vnfaythfull: then shall hys rewarde be amonge hypocrytes in eternall damnation. For wyde therfore are they, that wander by thys texte proue that man is iustified by hys workes: for the workes are but fruytes accordyng to the whiche GOD (the righteous iudge) rewardeth hys elected beleuers, and punyssheth the reprobate.

c. That is, the lawe shall haue no power to condemne them, because they haue in all poynctes fulfilled the lawe. Wut who was there euer that coulde be fownde a doer of the lawe? Paule yf there had ben ayne that coulde so haue fulfilled the lawe: yet shoulde the same haue ben vnrighte in Goddes syght. For yf there might haue ben perfecte iustice by the obseruaūce of the lawe: then had Christe dyed in vayne, as at the leaste waye to make men sloggardes, & not to regarde the obseruaūce of the lawe, whereby they myght haue obteined iustice.

The doers of the lawe shall be iustified before God.

The.iij. Chapter.

The Iewes what preheminence the Iewes haue. c That both the Iewes and the gentyls be vnder synne, and are iustified onelye through the fayth of God in Christe.

A WHat preferment then hathe the Iewe? other what auayleth circumcysyon? Surelye verye muche. Fyrste vnto them was committed the woorde of God. What then though some of them dyd not beleue? shall they vnbeleefe make the promyse of God without effecte? God forbyd. Let God be true and all men lyars, as it is wrytten: That thou mayest be iustified in thy sayenge, and shouldest ouercome when thou art iudged.

John.xij.b Psalm.cxlv.

B ¶ If our vnrighteousnes make the righteousnes of God more excellent: what shall we saye? Is God vnrighteous which taketh vengeaunce? I speake after the maner of men, God forbyd. For how then shall God iudge the worlde? Yf the veritie of God appeare more excellent thorow my lye, vnto hys prayse: why am I yeuen forth iudged as a synner? & saye not rather (as men cryll speake of vs, and as some affyrme that we saye) let vs do euyll that good maye come therof? Whose damnacyon is iuste.

C What saye we then? Are we better then they? No, in no wyse. For we haue streadye proued, howe that both Iewes and Gentyls are all vnder synne: as it is wrytten: There is none righteous, no not one: there is none that vnderstandeth, there is none that seketh after God, they are all gone out of the waye, they are all made vnprofytable, there is none that doeth good, no not one. Theyr throte is an open sepulchre, with theyr tonges they haue vsed deceyt, the poyson of aspes vnder their lyppes. Whose mouthes are full of cursyng and bytternes. Theyr fete are swyfte to sheed bloude. Destruccyon and wretchednes are in theyr wayes. And the waye of peace they haue not knowen. There is no feare of God before theyr eyes.

Gala.iij.b. Psalm.xiij.c Psalm.liij.c. Psal.c and xxxix.a. Psalm.xv.c Esay.lix.b. Psal.xxxvi.a

¶ Now we knowe that whatsoeuer y lawe speaketh, he speaketh it to them which are vnder the lawe. That all mouthes maye be stopped, and all the worlde be subiect to God, because that by the dedes of the lawe, shall no fleshe be iustified in the syght of God. For by the lawe commeth the knowledge of synne.

The lawe iustifyeth not before God, but bringeth synne vnto vs.

¶ Now

Iustifying commeth by faith.

D Nowe verelye is the rygh-teousnes that cõmeth of God, declared without the fulfyllynge of lawe, hauynge wytnes pet of ỹ lawe and of the Prophetes. The rygh-teousnes no doubte whiche is good before God commeth by the faith of Christe, vnto all and vpon all that beleue.

There is no differrence: for al haue sinned, and lacke the prayse that is of valoure before God, but are iustifyed freelye by hys grace thorowe the redemption that is in Christe Jesus, whome God hath made a seate of mercye thorowe faith in hys bloude, to shewe ỹ righteousnes whiche before hym is of valoure, in that he forgeueth the synnes that are passed, whiche God dyd suffer to shewe at thys time the rygh-teousnes that is alowed of hym that he myght be counted iuste, and a iustifyar of hym which beleueth on Jesus. ✠

Faith' iustifyeth.

Faith maye (sayeth the lawe: because therebye we obtayne power to loue it & to kepe it.

W here is then thy reioysynge? It is excluded. By what lawe? by the lawe of workes? Naye, but by the lawe of faythe.

For we suppose that a man is iustified by faith without the dedes of the lawe. Is he ỹ God of Jewes onely? Is he not also the God of the gentyls? Yes, euen of the gentyls also. For it is God onelye which iustifyeth circumcyson whiche is of faith, and vncircumcyson thorowe faith. Do we then destroye the lawe thorowe faith? God forbyd. But we rather maynteyne the lawe.

¶ The notes.

a. This sayynge doth S. Ambose expounde in thys wyse. They worchynge nothyng, nor acquityng hym any thynge at all are iustifyed by faythe alone, by the grace of God. This worde alone (though he many men be therwith offended) is also euidentlye expressed by Paule hym self in these wordes. Freely without the lawe, without workes, it is ỹ gift and fauthe lyke. Whiche thou muste marcke, for they are all one with thys exposition of S. Ambrose. By faythe alone we are iustifyed which sayynge signifyeth thus muche. Onely by the beleue wherewith we beleue, that the mercy of God graunted in Christes bloude doeth saue vs: are we promysed rygh-teousnes. Thys worde alone excludeth workes, not that thou shouldest not do them (for to all good workes ordeyned in the scripture, are thou bounde, and called to walke in them, & muste earnestlye studye and endeauoure thy selfe to leaue none of the vndone) but that thou shouldest in no case thynke, that thou arte therbye iustifyed or made rygh-teouse before God.

Genes. xiij. d

¶ He declareth by the exemple of Abraham, that fayth iustifyeth, and not the lawe nor the workes thereof.

What shall we saye then, that Abraham oure father as pertayneth to the flesshe, dyd fynde? For if Abraham were iustifyed by dedes, then hath he wherein to reioyce but not with god. For what sayth the scripture? Abraham beleued God, and it was counted vnto hym for rygh-teousnes. To hym that worketh, is the rewarde not reckened of fauoure: but of dutye. To hym that worketh not, but beleueth on hym that iustifyeth the vngodly, is hys faith counted for rygh-teousnes. Euen as Dauid describeth the blessednes of the man vnto whome God ascribeth rygh-teousnes without dedes. Blessed are they, whose vnrygh-teousnes are forgeue, and whose synnes are couered. Blessed is that man to whome the Lord imputeth not synne. Came thys blessednes then vpon the circumcysed or vpon the vncircumcysed? We say berelye how that faith was reckened to Abraham for rygh-teousnes. Howe was it reckened: in ỹ tyme of circumcyson? or in the tyme before he was circumcysed? Not in tyme of circumcyson: but when he was yet vncircumcysed. And he receyued the synge of circumcyson, as a seale of the rygh-teousnes whiche is by faith, whiche faith he had yet beynge vncircumcysed: that he shoulde be the father of all them that beleue, though they be not circumcysed, that rygh-teousnes myght be imputed to them also: and that he myght be the father of the circumcysed, not because they are circumcysed only: but because they walke also in the steppes of that faythe that was in oure father Abraham before the tyme of circumcyson.

For the promes that he shoulde be ỹ heyre of the worlde, was not geuen to Abraham or to hys sede thorowe the lawe: but thorow the rygh-teousnesse which commeth of faith. For yf they whiche are of the lawe, be heyres, then is faith but vayne, and the promes of none effecte. Because the lawe causeth wrath. For where no lawe is, there is no transgression. Therfore by faith is the inheritaunce geuen, that it myght come of fauoure: and the promes myght be sure to all the sede. Not to thẽ onelye, which are of the lawe: but also to them whiche are of the faith of Abraham, which is the father of vs all. As it is written: I haue made the a father to many nacyons, euẽ before God whome thou hast beleued, whiche quickeneth the deade, and called those thinges whiche be not, as though they were.

Whiche Abraham contrary to hope, beleued in hope that he shoulde be the father of many nacyons, according to that whiche was spoken. So shall thy seed be. And he fainted not in the faith, nor yet considered hys owne bodye which was now dead, euẽ when he was almost an hondred yeare olde: neyther yet that Sara was past childe bearynge. He staggered not at the promes of God thorowe vnbeleef: but was made stronge in the faith and gaue honoure to God, full certified, that what he had promysed, that he was able to make good. And therfore was it reckened to hym for rygh-teousnes.

It is not written for hym onely, that it was reckened for hym for rygh-teousnes: but also for Christe iustifieth vs.

reckened to hym for ryghteousnes: but also for vs, to whom yt shalbe counted for righteousnes, so we beleue on hym that raysed vp Jesus oure Lorde from death. Whiche was deliuered for oure synnes and rose agayne for to iustifye vs.

¶ The notes.

By faieth is the enheritaunce geuē.

a. The enheritaunce that is eternall lyfe, is geuen vnto vs and we receyue yt thorowe faieth, to the entent that we be sure & doubt not of yt. For yf we shoulde deserue yt by workes: we shoulde neuer be sure but alwayes doubte yf we lacked workes, or that our euil workes should haue the vpper hāde in yᵉ day of iudgement, & so should our hope be vayne, for such as doubt, cānot enioye the promises of god, for as muche as they beleue not certaynelye yᵗ God wyll performme thē.

The.v. Chapter.

The power of faieth, hope, and loue, and how death reygneth from Adam vnto Christe, by whom onelye we haue forgyuenes of synnes.

A faieth setteth vs at peace with God.

BEcause therfore that we are iustifyed by faieth.a. we are at peace wyth God thorowe oure Lorde Jesus Christe by whom we haue a waye in thorowe faieth vnto thys grace where in we stande & reioyce in hope of the prayse that shalbe geuē of God. Nether do we so only: but also we reioice in tribulacion. For we know that tribulatiō bringeth pacience, pacience bringeth experience, experience bringeth hope. And hope maketh not ashamed, for yᵉ loue of God is sheed abroade in our hertes by the holye ghost, which he is geuen vnto vs.

Jacob.i.b.

We are not ashamed of our hope for we are sure by yᵉ death of Christe that God loueth vs and wyll bringe oure hope to passe

☞ For when we were yet weake according to the tyme: Christ died for vs whiche were vngodly. Yet scarce will anye man dye for a ryghteouse man. Paraduenture for a good man durst a man dye. ✣ But God setteth out his loue yᵉ he hath to vs, seing yᵉ whil we were yet sinners, Christ died for vs. Much more thē now (seing we are iustified in hys bloud) shall we be saued from wrath thorowe hym.

1.Pet.iii.c. Hebre.ix.c.

☞ For yf when we were enemyes, we were reconciled to God by the death of hys sonne muche more, seynge we are reconciled, we shall be preserued by his lyfe. Not only so, but we also ioy in god by the means of oure Lorde Jesus Christ, by whom we haue receyued the attoument.

☞ Wherfore as by one man synne entred into the worlde, and death by the means of synne: And so death went ouer all men, in so much that al men synned. For euen vnto the tyme of the lawe was synne in the worlde, but synne was not regarded, as long as there was no lawe: neuertheles death reygned from Adam to Moyses, euen ouer them also that synned not, with lyke transgression as did Adam (whyche is the similytude of hym that is to come.

☞ But the gyfte is not lyke as the synne. For yf through the synne of one, many be dead: muche more plenteous vpon many was the grace of God and gyfte by grace: Which grace was geuen by one man Jesus Christe.

Adams disobedience dāned vs all yet we oute selues wrought ought Christes obedience sauyth vs all, yet we oute selues worke any good.

☞ And the gyfte is not ouer one that synned. For damnacion came of one synne vnto condemnation but the gyfte came to iustify from many synnes. For if by yᵉ synne of one death reygned by the meanes of one: muche more shall they whiche receyue aboundaunce of grace & of the gyfte of ryghtousnes reigne in life by the meanes of one (that is to saye) Jesus Christe.

¶ Wherwyth therfore as by the synne of one, condemnacion came on al men: euen so by the iustifying of one commeth the ryghteousnes that bringeth lyfe vpon al men. For as by one mans.b. disobedience many became synners: so by the obedience of one, shall many be made ryghteouse.

☞ But the law.c. in the meane tyme entred in, that synne should encreace. Neuertheles where aboūdaunce of synne was, there was more plentousnes of grace, that as synne had reygned vnto death, euen so myght grace reygne thorow righteousnes vnto eternall lyfe, by the helpe of Jesus Christe. ✣

a. To be at peace wyth God, is none other thinge then to haue tranquilite and reste in oure hertes towarde God, knowynge assuredly that he accepteth vs and that we please hym. Whyche peace can we not haue othere wyse then by faieth and sure trust of remission of synne thorowe Christes bloud. For all other meanes be ioyned wyth doubte, & therfore can not obtayne thys reste.

At peace with God.

b. The disobedience of Adam was suche, that yt condemned all hys posteritie, so that the very infantes, who haue nether wrought nor thought anye euyll, are therby the children of damnation and should vndoubtedly be dampned, were yt not that Christ thorow his bloud shedinge hath redemed them.

Adams disobedience.

c. That is the lawe forbyddinge vs manye mo thynges then God forbade the fyrste man in Paradyse encreaseth synne in vs because we do not nor can not refrayne yᵉ desire of the thinges therin forboden.

The lawe encreaseth synne.

The.vi. Chapter.

For as muche as we be deliuered therwyth Christe from damnacion: ought we not forthwith to lyue as the seruauntes of God, & not after oure owne lustes. The twofolde estimacion of ryghteousnes and synne.

WHat shall we saye then? Shal we continue in synne, that there maye be aboundaūce of grace? God forbide. How shal we that are deade as touchynge synne, lyue any lenger therin? ✣ Remember ye not yᵗ al we which are baptised in the name of Jesus Christe, are baptised to dye wyth hym? I delite the lawe of God, concer nynge the inner man. But I se another lawe in my membres rebellynge agaynst the lawe of my mynde and subdoynge me vnto ỳ lawe of synne whyche is in my membres.

☞ O wretched man that I am: who shall deliuer me from this bodye of deathe? I thanke God thorowe Jesus Christe oure Lorde. So then I my selfe in my mynde serue the law of God, & in my flesh the lawe of synne.

¶ The notes.

Dead cõcerning ỳ law.

a. All suche are dead concernynge the lawe, as are thorowe faith crucified with Christe, and thorowe baptisme buried together with hym, and by newnes of lyfe, ryseu agayne wythe hym. For the lawe hathe no more power ouer them, then mans lawe hathe ouer the bodies of them that be departed this lyfe.

Sold vnder synne.

b. That is, so oppressed wyth the concupiscence of ỳ flesthe, that maugrea oure heades we committe synne, whyche wyth all oure hertes we detest and abhorre.

The. viii. Chapter.

☞ The lawe of the spirite geueth lyfe. The synne of God maketh vs Goddes children and heyres with Christe. The abundaunt loue of God can not be seperated.

THere is then no damnation to them which are in Christ Jesu, which walke not after the flesth: but after ỳ spirite. For the law of the spirite that bringeth lyfe through Jesus Christe, hath deliuered me from the lawe of synne & death.

Synne is taken here for the synne offerynge after the vse of ỳ Hebrue tõg.

☞ For what the lawe coulde not do in as much as it was weake because of the flesthe: that performed God, and sente hys sonne in the similitude of sinfull flesthe, and by synne damned synne in the flesthe: that the ryghteousnes requyred of the law myghte be fulfylled in vs, which walke not after the flesth but after the spirite.

☞ For they that are carnall, are carnally mynded. But they that are spirituall, are ghostly minded. To be carnally mynded is deathe. But to be spiritually minded is lyfe and peace. ỳ Because that the flesthlye minde is enemy agaynste God: for it is not obediente to the lawe of God, neyther can be. So then they that are geuen to the flesthe, can not please God.

☞ But ye are not a. geuen to the flesthe, but to the spirite. b. yf so be ỳ the spirite of God dwell in you. Yf there be any mã ỳ hath not the spirite of Christ, the same is none of hys. Yf Christe be in you, the bodye is deade because of synne: but the spirite is lyfe for ryghteousnes sake. Wherfore yf the spirit of him that raysed vp Jesus from deathe dwell in you, euen he ỳ raysed vp Christe from death shall quicken your mortall bodyes, because that his spirite dwelleth in you.

✣ Therfore brethren we are dettes not to the flesthe, to lyue after the flesthe. For yf ye lyue after the flesthe, ye muste dye. But if ye mortifye the deades of the bodye, by the helpe of ỳ spirite, ye shall lyue. For as many as are led by the spirite of God: they are the sonnes of God. For ye haue not receiued the spirite of bondage to feare agayne: but ye haue receiued the spirite of adoption, wherby we crye Abba father. The same spirite certifieth oure spirite that we are the sonnes of God.

Galat. iiii. a The spirit ỳ maketh vs sonnes and heyres by grace. 2. Tim. i. b.

Yf we be sonnes, we are also heyres, the heyres I meane of God, and heyres annexed with Christe yf so be that we. c. suffer together, that we maye be glorified together.

✣ For I suppose that the afflictions of this lyfe are not worthy of the glory which shall be shewed vpon vs. Also the feruente desyre that is in the creatures abydeth lokynge when the euerlastyng sonnes of God shal appere, because ỳ creatures are subdued to vanitie agaynst their wyll but for hys will which subdueth them in hope.

¶ For the verye creatures shall be deliuered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the sonnes of God. For we knowe ỳ euerye creature groneth with vs also & trauayleth in payne euẽ vnto this tyme.

¶ Not they onely, but euẽ we also which haue the fyrst. d. fruytes of the spirite, mourne in oure selues and wayte for the (adoption) & lyke for ỳ deliuerance of oure bodyes. ỳ

For we are. e. saued by hope, But hope that is seene is no hope. For howe can a man hope for that which he seeth? But and yf we hope for that we se not, then do we with pacience abyde for yt.

¶ Lykewyse the spirite also helpeth our infirmityes. For we knowe not what to desyre as we ought: but ỳ spirite maketh intercessiõ myghtelye for vs wyth groninges whiche can not be expressed with tonge. And he that searcheth the herte knoweth what is the meanynge of the spirite: for he maketh intercessiõ for the saynctes accordynge to the pleasure of God.

✣ For we knowe that all thynges worke for the beste vnto them that loue God, whyche also are called. f. of purpose. For those which he knewe before he also ordeyned before, that they shoulde be like fashioned vnto the shape of hys sonne that he myght be the fyrste begotten sonne amonge many brethrẽ. Moreouer whyche he appoynted before, them he also called. And which he called, them also he iustified, whyche he iustified, them he also glorifyed.

☞ What shall we then say vnto these thynges? yf God be on oure syde: who can be agaynste vs? whyche spared not his owne sonne but gaue hym for vs all: how shall he not with hym geue vs all thynges also? Who shall laye anye thynge to the charg of Goddes chosen? It is God that iustifieth who then shall condemne? It is Christe whyche is dead, ye rather which is risen agayne, which is also on the right hande of God, and maketh intercession for vs.

Who that seeth what Christ God shall tribulation? or anguyshe? or persecution? other hunger? other nakednesse? other perylle? other sweard? As it is wrytten: For thy sake are we killed all day longe, and are counted as sheepe appointed to be slayne.

Nay in all these thynges we ouercome stronglye through him that loued vs. For I am sure that neyther death, neither life, neyther angels, nor rule, neyther power, neyther thinges presente, neyther thinges to come, neyther heyght, neyther lowth, neyther any other creature shall be able to departe vs from the loue of God, shewed in Christ Jesu our Lord.

The .ix. Chapter.

Paule complayneth vpon the harde hertes of the Jewes that wolde not receyue Christ, and proue the doctrine are ouslon in their dede.

I Say the truth in Christe and lye not, in that wherof my conscience beareth me witnes in the holy goste, that I haue great heauines and continuall sorowe in my hert. For I haue wyshed my selfe to be cursed from Christ, for my brethre and my kynsmen (as pertayninge to the fleshe) whyche are the Jsraelites. To whom vnto pertayneth the adoption, and the glory, and the couenauntes, & the lawe that was geue, & the seruice of God, & the promises: whose also are the fathers & they of whō (as cōcerninge the flesh) Christe came, whiche is God ouer al thynges blessed for euer. Amen.

I speake not these thinges as though the wordes of God had taken none effect. For they are not al Jsraelites whiche came of Jsrael, neither are they al chyldre straight way, because they are the seede of Abraham. But in Jsaac shall thy seede be called: that is to saye, they whiche are the chyldren of the flesshe, are not the chyldren of God. But the chyldre of promise are counted the seede. For this is a worde of promyse, aboute this tyme wyll I come, and Sara shall haue a sonne.

Neither was it so with her onely: but also when Rebecca was wyth childe by one, Jsaac our father, yer the children were borne, whē they had neither done good nor bad: that the purpose of God whiche is by election, might stand, it was sayed vnto her, not by the reason of workes, but by grace of the caller: the elder shall serue the yonger. As it is wrytten: Jacob loued, but Esau he hated.

What shall we saye then? is there any vnrighteousnes with God? God forbid. For he sayth to Moyses: I will shewe mercy to whom I shewe mercy: and wyll haue compassion on whom I will haue compassiō. So lyeth it not then in a mans wil or runnynge, but in the mercy of God. For the scripture sayeth vnto Pharao. Euen for this same purpose haue I stirred the vp, to shewe my power on the and that my name myght be declared throughout al the worlde. So hath he mercie on whom he wyll, and whō he wyll, he maketh harde herted.

Thou wylt saye then vnto me: why then blameth he vs yet? For who can resist hys wyll? But O man, what arte thou whiche disputeste with* God? Shall the worke saye to the workemā, why hast thou made me on thys fashiō? Hath not the potter power ouer the clay euen of the same lumpe to make one vessell vnto honoure, and another vnto dishonoure? Euen so God wyllynge to shewe his wrath, and to make his power knowen, suffered with longe pacience the vessels of wrath, ordened to damnaciō, that he myght declare & riches of his glory on the vessels of mercye, whiche he had prepared vnto glorye: that is to saye, vs whom he called, not of the Jewes only, but also of the gentils. As he sayeth in Ose I wyll call them my people which were not my people: and her beloued which was not beloued. And it shall come to passe in the place where it was sayed vnto them, ye are not my people: that there shalbe called the children of the liuinge God.

The.x. Chapter.

¶ The sorthynes of the Jewes. Two maner of ryghtuousnes.

BRetherne, my hertes desyre, and prayer to God for Jsraell is that they myghte be saued. For I beare the recorde that they haue a feruent mynde to Godwarde, but not accordynge to knowelege. For they are ignoraunte of the ryghteousnes whiche is alowed before God, and go about to stablish their owne ryghtuousnes, and therfore are not obediente vnto the ryghtuousnes whiche is of valoure before God. For. a. Christe is the ende of the lawe, to iustifye all that beleue.

Moyses describeth the ryghtuousnes whiche cometh of the lawe, howe that the man which doeth the thynges of the lawe, shal liue therein. But the ryghtuousnes which cometh of fayth, speaketh on this wyse. Saye not in thyne herte who shall ascende into heauen? (that is nothynge els, but to fetche Christe doune) Other who shall descende into the depe? (that is nothynge els, but to fetche vp Christe from death). But what sayeth the scripture? The worde is nye the, euen in thy mouth & in thyne herte.

This worde is the word of. b. faith which we preache. For yf thou shalt knowelege with thy mouthe that Jesus is the Lorde, and shalte beleue with thyne herte that God raysed hym vp from death, thou shalte be saue. For the beliefe of the herte iustifyeth: and to knowelege with the mouth, maketh a man safe. For the scripture sayth whosoeuer beleueth on hym, shall not be ashamed.

There is no differrence betwene the Jewe, & the gentyll. For one is Lorde of all whiche is ryche vnto all that call on hym. For whosoeuer shall call on the name of the Lorde, shalbe saue. But how shall they call on hym, on whō they beleued not? howe shall they beleue on hym of whom they haue not hearde? howe shall they heare without a preacher? And howe shall they preache, except they be sent? As it is written: howe beautyfull are the fete of them whiche bringe glad tydynges of peace, and bring glad tydynges of good thynges. But they haue not all obeyed to the Gospell. For Esayas sayeth: Lorde, who shal beleue oure sayynges? So then fayth cometh by the worde of God. But I ask. Haue they not hearde? No doubte, their sounde went out into all landes, and their wordes into the endes of the worlde.

But I demaund, whether Jsrael dyd knowe or not? First Moyses sayth: I will prouoke you for to enuye, by them that are no people, and by a folysshe nacyon I will angre you. Esayas after that is bolde and sayth: I am founde of them, that sought me not, & haue appeared to them that axed not after me. And against Jsrael he sayth: All daye long haue I stretched forth my handes vnto a people that beleueth not, but speaketh against me.

¶ The notes.

a. That is, Christ fulfylleth the lawe, not so muche in obseruynge all the ceremonies, and preceptes therof, as in perfourmynge that ende of the whiche was mente by all the whole course of lawe, the lawe. That was, that he beynge pure and without spotte of synne, shoulde purge oure spirytuall nature by the sheddynge of his moste precyous bloude, so many of vs (I saye) as shoulde beleue in his name. Christ is the ende of the lawe.

b. By fayth are we made iust, but yet on this condicyon, that we embrace Christes doctryne and confesse hym in worde and deede. For Christe calleth vs to worke in his vineyarde, and not to be idle all the daye. And the wycked seruaunte shall suffre many stripes. The wordes of fayth.

c. Some wyll axe me of whom the preachers must be sente: verelye of hym that is their maysters, that is God. Of hym be they sente, whiche preache Christe truly, without the desyre of vayne glorye or gaynes. On this sorte doeth Christ proue that he was sent of the father, because he sought his fathers glorye & not his owne. Except they be sent.

The.xi. Chapter.

¶ All the Jewes be not caste awaye, wherefore Paule warneth the gentyles that be called, not to be hye minded, nor to despyse the Jewes, for the mighty power of God on bothe sydes.

SAye then: hath God cast awaye his people? God forbyd. For euen I verelye am an Jsraelite, of the sede of Abraham, and of the tribe of Beniamin. GOD hath not caste awaye his people whiche he knewe before. Other wote ye not what the scripture sayth by the mouth of Helyas, how he maketh intercessyon to God against Jsrael, saynge: Lorde they haue killed thy prophetes and dygged downe thyne altres: and I am lefte ouerlye, and they seke my lyfe? But what sayth the aunswere of God to hym agayne?

I have reserued vnto me iiuen thousande me whiche have not bowed the knee to Baal. Euē so at thys tyme is there a remnaunte left thorrow the election of grace. Yf it be of grace, then is it not of workes. For then were grace no more grace. Yf it be of workes, then is it no more grace. For then were deserynge no longer deserynge.

What then? Israell hath not obtayned that he sought. No but the electyon hath ob-tayned it. The remnaunte are blynded, accordynge as it is wrytten. God hath geuen the spirite of vnquyetnes: eyes that they should not se, and eares that they shoulde not heare euen vnto thys daye. And Dauyd sayth: Let their table be made a snare to take them with all, and an occasyon to fall, and a reward vnto them. Let their eyes be blynded that they se not: and euer .a. bowe downe their backes.

I saye then: Have they therfore stombled, that they shoulde but falle ouerlye? God forbyd: but through their fall is saluacyon happened vnto the gentyles for to prouoke them withall. Wherfore yf the fall of them, be the ryches of the worlde: and the mynysshynge of them the ryches of the gentyles: howe much more shoulde it be so, yf they all beleued? I speake to you gentyles, in as much as I am Apostle of the gentyles: I wil magnify myne office, that I myght prouoke them which are my flesshe, and myght save some of them. For yf the castynge away of them, be the reconci-linge of the worlde: what shall the receyuing of them be but lyfe agayne from death? For yf one piece be holye, the whole heape is holy & yf the rote be holy, y braunches are holy also.

Though some of the braunches be broke of, and thou beynge a wylde olyue tree, arte graffed among them, and made partaker of the rote and fatnes of the olyue tree, boast not thy selfe agaynst the braunches. For yf thou boaste thy selfe, remember that thou bearest not the rote, but the rote the. Thou wylte saye then: the braunches are broke of, that I might be graffed in. Thou sayeste well: because of vn beleef they are broken of, & thou standest stedf-faste in faythe. Be not hye mynded, but feare seyng that God spared not the naturall braun
ches, leste happely he also spare not the.

Beholde the kyndnes and rigorousnes of God on them which fell, rygorousnes: but to wardes the kyndnes, yf thou continue in hys kyndnes. Or els thou shalte be hewen of, and yf they byde not styll in vnbeleefe, shalbe graf fed in agayne. For God is of power to graffe them in agayne. For yf thou wast cut out of a naturall wylde olyue tree, and walste graffed contrary to nature into a true olyue tree, howe muche more shall the naturall braunches be graffed into their owne olyue tree agayne.

I wolde not that this secrete shoulde be hyd from you my brethren (leste ye should be wyse in youre owne conceytes) that parte of blyndnes is happened in Israell, vntyll the fulnes of the gentyles be come in: and so all Israel shalbe saued. As it is wrytten: There shal come out of Syon he that doeth delyuer, and shall turne away the vngodlynes of Jacob.
And this is my couenaunte vnto them, when I shall take away their synnes. As concernynge the Gospell, they are enemyes for youre sakes: but as touchynge the electyon,
they are beloued for the fathers sakes.

For vnrelyne the gyftes and callyng of god
are suche, that it cannot repente hym of them,
for lyke as ye in tyme passed, have not beleued God, yet have nowe obtayned mercy through their vnbeleefe: euen so nowe have they not be leued the mercye whiche is happened vnto you, that they also maye obtayne mercy. God hath wrapped all naccons in vnbeleefe, that he myght have mercye on all.

O the deapnes of the abundaunte wysedome and knowledge of God: howe vnsearcheable are his iudgementes, and his wayes passe fyndynge out? For who hath knowen the mynde of the Lord? Or who was his coū seller? Other who hath geuen vnto hym fyrst that he myght be recompensed agayne? For of hym, and through hym, and for hym, are all thynges. To hym be glorye for euer. Amē

The notes.

a. This was not onelye spoken of the oppres-syon they shoulde suffre by the gentyles: but also of the lacke of faythe, and sure hope wher-by they shoulde not ouer be bold with sure cō
fydence to call vpon the Lorde their God.

The.xij. Chapter.

The fruyte conuersation, loue, and workes of such as believe in Christe.

Beseche you therfore brethren, by the mercyfulnes of God, that ye make youre bodyes a quicke
a. sacrifice holye and acceptable
vnto God, which is youre reasonable seruynge of God: And fashyon not youre selues lyke vnto this worlde. But be ye chaunged in youre shape, by the renuynge of youre wyttes, that ye may prue what thynge that good, that acceptable, and perfect wyll of God is. For I saye (through the grace that vnto me geuen is) to euery man among you, that no man esteme of hym selfe more then it becommeth hym to esteme: but that he discretely iudge of hym selfe, accordynge as GOD hath dealt to euery man the measure of fayth.

As we have many membres in one bodye,
all membres have not one office: so we beyng
many, are one body in Christ, & euery man (amonge our selues) one anothers members.

Seynge that we have dyuers gyftes, accordynge to the grace that is geuen vnto vs: yf any man have the gyft of prophesy, let him have

haue it that it be agreyng vnto the fayth. Let hym that hath an office, wayte on hys office. Let hym that teacheth, take hede to hys doctryne. Let hym that exhorteth, geue attendaunce to hys exhortacyon. If any man geue, let hym do it with singlenes. Let him that ruleth do it with diligence. If any man shew mercy let hym do it with cherfulnes.

Amos.v.d. Ephe.iiij.a

¶ Let loue be without dissimulacyon. Hate that whiche is euyll, and cleaue vnto ye which is good. Be kynde one to another with brotherlye loue. In geuyng honoure, go one before another. Let not the busynes whiche ye haue in hande, be tedyous to you. Be feruente in the spirite. Applye youre selues to the time. Reioyce in hope. Be patyent in tribulacyon. Continue in prayer. Distribute vnto the necessitie of the Sayntes, and be diligente to harboure. Blesse them whiche persecute you: blesse, but curse not. Be merye with them that are merye, Wepe with them that wepe. Be of like affeccyon one towardes an other. Be not hyghe mynded, but make youre selues equall to them of the lower sorte. ✠

Hebr.xiij.a i.Pet.iij.c

D ✠ Be not wyse in youre owne opinions. Recompence to no man euyll for euyll. Prouyde afore hande thynges honest in the syght of all men. If it be possyble, how be it of your part, haue peace with all men. Derely beloued auenge not youre selues, but geue roume vnto the wrathe of God. For it is wrytten: Vengeaunce is myne, and I wyll rewarde sayeth ye Lorde.

The.xiij. Chapter. ✠

¶ The obedience of men vnto the rulers. Loue fulfylleth the lawe. It is tyme to awake out of slepe. The workes of darcknes.

Obedience. Sapien.vi.a. i.Pet.ij.c

LEt euery soule submit him selfe vnto the authoryte of the hyghe powers. For there is no power but of God. The powers that be are ordeyned of God. Whoso euer therfore resysteth power, resysteth the ordinaunce of GOD. And they that resiste, shall receyue to them selfe damnacyon. For rulers are not to be feared for good workes, but for euyll. Wylte thou be wyth oute feare of the power? Do well then: and so shalte thou be praysed of the same. For he is the minister of GOD, for thy welth. But and yf thou do euyll, then feare: for he beareth not a swearde for nought, but is the minister of God, to take vengeaunce on them that do euyll. Wherfore ye muste nedes obeye, not for feare of vengeaunce onelye, but also because of a conscience. And euen for thys cause paye ye tribute. For they are Goddes ministers, seruyng for the same purpose. ✠ Geue to euerye man therfore hys dutye: Tribute to whom tribute belongeth: Custome to whom custome is due: feare to whome feare belongeth: Honoure to whom honoure pertayneth.

a Conscience.

Mat.xxij.c

✠ Owe nothyng to any man: but to loue one another. For he that loueth another, fulfylleth the lawe. For these commaundementes Thou shalte not commyt aduoutrye: Thou shalte not kyll: Thou shalt not steale: Thou shalte not beare false wytnesse: Thou shalte not desyre: and so forth (yf there be any other commaundemente) they are all comprehended in thys sayenge: Loue thyne neyghboure as thy selfe. Loue worketh not hys neyghboure. Therfore is loue the fulfyllynge of the lawe. ✠

Exod.xx.c Deut.v.d

L Loue is the fulfyllynge of the lawe.

Leuit.xix.d Mat.xxij.d Mar.xij.c

¶ ✠ This also we knowe, I meane the season, howe that it is tyme, that we shuld now awake oute of slepe. For nowe is oure saluacyon nearer, then when we beleued. The nyght is passed, and the day is come nye. Let vs therfore caste awaye the deedes of darcknes, & let vs put on the Armoure of lyghte. Let vs walke honestlye as it were in the dare lyght: not in eatynge and dronkynge: not in chambrynge and wantonnes, not in stryfe & enuyenge: but put ye on the Lorde Jesus Christ. ✠ And make not prouysyon for the flesshe, to fulfyll the lustes of it.

The notes.

a. Though thou were of power to resiste the magistrates. Yet shoulde thy conscience condempne the, yf thou dyddest it, because God commmaundeth the to do both good and euil at their commaundement: but to do the good thynges that they commaunde, and yf they commaunde the any euyll, to saye with Peter and John, it is oure parte rather to obeye God, then men. And yet lyfte no weapon against them but paciently suffer at their handes, whatsoeuer tiranny they wyll execute vpon the, for not doyng their commaundemente.

The.xiiij. Chapter.

¶ The weake ought not to be despysed. No man shoulde offende another in conscience. Against the commaune custome. Shulde no man condemne another.

B

VPon that is a weake in ye fayth, receyue ye hym, not in disputynge and troublyng hys conscience. One beleued that he maye eate all thynge. Another whiche is weake, eateth herbes. Let not hym that eateth, dispyse hym that eateth not. And let not hym whiche eateth not, iudge him that eateth. For God hath receyued hym. What arte thou, that iudgeste another mans seruaunte? Whether he stande or fall that pertayneth vnto hys maysters: yea he shall stande. For God is able to make him stande.

D ☞ Thys mã putteth difference betwene day and daye. Another man counted all dayes a lyke. He that no man wayer in hys owne meaninge. He that obserueth one daye more then another, doth it for the Lordes pleasure. And he that obserueth not one day more then another, doeth it to please the Lorde also. He that eateth, doeth it to please the Lorde, for he geueth God thankes. And he that eateth not, eateth not to please the Lorde with all, & geueth God thankes. For none of vs lyueth hys owne seruaunt: neyther doeth anye of vs dye hys owne seruaunte. Yf we lyue, we lyue to be at the Lordes wyll. And yf we dye, we dye at the Lordes wyll. Whether we lyue therfore or dye, we are the Lordes. For Christe therfore dyed, and rose agayne, and reuyued that he myght be Lord both of dead & quicke.

☞ But why dooste thou then iudge thy brother? Other why dooste thou despyse thy brother? We shall all be brought before the iudgement seate of Christe. For it is written: as truelye as I lyue sayth the Lorde: all knees shall bowe to me, and all tonges shall geue a knowledge to God. So shall euery one of vs, geue accompte of hym selfe to GOD. Let vs not therfore iudge one another anye more.

E ☞ But iudge thys rather, that no man put a stumblynge blocke or an occasyon to falle in hys brothers waye. For I knowe and am full certified in the Lorde Iesus, that there is nothynge comen of it selfe, but vnto hym that iudgeth it to be common, to hym is it comen. Yf thy brother be greued with thy meat, now walkest thou not charytablye. Destroye not hym with thy meate, for whome Christ dyed. Cause not youre treasure to be euyll spoken of. For the kyngedome of God is not meate and drynke, but rygh teousnes, peace, & ioye in the holye ghoste. For whosoeuer in these thynges serueth Christe, pleaseth well God, & is commended of men.

D ☞ Let vs followe those thynges which make for peace, and thynges wherewith one maye edifye another. Destroye not the worke of God for a lyttell meates sake. All thynges are pure: but it is euyll for that man, whiche eateth with hurte of hys conscience. It is good neyther to eate flesh, neyther to drynke wyne neyther anye thynge wherebye thy brother stumbleth, eyther falleth, or is made weake. Haste thou faythe? haue it wyth thy selfe before GOD. Happye is he that condempneth not hym selfe in that thynge whiche he alloweth.

For he that maketh conscience, is dampned yf he eate, because he doeth it not of faythe. For whatsoeuer is not of faythe, that same is synne. ✠

The notes.

a. Sayncte Paule calleth them weake, that not withstandynge they haue the saythe of Christe, yet theyr conscience wyll not suffer them to eate suche meates as the lawe of Moyses forbode. Suche wolde not Sayncte Paule haue despysed, but to gentlye instructed and taughte that to the faythfull all thynges are cleane, and nothynge to be refused, so it be taken with thankes, and that Moyses forbade the vse of certayne beastes and meates: not because he wolde by the properties of the same beastes or meates, declare what vyces the faythfull shoulde refrayne. And by the forbyddynge of swynes flesh, that the faythfull shoulde not delyghte to wallowe in the fylthy puddle of synne, as the delyghte to wallowe in myre. And ryghte so of other.

☞ The infirmity and frayltenes of the weake ought to be borne withall, loue and kyndnes after the exaumple of Christe.

WE whiche are strong, ought to beare the frayltes of them whiche are weake, and not to stande in our owne conceytes. Let euery mã please his neyghboure vnto hys wealth and edifynge. Cor. i. b minded one towardes another after the exaumple of Christe Iesu, that ye all agreynge together, maye with one mouthe prayse God the father of oure Lorde Iesus. Wherfore receyue ye one another, as Christe receyued vs, to the prayse of God.

And I saye that Iesu Christ was a mynyster of the circumcysyon for the trueth of God to confyrme the promyses made vnto the fathers. And let the Gentyles prayse God for hys mercye, as it is written: For thys cause I wyll prayse the amonge the Gentyles, & synge in thy name. And agayne he sayth: reioyse ye Gentyles with his people. And agayne. Prayse the Lorde all ye gentyles, and laude hym all nacyons. And in another place Esayas sayth: there shalbe the rote of Jesse, and he that shall ryse to reygne ouer the Gentyles: in hym shal the Gentyles trust. ☞ I my selfe am full certified of you my brethren, that ye your selues are full of goodnes and fylled with all knowledge, and are able to exhorte one another. Neuertheles brethren brethern I have some what boldelyer written vnto you, as one that putteth you in remem-D brauncе therowe the grace that is geven me of God, that I should be the minister of Jesu Christe amonge the Gentyles, and should minister y glad tydynges of God, that y gifts myghte be an acceptable offeringe, sanctified by the holye ghoste. I have therfore where of I maye reioyce in Christe Jesu, in thole thynges which pertayne to God. For I dare not speake of aught of thole thynges whiche Christe hath not wrought by me, to make the gentyls obedient, with worde and dede, in myghty synges and wonders, by the power of the spirite of God: so that from Hierusalē

and the coastes rounde about vnto Illiricum,
I have fylled al countreys with the glad tydynges of Christe.

Mat. iij. b 2 ☞ So have I endevored my selfe to preache the Gospell, not where Christe was named, lest
I should have bylt on another mannes foudacyon: but as it is wrytte: To whom he was not spoken of, they shall see, and they y heard not, shall understande. For thys cause I have ben ofte let to come vnto you: but nowe seyng
I have no more to do in these countreys, & also have ben desyrous many yeares to come vnto you, when I shall take my iourney into Spayne, I wyll come to you. I trust to se you in my iourney, and to be brought on my way thytherwarde by you after that I have fulfylled some what of youre desyre.

Ex. xix. b 3 ☞ Now go I vnto Hierusalem, and minister vnto the sayntes. For it hath pleased them of Macedonia and Achaia to make a certayne distribution vpon the poore sayntes, whiche are at Hierusalem. It hath pleased them verely, and they are debters. For yf the gentyles be made partakers of theyr spirituall thynges, they ought to minister vnto them in carnall thynges. When I have performed this, and have brought them this fruite sealed, I wyll come backe agayne by you into Spayne. And I am sure when I come, that I shall come with aboundaunce of the blessinge
of the Gospell of Christe.

4 ☞ I beseche you brethern for oure Lorde Jesus Christes sake, and for the love of the spy-rite, that ye helpe me in my busynes, with your prayers to God for me, that I maye be delyvered from them whiche believe not in Jewry, and that this my seruice, whiche I have to Hierusalem, maye be accepted of the sayntes, that I maye come vnto you with ioye, by the wyll of God, and maye with you be refreshed. The God of peace be with you.
Amen. ℣

The xvi. Chapter.

1 I Commende vnto you Phebe
our sister (whiche is a minister of the congregacion of Cenchrea)
that ye receyve her in the Lorde
as it becometh sayntes, & y e assiste her in whatsoever busynes she requireth of youre ayde. For she hath succored many, & myne owne selfe also. Greete Priscа & Aquila my helpers in Christe Jesu, whiche have for my life layde downe theyr owne neckes. Vnto which not I onlye geve thankes, but also al congregacyō of the gentyls. Lykewyse greete all the companye that is in her house. Salute my welbeloved Epenetus, whiche is the first frute amonge them of Achaia. Greete Mary whiche bestowed much labourе on vs. Salute Andronicus and Junia my cosyns, whiche were prysoners with me also, whyche are well taken among the Apostles, and were in Christ before me. Greete Amplias my beloved in the Lorde. Salute Urbane oure helper in Christ, & Stachys my beloved. Salute Apelles approved in Christ. Salute them whiche are of Aristobulus houshold. Salute Herodion my kynsman. Greete them of the houshold of Narcissus whiche are in the Lorde. Salute Tryphena and Tryphosa, whiche women dyd labourе in the Lorde. Salute the beloved Persis, which laboured in the Lorde. Salute Rufus chosen in the Lorde, and his mother and myne. Greete Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermas, Patrobas, Hermes, and the brethern whiche are with them. Salute Philologus & Julia, Nereus and his sister, and Olympha, and all the sayntes whiche are with them. Salute one another with an holye kysse. The congregacyons of Christe salute you.

The Prologe

vpon the fyrst Epistle of S. Paul to the Corinthyans.

This Epistle declareth it selfe from Chapter to Chapter, that it needeth no Prologue or interpretacion to declare it. When Paule had conuerted a greate nombre at Corinthum, as ye reade Act. xviij. and was beyonde the same vnchristyne lande Apollos and other maysters, and ouercome and destroyed all their madnes, and ouerthrowen their false apostles and their maysters, that were amonge the people, so longe as they myght be in audience, and shewed all their craftes: Yet Paule in the fowre firste Chapters with greate wisdome & coherence rebuketh fyrste the deuision and the variaunce therof, and calleth the people to Christe agayne, and teacheth howe and for what the preacher is to be taken.

In the fyfte he rebuketh the vnclennesse that was amonge them.

In the vi. he rebuketh the lechery, and goynge to lawe together, gluttonye there caused before the Lordes supper.

In the vij. he reformeth them, concerninge chastite and maryage.

In the viij. ix. & x. he teacheth the stronge to forbeare the weake that yet vnderstode not the libertye of the Gospell, and that with the exaumple of hym selfe. Whiche though he were an Apostle and had auctoritye, yet of loue he abstayned to vse the same. And he feareth them with the exaumples of the olde Testament, and rebuketh sharpely before that they amonge them sacrificinge vnto Idolles and the goinge vnto the Idolles of straunge women.

In the xi. xij. xiij. he teacheth of the manyfolde giftes of the Spirite, and ouerth by a similitude of the bodye, that all giftes are geuen that o the membre helpe other, and that the same be vsyd in order, and prouyth that there shuld be no deuision, and that there is but one God, which worketh all in all. For that one thinge your maysters, to all that God worketh of vs. The cheefage of all is, that Charytie is to be preferred vnto all thinge that helpe ours neighbours.

In the xiv. he teacheth of the edyfyenge of the boye.

And in the laste he exhorteth to helpe the poore Saynctes.

The fyrste epistle of S. Paul the Apostle to the Corynthyans.

The first Chapter.

The commendeth ye Corinthyans, exhorteth them to be of one mynde, & rebuketh the deuision that was amonge them. Who be wyse & learned before God. Yet there is no wysdome but in the bapyssed vnto Christe.

Paule by vocacyon an Apostle of Jesus Christe thorowe the wyll of God, & brother Sosthenes.

Vnto the congregacyon of GOD whiche is at Corinthum. To the that are sanctifyed in Christ Jesu, sayncted by callyng with al that call on the name of oure Lorde Jesus Christe in euerye place, bothe of theyrs and of oures. Grace be with you and peace from God oure father, and from the Lorde Jesus Christ. I thanke my God alwayes on youre behalfe, for the grace of God whiche is geuen you by Jesus Christ, that in all thynges ye are made ryche by hym, in all learynge and in al knowledge euē as the testimony of Jesus Christ was confyrmed in you, so that ye are behynd in no gyfte, and wayte for the appearynge of oure Lorde Jesus Christe, which shal stregthen you vnto the ende, that ye may be blamelesse in the daye of oure Lorde Jesus Christ. 1. Thes. 5. God is faythfull, by whome ye are called vnto the felowshyppe of hys sonne Jesus Christ oure Lorde.

I beseche you brethren in the name of Rom. xij. 8 oure Lorde Jesus Christe, that ye all speake one thynge, and that there be no dissencyon amonge you: but be ye knyt together in one mynde, and in one sentence. It is shewed vnto me (my brethren) of you, by them that are of the houshe of Cloe, that there is stryfe amōge you. And thys is it that I meane, how ỹ commonly among you, one saith: I holde of Paul, another I holde of Apollo, the third I holde of Cephas, the fourth I holde of Christ. Is Christe deuided? was Paule crucifyed for you? ether were ye baptysed in the name of Paule? I thanke God, that I christened none of you, but Crispus & Gaius, lest any should say that I had baptysed in myne owne name. I baptysed also the houshold of Stephana. Furthermore knowe I not whether I baptysed any man or no.

For Christe sente me not to baptyse, but to preache the gospel, not with wyssh of wordes Least the crosse of Christe shoulde haue bene preachynge made of none effecte. For the preachyng of the of the crosse crosse is to them that perysshe foolyshnes, but is the power vnto vs whiche are saued, it is the power of God.

of God. For it is written: I will destroye the wysdome of the wyse, and will caste awaye the understandinge of the prudent. Where is the wyse? Where is the scribe? Where is the searcher of this worlde? Hath not God made the wysdome of this worlde folysshenes?

Esa.xxix.c

For when the world thorough wysdome knewe not God, in the wisdom of God, it pleased God thorough folysshenes of preachynge to save the that beleve. For the Jewes require a signe, and the Grekes seke after wisdom. But we preache Christe crucified unto the Jewes an occasion of fallinge, and unto the Grekes folysshnes, but unto the, which are called both of Jewes and Grekes we preache Christe the power of God, and the wisdome of God. For the folysshnes of God is wyser then men, and the weaknes of God is stronger then men.

Signe.

Behorken lobe on youre callinge brethren: how not many wyse men after the flesshe, not many myghty, not many of hye degree are called: but God hath chosen the folysshe thinges of the worlde, to confounde the wise.

Christe is the power and wisdome of God.

And God hath chosen the weake thinges of the worlde, to confounde thinges, which are myghty. And vile thinges of the world, and thinges which are despysed, hath God chosen, yea and thinges of no reputacion for to bringe to nought thinges of reputacion, that no flesh should reioyce in his presence. And unto him pertaine ye in Christe Jesus, which of God is made to us wysdome, and also righteousnes, and sanctifyinge and redemption. That accordynge as it is written: he which reioyceth, let him reioyce in the Lorde.

Christe is wysdome, and of him ought we to holde, and in him only to reioyce.

b. He reioyseth in the Lorde, that knoweth certainly that God wysheth him good, and favoureth him so, that the thinge, which he doth pleaseth God, and that which he doth not as he should do, is forgiven him, and not imputed to him. Jeremie.xxiij.g. and Roma.viij.c.

The.ij. Chapter.

¶ He will not eloquence nor glorious persuasions worthy of wysdome, that can abyde and commende Christe but the plaine wordes of the Gospell. He sheweth wherein wisdom is, and not worldly.

Act.xviij.a.

AND I brethren when I came to you, came not in glorious of wordes, or of wysdome, shewinge unto you the testimonye of God. Neither stroued I my selfe that I knewe any thinge amonge you save Jesus Christe, even the same that was crucified. And I was amonge you weakenes, and in feare and in muche trembelinge. And my wordes and my preachinge were not with entysinge wordes of mannes wysdome but in shewinge of the spirite and of power, that your faith should not stande in the wysdome of men, but in the power of God.

Perfite are they that have this knowlege, which is true, and wonderfully the gift of God.

¶ That we speake of, is wisdome amonge them that are perfecte: yet wisdome of this worlde (whiche go to nought) but we speake the wysdome of God, which is in secrete and hyeth hyd, whiche God ordeined before the worlde unto our glory, which wisdome none of the rulers of this worlde knewe. For had they known it, they would not have crucified the Lorde of glorye. But as it was written: The eye hath not seen, and the eare hath not hearde, neither have entred into the herte of man the thinges, which God hath prepared for them that love him.

4

But God hath opened them to us by his spirite. For the spirite searcheth all thinges, ye the bottome of Goddes secretes. For what man knoweth the thinges of a man, save the spirite of a man, which is within him. Even so the thinges of God knoweth no man, but the spirite of God. And we have not receaved the spirite of the world: but the spirite which cometh of God, for to knowe the thinges that are given to us of God, which thinges also we speake, not in the enseignes wordes of mannes wysdome, but with the enseigning wordes of the holye ghost, making spirituall comparisons of spirituall thinges. For the naturall man perceiveth not the thinges of the spirite of God. For they are but folysshnes unto him. Neither can he perceive them, because he is spiritually examined. But he that is spirituall, discusseth all thinges: yet he himselfe is judged of no man. For who knoweth the minde of the Lorde? other who shall informe him? But we understand the minde of Christ.

The spirite understandeth only thinges.

D

The natural man is not receyved in Christ to perceive the thinges of God.

Eccl.xl.b. Rom.xi.b. Sapi.x.

The.iij. Chapter.

¶ Paule rebuketh Jewes & unthankfull christen. Christ is the foundacion of the church. No man oughte to be subject to man, but to God.

AND I coulde not speake unto you brethren as unto spirituall, but as unto carnall, even as it were to babes in Christ: I gave you milke to drinke, & not meate. For ye then were not stronge, no neyther yet are. For ye are yet carnall. As longe therfore as there is amonge you envyinge, strife and diffencions are ye not carnall, and walke after the maner of men? As long as one sayeth, I holde of Paul, and another I am of Apollo, are ye not carnall? What is Paule? What thinge is Apolle? Only ministers are they, by whom ye beleved, even as the Lorde gave every man grace. I have planted, Apoll watered: but God gave the encrease. So that neyther is he that planteth anye thinge neyther he that waterth: but God that gave the encrease.

The Apostles & pastors are but ministers to preache Christ to which doctryne every ought all obedience to be given.

8 He that planteth and he that watereth, are neither better then the other. Every man shall receyve his rewarde accordynge to his

hys labour. We are Goddes labourers, ye are Goddes husbandrye ye are Goddes buyldinge. According to the grace of God geuen vnto me, as a wyse buylder haue I layde the foundation, And another buylde theron. But let euery man take hede how he buildeth vpon. For other foundation can no man laie, then that whiche is layde, whiche is Iesus Christ. If any man buylde on this foundacion, golde, syluer, precyous stones timber, hay or stobble: euerye mans worke shall appeare. For the daye shal declare it, it shalbe shewed in fyre, And the fyre shall trye euery mannes worke, what it is. If any mannes worke that he hath buylt vpon, byde: he shall receyue a rewarde. If any mannes worke burne, he shall suffer losse: but he shalbe saued himselfe: neuertheles yet as it were thorow fyre.

Christe is the foundacion, & beareth all.

1. Cor. vi. d. Temple. 2. Cor. vi. c

✣ Are ye not ware that ye are the temple of God, and how that the spyryte of God dwelleth in you? If any man defyle the temple of God him shall God destroy. For the temple of God is holy, whyche temple ye are. Let no man deceyue hym selfe. If any man semeth wyse amonge you, let hym be a fole in this worlde that he maye be wyse. For the wysdome of this worlde is folyshnes wyth God. For it is wryttē: he compaseth the wyse in their craftynes. And agayne, God knoweth the thoughtes of the wyse that they be vayne. Therfore let no man reioice in men. For all thinges are youres whether it be Paule, other Apollo, other Cephas: whether it be the worlde, other lyfe, other deathe, whether they be present thynges or thinges to come: all are youres, and ye are Christes & Christ is Gods. ✣

¶ The notes.

A. Daye here signifyeth the tyme whē God hangeth to iudge the thinge that is iust. By fyre vnderstande exquisite and perfecte true iudgemente, whyche when it hath opened the faulte and errour, affliction of sorowfulnesse and repentyng doth folowe. Saynct Paule entreateth here of preachers, whyche succeaded him, when he was departed from the Corinthians. He had layed a good foundacion, let other take hede (sayth he) what they build ther on. If they builde thinges worthy for Christ: their workes will remayne, and abyde euen when they be fene in the fyre. Which thinge he signifyeth when he sayth: The daye shall declare it. But if they builde in Iewish fashions, they shall happely decrue for a time, but a long time: their deceyte shall be opened, as soone as it is begonne to be examined wyth true & sincere iudgement, whyche is signified by thys word, fire. Thus doth Erasmus expound this place, in his annotacions vpon these wordes. Hope and faithe. Passinge also by the authoryte of Saynct Ambrose, Hieromie, and other olde doctours, that it maketh nothinge for Purgatory though many haue wonderfully laboured to wrest it to that purpose.

✣ The preachers are but ministers. Iudgement belongeth vnto God onely. ✣

LEt men thus wyse esteme vs, euen as the ministers of Christ, and dispensers of the secretes of of God. Furthermore it is required of the dyspensers, that they be found faithfull. Wyth me it is but a very smal thinge, that I shoulde be iudged of you, eyther of (mans daye) No I iudge not myne owne selfe. I knowe nought by my selfe: yet am I not therby iustified. It is the Lorde that iudgeth me. Therfore iudge nothinge before the tyme: vntill the Lorde come, who wyll lyghten thinges, that are hyd in darckenes, and open the counsels of the hertes. And then shall euery man haue praise of God. ✣

✣ These thinges brethren I haue described in myne owne person and Apollos for youre sakes, that ye myght learne by vs, that no man esteme of him selfe beyonde that, which is above written: that one swell not agaynst another for anye mans cause. For who preferreth the? What haste thou, that thou hast not receyued? If thou haue receyued it: why reioycest thou as though thou haddest not receyued it?

Iacob. i. b

Now ye are full: now ye are made ryche: ye reigne as kinges without vs: and I would to God ye dyd reygne that we might reygne wyth you.

✣ We thynketh that God hath sette forth vs, which are Apostles for the lowest, of all as it were men appointed to death. For we are a gasyng stocke vnto the worlde, and to the aungels, and to men. We are foles for Christes sake and ye are wise thorow Christe. We are weake, and ye are stronge. Ye are honorable, and we are despised. Euen vnto this daye we hunger and thyrst, and are naked, and are bobbetted wyth fystes, and haue no certayne dwellinge place, and labour workinge wyth oure handes. We are reuiled, & yet we bleste. We are persecuted and suffer it. We are ryll spoken of and we praye. We are made as it were the filthynes of the worlde, & offscowring of all thynges, euen vnto this time.

And ye ſwell and haue not rather ſorowed, that he whiche hath done this dede, myght be put from amonge you. For I verelye as abſent in bodye, euen ſo preſent in ſpirite, haue determined alredye (as though I were preſent) that he that hath done this dede, in ỹ name of oure Lord Jeſus Chriſt, when ye are gathered together, in my ſpyrite, with the power of the Lorde Jeſus Chriſte, be delyuered vnto Sathan, for the deſtruccion of the fleſhe, that the ſpirite maye be ſaued in the daye of the Lorde Jeſus.

I wrote vnto you in an Epiſtle that ye ſhoulde not compayne with fornicatours. And I meant not at all of the fornicatours of this worlde, eyther of the couetous, or of extortioners, eyther of the ydolaters: for then muſte ye nedes haue gone oute of the world. But nowe I wrote vnto you, that ye compayne not together, if anye that is called a brother be a fornicatour, or couetous, or a worſhipper of ymages, eyther a raylar, either a dronkard, or an extortionar: with him that is ſuch, ſe that ye eate not. For what haue I to do, to iudge them which are without? Do ye not iudge them, that are within? Them that are without, God ſhal iudge. Put awaye from amonge you, that euyl perſon.

If anye that profeſſeth Chriſte be fornicatour &c. none other Chriſten man maye beare him compayne.

that bye, be as though they possessed not: and they that vse this worlde, be as though they vsed it not. For the fashiō of this worlde goeth away.

☞ I would haue you without care. The sin- ✠ gle man careth for the thinges of the Lorde howe he maye please the Lorde. But he that hath maried, careth for ỹ thinges of ỹ worlde howe he may please his wyfe. There is difference betwene a virgine and a wyfe. The single woman careth for the thinges of ỹ Lorde, that she maye be pure both in bodye and also Roma. b.ij. a.
in spirite. But she that is maried, careth for the thinges of the worlde, howe she maye please her husbande. This speake I for youre profite, not to tangel you in a snare, but for ỹ whiche is honeste and comely vnto you, and that ye maye quietly cleaue vnto the Lorde without separation.

☞ If anye man thinke that it is vncomelye
for his virgine if we passe ỹ tyme of mariage, ✠ and yf so nede require, let him do what he listeth, he sinneth not: let them be coupled in mariage. Neuertheles, he that purposeth surely in his herte, hauing none nede, but hath power ouer his owne wyll, and hath so decreed in his herte that he wyl kepe his virgin, doeth well. So then he that ioyneth his vir-gine in mariage doeth well. But he that ioy-neth not his virgine in mariage doeth better.
The wife is bounde to the lawe as longe as her husband liueth. If her husbande slepe, she is at libertye to marye with whome she wyll, onelye in the Lorde. But she is happyer if she so abyde, in my iudgemente. And I thinke be sure that I haue the spirite of God.

The gyfte of chastitie.

d. Chastitye is a gifte of God, and is (as all other morall vertues be) an honeste habite of the mynde whereby the outragious lustes of the flesthe be repressed and kepte vnder, so that they cause vs not to vse or despise the vnlawfull company of the contrarie sexte, that is the man of woman, or woman of man. This chastitie ought to be in euery Christian man and woman, be they maried or vnmaried. Thys chastitye haue we not of longe tyme counted worthy the name of chastitye, but thought the onely to be caste: whiche haue refrayned maryage. In verie dede, suche, if they refrayne all fleshly company, and despise of the same, are moste chaste. And if they do with all refrayne the busines of the worlde, are moste apte to preach the worde an minister in the congregation of God. But otherwise the quyete maried man is more apte for that office. For the troubles and cares of the worlde are muste to be auoyded in churche ministers.

The. viii. Chapter.

¶ He reproueth them that vse their libertye to the hinderyng of other, and teacheth how men ought to behaue them selues in suche cases to be vsed.

A Little loue is better then much knowledge.

TO speake of thinges dedicate vnto Idols, we are sure that we all haue knowledge. knowledge maketh a man swel, but loue edifyeth. If anye man thinke & he knoweth anie thinge, he knoweth nothinge yet as he ought to knowe. But yf anye man loue God, the same is knowen of hym.

To speake of meate dedicate vnto Idols, we are sure that there is none Idol in y world and that there is none other God but one. And though there be that are called Goddes, whether in heauen other in earthe (as there be Goddes manye and Lordes manye) yet vnto vs is there but one God, whiche is the father, of whom are al thinges, and we in hym: and one Lorde Jesus Christ, by whome are all thinges, and we by hym.

One God One Lorde.

¶ But euery man hath not knowledge. For some supposyng that there is an Idole, vntyll this houre, and eate as of a thinge offered vnto the Idole, and so their consciences beynge yet weake are defyled. Meate maketh vs not acceptable to God. Neither yf we eate are we the better. Neither, yf we eate not, are we the worse.

B In all our dedes we must haue a respecte, to our neighbours wealth & profyte. 1. Cor. x.

But take hede that your libertye cause not the weake to fall. For yf some man se the, whiche hath knowledge, syt at meate in the Idoles temple, shall not the conscience of hym which is weake, be boldened to eate those thinges, whiche are offered vnto the Idole? And so through thy knowledge shal the weake brother perishe for whom Christ dyed. Where ye synne so against the brethren, and wounde their weake consciences, ye synne against Christe. Wherfore yf meate hurte my brother, I will eate no flesthe, whyle the worlde standeth, because I will not hurte my brother.

Marke what it doeth.

The. ix. Chapter.

¶ He confirmeth the thinge that he wrote vnto the last. He exhorteth them to remayne stedfast in the truethe that they haue begonne.

A Paul proueth him self an Apostle equal to the best & the spirit beareth record to his preaching, & as many were by him chaunged, as by the Apostles.

AM I not an Apostle? am I not free? haue I not seen Jesus Christ our Lorde? Are not ye my worke in the Lorde? yf I be not an Apostle vnto other, yet am I vnto you. For the seale of myne Apostleshippe are ye in the Lorde. Myne answere vnto them that axe me, is this. Haue we not power to eate, and to drinke? Haue we not power to leade about a sister to wyfe as well as other Apostles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas? Other onely I and Barnabas haue not power thereto? Who goeth a warfare anye time at his owne coste? Who planteth a vineyarde, and eateth not of the fruite? Who feedeth a flocke and eateth not of the mylke?

B Deut. xxv. 4. 1. Tim. v. c.

¶ Saye I these thinges after the maner of men? Or saieth not the lawe the same also? For it is written in y lawe of Moyses. Thou shalt not muzzell the mouth of y oxe that treadeth out the corne. Doeth God take thought for oxen? Either saith he it not altogether for our sakes? For our sakes no doubt this is written: y he whiche eareth, should eare in hope: & he which thresheth in hope, should be partaker of his hope. Yf we sowe vnto you spirituall thinges: is it a great thinge yf we reape youre carnall thinges. Yf other be partakers of this power, are not we rather?

The preacher ought to take wages for his labour.

¶ Neuertheles we haue not vsed this power but suffer all thinges lest we should hinder the Gospell of Christe. Do ye not vnderstande howe that they whiche minister in the temple, haue their liuynge of the temple? And they which waite at the aulter, are partakers of the aulter? Euen so also did the Lord ordaine, that they which preach the Gospel, should liue of the Gospell. But I haue vsed none of these thinges.

Deut. xviii. 2

¶ Neither write I these thinges, y it should be so done vnto me. For it were better for me to dye, then that anye shoulde take this reioyse from me. In that I preache the Gospel, I haue nothinge to reioyce of. For necessitye is put vnto me. Woe is it vnto me yf I preach not the Gospel. yf I do it with a good will, I haue a reward. But yf I do it against my will, an office is committed vnto me. What is my reward then? Verelye, that when I preache the Gospell, I make the Gospell of Christ free, that I misuse not myne authoryte in the Gospell.

C He that watcheth of loue to his neighbour, hath no reward.

For

D What loue maketh a mā to do.

¶ For though I be fre from all men, yet haue I made my selfe seruaunte vnto all me, that I myght wynne the mo. Vnto ỳ Jewes, I became as a Jewe, to wynne the Jewes. To them that were vnder the lawe, was I made as though I had ben vnder ỳ lawe, to wynne them that were vnder the lawe. To them that were without lawe, became I as though I had ben without the lawe (when I was not without lawe as pertepninge to God, but vnder a lawe as concernynge Christe) to wynne them that were without lawe. To the weake became I as weake, to wynne the weake. Jn all thinge I fashioned my selfe to all men, to saue at the lest waye some. And thys I do for the Gospel sake, that I might haue my parte thereof.

¶ Perceyue ye not howe that they whyche runne in a course, runne all, yet but one receiueth the reward. So runne that ye maye obtayne. Euery man that proueth maysters abstameth from all thinges. And they do it to obtaine a corruptible croune: but we to obtaine an vncorruptible croune. Jherfore so runne, not as an vncertaine thinge. So fight I not as one that beateth the ayer: but I tame my bodye and bringe it into subiection, lest after that I haue preached to other, I my selfe should be a cast awaye.

The x. Chapter.

A Doth exemth them with the exaumples of the olde testamente, and exhorteth them to godlye conuersacion.

A As it writ in ỳ olde testamēt, so shal it do in ỳ newe Exo. xvij. d

BRether I would not ỳ ye should be ignorante of this, howe that oure fathers were all vnder a cloude, and al passed thorowe the sea, and were all baptysed vnder Moyses, in the cloude, and in the sea: and dyd al eate of one spyrytual meate, and dyd al dranke of one maner of spyrytual dranche. And they dranke of that spyrytuall rocke that folowed them, which rocke was Christe. But in many of them had God no delite. For they were ouerthrowen in the wylderness.

Exod. xvij. b. Nume. xx. b. Nu. xxvi. g. Exo. xxxij. g. Num. xxv. b Num. xxi. b.

¶ These ate exaumples to vs, that we should not luste after euyll thinges, as they lusted. Neyther be ye worshippers of Jmages as were some of them accordynge as it is writtē: The people sate doune to eate and dranke, and rose vp agayne to playe. Neyther let vs committe fornicacion as some of them committed fornycacion, and were destroyed in one day .xxiij. thousand. Neyther let vs tempte Christe as some of them tempted, and were destroyed of serpentes. Neyther murmure ye as some of them murmured, and were destroyed of the destroyer.

C All these thinges happened vnto them for exaumples, and were written to put vs in remembraunce, whom the endes of the world are come vpon. Wherfore let him that thynketh he standeth, take hede lest he fall. There hath none other temptacion taken you, but suche as foloweth the nature of man. But God is faythful whiche shall not suffre you to be tempted aboue your strenght: but shall in the middest of the temptacion make a waye to escape out. ¶ Wherfore my deare beloued, flie from worshipping of Jdols.

I speake as vnto them, whiche haue discretion, iudge ye what I saye. Is not ỳ cuppe of blessinge whyche we blesse, partaking of that bloude of Christe? is not the breade which we breake, partakinge of the bodye of Christ? Because that we (though we be manye) yet are one bodye in as muche as we all are partakers of one breade. Beholde Jsrael whiche walketh carnally. Are not they which eate of the sacrifice, partakers of the aultre?

D Cuppe. Breade.

¶ What saye I then? that the Jmage is any thinge? or that it whiche is offered to Jmages is any thinge? Naye, but I saye, that these thinges, whiche the Gentyles offer, they offer to deuyls, and not to God. ¶ And I wolde not ỳ ye should haue fellowshippe with the deuyls. Ye can not dranke of the cuppe of the Lorde and of the cuppe of the deuyls. Ye can not be partakers of the Lordes table, and of the table of the deuyls. Either shall we prouoke the Lorde? Are we stronger then he? All thinges are lawfull vnto me, but all thinges are not expedient. All thinges are lawful to me, but all thinges edifye not. Let no man seke his owne profyte: but let euerye man seke another mans wealth.

Eccl. xxxiij. d i. Cor. vi. c We haue professed euerye man to seke another mans wealth

Whatsoeuer is solde in the market, that eate and aske no questions for conscience sake. ¶ For the earth is the Lordes, and all that therin is. Jf anye of them whiche beleue not, bid you to a feste, & ye be disposed to go, whatsoeuer is set before you, eate, axing no question for conscience sake. But and yf anye man saye vnto you this is dedicate vnto Jdols, eate not of it for his sake that sheweth it, and for hurtyng of conscience (The earth is the Lordes, & all that therin is) Conscience I saye, not thine but the conscience of that other. For why should my libertie be iudged of another mans conscience? For yf I take my parte with thanke: why am I euil spoke of for ỳ thinge, wherfore I geue thanke.

Psalm. xxiv. a

Whether therfore ye eate or dryncke, or what soeuer ye do, do al to the praise of God. ¶ See that ye geue occasion of euil, neither to ỳ Jewes, nor yet to the Gentiles, neither to the congregation of God: euen as I please al me in al thinges, not seking myne owne profite, but the profit of many, that they myght be saued. Folowe me, as I do Christe.

Coloss. iij. a.

¶ The notes.

a. We shoulde be so ful of loue and so circumspect, that we shoulde geue none occasion to the ignoraunte to speake euyl of vs for our libertie, and for that whiche we maye lawfully do before God.

Why should that my libertie, &c.

The xi. Chapter.

He re-

¶ He reioyseth them for the stedy continuance they had shewed the Sacrament of the bodye and bloude of Christe, and bringeth them again to the right understanding.

A Lyke.b. a. or rather, taught you.

I Commende you brethren that ye remembre me in all thinges, & kepe the ordinaunces euē as I deliuered * them to you. I woulde you knewe that Christ is the heade of euery man. And the man is the womans heade. And God is Christes heade. Euery mā prayenge or prophesyinge hauing any thinge on his heade, shameth his head. Euery woman that prayeth or prophesyeth bare headed, dishonesteth her heade. For it is euen all one, and the very same thinge, euen as though she were shaue. If the woman be not couered, let her also be shaue. If it be shame for a woman to be shaue or shaue let her couer her head.

B Gene.ij.b.

¶ A man ought not to couer his heade, for as muche as he is the ymage and glorye of God. The woman is the glorye of the man. For the man is not of the woman, but the woman of the man. Neither was the man created for the womans sake but the woman for the mannes sake. For this cause ought † woman to haue * power on her heade, for † angels sakes. Neuertheles, neyther is the man wythout the woman neyther the woman wythout the man in the Lorde. For as † woman is of the man, euen so is the man by the woman: but all is of God.

* Power is as muche to say as a signe † † woma is in subiectiō, † hath an head ouer her.

¶ Iudge in your selues whether it be comelye, that a women praye vnto God beare head. Doeth not nature teache you that it is a shame for a man, yf he haue longe heer, † prayse to a woman, yf she haue longe heere? For her heere is geuē her to couer her withall. If there be any man amonge you, that lusteth to striue let him knowe that we haue no suche custome, neither the congregations of God.

C D

¶ This I warne you of, and commende not that ye come together not after a better maner but after a worse. First of all when ye come together in the congregacion, I heare that there is dyssencion amonge you, and I partely, beleue it. For there muste be sectes amonge you, that they whyche are perfecte amonge you, myght be knowen. ✣ When ye come together a man can not eate the Lordes supper. For euery man begynneth alone to eate his owne supper. And one is hongrye, and another is dronken. Haue ye not houses to eate and to drinke in? Or els despyse ye the congregacion of God and shame them that haue not? What shall I saye vnto you? shall I prayse you? In this prayse I you not. ✣

The Lordes supper.

E * or rather, taught you. 1. Cor. xi. d. Mat. xxvi. c. Mar. xiiij. c

✣ That whiche I deliuered * you, I receiued of the Lorde. For the Lorde Jesus † same nyght, in whyche he was betrayed, toke bread, and thanked and brake, and sayde. Take ye, eate ye. This is my bodye whyche is broken for you.

Do this in the remembraunce of me. After the same maner he toke the cuppe, when supper was done, saying. This cuppe is the newe testamente in my bloude. This do as oft as ye drynke it, in the remembraunce of me. For as often as ye shal eate this bread, and drincke this cuppe, ye shall shewe the Lordes death tyll he come. Wherfore whosoeuer shall eate of this bread, or drinke of the cuppe vnworthely, shall be guilte of the bodye and bloude of the Lorde. Let a man therfore examen hym selfe, and so let hym eate of the bread and drynke of the cuppe. For he that eateth or drinketh vnworthelye, eateth and drynketh his owne damnation, because he maketh no . b. difference of the Lordes bodye. ✣

F Ioh. vi. f. 1. Cor. xv. k.

For this cause many are weake and sycke amonge you, and many slepe. * If we had truely iudged our selues, we should not haue ben iudged. But when we are iudged of the Lorde, we are chastened, because we shoulde not be dampned with the worlde. Wherfore my brethren, when ye come together to eate, tary one for another. If any man hunger, let him eate at home, that ye come not together vnto condēnation. Other thynges will I set in order when I come.

G * or rather, are weake.

¶ The notes.

a. Of these wordes is sufficiently spoken in the .xxvi. of Mathewe.

This is my bodye. Makynge no difference &c.

b. Vpon these wordes woulde some men fayne builde the opinion of the horrible presence of Christe in the sacrament. What difference (saye they) should there be, yf the sacramente were not the naturall bodye of Christe. Certes this difference. The sacramental bread and wine bringe diuersely amonge the faythfull and vnfayethfull of the same, that certifye them euen (as it were sensibly) of the redemption by Christ, where the common bread doth but feede the body. Yea and the more spirituall interpretours of this place, do take these wordes to be spoken of the congregacion, whyche is truelye called the bodye of the Lorde. As though Paule should haue sayed, Puttinge no difference betwene the faythfull and the vnbeleuinge.

The xi. Chapter.

¶ The rewarde of the gyftes of the holye ghoste, are geuē to the vnworthy, and to them of euyll conuersacion, as the gyftes of our bodyes come into nought.

A Ouerlye the spirte teacheth that Christe is the Lorde, SPirituall thynges brethren I woulde not haue you ignoraunte. ✣ Ye knowe that ye were gētyles, and wente your wayes vnto dome Idols, euen as you were led. Wherfore I warne you, that no man speakynge in the spirite of God, curseth Jesus. Also no man can saye that Jesus is the Lorde, but in the Lordes but by the holye ghoste.

B There are diuersities of gyftes vereipe, Our spprite. pet but one spirite. And there are differences of administracions, & yet but one Lorde. And there are diuerse maners of operations, and pet but one God, which worketh all thinges that are wrought, in all creatures. The gifte & of the spirite are geuen to euery mā to profite the congregation. To one is geuen thorowe the spirite the vtterawnce of wysdome. Our Lorde. Our God. To another is geue the vtterawnce of knowledge by the same spirite. To another is geue The gyftes of ỹ spirite faythe by the same spirite. To another the giftes of healinge, by the same spirite. To another are geuen ye ther power to do miracles. To another pro- to do seruice phesie. To another iudgemēt of spirites. To to oure bre- another diuerse tounges. To another the in- thren. terpretation of tounges. And these all worketh euen the selfe same spprete, deuydynge to euery man seuerall gyftes, euen as he will. ỹ

For as the bodye is one, and hath many membres, and all the membres of one bodye though they be many, yet are they but one bodye: euen so is Christ. For in one spprite are we al baptysed to make one body, whether we be Jewes or Gentiles, whether we be bounde or free: and haue al dronke of one spirite. For the body is not one mēber, but many. If the fote saye: I am not the hand, therfore I am not of the bodye: is he therfore not of the bodye? And yf the eare saye, I am not the eye: therfore I am not of the bodye: is he therfore not of the bodie? If al ỹ bodye were & or rather, an eye, where were then the eare? & If all the hearinge were hearinge: where were the smellynge?

C But nowe hath God disposed the membres euery one of them in the bodye, at his owne pleasure. If they were al one membre: where were the bodye? Nowe are there many membres, yet but one bodye. And the eye can not saye vnto the hand: I haue no nede of the: nor the heade also to the fete. I haue no nede of you. Yea rather a greate deale those membres of the bodye, whyche seme to be moste feble, are moste necessarye. And vpon those membres of the bodie, which we thinke lesse honest, put we moste honestye on. And oure vngodlye parties haue most be satysfyed on. For our honeste membres nede it not. But God hath so tempered the bodye, and hath geuen moste honoure to that parte whyche lacked, lest there should be any stryfe in the bodye: but that the membres should indifferently care one for another. And yf one membre be had in honoure, all the membres be glad also.

D Ye are the bodye of Christ, and membres one of another. And God hath also ordeined in the congregation, fyrst the Apostles, secondarely prophetes, thyrdely teachers then them that do miracles: after that ỹ giftes of healinge, helpers, gouernes, diuerse kyndes of tounges.

Are all Apostles? Are all Prophetes? Are all teachers? Are all doers of miracles? Haue all the gyftes of healinge? Do all speake with tounges? Do al interprete? Louet after the beste gyftes. And pet shewe I vnto you a more excellente waye.

The.xiij. Chapter.

C The nature and condicion of loue.

Thought I speake with tounges A of me and angels, and pet had no loue, I were euen as soundinge brasse, or as a tynklinge Cymbal. And though I could prophecye, and vnderstande all secretes, and all knowledge: yea, yf I had & all faythe & All faith that I could moue mountaines out of their to as much places, and pet had no loue, I were nothing. to saye as is
And though I bestowed all my goodes to feade the poore, and though I gaue my bodye that I burned, and pet had no loue, it profeteth me nothinge.

Loue suffereth longe, and is curteous. Loue enuieth not. Loue doth not frowardelye, B swelleth not, dealeth not dishonestlye, seketh Loue. not her owne, is not prouoketh to anger, thinketh not euil, reioyceth not in iniquite: but reioyseth in the trueth, suffereth all thinge, beleueth all thinges, hopeth all thinges, endureth all thinges. Though that prophesynge fayle, other tounges shall cease, or knowledge vanishe awaye, yet loue falleth neuer awaye. Phi.b.c

For oure knowledge is vnperfect, & oure prophesynge is vnperfecte. But when that C which is perfect, is come: then ỹ which is vnperfect, shal be done awaye. When I was a child, I spake as a childe, I vnderstode as a childe, I imagined as a childe. But assone as I was a man, I put awaye childishnes. Nowe we se in a glasse euē in a darke speakinge, but then shall we se face to face. Nowe I knowe vnperfectlye, but then shall I knowe euē as I am knowē. Nowe abideth faythe, hope, and loue, euen these three: but the chiefe of these is loue.

The notes.

a. Paul speaketh not here of iustification, but of the profit of the congregation. And in this respect is loue the chiefe because it leaneth vnto The chiefe of gentlye to the nede of our neighboure, and so there is loue, hath mercies to succoure the same: euen as iustification faytheleaueth fully and onelye vnto Christes bloude, whyche is the onelye, and sufficiente price for synne, and is therfore chefe there. On this sorte doeth Erasmus expounde in his annotacion vpon this place.

The.xiiij. Chapter.

C Paule declareth that the gyfte of prophesye, tounges, or interpretacion, excelleth the gyfte of tounges, and teacheth how they ought to be vsed.

Laboure

Prophesying is here taken for expoundinge.

Wordes that are not understande, profyte not.

Mayne kindes of voices are in the worlde and none of them are without signification. If I knowe not what the voice meaneth, I shalbe vnto hym that speaketh, an alient: and he that speaketh shall be alient vnto me. Euen so (for as much as ye coueite spirituall gyftes) seke that ye maye haue plente vnto the edifying of the congregation.

Wherfore let him that speaketh with tounges praye, that he maye interprete also. If I praye with tounges, my spirite prayeth but my mynde is without fruite. What is it then? I will praye with the spirite, and will praye with mynde also. I will singe with the spirite, and will singe with the mynde also.

For els when thou blesest with the spirite howe shall he that occupieth the rowme of the vnlearned saye amen at the geuynge of thankes, sayinge the vnderstandeth not what thou sayeste? Thou verily geuest thankes wel, but the other is not edified. I thanke my God, I speake with tounges more then ye all. Yet had I leuer in the congregation, to speake fyue wordes with my mynde to the information of other, rather then x. thousand wordes with the tounge.

Brethren be not children in wyt howbeit as concerninge malicousnes be children: but in wyt be perfect. In the lawe it is written, with other * tolkes, and with other lippes will I speake vnto this people, and yet for al that wil they not heare me, sayeth the Lorde. Wherfore, tounges are for a signe, not to them that beleue, but to them that beleue not. Contrarywyse prophesying serueth not for them that beleue not: but for them which beleue.

Yf therfore when all the congregation is come together, and all speake with tounges, there come in they that are vnlearned, or they whyche beleue not: wyll they not saye that ye are out of your wytes? But and yf all prophesye, and there come in one that beleueth not, or one vnlearned, he is rebuked of al men, and is iudged of euerye man: and so are the secretes of his herte opened, and so falleth he downe on his face, and worshypeth God, & sayeth that God is with you in dede.

How is it then brethren? When ye come together, euerye man hath his songe, hath his doctrine, hath his tounge, hath his reuelation, hath his interpretation. Let al thynges be done vnto edifying. If anye man speake with tounges, let it be two at ones, or at the moste thre at ones, and that by course: and let another interprete it. But yf there be no interpreter, let him kepe silence in the congregation, and let him speake to him selfe and to God.

Let the Prophetes speake two at ones, or three at ones, and let other iudge. And yf anye reuelation be made to another that sitteth by, let the fyrste holde his peace. For ye maye all prophesye, one by one that all maye learne, and all maye haue comforte. For the spirites of the Prophetes are in the power of the Prophetes. For God is not author of strife, but of peace, as he is in all other congregations of the sainctes.

Let your wyues kepe silence in the congregations. For it is not permitted vnto them to speake: but let them be vnder obedience, as saith the lawe. If they wil learne anye thynge, let them axe their husbandes at home. For it is shame for women to speake in the congregation. Sprange the worde of God from you? Or came it vnto you onelye? If anye man thinke him selfe a Prophet, either spirituall, let him vnderstande, what thynges I write vnto you. For they are the commaundementes of the Lorde. But and yf anye man be ignorante, let him be ignorant. Wherfore brethren coueite to prophesye, and forbyd not to speake with tounges. And let al thynges be done honestly and in ordre.

The notes.

a To speake with tounges is with the spirite, so to speake that other vnderstand not. As parables haue their frutte. To speake with the mynde, so to speake that other vnderstande, as when the preacher preacheth to the people in a tounge that they vnderstande.

To speake with tounges

The xiv. Chapter.

A BRethern as pertayninge to the Gospel, whiche I preached vnto you, whiche ye haue also accepted, and in the whiche ye cõtinue, by whiche also ye are saued: I do you to wit, after what maner I preached vnto you yf ye kepe it, except ye haue beleued in vayne.

The fyrste principle of oure faith. 1. or: rather I taught you that which I learned.

For fyrste of al I deliuered vnto you that which I receiued * how that Christe dyed for oure synnes, agreinge to the scriptures: and that he was buried, and that he rose agayne the thyrde daye accordinge to the scriptures and that he was sene of Cephas, then of the twelue. After that he was sene of more then fyue hundred brethern at ones of whiche manie remaine vnto this daie, and manye are fallen a slepe. After that appeared he to James, then to al the Apostles.

B Esa.liij.b. Jone.ij.a. Ose.xi.a. John.xx.c. Act.ix.a. Ephe.iij.b.

And last of al, he was sene of me, as of one that was borne out of due time. For I am the leste of al the Apostles, whiche am not worthy to be called an Apostle, because I persecuted the congregation of God. But by † grace of God I am that I am. And his grace which is in me, was not in vaine, † but I laboured more aboundantly then they al, not I but the grace of God which is with me. Whether it were I or they, so we preache, and so haue ye beleued.

C Resurrectiõ. † If Christe be preached howe that he rose from deathe: howe saye some that are amonge you, that there is no resurrection from deathe? If there be no rysinge agayne from death, the is Christe not rysen. If Christ be not rysen, then is our preachinge vayne, and your faith is also in vaine. Ye and we are founde false witnesses of God. For we haue testified of God, howe that he rayled vp Christe, whom he rayled not vp yf it be so that the deade ryse not vp againe. For yf the dead ryse not againe then is Christ not rysen again. Yf it be so † Christe rose not, then is youre faith in vayne, and yet are ye in youre synnes. And then they which are fallen a slepe in Christ, are perysshed. If in this lyfe onelye we beleue on Christ, then are we of all men the miserablest.

Fyrst fruites Apoc.i.b. 1.Thes.iiij.d. But now is Christ rysen from the dead, and is become the fyrste fruytes of them that slepte. For by a man came death, and by a man came the resurrection of the dead. For as by Adam all dye, euen so by Christe, shall all be made alme, and euery man in his owne order. †

D Psa.cx.a. Hebr.i.b Psal.viij.c Hebr.ij.b. The fyrste is Christe, then they that are Christes at his comminge. Then commyth the ende when he hath delyuered vp the kyngedome to God the father, when he hath put downe all rule, authoritie, and power. For he muste reigne tyll he haue put all hys enemies vnder his fete.

The laste enemye that shalbe destroyed is death. For he hath put all thinges vnder hys fete. But when he sayeth, all thinges are put vnder hym it is manifest that he is excepted, whyche dyd put all thinges vnder him. Whē all thinges are subdued vnto hym: then shall the sonne also him selfe be subiecte to him that put al thinges vnder him that God maye be all in all thinges. Eyther els what do they, which are baptysed ouer the dead, yf the dead ryse not at all? Why are they then.a. baptysed ouer the dead? yea and why stande we in iopardye euerye houre? By our reioysinge, whyche I haue in Christe Jesu our Lorde, I dye daylye. That I haue fought with beastes at Ephesus, after the maner of men what auaunta geth it me, yf ye dead rise not againe? Let vs eate and drinche, for morowe we shall dye. Be not deceiued: malicious speakinges corrupte good maners. Awake truelye out of slepe and synne not. For some haue not the knowledge of God. I speake this vnto you: rebuke.

Esai. xxii. Sapi.ij.b.

E But some man wyl saye: howe aryse the dead? with what bodyes come they in? Thou fole, that whiche thou sowest is not quickened except it dye. And what sowest thou? Thou sowest not that bodye that shall be, but are come (I meane either of what, or of some other) and God geueth it a body at his pleasure, to euery seede a seuerall body.

† Al flesche is not one maner of flesche: but there is one maner flesche of men, another maner flesche of beastes, another maner flesche of fyshes, and another of byrdes.

There are celestiall bodyes, and there are bodyes terrestriall. But the glorye of the celestiall is one, and the glorye of the terrestriall another. F There is one maner glorye of † sunne and another glorye of the mone, and another glorye of the starres. For one starre dyffereth from another in glorye. So is the resurrectiõ of the dead. It is sowen in corruption, and ryseth in incorruption. It is sowē in dishonoure, and ryseth in honoure. It is sowen in weakenes, and ryseth in power. It is sowen a naturall bodye, and ryseth a spyrytuall bodye.

Gene.ij.b. There is a naturall bodye, and there is a spirituall bodye, as it is written: the fyrste man Adam was made a lyuinge soule, and the laste Adam was made a quickeninge spirite. Howbeit that is not fyrste whiche is spyrytual: but that which is naturall, and then that which is spyrytual. †

Image of Christe. The fyrste man is of the earth, earthlye: the seconde man is the Lorde from heauen. As is the earthlye, such are they that are earthlye. And as is the heauenlye, suche are they that are heauenlye. And as we haue borne † ymage of the earthly so shal we beare the Image of the heauenlye.

Corruptible fleshe & bloud can not &c. This saye I brethern, that.b. fleshe and bloude can not inherite the kyngedome of God. Neyther corruption inherite vncorruption. Beholde I shewe you a mysterye. We shal not al slepe: but we shal al be chaunged, and that in a moment & in the twinkling of an eye, at the sound of the laste trompe. For the the trompe shall blowe, and the dead shal rise incorruptible and we shal be chaunged. For this corruptible must put on incorruptibilitie: and this mortal must put on immortalitye. When this corruptible, hath put on incorruptibilitie, and this mortal hath put on immortalitie, then shalbe brought to passe the saying that is writte. Death is ouercomed into victory. Death wher is thy sprye? Hel wher is thy victory? The stinge of death is sinne: & the strenght of sinne is the lawe. But thankes be vnto God, which hath geuen vs victory, thorowe our Lorde Jesus Christ. Therfore my deare brethren, be ye stedfast and vnmouable alwayes ryche in the workes of ỳ Lorde, for as much as ye knowe, howe that your labour is not in vaine in the Lorde.

Ose.xiij.d. Heb.ij.d. The lawe is the strenght of sinne.

¶ The notes.

Baptysed ouer ỳ dead.

a. In myne opinion, the translation shoulde be better, if it were baptised for the dead. For thoughe it be credible inough, & wel agreing to the purpose, that some men woulde be baptysed (that is to saye washed) ouer the graues of men departed this lyfe, in token that those same bodies shoulde at the laste daye be purified, & so rayseth agayne: yet is it more lyke the trueth, that in this place S. Paule alluded to the lawe of Moyses whiche was that whosoeuer shoulde touche the vncleanes of a dead bodie, should be vncleane vntil euening, & shoulde not be worthy to eate of the halowed thinges vntil he had washed him selfe with water, to declare the hope of the purifynge of the same bodye, and the glorious resurrection of the same. So that to be baptysed ouma thedfor the dead, is as muche to saye, as for towchynge of the dead coopses of men departed.

Fleth and blood cā not inherite the kingdome of God.

b. That is to saye. This corruptible, impure and synfull fleth muste be purged, yer it can inherite the kingdome of God, whiche is incorruptible, pure and that can abyde no sinne. No remedy therfore this fleshe must be chaunged and ryse incorruptible, that it maye enter into that kyngedome.

The.xvi. Chapter.

¶ He exhorteth them in remembraunce of the gathering for the poore Christians at Hierusalem, and ch. shewith how shortly he entendeth to come vnto them.

21 Of the gatheringe for the sainctes, as I haue ordeined in the congregations of Galatia, euen so do ye. Vpon some sondaye let euery one of you put a syde at home, and laye vp whatsoeuer he thinketh meete that there be no gatheringes when I come.

When I am come, whomsoeuer ye shall alowe by your letters, them will I sende to bringe your liberalitie vnto Jerusalem. And yf it be mete that I go, they shal go with me. I will come vnto you after I haue gone thorowe Macedonia. For I will go throughout Macedonia. Perhaps peraduenture I wil abide a while, or els winter, that ye maye bringe me on my waye whethersoeuer I go.

25 I wil not se you nowe in my passage: but I truste to abyde a while with you, yf God shal suffer me. I will tarye at Ephesus vntil whitsontyde. For a greate dore, and a fruteful is opened to me, and there are many aduersaryes. If Timotheus come, se that he be with you: For he worketh the worke of the Lorde as I do. Let no man despyse him: but conuaye him forthe in peace, that he maye come vnto me. For I loke for him with the brethren.

Of speake of brother Apollo: I greatly desyred him to come vnto you with the brethren but his mynd was not at all to come at this tyme. Howbeit he wil come when he shal haue conuenient tyme. Watche ye, stande faste in the faythe, quyte you lyke men and be stronge, & let youre busynes be done in loue.

Brethren (ye know the house of Stephana, howe that they are the fyrste frutes of Achaia, and that they haue appointed them selues to ministre vnto the sainctes) I beseche you that ye be obedient vnto suche, and to all that helpe and labouure. I am glad of the comminge of Stephana, Fortunatus and Achaicus: for that which was lackinge on youre parte, they haue supplied. They haue comforted my spyrite and youres. Loke therfore that ye knowe them that are suche.

The congregations of Asia salute you. Aquila and Priscylla salute you muche in the Lorde, and to their congregation that is in their house. All the brethren greete you. Greete Lordes compe one another with an holy kysse. The salutation of me Paule with myne owne hande. As yf any man loue not the Lorde Jesus Christ that same be accursed at the Lordes comminge. Maranatha. The grace of our Lorde Jesus Christe be with you all, and accursed to death. My loue be with you all in Christe Jesus. Amen.

The Prologe

vpon the. ij. Epistle of S. Paul to the Corinthians.

AS in the fyrste Epistle he rebuketh the Corinthians sharply, so in this he comforteth them and gaineth them and all mainteth him that was recommanded vnto them to be receaued louingly into the congregacion again.

And in the fyrste and seconde Chapters he shewyth how sore he them was, howbe that all that he dyde, as he sayth, was for their sakes and for their saluacion.

Then in the .iij. iiij and v. he mayntayth the office of preachynge the Gospell about the preaching of the lawe, and shewyth that the Gospell goeth vnto the perfeccion, and therefore the crosse, vnder the maiesty of man here of eternall life: and here a mare he toucheth the false Prophetes, which studied to turne the fayth of the people from Christe vnto the workes of the lawe.

In the .vi. and .vij. Chapters he exhorteth them to suffer with the Gospel, and to trust as it behoueth the Gospel, and purgeth him in the latter end.

In the .viij. and .ix. Chapters he exhorteth them to helpe the poore Christen that were at Jerusalem.

In the .x. .xi. and .xij. he sharpely agaynste the false Prophetes.

And in the laste Chapter he threatneth them that had done, and not amended them selues.

Epistle of S. Paul the Apostle to the Corinthians.

The fyrste Chapter.

The consolacion of God in trouble. The loue of Paule towarde the Corynthians, and why he came not to them.

PAule an Apostle of Jesu Christ by the wyll of God, and brother Timotheus.

¶ Vnto the congregation of God, whiche is at Corinthum, with all the sainctes, which are in all Achaia. Grace be with you, and peace from God oure father, and from the Lorde Jesus Christ.

¶ Blessed be God the father of oure Lorde Jesus Christ, the father of mercy, and the God of all comforte, whiche comforteth vs in all oure tribulacion, in so muche that we are able to comforte the, which are troubled in whatsoeuer tribulacion it be, with the same cōforte wherwith we our selues are comforted of God. For as the afflictions of Christ are plentyous in vs: euen so is oure consolacion plentyous by Christe.

Galat.1.a. Ephes.1.a. 1.Pet.1.a. Afflicciō or passion of Christe are suche sufferynges as Christe suffered.

¶ Whether we be troubled for youre consolacion and saluacion, whiche saluacion, sheweth her power in that ye suffer the same afflictions which we also suffer: or whether we be comforted for youre consolacion, and saluation, yet oure hope is stedfast for you, in as muche as we knowe howe that as ye haue youre parte in afflictions, so shall ye be partakers of consolacion.

Wherfore I wolde not haue you ignorant of oure trouble, whiche happened vnto vs in Asia. For we were greued out of measure past strenght, so greatlye that we despeared euen of lyfe. Also we receiued and answere of death in our selues, and that because we woulde not put oure truste in oure selues: but in God, whiche raiseth the dead to lyfe agayn, which deliuered vs from so greate a death, and doth deliuer. On whom we truste that yet here after he will deliuer, by the helpe of youre prayer for vs: that by the meanes of many occasions, thankes maye be geuen of many on our behalfe, for the grace geuē vnto vs.

¶ Oure reioysinge is this, the testimony of oure conscience, that in symplenes and Godly purenes, and not in fleshely wysdome, but by the grace of God, we haue had oure conuersation in the worlde, and moste of all to you wardes. We write no nother thinges vnto you, then that ye read and also knowe, yea I truste ye shall fynde vs vnto the ende euen as ye haue founde vs partelye, for we are youre reioysinge, euen as ye are oures in the day of the Lorde Jesus.

c Conscience.

And in this confidence was I minded the other tyme to haue come vnto you, that ye myghte haue had yet one pleasure more, and to haue passed by you into Macedonia, and to haue come againe out of Macedonia vnto you, and to haue bene led forth to Iewrywarde of you.

d

¶ When I thus wyse was mynded: dyd I vse lyghtnes? Or thynke I carnallye those thinges, which I thinke: that with me shoulde be, a. yea yea, and nay nay? God is faithfull. For oure preaching vnto you, was not yea and nay. For the Sonne of God Jesus Christe, whiche was preached amonge you by vs (that is to saye, by me and Siluanus and Timotheus) was not yea and nay, but in him it was yea. For all the promyses of God, in him are yea, and are in him Amen, vnto the laude of God thorow vs. For it is God, whiche stablisheth you and vs in Christ, and hath anoynted vs, which hath also sealed vs, and hath geuen the earnest of the spyrite into oure hertes.

All the promises of God are geuē vs onelye for Christes sake.

¶ The notes.

a. In the .b. of Matth. these wordes are as much to saye, as it is so, it is not so. A playne and symple answer without oth or swerynge. Whereby is meant that the fayth and credence of Christen men should be suche, that their yea and nay myght be taken in all matters, that they should take of. But in this place they are taken for vnconstauntnes of mynde, as to saye both yea and naye to one thynge.

Yea, yea. Nay, nay.

The.i. Chapter.

Paule declareth the cause of his absence, & exhorteth them to forgeue the man that had taken, and to receyue him again with loue.

1 I Call God for a recorde vnto my soule that for to saue you withall I came not ayre vnto Corinthum. Not that we be lordes ouer youre faythe but helpers of youre ioye. For by faythe ye stande. But I determined thys in my selfe, that I wold not come againe to you in heauynes. For yf I make you sorye, who is it that shoulde make me glad, but the same which is made sorye by me? And I wrote thys same Epistle vnto you, lest yf I came, I shoulde take heauines of them, of whome I ought to reioyce. Verely my confidence haue I in you all, that my ioye is the ioye of you all. For in great affliction and anguyshe of herte I wrote vnto you with many teares: not to make you sorye, but that ye myght perceyue the loue which I haue most specially vnto you.

2 Yf any man haue caused sorowe the same hath not made me sorye, but partely: leaste I shoulde greue you all. It is sufficyente vnto the same man, that he was rebuked of many. 3 So that nowe contrarywyse ye ought to forgeue hym, and comforte hym: leaste that same persone shoulde be swalowed vp, with ouer muche heauynes. Wherfore I exhorte you, that loue maye haue strength ouer hym. 4 For thus cause verely dyd I wryte, that I might know the proofe of you, whether ye shoulde be obedyent in all thynges. 5 To whom ye forgeue any thynge, I forgeue also. And verely yf I forgeue anye thynge, to whome I forgaue it, for youre sakes forgaue I it in the roume of Christe, leaste Sathan shoulde preuente vs. For we are not ignoraunt of his ymaginacions.

6 When I was come to Troada for Christes gospels sake (and a great dore was opened vnto me of the Lorde) I had no rest in my spyrite, because I founde not Titus my brother: but toke my leaue of them, and wente awaye vnto Macedonia. 7 Thankes be vnto God which alwayes geueth vs the victorye in Christ, and openeth the sauour of his knowledge by vs in euery place. For we are vnto God the swete sauoure of Christe, bothe amonge them that are saued, and also among them which perysshe. 8 To the one part are we the sauoure of death vnto death. And vnto the other parte are we the sauoure of lyfe vnto lyfe. And who is mete vnto these thynges? For we are not as many are which chaffre & chaunge with the worde of god: but euen out of pureness, and by the power of God, and in the syghte of God, so speake we in Christe.

Sauoure.

The.ii. Chapter.

Paule excuseth the ouersyghtes of the Epistle about the punyshynge of the man.

1 BEgynne we to prayse oure selues again? Nede we as some other, of Epistles of commendacion vnto you? or letters of recommendacyon from you? 2 Ye are oure Epistle wryten in oure hertes, which is vnderstande and redde of all men, in that ye are knowen, howe that ye are the Epistle of Christe, mynistred by vs and wrytten, not with ynke, but with the spirite of the lyuynge God, not in tables of stone, but in fleshly tables of the herte.

3 Suche truste haue we through Christe to Godwarde not that we are sufficyente of oure selues to thynke anye thynge as it were of oure selues, but our ableness cometh of God, which hath made vs able to mynister the new testament, not of the letter, but of the spirite. For the letter killeth, but the spirite geueth lyfe.

4 Yf the mynystracion of death (wrought & letters fygured in stones was glorious; so that the chyldren of Israell coulde not behold the face of Moyses for the glory of hys countenaunce (whiche glory neuertheles is done awaye) why shall not the mynistracion of the spirite be muche more glorious? 5 For yf the mynistrynge of condemnacion be glorious, muche more doeth the mynistracion of rygh-teousnes exceede in glorye. 6 For no doubte that which was there glorified is not once glorified in respecte of thys excedynge glorye. 7 Then yf that which is destroyed was glorious muche more shall that whiche remayneth, be glorious.

8 Seynge then that we haue suche truste, we vse great boldnes, and do not as Moyses, whiche put a vayle ouer hys face that the chyldren of Israell shoulde not se, for what purpose that serued whiche is put awaye. 9 But theyr myndes were blynded. For vntil this daye remayneth the same couerynge vntaken awaye in the olde testament when they rede it, whiche in Christe is put awaye. 10 But euen vnto this daye when Moyses is rede, the vayle hangeth before theyr herten. 11 Neuertheles when they turne to the Lorde, the vayle shalbe taken awaye.

12 The Lorde no doubte is a spirite. And where the spirite of the Lorde is, there is liberte. 13 But we all beholde the glorye of the Lorde with open face, and chaunged vnto the same similitude, from glorye to glorye, euen of the spirite of the Lorde.

Exo. xxxiiij. d

a Liberte there is where herte is not bounde to dome ceremonies, but knoweth howe to vse all thynges, & vnderstandeth that lawe is the ende and the fulfyllynge of al lawes.

The notes.

a. For wyde are they, that take this letter to be the litterall sence of the scripture thoroughout, and do therbye exhorte men to refrayne the readyng of the body of the scripture with oute interpretacion. For S. Paule entended none other in this place but to teache that the preache of the Gospell is to be farre aboue the lawe and the mynistracion thereof to be much more worthy to be esteemed, then the mynistracion of the lawe, because the one (that is the letter)

The letter killeth. &c.

bryngeth death and damnacyon for synne, & the other (that is the Gospell) bryngeth lyfe, and remyssyon of synnes. That thys is the verye meanynge of the Apostle in thys place: is playne to as many as lyste to weyghe the texte, or to trede S. Augustine in hys boke of the spirite and letter, and Erasmus in hys Paraphrasis, and annotacions.

The.iii. Chapter.

¶ A true preacher is blameles. He corrupteth not the worde of God. He preacheth not hym selfe, but Christ the honour of Christ. yea though it be with the perils of hys lyfe.

A THerfore seynge that we have suche an office, euen as mercye is come on vs, we faynte not: but have caste from vs the clothes of vnhoneste, and walke not in craftynes, neyther corrupte we ỳ word of God: but walke in open trueth, & reporte our selues to euerye mans conscience in the syght of God.

✝ Yf oure Gospell be yet hyd, it is hyd amõg them that are lost, in whome the. a. God of thys worlde hath blynded the myndes of the B which beleue not, leste the lyght of the glorious gospell of Christe which is the ymage of God shoulde shyne vnto them.

✝ For we preache not oure selues, but Christ Jesus to be the Lorde, and oure selues oure seruauntes for Jesus sake. For it is God that commaunded the lighte to shyne out of darkenes, whiche hath shyned in oure hertes, for to geue the lyght of the knowledge of the glorye of God, in the. b. face of Jesus Christe.

But we have thys treasure in earthen vessels that the excellent power of it myght appeare to be of God, and not of vs. We are C troubled on euerye syde, yet are we not withoute shyfte. We are in poueрte, but not vtterlye withoute some what. We are persecuted, but are not forsaken. We are caste doune, neuertheles we perysshe not. And we alwayes beare in oure bodyes the dyinge of the Lorde Jesus, that the lyfe of Jesus myght appeare in oure bodyes. ✝

D For we which lyue are alwayes delyuered vnto deathe for Jesus sake, that the lyfe also of Jesu myghte appeare in oure mortall flesshe. So then death worketh in vs, and lyfe in you. ✝

✝ Seynge then we have the same spirite of faith, accordynge as it is written: I beleued, & therfor have I spoke. We also beleue, & therfore speake. For we knowe ỳ he which rayssed vp ỳ Lord Jesus, shal rayse vp vs also by the meanes of Jesus, & shall set vs vp you. For all thynges do I for youre sakes, that the plenteous grace by thankes geuen of many, maye redounde to the prayse of God. Wherfor we are not wery, but though oure. a. outwarde man perysshe: yet the inwarde man is renewed daye by daye. For oure excedynge tribulatiõ whiche is momentarye and lyghte, pur-reth an exceadynge and eternall weyghte of glory vnto vs, whyle we loke not on the thinges whiche are seene, but on the thinges which are not seene. For thynges whiche are seene, are temporall, but thynges whiche are not seene, are eternall.

¶ The notes.

a. Thys God is in the. xvi. of Luke called Mammon, in the. xiiii. of John, the prince or ruler of thys worlde. By al that I can gether both of thys place and of the other: it should be spoken of ryches accordynge to the significacyõ of thys worde Mammon, a worde of the Syrian tongue. Prynce and God of this worlde is it called because the wycked worldelynges grupnge them selues to the vnlaufull getting together, and kepping thereof, it is theyr price and God. Some call the deuill by these names, who are not far wyde. For the deuill is a greate doer in all these thynges, as an enemye that seketh all occasyons to deface the churche of Christe, by drawynge them from the true seruice of God, to the Idole seruice of God, to the Idole seruice of Mammon the ryches of thys worlde. The God of this worlde.

A The rewarde for sufferynge trouble.

WE knowe surelye yf our earthly mansyon wherein we nowe dwell were destroyed, that we have a buyldynge ordeyned of God an habitacyon not made with handes, but eternall in heauen. And ther fore syghe we, desyrynge to be clothed with oure mansyon which is from heauen so yet yf that we be founde clothed, and not naked. For as longe as we are in thys tabernacle, we syghe and are greeued, for we wolde not be vnclothed, but wolde be clothed vpon, ỳ mortalitye myghte be swalowed vp of lyfe. Wherfor whether we be at home or from home, we endeuoure oure selues to B Roma. viii. b

please

Geue all dyligence that no man be offended, or hurte by vs at oure ensample.

L Christes seruauntes seke Christes wil & not lust at their owne pleasure, but at hys.

please hym. For we muste all appeare before the iudgement seate of Christ, that euery man maye receyue the workes of hys bodye accordyng to that he hath done, whether it be good or badde: ✠ Seynge then that we knowe, how the Lorde is to be feared, we fare sayre with men. For we are knowen well ynoughe vnto God. I truste also that we are knowne in youre consciences.

✠ We praise not oure selues agayne vnto you, but geue you an occasyon to reioyce of vs that ye maye haue somewhat agaynst the whiche reioyce in the face, and not in the hert. For yf we be to feruente, to God we are to feruente. Yf we kepe measure, for youre cause kepe we measure. For the loue of Christ constrayneth vs, because we thus iudge, yf one be dead, for all that then are all dead, and that he dyed for all, that they which lyue, shoulde not hence forth lyue vnto them selues, but vnto hym, whiche dyed for them, and rose agayne. ✠

D ✠ Wherfore hence forthe knowe we no man after the flesthe. In so muche though we haue knowen Christe after the flesthe, nowe hence forth knowe we hym so no more. Therfore yf anye man be in Christe, he is a newe creature. Olde thynges are passed awaye, beholde all thynges are become newe. Neuertheles all thynges are of God, whiche hath reconcyled vs vnto hym selfe by Iesus Christe, and hath geuen vnto vs the office to preache the atonement.

Esay.xliij.c Apoc.xxi.b A new creature. The attonement betweene God & man in Christe is the Apostles office to preache.

For God was in Christe, and made agreement betweene the worlde and hym selfe, and imputed not their synnes vnto them, & hathe committed to vs the preachynge of the atonement. Nowe then are we messengers in the rowme of Christ euen as though God dyd beseche you thorowe vs: So praye we you in Christes stede, that ye be atone with God, for he hath made hym to be synne for vs, whiche knewe no synne, ✠ we by hys meanes should be that righteousnes whiche before God is allowed.

Synne is an offrynge for synne, as afore Roma. viij.

The.vi. Chapter. ✠

✠ He exhorteth vs to receyue the benefite of God, both chastenynges and comforteynges of hym. The diligence of Paule in the Gospell, and how he therwith dyd ouercome the rumours of the Heathen.

WE as helpers therfore exhorte you, that ye receyue not the grace of God in vayne. For he sayeth: I haue hearde the in a tyme accepted, and in the day of saluacyon haue I succoured the. Beholde nowe is that well accepted tyme: beholde nowe is that daye of saluacyon. Let vs geue no mā occasyon of euyll, that in our office be founde no faulte, but in al thynges let vs behaue our selues as the ministres of God.

R (Wayne) that the worde sowen in youre hertes shoulde be fruiteles to your greater dampnacion

in strife, in labours, in watchynge, in fastynge in purenes, in knowledge, in longe sufferyng in kyndnes, in the holye ghoste, in vnfayned loue, in the worde of truthe, in the power of God, in the armoure of righteousnes on the ryght hande, and on the lefte, in honoure and dishonoure, in euyll reporte, & good reporte: as deceyuers & yet true: as vnknowne, & yet knowen: as dying, & beholde we yet lyue: as chastened and not kylled: as sorowynge, & yet alwaye mery: as poore, and yet make many riche: as haynge nothynge, and yet possessynge all thynges. ✠

Armoure of righteousnes. Armoure of ryghteousnes is the worde of god with hope, loue, feare &c

L Whiche Paul calleth the armoure of ryght. Rom.xiij.

✠ O ye Corinthyans, oure mouth is open vnto you. Oure hertes made large: ye are in no straite in vs, but are in a straite in youre owne bowelles: I recompense you (sphe reporte with me, as to my children) Sette your selues therfore at large, and ✠ beare not a straunge yoke with the vnbelieuers. For what felowshyppe hath righteousnes with vnrighteousnes? What compayne hath lyght with darkenes? What concorde hath Christe with Belyall? Eyther what parte hath he that beleueth with an infydele? Howe agreeth the temple of God with Ymages. And ye are the temple of the lyuynge God, as sayed God. I wyll dwell amonge them, and walke among them, and wyll be their God, and they shall be my people. Wherfore come out fro among them, and separate youre selues (sayeth the Lorde) and touche none vncleane thynge: so wyll I receyue you, and wyll be a father vnto you, and ye shall be vnto me sonnes and doughters, sayeth the Lorde almyghtye.

The.vij. Chapter.

✠ He exhorteth them to receyue the promyses of god thankefully. The Corinthians are commended for their obedience and true repentaunce. Paule.

SEynge that we haue such promyses dearely beloued, let vs clense oure selues from all fylthynesse of the flesthe & spirite, and growe vp to full holynesse in the feare of God. Vnderstande vs. We haue hurte no man: we haue ruyned no man: we haue defrauded no man. I speake not thys to condemne you: for I haue shewed you before, ✠ ye are in oure hertes to dye, and lyue with you. I am very bolde ouer you, and reioyce greatlye in you. I am fylled with consolacyon, and am exceadynge ioyefull in all oure tribulacyon. For when we were come into Macedonia, oure flesh had no rest, but we were troubled on euerye syde. Without was fyghtynge, within was feare. Neuertheles GOD that comforteth the abiect, comforted vs at the comming of Titus.

I

✠ And not with hys comynge only: but also with the consolacyon wherewith he was comforted of you. For he shewed vs youre desyre, youre mournynge, youre feruent mynde to me to me warde, so that I now reioyce the more. Wherfore though I made you sory with a letter, I repent not, though I dyd repent. For I perceyue that, that same Epistle made you sory, though it were but for a season. But I nowe reioyce, not that ye were sory, but that ye so sorowed, that ye repented. For ye sorowed Godlye, so that in nothyng ye were hurt by vs. For Godly sorowe causeth repentaunce vnto saluacyon, not to be repented of: when worldlye sorowe causeth death.

1.Pet.4.c

L Beholde, what diligence thys Godlye sorowe that ye tooke, hath wrought in you: yea it caused you to cleare your selues. It caused indignacyon, it caused feare, it caused desyre, it caused a feruent mynde, it caused punyshemẽt. For in all thynges ye haue shewed your selues that ye are cleare in that matter. Wherfore though I wrote vnto you: I dyd it not for thys cause that dyd hurte, neyther for thys cause that was hurt: but that our good mynde whiche we haue towarde you in the syght of God, myght appeare vnto you.

D Therfore we are comforted, because ye are comforted: yea and exceedyngly the more ioyed we, for the ioye that Titus had, because his spyryte was refreshed of you all. I am therfore, not nowe ashamed, though I bosted my selfe to him of you. For as all thynges which I preached vnto you are true, euen so is oure bostyng, that I bosted my selfe to Titus with all, founde true. And nowe is his inwarde affection more aboundante towarde you, when he remembreth the obedience of euerye one of you, howe with feare and trembelynge ye receyued him, I reioyce that. I maye be bolde ouer you in all thynges.

The viii. Chapter.

Of the purpose them to remembraunce to help the poore Brethren at Hierusalem, accordynge as the Churche ouer dyd.

A I Do you to wyt brethren, of the grace of God, which is geuen in the congregacyons of Macedonia, howe that the aboundaūce of their ioyefulnes is, that they are tryed with muche tribulacyon. And therto though they were exceedynge poore, yet haue they geuen exceedynge richelye, and that in syngleneſſe. For to their powers (I beare recorde) ye and beyonde their power, they were wyllynge of their owne accorde, & prayed vs with great instaūce that we would receyue their benefyte, and suffer them to be partakers with other in mynystryng to the sayntes. And thys they dyd, not as we loked for: but gaue their owne selues fyrste to the Lorde, and after vnto vs by the wyll of God: so that we couldē not but desyre Titus to accomplyshe the same benevolence amonge you also, euen as he had begonne.

B Nowe therfore, as ye are ryche in all partes in fayth, in worde, in knowledge, & all feruentnes, and in loue, which ye haue to vs: euen so se that ye be plenteous in thys benefycence. Thys saye I not as commaūdyng: but because other are so feruente, therfore proue I youre loue, whether it be perfecte or no. Ye knowe the liberalytie of oure Lorde Iesus Christe, whiche though he were ryche, yet for your sakes became poore that ye thorowe hys powerlye myght be made ryche.

C And I geue counsell hereto. For thys is expedyente for you, whiche begonne, not to do onelye, but also to wyll, a yeare ago. Nowe therfore performe the dede: that as there was in you a redynes to wyll, euen so ye may performe the dede of that whiche ye haue. For yf there be fyrste a wyllynge mynde, it is accepted accordyng to that a man hath, and not accordynge to that he hath not.

E It is not my mynde that other be set at ease, and ye broughte into combraunce: but yᵗ there be equalnes nowe at thys tyme, yᵗ youre aboundaunce succoure their lacke: that their aboundaunce maye supplye youre lacke: that there may be equalite, agreyng to that which is wryten. He that gathered muche, had neuer Exod.xvi.b the more aboundaunce, and he that gathered lyttell had neuertheles. Thankes be vnto God, which put in the hert of Titus the same good mynde towarde you. For he accepted yᵗ requeste, yea rather he was so well willyng yᵗ of his owne accorde he came vnto you.

D We haue sente with hi that brother whose laude is the Gospell thorowe out all the congregacyons, and not so onelye, but is also chosen of the congregacyons to be a felowe with vs in oure iourneye concernynge thys benevolence that is ministred by vs vnto the prayse of the Lorde, and to stere vp youre prompte mynde.

F For this we eschue, that anye man shoulde rebuke vs in thys plentuous distribucyon, yᵗ is ministred by vs, and therfore make prouisiō Rom.xii.b for honest thynges, not in the syghte of God onelye, but also in the syght of men.

G We haue sent with them a brother of ours whome we haue oftentymes proued diligente in many thinges, but nowe much more diligent. The greate confydence whiche I haue in you hath caused me thus to do, partelye for Titus sake, whiche is my felowe and helper as concernynge you, partelye because of other which are oure brethren, and the messengers of the congregacyons, and the glorye of Christe. Wherfore shewe vnto them the proofe of your loue, and of the reioysynge that we haue of you, that the congregacyons maye se it.

The ix. Chapter.

In this Chapter doeth he the same that he dyd in the Chapter before, that is, moueth them to helpe the poore brethren at Hierusalem.

A IF the ministrynge to the sayntes, it is but superfluous for me to wryte vnto you: for I knowe Roma.xii.d. i.Cor.xvi.a. your redynes of mynde wherof I bosse my selfe vnto them of Macedonia, and saye that Achaia was prepared a yeare a go, and youre zeruentnes hath prouoked many. Neuertheles yet haue I sent these brethren, lest oure reioysinge ouer you shoulde be in vayne in this behalfe, and that ye (as I haue sayed) prepare youre selues, lest paraduenture yf they of Macedonia come with me, and fynde you unprepared, the boll of I made in this matter, shoulde be a shame to vs. I saye not vnto you.

Macedo-

5 Wherfore I thought it necessarye to exhoute the brethren, to come before hande vnto you, for to prepare youre good bleissinge prompted afore, that it myght be redye, so that it be a bleissinge, and not a defraudinge. + This yet remember, howe that he whiche soweth spitefully, shal reape spitefully, & he that soweth plentuously, shall reape plentuously. And let euery

Exod.xxxvb.b man do accordinge as he hath purposed in his hert, not grudgingly, or of necessitie. For God louith a chearefull geuer.

6 God is able to make you ryche in al grace

c that ye in all thinges hauing sufficiencie vnto the vttermost, maye be ryche vnto all maner

Psal.cxij.b. good workes, as it is written. He that sparsed abroade, and hath geuen to the poore, his righteousnes, remayneth for euer. He that fyndeth the sower seed, shall minister breade for fode, and shall multiplye youre seede and increase the frutes of youre righteousnes + that on all partes, ye maye be made riche in all singlenes, whiche causeth thorowe vs, thankes geuinge vnto God.

7 For the office of this ministracion, not onelye supplyeth the nede of the sayntes: but also is aboundaunte herein, that for this laudable mynistringe, thankes myghte be geuen to God of many, whiche praise God for the obedience of youre professinge the Gospell of Christe, and for youre singlenes in distributinge to them and to all men, and in their prayers to God for you, long after you, for the aboundaunce grace of God geuen vnto you. Thankes be vnto God for his vnspeakeable gifte.

The.x. Chapter.

The rebuketh the false Apostles, and defendeth his authoritie and callinge.

1 I Paule my selfe beseche you by the meknesse and softenes of Christe, whiche when I am present amonge you, am of no reputacion, but am bolde towarde you beinge absent. I beseche you, that I nede not to be bolde, when I am present (with that same confidence, wherewith I am supposed to be bolde) agaynste some whiche repute vs as though we walked carnally. Neuertheles though we walke emparted in the flesh, yet we warre not fleshly. For the weapons of oure warre are not carnal thinges, but myghtye in God to caste doune stronge holdes, wherewith we ouerthrowe Imaginations and euerye hye thynge that exalteth it selfe agaynste the knowledge of God, and bringe into captiuite all vnderstandinge to the obedience of Christe, and are redye to take vengeaunce on all disobedience, when youre obedience is fulfylled. Loke ye on thinges after the bare appearaunce.

2 If any man trusteth in him selfe that he is Christes, let the same also consider of him self that as he is Christes, euen so are we Christes and though I shoulde bosse my selfe some what more of oure authoritie which the Lord hath geuen vs to edifye, and not to destroye you, it shoulde not be to my shame. This say I, lest I shoulde seme, as though I went about to make you afrayde with letters. For

3 his epistles (sayeth he) are sore and stronge, but his bodely presence is weake, and his speach rude. Let him that is suche, thynke on this wyse, + as we are in wordes by letters when we are absent, such are we in deades when we are present.

4 For we can not fynde in oure herties to make oure selues of the nombre of them, or to c compare oure selues to them, whiche laud their selues, neuertheles while they measure them selues with them selues, and compare them selues with them selues, they vnderstande nought. But we will not reioyce aboue measure: but accordinge to the quantitye of the measure, whiche God hath distributed vnto vs, a measure that reacheth euen vnto you. For we stretche not oure selues beyonde measure, as though we had not reached vnto you. For euen vnto you haue we come with Ephe.iiij.d. the Gospell of Christe, and we bosse not oure selues out of measure in other mens labours. Yea, and we hope, when youre faith is increased amonge you, to be magnified accordinge to oure measure more largelye, and to preache the Gospell in those regions, whiche are beyonde you, and not to reioyce of that whiche is by another mans measure prepared alreadye. Let him that reioyceth, reioyce in + Lord. For he that praiseth him self, is not allowed: but he whom the Lorde praiseth.

Let euerye man reioyce in that Christe hyred for him and not in the helpes of his owne workes.

The.xi. Chapter.

Paule (bycause he is enforced) boasteth of his office, and of his authoritie against the false Apostles.

1 Wolde to God ye wolde suffre me a lytell in my folysheness: yea, and I praye you, suffre me. For I am gelous ouer you with godly gelousye. For I

We be maryed to Christe and not to + preacher. Osee.ij.a couple you to one man, to make you a chaste virgyn to Christe. But I feare lest as + serpent beguyled Eue thorowe his subtilte, euen so youre wittes shoulde be corrupte from the singlenes that is in Christe. For yf he that cometh, preache another Jesus then him whom we preached: or yf ye receyue another spirite then that whiche ye haue receyued: other another Gospell then that ye haue receyued, ye myght

myght tryghte well haue bene content.

B I suppose that I was not behynde ỹ chiefe Apostles. Though I be rude in speakynge, yet I am not so in knowledge. Howbeit we are amonge you: we are knowen to the vttermoste what we are in all thynges. Dyd I therein synne, because I submytted my selfe, that ye myght be exalted, and because I preached to you the Gospell of God free? I robbed other congregacions, and toke wages of them, to do you seruice with al. And when I was present with you, and had nede, I was greuous to no man, for that whiche was lacking vnto me, the brethren whiche came from Macedonia, supplyed: and in all thynge I kept my selfe that I shoulde not be greuous to you, & so wyll I kepe my selfe.

C As the trueth of Christe is in me, thys reioysynge shall not be taken from me in the regions of Achaia. Wherfore? Because I loue you not? God knoweth. Neuertheles what I do, that wyll I do, to cut awaye occasyon frō them which desyre occasyon, that they myght be founde lyke vnto vs in that wherein they reioyce. For these false Apostles are disceytfull workers, and fashyon them selues lyke vnto the Apostles of Christe. And no maruayl for Satan hym selfe is chaunged into the fashyon of an angell of lyghte. Therfore it is no greate thynge, though hys mynysters fashyon them selues as though they were the mynisters of righteousnes, whose ende shalbe accordynge to their dedes.

D I saye agayne, lest anye man thynke that I am folyshe, or els euen nowe take me as a folyshe, that I maye boaste my selfe a lytell. That I speake, I speake it not after the wayes of the Lorde, but as it were foolishly, while we are nowe come to bolstynge. Seyng that many reioyce after the fleshe, I will reioyce also. For ye suffer folys gladly, because that ye youre selues are wyse. For ye suffre euen yf a man bringe you into bondage: yf a man deuoure, yf a man take yf a man exalte hym selfe, yf a man smyte you on the face. I speake as concernynge rebuke, as though we had bene weake.

Howbeit, wherin soeuer any man dare be bolde (I speake foolyshly) I dare be bolde also. They are Hebrues, so am I: They are Israelytes, euen so am I. They are the sede of Abraham, euen so am I. They are the mynisters of CHRISTE (I speake as a fole) I am more: In labours more aboundaunte: In stryppes aboue measure: In prysons more plentuously: In deathe ofte. Of the Iewes fyue tymes receyued I fourtye stripes saue one. Thryse was I beaten with rodes. I was once stoned. I suffered thryse shypwracke. Nyght and daye haue I bene in the depe of the sea. In iourneyenge often: in perils of waters: in perylles of robbers: in perylles amonge the heathen. I haue bene in perylls in cytyes, in perylls in wyldernes, in perylls in the sea, in perylls among false brethren, in labour and trauayle, in watchyng often, in hunger, in thyrste, in fastynges often, in colde, and in nakednes. And beyde the thynges whiche outwardely happen vnto me, I am combered dayely, and do care for all congregations. Who is weake, and I am not weake? Who is hurte in the faythe, and my herte burneth not? Yf I muste nedes reioyce, I wyll reioyce of myne infirmities.

Too muche mockerye and scornynge is not allowed in ỹ kingdom of God, but al must be at rendynge to knowledge.

Num. xvi. Act. xiii. a

The xii. Chapter.

C Paule is taken vp into the thyrde heauen, and heareth wordes not to be spoken of.

A THe God and father of oure Lorde Iesus Christ, whiche is blessed for euermore, knoweth that I lye not + In the citie of Damaston the gouernour of the people vnder king Aretas, layd watche in the citie of the Damascenes, and woulde haue caught me, and at a wyndowe was I let doune in a basket thorow the wall, and so escaped hys handes. + Actu. ix. d.

Actu. ix. a.

B It is not expedyent for me (no doubte) to reioyce. Neuertheles I wyll come to visions and reuelations of the Lorde. I knowe a man in Christe aboue. xiiii. yeares agone (whether he were in the bodye I cannot tell, or whether he were oute of the bodye I cannot tell, God knoweth) whiche was taken vp into the third heauen. And I knowe the same man (whether in the bodye, or oute of the bodye, I cannot tell, God knoweth) howe that he was taken vp into paradyse, and hearde wordes not to be spoken, whiche no man can vtter. Of thys man wyll I reioyce, of my selfe wyll I not reioyce, excepte it be of myne infyrmytyes. And yet though I woulde reioyce, I shoulde not be a fole: for I shoulde saye the trueth: Neuertheles I spare, lest anye man shoulde thynke of me aboue that he seeth me to be, or heareth of me.

E And lest I shoulde be exalted out of measure thorowe the aboundaunce of reuelations there was geuen vnto me a. vngyuetnes of ỹ fleshe, the messenger of Satan to buffete me: because I shoulde no be exalted oute of measure. For thys thynge besought I the Lorde thryse, that it myght departe from me. And he sayde vnto me: my grace is sufficyent for the. For my strenghte is made perfecte thorowe weakenes. Very gladly therfore wyl I reioyce of my weakenes, that the strenght of Christe maye dwell in me. Therfore haue I delectacion in infyrmities, in rebukes, in nede, in persecutions, in anguyshe, for Christes sake. For when I am weake, then am I stronge.

Paul proueth by his signes that hys authorite was as greate as the authorite of the hyghe Apostles.

D I am made a fole in boastynge my selfe. Ye haue compelled me: I ought to haue bene commended of you. For in nothynge was I inferyor vnto the chiefe Apostles. Though I be nothynge yet the tokens of an Apostle were wroughte amonge you with al patience: with signes, and wonders and myghty dedes. For what

D what is it wherein ye were inferiours vnto other congregacions except it be therein that I was not greuous vnto you. Forgeue me this wrong done vnto you. Behold the nowe thirde time I am redy to come vnto you, and yet will I not be greuous vnto you. For I seke not yours, but you. Also the children ought not to lay vp for the fathers & mothers but the fathers & mothers for the children.

I will very gladly bestowe, and will be bestowed for youre soules: thoughe the more I loue you, the lesse I am loued again. But be it that I greued you not: nerthelesse I was crafty and take you with gyle. Did I pill you by any of the which I sent vnto you? I desired Titus, and with him I sent a brother. Did Titus defraude you of any thing? walked we not in one spirite? walked we not in like steppes? Again, thinke ye that we excuse oure selues. We speake in Christ in the sight of God.

But we do all thinges dearely beloued for youre edifying. For I feare least it come to passe, that when I come, I shall not finde you such as I would, and I shalbe founde amonge you debate, enuying, wrath, strife, backbytinges, whisperinges, swellinges & discorde. I feare lest when I come again, God bringe me lowe amonge you, and I be constrayned to bewaple many of them which haue synned alreadi, and haue not repented of the vnclennes, fornicacion, and wantones, which they haue committed.

The notes.

Vnquietnes of the spirite. a. Though men of muche greater knowledge then I am, to take this vnquietnes for resistence, that the wicked made against the doctrine of Paule: yet in my iudgemente, the texte geueth rather that it shoulde be the weakenes of his owne flesshe which did continu ally pul him backe, and as it were withstand him by force of armes in the aduersites & busynes of the spirite.

The.xiij. Chapter.

¶ He promiseth to come shortly and exhorteth the to vse short speche when he is present. To make them perfect and of one minde.

A Deut. xvij. b. Deut. xix. d

NOwe come I the thirde time vnto you. In the mouthe of two or three witnesses shall euery thing stande. I tolde you before, & tell you before, and as I said when I was present with you the seconde time, so write I now beinge absent to them which in time paste haue synned, and to all other, that yf I come again, I will not spare, seinge ye seke experience of Christe, which speaketh in me, which amonge you is not weake, but is mighty in you. And verely though he were of weakenes that he was crucified, yet liueth he thorowe the power of GOD. And we no doubte are weake in him: but we shall liue with him by the myght of God among you.

Proue youre selues whether you be in the fayth or not. Know youre owne selues how that Iesus Christe is in you, except ye be castawayes. I truste that ye shall knowe that we be not castawayes. I desire before God that ye do none euyll, not that we shoulde seme commendable, but that ye shoulde do that which is honest: and let vs be counted as leude persons. We can do nothinge against the truth. But for the truth, we are glad when we are weake, & ye strong. This also we wyshe for, euen that ye were perfecte. Therfore write I these thinges beinge absente, lest when I am present I shoulde vse sharpenesse accordinge to the power which the Lorde hath geuen me, to edifye, and not to destroye.

Finally brethren fare ye well, be perfecte, be of good comforte, be of one minde, liue in peace, and the God of loue, and peace, shal be with you. Greete one another in an holy kysse. All the sayntes salute you. The grace of oure Lorde Iesus Christ, and the loue of God, and the felowshippe of the holye ghoste be with you all. Amen.

but that ryghtwysnes cometh by grace alonely vnto vs of God thorowe the deservynges of Christe, by whom (yf we believe) we are iustified without helpe of the workes of the lawe.

And so the .b. god. vs to embrayse vnto the workes of love which is fulfyllynge and ryghtwysnes. So that in all hys Epistle he endeavoureth thys onely. First he preacheth the dampnacion of the lawe vnto the ryghtwysnes of faith, and thyrdly the workes of love. For on that condicion that we love and worke, is the lyfe ye geven vs.

The Epistle of Saynct Paule vnto the Galathians.

The fyrste Chapter.

¶ Paule rebuketh them because they were fallen frō the Gospell. Secondly hys owne conuersacion, magnifyeth hys office and Apostleshyppe, and declareth him selfe to be equall with the ryghte Apostles.

A PAul an Apostle, not .a. of men, neyther by man, but by Jesus christ and by God the father, which raysed hym from death: and all the brethē which are with me. Vnto the congregacyons of Galacia.

Grace be with you and peace from God the father, and from our Lorde Jesus Christ, whiche gaue hym selfe for oure synnes, to deliuer vs from thys present cyrill worlde, thorow the will of God our father, to whom be prayse for euer and euer. Amen.

B I marueyle that ye are so sone turned frō hym that called you in the grace of Christ, vnto an other Gospell: whiche is nothynge els, but that there be some which trouble you, and entende to peruert the Gospell of Christe. Neuertheles though we oure selues, or an Angell from heauen, preache any other Gospell vnto you then that whiche we haue preached vnto you, holde hym accursed. As I haue sayed before, so saye I nowe agayne, yf any man preache any other thynge vnto you, then that you haue receyued, holde hym accursed. Preache I mans doctryne or Goddes? Eyther go I about to please men? yf I studyed to please men, I were not the seruaunt of Christe.

C ✣ I certifye you brethren, that the Gospell which was preached of me, was not after the maner of men, neyther receyued I it of man, neyther was I taughte it, but receyued it by the reuelacyon of Jesus Christ. For ye haue herde of my conuersacyon in tyme paste, in the Jewes wayes, howe that beyonde measure I persecuted the congregacyon of God, & spoyled it, and profyted in the Jewes lawe, aboue many of my companyons, which were of myne owne nacyon, & was a muche more fer ueut mayntayner of the traditiōs of ỹ elders.

D ✣ But when it pleased God (whiche separated me from my mothers wombe, and called me by hys grace, for to declare hys sonne by me) that I shoulde preache hym amonge the heathen immediatly I communed not of the matter with .b. fleshe and bloude, neyther returned to Hierusalem to them whiche were Apostles before me, but went my wayes into Arabia, and came agayne to Damasco. Chē after .iij. yere I returned to Jerusalem to se Peter and abode with hym .xv. dayes, no nother of the Apostles sawe I, saue James the Lordes brother. The thynges which I write beholde God knoweth I lye not.

Paules Gospell was not cōfyrmed by the authoritie of men but by the myracles of the spirite.

Afterwarde I went into the coostes of Syria, and Cilicia, and was knowen as touchynge my person vnto the congregacyōs of Jewry, whiche were in Christe, But they hearde onely that he which persecuted vs in tyme paste nowe preacheth the fayth which before he destroyed. And they glorifyed God on my behalfe. ✣

a. Paule, though he came longe after the Apostles, yet had he not hys authoritye of Peter, nor of anye other that went before hym. Neyther brought he with hym letters of recommendacyon or bulles, of confyrmacyō. But the cōfyrmacyon of hys Apostleshyppe, was the worde of God, conscience of men and the power of the spirite, that testifyed with hym by myracles and manyfolde gyftes of grace.

The .ii. Chapter.

¶ He withstandeth Peter in the face, and proueth that the lawe and circumcysion are not necessarye to iustycacyon.

A THen .xiiij. yeares after that, I went vp agayne to Hierusalem with Barnabas, and toke with me Titus also. Yea and I wēte vp by reuelacion, and cōmuned with them of the Gospell which I preache amonge the gentyls: but a part with the which were counted chiefe, lest it shoulde haue bene thought that I should runne or had runne in vayne. Also Titus which was with me, though he were a Greke, yet was not compelled to be circumcysed, and that because of incomers beynge false brethern which came in amonge other to spye out our libertye which we haue in Christe Jesus, that they myghte bringe vs into bondage. To whom we gaue ouer no rowme, no not for the space of an houre, as concernynge to be brought into subiection, ỹ that because that the truth of ỹ Gospel might contynue with you.

Paule defendeth the libertye of the Gospell.

Paule is of he same authoritie as Peter James & John.

therlesse they which seme great, added nothing to me. But contrary wyse, when they sawe þ the Gospel ouer þ uncircumcysyon was cõmitted vnto me, as the gospell ouer þ circumcysyon was vnto Peter: for he þ was mighty in Peter in the Apostleshyppe ouer the circumcysyõ the same was myghty in me amonge the Gentyls, and therfore when they perceyued the grace that was geuen vnto me, then James, Cephas, and John, whiche semed to be pylers, gaue to me & Barnabas the ryght handes, & agreed with vs, that we should preach amonge the Heathen, and they amonge the Jewes, warnyng onely, that we should remẽ bre the poor. Whiche thyng also I was dylygently to do. And when Peter was come to Antioche, I withstode hym in the face, for he was worthy to be blamed. For yer that certayne came from James, he eate with the Gẽtyls. But when they were come, he withdrew and separated hym selfe, fearyng them which were of the circumcysyon. And the other Jewes dissembled lyke wyse, in so muche þ Barnabas was brought into their symulacyon also. But when I sawe, that they went not the ryght waye after the truth of the Gospell, I sayde vnto Peter before all men, yf thou beynge a Jew, lyuest after the maner of the Gẽtyls, and not as do the Jewes: why causelest þ the Gentyls to lyue as do the Jewes? We whiche are Jewes by nature, and not sinners of the Gentyls, knowe that a man is not iustifyed by the.a. deades of the lawe, but by the fayth of Jesus Christe. And therfore we haue beleued on Jesus Christe that we myghte be iustifyed by the fayth of Christe, and not by the deades of the lawe, because that by the deades of the lawe no fleshe can be iustifyed.

Paul rebuketh Peter in the face.

yf then whyle we seke to be made ryghteous by Christe, we our selues are founde synners, is not then Christe the mynister of synne? God forbyd. For yf I buylde agayne that whiche I destroyed, then make I my selfe a trespaser. But I thorowe the lawe, am.b. dead to the lawe, that I myght lyue vnto God. I am crucifyed with Christ. I lyue yet, or rather not I, but Christe liueth in me. For the lyfe which I now lyue in the, flesh I lyue by the fayth of the sonne of God whiche loued me, and gaue hym selfe for me. I despyse not the grace of God. For yf ryghteousnes come of the lawe, then Christ dyed in vayne.

¶ The notes.

Deades of þ lawe.

a. The lawe bringeth my synne, and threatneth damnacion for the same, and therby driueth me to Christe for mercye and remyssion. For in the deades of the law, is none to be found. For when we haue done all, we are vnprofytable seruauntes and haue done but our dutie. We can not therfore by these deades, deserue remyssion of our former offences.

b. So many as thorowe the threatenynge of the lawe haue fled vnto Christe, & be crucified with hym by mortifyinge their fleshlye desyres and callynge all their members vpon hys death: are vp the lawe dead to the lawe. That is thorowe the terrible threatenynges of the lawe they haue sought Christe who deliuereth from the lawe, all them that come vnto hym, and setteth them at libertye, to serue as free men, and not as bonde slaues.

Deades of the lawe.

The iij. Chapter.

> ¶ He rebuketh the vnstedfastnes of the Galathians, declarynge the imperfectnes of the lawe, and declareth manyfolde, that it was not geuen for nought.

A

O foolyshe Galathyans: who hath wytched you, that ye should not beleue the truthe? To whom Jesus Christ was described before the eyes, and among you crucifyed. This onelye would I learne of you, receyued ye the spyryte by the deades of the Law, or els by preachynge of the fayth? Are ye so vnwyse that after ye haue begonne in the spyryte, ye would nowe ende in the fleshe? So many thynges then ye haue suffered in vayne, yf that be vayne. Which ministred to you the spyryte, and worketh myracles amõg you, doth he it thorowe the deades of that Lawe or by preachynge of the fayth? For þ scripture sawe afore hand, that God would iustifye the heathen thorow fayth, & therfore shewed before hand glad tydynges vnto Abraham. In the shall all nacyons be blessed. So then they whiche be of fayth are blessed with faythfull Abraham. For as many as are vnder the deades of the lawe, are vnder malediccyon. For it is wrytten: cursed is euery man that contynueth not in all thynges, whiche are wrytten in the boke of the lawe, to fulfyll them. That no man is iustifyed by the lawe in the syght of God, is euydent. For þ iuste shall lyue by fayth. The lawe is not of fayth: but the man that fulfylleth the thynges contayned in the lawe, shall lyue in them. But a hurt hath delyuered vs from the curse of þ lawe, and was made* accursed for vs. For it is wrytten: cursed is euery one that hangeth on tree, that the blessyng of Abraham myghte come on the Gentyles thorowe Jesus Christ and that we myght receyue the promes of the spyryte thorow fayth.

Brethren, I will speake after the maner of men. Though he it be but a mans testamente, yet no man despyseth it, or addeth any thyng there to when it is once alowed. ✣ To Abraham and hys seede were the promyses made. He sayth not in the seedes as in many: but in thy sede as in one, whiche is Christe. This I saye, that the lawe which began afterward beyonde xiij.C. and xxx. yeares hath not dis-anull the testament, that was confirmed afore of God vnto Christe warde, to make the promes of none effecte. For yf the inheritaunce come of the lawe, it commeth not of promes. But God gaue it vnto Abraham by promes.

The lawe

Wherfore then serueth the lawe? The lawe was added because of trauls trespon tyll the sede came to whiche the promes was made, & it was ordeyned by angels in the hande of a mediatour, he is not a mediatour of one. But God is one. Is the lawe then agaynst the promes of God? God forbyd. Howbeit yf there had bene a lawe geuen whiche could haue geuen lyfe then no doubt rygh teousnes should haue come by the lawe. But the scripture concluded all thynges vnder synne that the promes by the faith of Jesus Christe should be geuen vnto them that beleue. ✠ Before that faith came, we were kept and shut vp vnder the lawe, to the faith which should afterward be declared. Wherfore the lawe was our schoolemaister to the tyme of Christ, that we might be made rygh teouse by faith. But after that faith is come, nowe are we no lenger vnder a schoolemaister. For ye are all the sonnes of God, by the faith whiche is in Christe Jesus. For all ye yt are baptysed, haue put on Christ. Nowe is there no Jewe neyther gentyle, there is neyther bonde nor free: there is neyther man nor woman, but ye are all one thyng in christ Jesu. Yf ye be Christes, then are ye Abrahās seede and heyres by promes.

a. True it is, that we are all the sonnes of god so many of vs as by faith are newe borne chyldren in the generation of the spyryte. And so are we brethren and heyres together with Christe in the kyngdome of hys father. But yet is Christ (for whose sake we are adopted) the spirite begotten, euen of the substaunce of the father, and in diuinite equale vnto him.

Sonnes of God.

The.iiij. Chapter.

¶ Paule declareth that therefore Christ we be deliuered from the lawe, and rebuketh the vnthankefulnes of the Galathyans.

A

NOw I say that the heyre as longe as he is a chylde, differeth not from a seruaunt thoughe he be Lorde of all, but is vnder tutours and gouernours, vntyll the tyme appoynted of the father. Euen so we as longe as we were chyldren, were in bondage vnder the ordinaunces of the world. But when the.a. tyme was full come, God sente hys sonne made of a woman, and made bonde vnto the lawe, to redeme them which were vnder the lawe that we thorowe eleccyō myght receyue the enheritaunce that belongeth vnto the naturall sonnes. Because ye are sonnes, God hath sent the spyryte of hys sonne into our hertes, whiche crieth Abba father. Wher-¶ Notwithstandynge when ye knewe not God ye dyd seruice vnto them, which by nature were no Goddes. But nowe seynge, ye knowe God (yea rather are knowen of God) how is it that ye turne agayne to the weake & beggerly ceremonies, wherevnto agayne ye desire a fresshe to be in bondage? Ye obserue dayes, and monethes, and tymes, and yeares. I am in feare of you lest I haue bestowed on you labour in vayne.

Beggerlye ceremonyes.

¶ Brethren I beseche you, be ye as I am, for I am as ye are. Ye haue not hurte me at all. Ye knowe howe thorowe infyrmitye of the flesche, I preached the Gospell vnto you at the fyrste. And my temptacion whiche I suffered by reasō of my flesh, ye dispysed not, neyther abhorred, but receyued me as an Angell of God: yea as Christe Jesu. How happye were ye then? for I beare you recorde that yf it had bene possyble, ye would haue plucked oute youre owne eyes, and haue geuen thē to me. Am I therfore become your enemye, because I tell you the truth?

Infirmitye and temptacion are persecucyon, trouble & the crosse.

They are gelous ouer you amysse. Yea, they intende to exclude you, that ye should be feruēt to thē ward. It is good alwayes to be feruent, so it be in a good thynge, and not onelye when I am present with you.

My lytle chyldren of whome I trauayle in byrth agayne vntyll Christe be fashyoned in you) I would I were with you now, and coulde chaunge my voyce, for I stande in a doubte of you.

D

Tell me ye that desire to be vnder the lawe haue ye not heard of the lawe? + For it is written, that Abraham had two sonnes, the one by a bonde mayd the other by a fre woman. Yea and he whiche was of the bond woman, was borne after the flesche: but he whiche was of ye fre woman, was borne by promes. Whiche thynges betoken mysterye. For these women are two testamentes the one from the mounte Syna, whiche gendreth to bondage whiche is Agar. For mounte Syna is called Agar in Arabia, and bordereth vpon the citie, which is nowe Hierusalem, and is in bondage with her chyldren.

Gene.xvi.d Gene.xxi.a Roma.ix.a.

But Hierusalem, whiche is aboue, is fre, which is the mother of vs all. For it is written: Reioyce thou baren, that bearest no chyldren: breake forth and crye, thou that trauaylest not. For the desolate hath many more chyldren then the whiche hath an husband. Brethren we are after the maner of Isaac chyldre of promes. But as then he that was borne spyrytually e. Euen so is it nowe. Neuertheles what sayth the scripture? put awaye the bond woman and her sonne. For the sonne of ye bōd woman shall not be heyre with the sonne of ye fre woman. So then brethren we are not chyldren of the bonde woman, but of the fre woman. ✠

Actu.xv.a. The libertye & fredom that we have in Christ, ought every man to stande by.

STande fast therfore in the libertye wherewith Christ hath made vs free and wrappe not your selues agayne in the yoke of bondage. Beholde I Paule saye vnto you, that yf ye be circumcysed Christe shall profyte you nothynge at all. I testifye agayne to every man whiche is circumcysed that he is bounde to kepe the whole lawe. Ye are gone quite from Christe as manye as are iustifyed by the lawe, and are fallen from grace. We loke for, and hope in the spirite, to be iustifyed through fayth. For in Jesu Christ neither is circumcysion any thyng worth, neyther yet vncircumcysion, but a fayth which by loue is myghtye in operacion. Ye dyd runne well: who was a let to you, that ye shoulde not obeye the trueth? Suren this perswasion is not of hym that called you. A litell leuen doeth leuen the whole lompe of dowe.

Fayth which worketh through loue is ye true fayth, & all that God requyreth of vs.

B

+ I have trust towarde you in the Lorde, that ye will be none otherwyse mynded. He that troubleth you, shall beare his iudgemente, whatsoeuer he be. Brethren, yf I yet preache circumcysion: why do I yet suffer persecucyon? For then had the offence of the crosse ceased. I wolde to God they were seperated from you, which trouble you. Brethren ye were called vnto libertye onelye let not youre libertye be an occasion vnto the flesshe, but in loue serue one another. For all the lawe is fulfylled in one worde: whiche is this: thou shalte loue thyne neyghboure as thy selfe. Yf ye byte and deuour one another: take hede leaste ye be consumed one of another.

These are contrarye one to the other, so that ye cannot do that which ye would. But and yf ye be led of the spirite, then are ye not vnder the lawe. The dedes of the flesh are manyfeste, which are these: aduoutrye, fornicacion, vnclenesse, wantonnesse, Idolatrye, witchecrafte, hatred, debate, zele, wrathe, stryfe, sedicion, sectes, enuyenge, murther, drunkennesse, glotonye, and suche like: of the whiche I tell you before, as I have tolde you in tymes past, that they which commyte suche thynges shall not enherite the kyngdome of God. The Prologe vpō the Epystle of Saynct Paul to the Ephesians.

IN this Epistle and namely in the iij. pull Chapiters, Paule declareth that the Gospell and grace reueyed was fre[e]lye and pardonlesse of God for before the begynnynge, a determed counsell Christ, and made at the laste that Iewes shuld not alone be called thereto, therby to be iustified, made ryghteous, louyng and happye, and to be delyuered from vnder the damnacyon of the lawe, and ceremonyes of ceremonyes.

And in the fourthe he teacheth to auoyde vnchristen and false doctrynes, and to be ware of geuynge credit vnto any thynge save in Christ alonynge: that he maye be fulfylled with all the fulnesse of all thynges, and before hym made nothynge.

In the v. and vi. he exhorteth to exercyse the fayth and to beleue it aboude thorow good workes, and to auoyde frawd, and to arme them with spirituall armoure against the assaultes that they myght stand full in tyme of tribulacyon and vnder the crosse.

And ordeyned vs before thorow Iesus Christe to be heyres vnto hym selfe, accordyng to the pleasure of hys wyll, to the prayse of y glory of hys grace, wherewith he hath made vs accepted in the beloued.

By whome we haue redemption thorow hys bloude, euen the forgyuenes of synnes accordyng to the ryches of hys grace, wherin he hath made vs aboundaunt in all wysdome & prudence, Mystery in Scripture. of synnes frustrate. And hath opened vnto vs the mystery of hys wyll accordyng to hys pleasure whiche he had purposed in hym selfe in hym selfe, that in the dyspensacyon of the fulnesse of tymes he myght gather all thynges together in one thynge in Christe, both which are in heauen, & which are in earth, euen in hym.

In whome also we are made heyres, and were therto predestinate accordynge to the purpose of hym which worketh all thynges after the counsell of hys owne wyll, that we whiche before trusted in Christe, shulde be vnto the prayse of hys glorye.

In whome also ye after that ye heard the worde of truth, I meane the Gospell of your saluacyon, wherin ye beleued, were sealed with the holye Ghoste of promes, whiche is the ernest of oure inheritaunce, to redeme the purchased possessyon, and that vnto the laude of hys glorye.

Wherfore euen I after that I herde of the fayth whiche ye haue in the Lorde Iesu, and loue vnto all the Sayntes, cease not to geue thankes for your makyng mencyon of you in my prayers, that the God of oure Lord Iesus Christ, and the father of glorye myght geue vnto you the spyrite of wysdome, and open to you the knowelege of hym selfe, and lyghten the eyes of your vnderstandynge that ye myght knowe what that hope is, wherto he hath called you, and what the ryches of hys glorious inheritaunce is vpon the Sayntes, and what is the exceedynge greatnes of hys power to vs warde, whiche beleue accordynge to the workynge of that hys mygh[t]ye power, whiche he wrought in Christe, when he raysed hym from the dead, and set hym on hys ryght hande in heauenly thynges, aboue all rule, power, and myght, and dominyon, and aboue all names that are named, not in this worlde onely, but also in the worlde to come, and hath put all thynges vnder hys fete, and hath made hym aboue all thynges the heade of the congregacyon, which is hys bodye, and the fulnes of hym that fylleth all in all thynges.

But nowe in Christ Iesu, ye whych a whyle ago were farre of are made nygh by the bloud of Christe.

The Gentiles tyll Christe came, were not vnder the couenaunt of mercye but the Jewes onely

For he is our peace, which hath made of D both one, and hath broken downe the. b. wall that was a stop betwene vs, and hath also put awaye thorowe hys flesshe the cause of hatred (that is to saye, the lawe of commaundementes contayned in the lawe written) for to make of twayne one newe man in hym selfe, so makinge peace: and to reconcile both vnto God in one body thorowe his crosse, and slew hatred therby: and came and preached peace to you, whyche were a farre of, and to them that were nygh. For thorowe hym we both haue an open waye in, in one spirite vnto the father.

Now therfore ye are no more straungers + and sowrners, but citizens with the sainctes, and of the housholde of God: and are buylt vpon the foundation of the Apostles & Prophetes, Iesus Christe beynge the head corner stone, in whom euerye buyldinge coupled together, groweth vnto an holye temple in the Lorde, in whom ye also are buylde together, and made an habitacion for god in the spirite.

Edificatio is the worde of God.

¶ The notes.

a. The promises of mercye in Christe vs made vs on that condicio, that we walke in the workes commaunded of God louinge one another.

Good workes.

b. Moyses lawe was the wall, whiche shut out the Gentyles from the felaw shippe of Gods chosen people. Thys wall is nowe taken awaye by Christe, and entrance is geuen to all nacions of the earth to come to the knowledge of God, and to lyue in brotherlye loue together as people of one flocke and children of one housholde, the cause of hatred (that is the lawe of commaundementes) put awaye.

The wall.

¶ He declareth the cause of their miserable estate before they were called to fayth, because of their synnes, and prayeth God to make them thankfull for the benefite.

Of this cause I Paule am in the bondes of Iesu Christ for youre sakes, whyche are Gentyles, yf ye haue herde of the mynistracion of the grace of God, whyche is geuen me to youwarde. For by reuelacion shewed he this vnsearcheable to me as I wrote aboue in fewe wordes, wherby when ye reade, ye maye knowe myne vnderstandinge in the mysterye of Christe. Which mysterye in tymes paste was not opened to the sonnes of men, as it is nowe declared vnto hys holye Apostles and Prophetes by the spirite that the Gentyles shoulde be inheritours also, and of the same bodye, and partakers of hys promes that is in Christe, by the meanes of the Gospell, wherof I am made a mynysters, by the gyfte of the grace of God geuen vnto me thorowe the workynge of hys power.

Paul was an Apostle & preacher & learned his Gospel by reuelacion.

Vnto me the leaste of all sainctes is this grace geuen, that I shoulde preache amonge the Gentyles the vnsearcheable ryches of Christe, and to make all men se what the felowshyp of the mysterye is, whyche from the beginninge of the worlde hath bene hyde in God, whyche made all thinges thorowe Jesus Christ, to the entente, that nowe vnto the rulers & powers in heauē myght be knowē (by the congregation) the manyfolde wysdome of God, according to the eternall purpose, whyche he purposed in Christe Iesu our Lorde, by whom we are bold to drawe nigh in that truste, whyche we haue by fayth on him. + Wherfore I desyre that ye faynte not because of my tribulacions for youre sakes, whyche is youre prayse.

1 Cor. 15. b.

For this cause I bowe my knees vnto the E father of our Lorde Jesus Christ, whyche is father ouer all that is called father, in heauen and in earth, that he wolde graunt you according to the ryches of his glorye, that ye maye be strengthed myth myght by hys spirite in the power man, that Christ may dwell in youre hertes by fayth, that ye beinge rotted and grounded in loue, myght be able to comprehende myth all sainctes, what is the breade and length, deepe and height: and to knowe, what is the loue of Christe, whyche loue passeth knowledge, that ye myght be fylled vnto all maner of fulnes, whyche cometh of God.

Vnto hym that is able to do exceadinge aboundantly aboue all that we are able to thinke, according to the power that worketh in vs, vnto hym be the congregacion by Jesus Christe, throughout all generacions, for euer more. Amen.

Faith.

a. Where true faith in Christ is, there is love to the neighboure, and faith and love, make ye understande thinges. Faith understandeth the secretes of God, and the mercie that is geuen her in Christe. And love knoweth her dutie to her neighbour, & al interprete al lawes and ordinaunces, and knoweth howe farforth they are to be kept, and when to be dispensed with.

Anger.

The.v. Chapter.

¶ He exhorteth them to loue, warneth them of vncleanes, couetousnes, foolishe talkinge, and filthy doctrine. To be enemies of, to auoide companye, to reproue and to be ashamed to name God, to take heede how they liue, one to another. He exhorteth wyues to obey their husbandes, and husbandes ought to entreate their wyues.

A Vngodly communication strengthneth the bodye against the spyrite.

BE ye followers of God as deare children, and walke in loue, euē as Christe loued vs, and gaue hym selfe for vs, an offeringe, and a sacrifice of a swete fauoure to God. So that fornicafornication and vncleanes, or couetousnes be not ones named amonge you, as it becometh saincte: neyther filthynes, neyther folyshe talkinge, neither gestinge whiche are not comely: but rather geuinge of thākes. For this ye knowe, that no whoremonger, other vncleane persone, or couetous person, whyche is the worshypper of Images, hath ange inheritaunce in the kyngdome of Christe and of God.

These haue no part with Christe.

Let no man deceiue you with vayne wordes. For thorowe suche thinges commeth the wrath of God vpon the children of vnbelefe. Be not therfore companions wyth them. Ye were ones darckenes, but are nowe lyghte in the Lorde.

Ephe. v. a. Mat. xxii. Mar. xii. Luc. xxi. b

Walke as children of lyghte. For the fruite of the spirite is in all goodnes, ryghteousnes and trueth. Accepte that whiche is pleasinge to the Lorde: and haue no fellowshyp wyth the vnfruitfull workes of darckenes: but rather rebuke them. For it is shame euen to name those thinges, whiche are done of them in secrete: but all thinges, when they are rebuked of the lyghte are manifeste. For Wherfore he sayth: awake thou that slepest, and stand vp from death, and Christ shall geue the lyghte.

Ignorance is cause of euyl doynge

Take hede therfore that ye walke circumspectly: not as fooles, but as wyse redemynge the time, for the dayes are euel. Wherfore be ye not vnwyse, but vnderstande what the will of the Lorde is. and be not dronke wyne. wherin is excesse, but be fulfylled wyth the spirite, speakinge vnto your selues in Psalmes, and Hymnes, and spirituall soungs, singing and makinge melodye to the Lorde in your hertes, geuinge thankes alwayes for all thinges vnto God the father, in the name of oure Lorde Jesu Christe, submittinge your selues one to another in the feare of God.

Redemynge the tyme, is spēdinge the tyme well. Coll. iiij. Rom. viij. i. Thes. iij. Colo. iij.

Wyues submitte your selues vnto your owne husbandes, as vnto the Lorde. For the husbande is the wyues head, euen as Christe is the heade of the congregation, and he same is the sauiour of the body. Therfore as the congregation is in subiection to Christe, euen so let the wyues be in subiection to their husbandes in all thynges. Husbandes loue your wyues, euen as Christe loued the congregation, and gaue him selfe for it, to sanctifye it, and cleansed it in the fountayne of water thorowe the worde to make it vnto him selfe a glorious congregation wythout spotte or wamcke, or ange suche thinge: but that it shoulde be holy and wythout blame.

So ought men to loue their wyues, as their owne bodies. He that loueth his wyfe, loueth him selfe. For no man euer yet hated his owne flesshe, but nourisheth and cherisheth it euen as the Lorde doeth the congregation. For we are members of his bodye, of his flesshe, and of his bones. For this cause shall a man leaue father and mother, and shall continue wythhys wyfe, and two shalbe made one flesshe. This is a greate secrete, but I speake betwene Christe and the congregation. Neuertheles do ye so that euerye one of you loue his wyfe truly euen as him selfe: And let the wyfe se that she feare her husbande.

The.vi. Chapter.

Children shoulde obeye their fathers and mothers, seruauntes their masters, and masters remembre their seruauntes. An exhortation to the spirituall warfare, & what weapons Christen men shoulde fight wythall.

CHyldren obeye your fathers and mothers in the Lorde: for so is it ryght. Honoure thy father and mother, that is the first commaundemente that hath ange promes, that thou mayeste be in good estate, and lyue longe on the earth. And ye fathers, wounde not your children to wrath, but bringe them vp with the nourture and information of the Lorde. Seruauntes be obedient vnto your carnall masters, wyth feare and tremblinge, in singlenes of your hertes, as vnto Christe, not wyth seruice in the eye sight, as men pleasers, but as the seruauntes of Christe, doynge the will of God from the herte wyth good will seruynge the Lorde, & not men. And remembre that, whatsoeuer good thinge any man doeth, that shall he receiue agayne of the Lorde, whether he be bounde or fre. And ye masters, do euen the same thinges vnto them puttinge away threatninges: and remembre that euen your master also is in heauen, neither is ther ange respect of person wyth hym.

Sent from Rome vnto the Ephesians by Tychicus.

The Prologe vpon the Epistle of S. Paule to the Philippians.

PAule prayseth the Philippians and exhorteth them to stand fast in the true faith, & to encrease in loue. And because that false Prophetes labour allwayes to impugne and destroye the true faith, he warneth them of such worke leamers or workers of mischief and prayseth Epaphroditus. And all this doeth he in the fourth and fyue and Chapters.

In the fyrste he renueweth faythfulle and manyfolde exhortacions, wherby false prophetes teache and maintayne. And he setteth him for an ensample, howe that he was fayne but stand in suche false opynyons and heresies how vnhonest that was so that he made complaynt on him, and yet nowe forseth nought therby, for Christes rightwysenes sake. And thirdly he warneth that suche false Prophetes are the enemyes of the truthe, and make their bellyes their God. Further then they maye falsly and wickedly perfit and suffer, wil they not preache Christ.

The Epistle of S. Paule the Apostle vnto the Philippians.

The first Chapter.

PAule and Thymotheus þ seruaunt̄s of Jesu Christe. To all þ saintes in Christe Jesu, which are at Philippos, wyth the Bishops and Deacons.

Grace be wyth you and peace from God oure father, and from the Lorde Jesus Christe.

I thanke my God wyth all remembraunce of you, all wayes in al my prayers for you, and praye wyth gladnes, because of the fellowshyppe, whyche ye haue in the Gospell from the fyrste daye vnto nowe: and am surelye certifyed of this, that he whyche began a good worke in you, shall go forth wyth it vntyll the daye of Jesus Christe, as it becommeth me so to iudge of you al, because I haue you in my herte, and haue you also euerye one companions of grace wyth me, euen in my bondes as I defende and stablisshe the Gospel.

For God beareth me wytnesse howe greatlye I longe after you all from the very herte rote in Jesus Christe. And this I praye, that youre loue maye increase more and more in knowledge, and in al feelinge, that ye myght accepte thinges moste excellent, that ye might be pure and such as should hurte no manes conscience, vntyll the daye of Christe, fylled with the fruites of righteousnes, which fruites come by Jesus Christ vnto the glory and laude of God.

I woulde ye vnderstode brethren that my busines is happened vnto the greater furtherynge of the Gospel. So that my bondes in Christe are manifeste throwe out al the iudgement hal and in al other places: In so much that many of the brethren in the Lorde are boldened throwe my bondes, & dare more largelye speake the worde without feare. Some there are whiche preache Christ of enuie and stryfe, and some of good wyll. The one parte preacheth Christe of strife and not purelye supposinge to adde more aduersitye to my bondes. The other parte of loue, because they se that I am set to defende the Gospell.

What then? So, that Christe be preached al maner wayes, whether it be by occasion, or of true meaninge, I therin ioye: ye & will ioye. For I knowe that this shall chaunce to my saluation, throwe your prayer and mynistringe of the spyrite of Jesu Christe, as I hertely loke for and hope that in nothinge I shalbe ashamed, but that wyth all constancie as alwayes in tymes paste, euen so nowe Christe shall be magnyfyed in my bodye, whether it be throwe lyfe, or elle death. For Christe is to me lyfe, and death is to me aduantage.

D Yf it chaunce me to lyue in the flesshe, that is to me frutefull for to worke, and what to chose I wote not. I am constrayned of two thinges: I desire to be lowsed and to be with Christe, whiche thinge is best of all. Nevertheles to abyde in the flesshe is more nedefull for you. And thys am I sure of that I shall abyde, and with you all continue for the furtheraunce and ioye of your faith, that ye may more aboundantly reioyce in Jesus Christe through me, by my comminge to you again.

Onlye let your conversation be as it becommeth the Gospell of Christ, that whether I come and se you, or ells be absent, I maye yet heare of you, that ye continue in one spirite, and in one soule, labourynge as we do, to mayntayne the faith of the Gospell, and in nothing fearing your adversaries: whiche is to them a token of perdicion, and to you of saluation, and that of God. For vnto you it is geuen, that not onelye ye should believe on Christ, but also suffre for his sake, and have euen the same fyght, whiche ye sawe me have and now heare of me.

Tribulatiõs a toke of salvation to the true beleuers

The.ii. Chapter.

¶ He exhorteth them to vnyte and brotherlye love, and to beware of Envye and vaine glorye. And for a sure ensample, he setteth Christe before them.

A IF there be amonge you anye consolation in Christ, yf there be anye comfortable love, yf there be anye felowshyp of spirite, yf there be any compassion or mercye, fulfyll my ioye that ye drawe one waye havinge one love, being of one accorde, and of one minde, that nothyng be done through strife or vaine glorye, but that in meknes of mynde everye man esteme other better then himselfe, & that no man considere his owne, but what is meete for other.

B + Let the same mynde be in you that was in Christ Jesu: Whiche beinge in the shape of God, and thought it not robbery to be equall vñ God. Neverthelesse he made hym selfe of no reputatiõ, & toke on him the shape of a servaunt, and became lyke vnto men, and was founde in his apparell as a man. He humbled hym selfe, and became obediente vnto ye death euen the death of the crosse. Wherfore God hath exalted hym, and geuen hym a name above all names, that in the name of Jesus should everye knee bowe, both of thinges in heaven and thinges in earth, and thinges vnder the earth, and that all tonges should confesse that Jesus Christ is the Lorde vnto the prayse of God the father. +

To folow Christ is our profession, & so to humble our selues, ye we maye be exalted. Heb. ü.b Rom. xüj.

Wherfore my derelye beloued, as ye have alwayes obeyed, not when I was present onelye, but nowe much more in myne absence euen so worke out your owne a. saluacion vñ feare and trembling. For it is God, whiche worketh in you, both the will and also the dede, euen of good will.

Isai. xlv.d.

Do all thinges without murmurynge and disputynge, that ye maye be sanctified & pure, E the sonnes of God without rebuke, in the middes of a croked and a perverse nacion, amonge whiche ye shine as lightes in the worlde, holding fast the worde of life, vnto my reioycynge in the daye of Christe, that I have not runne in vayne, neither have laboured in vayne. Yea, and though I be offered vpon the offeringe and sacrifice of your faith: I reioyce, and reioyce with you all. For the same cause also, reioyce ye, and reioyce ye with me. 1.Pet.iiij.d

I trust in the Lord Jesus for to sende Timotheus shortlye vnto you, that I also maye be of good comforte, when I knowe what case ye stande in. For I have no man that is so lyke minded to me, whiche with so pure affection careth for youre matters. For all other seke their owne, and not that whiche is Jesus Christes. Ye knowe the proffe of him, howe that as a sonne with the father, so with me he bestowed his labour vpon the Gospel. Him I hope to sende allone as I knowe, howe it will go with me. I trust in the Lord I also my selfe shall come shortly. Act.xvi.a 1.Cor.xvj.b.

F I supposed it necessarye to sende brother Epaphroditus vnto you, my companion in labour and felow souldier, your Apostle & my minister at my neede. For he longed after you, and was full of heavines, because ye he had hearde sayd, that he should be sicke. And no doute he was sicke, and that nye vnto death. But God had mercye on him, not on him onelye, but on me also, lest I should have had sorowe vpon sorowe.

D I sent him therfore the diligentlier, that when ye should se him, ye might reioyce againe, and I might be the lesse sorowfull. Receive him therfore in the Lorde with all gladnes, and make muche of suche: because that for the worke of Christ he went so farre, that he was nye vnto death, and regarded not his life, to fulfyll that service, whiche was lacking on your part towarde me.

¶ The notes.

a. As ye be cured frõ sinne through faith, so worke accordinge to the commaundemẽt, but ye come to the saluacion of glorye. For yf ye cease working, the spirite quencheth agayne, and ye cease to be partakers of the promyses. Worke out your owne saluacion.

b. He maketh here two offeringes or sacrifices. Christe faith the one, and him selfe the other. Christ faith, in that he had offered vp vnto God, as the fruites of his preachynge. Himselfe, yf it should please God, that for the true preachinge of the Gospell vnto them, should be put to the cruel tormentes of death. Whyche thinge he refused not trusting that thereby he might make them worthy of God. Though I be offered.

The.iij. Chapter.

¶ He warneth them to be ware of false teachers, whom he calleth beggers and enemyes to Christe, and sheweth wherin his righteousnes consisteth.

Moreover

a Moreouer my brethern, reioyce in the Lorde. It greueth me not to write one thinge often to you. For to you it is a sure thynge. Beware of doggen, beware of cupll workes. Beware of dyssencyon. For we are circumcysion, whyche a. worship God in the spirite, and reioyce in Christe Jesu, and haue no confidence in the flesshe, though I haue wherof I might reioyce in the flesshe. If any other man thinke that he hath wherof he mighte truste in the flesshe, much more I, circumcised the eighte daye, of the kynred of Israel, of the tribe of Benamin, an Hebrue borne of the Hebrues: as concernynge the lawe, a pharisey, and as concernyng feruentnes, I persecuted the congregation, & as touchyng the ryghteousnes, whiche is in the lawe, I was vnrebukeable.

Act. xxiij. b

But the thinges that were hauntage vnto me, I counted losse for Christes sake. Yea I thinke al thinges but losse for that excellent knowledge sake of Christ Jesu my Lord. For whom I haue counted al thinges losse, and do iudge them but dounge, that I myght wynne Christe, and might be founde in hym, not hauinge mine owne righteousnes, which is of the lawe, but that whyche springeth of the fayth, is in CHRIST. I meane the righteousnes, whiche commeth of God thorowe fayth in knowinge him and the vertue of his resurrection, & the fellowshippe of his passions, that I myght be conformable vnto his death, yf by any meanes I myght attayne vnto the resurrecyon from b death.

Not as though I had already attained to it, either were already perfecte: but I followe yf that I maye comprehende that, wherin I am comprehended of Christ Jesu. Brethern I count not my selfe that I haue gotten it: but one thinge I say.* I forget that, whiche is behinde, & stretche my selfe vnto that whiche is before, and presse vnto the marke appointed, to obteine the reward of the high callinge of God in Christe Jesu. Let vs therfore as many as be perfect be thus wyse minded, & yf ye be other wise minded, I pray God opē ruen this vnto you. Neuertheles in yᵗ, wherunto we are come, let vs procede by one rule, that we may be of one accord.

I loke not on ẏ workes that I haue done, but what I lacke of ẏ perfectnes of Christ

D

+ Brethren be followers of me, and loke on them which walke euen so, as ye haue vs for an ensample. For many walke (of whom I haue tolde you often, and nowe tel you weping) that they are the enemies of the crosse of Christ, whose ende is dampnation, whose God is their belye, and whose glorye is to their shame, whyche are worldlye minded. But oure conuersation is in heauen, from whence we loke for a sauiour, euen the Lorde Jesus Christ, whiche shal chaunge oure vyle bodies, that they may be fashioned like vnto his glorious bodie, according to ẏ working, whereby he is able to subdue all thinges vnto him selfe.

The Prologe vpon the Epistle of S. Paule to the Colossians.

WT.

In the Epistle to the Colossians he setteth the maner and fashion of the Epistle to the Romayns, kindly correspondinge all that is therin of high knowledge. Euen in that Epistle followeth the ensamples of the Epistle to the Ephesyans, conteyninge the ordinary of the same Epistle more larger manere.

In the fyrste Chapter he prayseth them, and wisheth that they encreased in the fayth, and grettep fauoure therin, and them beforehand by the Gospel bycause that it is a wysdome that confoundeth Christ. He is the Lorde and God, crucified for us, and a wysdome, that hath been vsed in Christ euen after the beginninge of the worlde, and now fyrste begon to be opened thorowe the preachinge of the Apostles.

In the seconde, he warneth them of mennes bowrne, and beforeseeth the false prophetes to the vttermoste, and exhorteth them encouragingly.

In the thyrde he exhorteth to be stedfast in the pure fayth with all manner of good workes one to another, and beforeseeth all degrees and what they ought to be.

In the fourth he exhorteth to prayer, and also to praye for hym, and saluteth them.

The Epistle of Saynct Paul the Apostle vnto the Colossians.

The fyrst Chapter.

The fyrste chapter how God, for whose sake, loue, and hope, prayseth the fayth, loue, and hope of the Colossians for the kyngdome of God, reuealed by Christe, who is the heed of the congregation.

PAule an Apostle of Jesu Christe by the will of God, and brother Timotheus. 1

To the saiuctes, whiche are at Colossa, and brethern that beleue in Christe.

Grace be with you and peace from God oure father, and from the Lorde JESUS Christe.

Where the fayth of the Colossians standeth.

We geue thankes to God the father of oure Lorde Jesus Christe, alwayes prayinge for you, sence we hearde of youre fayth, which Christe in, ye haue in Christ Jesu, and of the loue, which there is vnto ye bestre to all saiuctes, for the hopes sake, to the brethē which is layde vp in store for you in heauen of whiche hope ye haue heard before by the true worde of the Gospel which is come vnto you, euen as it is vnto all the world, and is fruteful, and it is amonge you, from the fyrste daye in the, whiche ye herde of it, and had experience in the grace of God in the truth, as ye learned of Epaphra oure deare felowe seruaunte, whiche is for you a faythfull minister of Christe, whiche also declared vnto vs your loue, whiche ye haue in the spirite.

For this cause we also, sence the daye we heard of it, haue not ceased prayeng for you, and desiring that ye myght be fulfilled with the knowledge of his will, in all wysdome, and spirituall vnderstandinge, that ye might walke worthy of the Lorde in all thinges, that please him beyng fruteful in all good workes, and encreasing in the knowledge of God strengthed with all myghte thorowe his glorious power, vnto all patience and longe suffering with ioyfulnes, & geuing thankes vnto the father, which hath made vs mete to be partakers of the inheritaunce of saiuctes in lyght.

Which hath deliuered vs from the power of darckenes and hath translated vs into the kyngdome of his deare sonne, in whom we haue redemption thorowe his bloude, that is euen to say the forgeuenes of synnes, whiche is the ymage of the inuisible God, fyrste begotten of all creatures. For by hym were all thynges created, thinges that are in heauen, and thinges that are in earth: thinges visible and thinges inuisible, whether they be maieste or Lordeshyp, either rule or power. All thynges are created by hym and in hym, and he is before all thinges, and in hym all thynges haue their beyng.

Redemption. Forgeuenes of synnes.

And he is the heed of the body, that is to wyt of the congregation: he is the beginning and fyrste begotten of the dead, that in all thynges he might haue the preeminence. For it pleased the father that in hym shoulde all fulnes dwell, and by hym to reconcile all thinges vnto him selfe, and to set at peace by hym thorowe

And you (which were in tymes past straungers and enemyes, because your myndes were set in evyl workes) hath he now reconciled in the body of his flesshe thorowe death, to make you holye vnblamable and without fault in his owne sight, yf ye continue grounded and stablished in the faith, and be not moved away from the hope of the Gospell, which ye have hearde, how that it is preached amonge all creatures which are vnder heaven, whereof I Paule am made a minister. Nowe reioyce I in my sufferinges which I suffer for you, and fulfyll, a, that whiche is behinde of the passions of Christe in my flesshe for his bodyes sake, which is the congregacion, whereof I am made a minister accordinge to the ordinaunce of God, which ordinaunce was geven me vnto youwarde, to fulfyll ✠ worde of God, that mistery hyd sence the world began, and sence the begynninge of generacions: but nowis opened to his sainctes to whom God wolde make knowen the glorious riches of this mistery amonge the Gentyls, which riches is Christ, in you the hope of glorye, whome we preache, warninge all men and teachinge all men in all wisdom, to make all men perfect in Christ Jesu. Wherein I also labour and stryve even as farforth as his workinge worcketh in me mightely.

A true Apostle wolde have all men perfect in the knowledge of Christ and of his doctrine.

The notes.

That was behind in the passions of Christe.

a. Not the passions or sufferinges, whiche he suffered for oure synnes. For therin wanted nothinge. They were a sufficiente raunsome for the synnes of the whole worlde. But these passions and sufferinges were the paynfull trauayles in preachinge to the people the Gospell, and the persecucions that followe the same. And these sufferinges are not yet at an ende. For all the true preachers do yet, and shall to the worldes ende suffer in their flesshe for the bodye of Christe, that is his congregacion. For as they persecuted Christe, so shall they persecute his true preachers.

The.ij. Chapter.

What great care Paule toke for all congregacions. The exercise did to be diligent in Christ, to be ware of false preachers and worldelye wysedome and declareth the false prophetes.

The Prologe vpon the fyrste Epistle of S. Paul to the Thessalonians

This Epistle dyd Paule wryte of ryseyng vpe and sorrowed priuately there in the. d. first Chapters he saith they dyd receyue the Gospel ouerlye, and dyd in tribulacion and persecution stedfastly, and were become an ensample vnto all congregacions, and had there fallen of their owne brethren as Christ and the apostles dyd of the Iewes perhaps them there in mynde. Before ouerly and shortly he had bene among them to their ensample and thanketh God, that his Gospell had brought forth such fruite amonge them.

In the thyrde Chapter he setteth his diligence and care, that he so greate labour, and there to stacke a deep rooynge. Whether Paule were in doute, Sathan and his Apostles beynge there with persecucion and hyndrynge their faythe, with mens traynes. And therfore he sent Timotheus to them to comforte them, and strengthe them in the faythe, and thanketh God, that they had so constantly endured, and desyreth God to encrease them.

In the fourth he exhorteth them to hope them fal nes from Christ, and to be good one to another. And thanke he instructeth and comforteth the resurrection.

In the fyfthe he warneth of the laste daye, that it shoulde come sodenly, exhortynge to prepare them selues therefore, and to hope a good ofte concerning obedience and vse.

The. i. Epistle of Saynete Paule the Apostle vnto the Thessalonians.

The fyrst Chapter.

¶ He thanketh God for them that they are stedfast in faythe and good workes, and receyue the Gospell gladly and obediently.

To the Thessalonians.

PAule, Syluanus, and Timotheus. Vnto the congregation of the Thessalonians in God the father, and in the lord Jesus christ. Grace be with you, & peace frō God our father, & frō the Lord Jesus Christ. ¶ We geue God thankes alwayes for you all, makinge mention of you in oure prayers wythoute ceasinge, and cal to remembraunce your worke of faythe, and labour in loue & perseueraunce in the hope of our Lord Jesus Christ, in the syght of God oure father, because we know your brethē beloued of God, how that ye are electe. For oure Gospell came not to you in worde onelye, but also in power, and in the holye Ghoste, and in muche certaintie, as ye know after what maner we behaued our selues among you, for your sakes.

And ye became followers of vs and of the Lord, and receyued the worde with much affliction, with ioye of the holye ghoste: so that ye were an ensample to al that beleue in Macedonia and Achaia. For from you sounded out the worde of the Lord, not in Macedonia & in Achaia onelye: but your faythe also which ye haue vnto God, spreade her selfe abrode in all quarters, so greatlye that it needeth not vs to speake any thynge at all. For they the selues shewe of you, what maner of entrynge in we had vnto you, and howe ye turned vnto God from Images, for to serue the liuing and true God, and for to loke for his sonne from heauen, whom he raised from death. I meane Jesus which deliuered vs frō wrath to come.

The. ii. Chapter.

¶ He putteth them in remembraunce of the godlye conuersacion, that he left among them, when he preached the Gospel vnto them, thanketh God, that they receyued his worde so fruitefullye, and exhorteth them to abstinence.

YE your selues knowe brethren of oure entraunce in vnto you, how y it was not in vayne: but euen after that we had suffered before, and were shamefully entreated at Philippos (as ye wel know) then were we bolde in our God to speake vnto you the Gospel of God with muche stryuynge. Oure exhortacion was not to bringe you to errour, nor yet to vnclenes, neyther was it with gile, but as we were allowed of God, that the Gospel shoulde be committed vnto vs, euen so we spake, not as though we entended to please men, but God whyche tryeth oure hertes. Act. xvi. b knowe neyther in clokt couetousnes, god is recorde: neyther sought we prayse of men neyther of you, nor yet of anye other, when we might haue ben chargeable, as the Apostles of Christe, but we were tender amonge you, euen as a nourse cherysheth hir children, so was our affection toward you, our good wil was to haue dealt to you, not the Gospel of God onely, but also our owne soules because ye were deare to vs. ✠ Ye remembet brethren our labour and trauayle. For we laboured day and night, because we would not be greuous vnto any of you, and preached vnto you the Gospel of God. Ye are witnesses, and so is God, howe holily and iustly and vnblameably we behaued our selues among you that beleue as ye know howe that we exhorted and comforted, and besought euerye one of you, as a father hys children, that ye would walke worthye of God, whiche hath called you vnto his kingdome & glory.

A sure token of a true Apostle. Act. xx. 1. Cor. iiij. c 1. Thes. ij.

℣ For this cause thanke we God without ceasing, because that when ye receiued of vs the word, wher with God was preached, ye receiued it not as the worde of man: but euen as it was in dede, the worde of God: whiche worketh in you that beleue. ✠

For ye brethren became followers of the congregacions of God, which in Iewrye are in Christ Iesu, for ye haue suffred like thinges of your kinsmen, as we our selues haue suffred of the Iewes. Which as they killed the Lorde Jesus and their owne prophetes, euen so haue they persecuted vs, and God they please not, and are contrarye to all men, and forbid vs to preache vnto the Gentyls, that they might be saued to fulfyll their synnes alwaye. For the wrathe of God is come on them, euen to the vtmost.

℣ For as muche brethren as we are kepte from you for a season as concernynge the bodely presence, but not in the herte we endeuored the more to se you personallye with greate desyre. And therfore we would haue come vnto you I Paule once and agayne: but Satan withstode vs. For what is our hope or ioye, or crowne of reioysynge: are not ye it in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ at hys comminge? yes ye are our glory and ioye.

The. iij. Chapter.

✠ He declareth how Timothe was sent, and comforteth vnto hym of their faythe and loue.

Wherfore seinge we could no longer forbeare, it pleased vnto vs wayte at Athens alone, & sente Timotheus our brother and minister of God, and our labourer fellowe in the Gospel of Christe, to stablisshe you and to comforte you ouer youre faythe, that no man should be moued in these afflictions. For ye your selues knowe ✠ we are euen appointed there vnto. For verelye when I was with you, I telde you before that we shoulde suffre tribulacion, euen as it came to passe, and as ye know. For this cause when I coulde no longer forbeare, I sente, ✠ I might haue knowledge of your faythe, leste haplye the tempter had tempted you, and that our labour had bene bestowed in vayne.

A Actor. xvij. a.

But nowe lately when Timotheus came from you vnto vs, and declared to vs your faythe & your loue, & howe that ye haue good remembraunce of vs alwayes, desyring to se vs as we desyre to se you. Therfore brethren we had consolacion in you and in all our aduersitye and necessitie, through your faythe. For nowe are we alyue, yf ye stande stedfast in ✠ Lorde. For what thankes can we recompence to God again for you, ouer all the ioy that we ioy for your sakes before our God, whyl we nighe and daye praye exceedingly that we might se you presently, and might fulfill that which is lackynge in youre faythe.

God him selfe our father, and our Lord Jesus Christ guide our iourney to you: and the Lorde increase you and make you flowe ouer in loue one to warde another and toward all men euen as we do toward you, to make your hertes stable & vnblameable in holynesse before God our father, at the comminge of our Lorde Jesus Christe with al hys sainctes.

The. iiij. Chapter.

✠ He exhorteth them to holynesse, to kepe them selues from fornicacion, and vnlefull conuersacion to loue one another, to diligence, and quietnesse of mynde.

Further more we beseche you brethren and exhorte you in the Lord Jesus, that ye increase more and more, euen as ye haue receiued of vs, howe ye ought to walke and to please God. Ye remember what commaundementes we gaue you in our Lorde Jesu Christ. For this is the will of God, euen that ye shoulde be holy, and that ye shoulde abstayne from fornicacion, that euerye one of you should know, howe to kepe his vessell in holynes and honoure, and not in the lust of concupiscence, as do the heathen, which know not God, that no man go to far and defraude his brother in bargaining: because the Lorde is a reuenger of al suche things as we tolde you before tyme and testified. For God hath not called vs to vnclenes, but vnto holynes. He therfore that despiseth, despiseth not man, but God, whiche hath geuen his holye spirite amonge you. ✠

A Philippi. i. B Romans. xij. d. Ephe. v. d.

℣ But as touchinge brotherly loue, ye nede not ✠ I write vnto you. For ye are taught of God to loue one another. Yea and that ye do vnto all the brethren, which are thorow out all Macedonia. For yf we beleue that Jesus Christe dyed and rose agayne euen so them also, whyche sleepe by Jesus, wyll God bringe agayn wyth hym. And this saye we vnto you in the worde of the Lorde, that we whyche lyue and are remaynynge in the commynge of the Lorde, shall not come perre they which sleepe. For the Lord hym selfe shall descende from heauen with a shoute, and the voice of the Archangell and trompe of God. And the deade in Christ shall arise fyrst: then shal we which lyue and remayne, be caught vp with them also in the cloudes, to meete the Lorde in the ayer. And so shall we euer be with the Lord. The Prologe vpon the seconde Epistle of S. Paule to the Thessalonians.

And in the fyrst Chapter he comforteth them both wyth euerlastinge reward of them fayth and pacience in suffrynge for the Gospel, and wyth the punishment of them perseuerance in euerlastinge payne.

In the seconde he declareth that the laste day shulde not come vntil there were a departynge (as some men vnderstande) from vnder the obedience of the Emperour of Rome, and that Antechriste shulde sit in the temple as God, and deceyue the vnstedfastnes wyth false doctrine, and with false and lyenge myracles wrought by the myghtynes of Sathan, vntil Christe shulde come and slee him wyth the glorious commynge, and spyrytual preachynge of the Gospell of God.

In the thyrde he geueth them exhortacyon, and warneth them to rebuke the lyfe that shulde not followe after their doctrine, and amende their vnquyetnes, yf they shulde not amende.

The first Chapter.

¶ He thanketh God for their faythe and loue, and prayeth for the encrease of the same.

A PAule, Syluanus & Timotheus.
☞ Vnto the congregacion of the Thessalonians, which are in God oure father, and in the Lorde Jesus Christe.

Grace be with you and peace frō God oure father, and from the Lorde Jesus Christe.

B ☞ We are bounde to thanke God alwayes for you brethren, as it mete, because that your faythe groweth exceedingly, and euerye one of you swimmeth in loue towarde another betwene youre selues, so that we oure selues reioyse of you in the congregacions of GOD ouer youre patience and faythe in all youre persecucions and tribulacions that ye suffer, whiche is a token of the ryghteous iudgement of God that ye are counted worthye of the kyngdome of God, for whiche ye also suffer. It is verely a ryghteous thyng with God to recompence tribulacion to them that trouble you, and to you whiche are troubled, reste with vs, when the Lorde Jesus shall shewe hym selfe from heauen with his mighty Aungels, in flaumynge fyre, rendrynge vengeaunce vnto them that knowe not God, and to them that obeye not vnto the Gospel of oure Lorde Jesus Christ, which shall be punyshed with euerlastyng damnacion from the presence of the Lorde, and from the glory of his power, when he shall come to be glorified in his sayntes, and to be made marueylous in all them that beleue: because oure testimonye that we had vnto you, was beleued even the same daye that we preached it. Wherfore we praye alwayes for you that oure God make you worthye of the callynge and fulfyll all delectacion of goodnes and the worke of faythe, with power that the name of oure Lorde Jesus Christe maye be glorified in you, and ye in hym, thorowe the grace of oure God, and of the Lorde Jesus Christe.

¶ He teacheth them that the tyme of the comynge shall not come till the departyng from the faythe come fyrste, and therfore he exhorteth them not to be troubled, but to stande stedfaste in the thynges that he had taught them.

WE beseche you brethren by the commynge of oure Lorde Jesu Christe, and in that we shal assemble vnto hym, that ye be not sodenly moued from your mynde, and be not troubled, neyther by spirite neyther by wordes, yea yet by letter whiche shoulde seme to come from vs, as though the daye of Christe were at hande. Let no man deceyue you by any meanes, for the Lorde cōmeth not, except there come a departyng fyrst, and that, that synful man be opened, the sonne of perdicion whiche is an aduersarye, and is exalted aboue all that is called God, or that is worshypped: so that he shall sytte as God in the temple of God, and shewe hym selfe as God.

For the mysterye of that iniquite doeth he alredy worke whiche onelye letteth vntyll it be taken out of the waye. And then shall that wicked be vttered, whome the Lorde shall consume with the b spirite of his mouth, and shal destroye it in the apearaunce of his commynge, whose commynge is by the worckynge of Sathan, with all lyenge power, signes and wonders, and in all deceyuablenes of vnrighteousnes, among them that perysshe: because they receyued not the loue of the veretie, that they myght haue ben saued. And therfore God shall sende them strange delusyon, that they shoulde beleue lyes: that all they myght be damned which beleued not the truth but had pleasure in vnrighteousnes.

Where no loue is to the truth, on them doth God let slippe false Prophetes to deceyue them.

D ☞ But we are bounde to geue thankes alwaye to God for you brethren beloued of the Lorde, because that God hath from the begynnynge chosen you to saluacion, thorowe sanctifyinge of the spirite, and thorowe beleuing the truth whereunto he called you by oure Gospell, to obteyne the glorye that cometh of oure Lorde Jesu Christe.

†Therfore brethren stande fast and kepe the ordinaunces which ye haue learned: whether it were by oure preachynge or by epistle. Oure Lorde Jesu Christe hym selfe, and God oure father whiche hath loued vs and hath geuen vs euerlastynge consolacion and good hope thorow grace, comforte youre hertes, and stablyshe you in all doctryne and good dooynge.

We haue confydence throwe the Lorde to you ward, that ye both do, and wyll do ye whiche we commaunde you. And the Lorde gyde your hertes to the loue of God and patience of Christ.

B ✣ We requyre you brethren in the name of oure Lorde Iesu Christ, that ye withdrawe your selues from euerye brother that walketh inordinatelye and not after the traditycon whiche ye receyued of vs. Ye youre selues knowe howe ye ought to folowe vs. For we behaued not oure selues inordinatelye among you. Neyther toke we bread of anye man for nought: but wroughte with labour and trauayle nyght and daye, because we would not be greuous to anye of you: not but that we had authoritye: but to make oure selues an ensample vnto you, to folowe vs. For when we were with you thys we warned you of, that yf there were any whiche would not worke, that the same should not eate.

The Prologe vpon the fyrste Epystle of S. Paule to Timothe.

THys Epystle wryteth Sayncte Paule to be an ensample vnto all bysshoppes what they shoulde teache, and howe they shoulde governe the congregacyon of Christe in all degrees, that it shoulde be no nede to governe chyldren lyke vnto the doctryne of theyr owne good maysterres.

In the fyrste Chapyter, he commaundeth ever the bysshoppe shall mayntayne the ryght fayethe and lore, & eschewe false ymaginacyon wherby maye be lette a workes equall with Christ and the Gospell. And he maketh a short conclusyon of all christen learnyng, wherin to the lawe be vseth and what the ende thereof is and what the Gospell is, and setteth hym selfe for a comfortable ensample vnto all synners and troubled consciences.

In the seconde he commaundeth to prayse for all degrees, and chargeth that the women shall not preach nor were costly apparell, but to be obedyent vnto the men.

In the thyrde he declareth what maner persones the Bysshoppe or Prieste and theyr wyues shoulde be & also the Deacones and theyr wyues: and commendeth it, yf any man desyre to be a Bysshoppe after that maner.

In the fourth he prophesyeth and afterwarde before of the false bysshoppes and hypocrytall elders that shoulde aryse amonge the christen people, and he, he and preache straunge contrary to the fayth declared ensample, and shoulde departe from the fayth in Christe and lerned to serue and to care ever more, and chaunge to put truste therein, both of mete dryngs and forgyuenes of synnes, and also of deserynge of eternall lyfe.

In the fyfth he teacheth howe a Bysshoppe shoulde bere hym selfe towarde yonge and olde, and concernyng wydowes what to do: how and which shoulde be founde of the congregacyon, and teacheth also howe men shoulde honoure the godlye Bysshoppes and Prieste, and howe to rebuke the euyll.

In the syxte he exhorteth the Bysshoppe to cleaue to the Gospell of Christe and true doctryne, and to eschewe curyosyte and superfluous disputynges whiche geuyth occasyon vnto the worst, and he warneth also that false Prophetes get them authorytie and lyke to fynysshe theyr vnfruytfull conuersacyon.

The. ij. Chapter.

The apoſtle exhorteth to prayer for all men. He wyll that the women be ſober and ſhamefaſt in their apparell. He ſhewith what maner of men and women ſhuld be admitted to be rulers of the congregation, and to be in fellowſhip and to have ſuſtinaunce.

I exhorte therfore, that above all thynges, prayers, ſupplycacyons, enterceſſyons, and geavynge of thankes be had for all men: for kynges, and for all that are in authorite, that we maye lyve a quyete and a peceable lyfe, in all godlynes and honeſtye. For that is good and accepted in the ſyghte of God oure Sauyoure, whiche wyll have all men ſaved, and to come vnto the knowledge of the truth. For there is one God, and one Mediatour betwene God and men, which is the man Chriſt Jeſus which gave hym ſelf a ranſome for all men, that is ſhuld be teſtified at hys tyme, where vnto I am ordeyned a preacher and an Apoſtle: I tell the truth in Chriſte and lye not, beynge the teacher of the gentyles in fayth and verite. ✣

Let the woman learne in ſilence with all ſubiection. I ſuffer not a woman to teache, neyther to have authorite over a man but to be in ſilence. For Adam was fyrſte formed, and then Eue. Alſo Adam was not deceyved, but the woman was deceyved, and was in a tranſgreſſion. The notes.

a. When ſaynte Paule ſayeth all menne meaneth not every man (for then ſhoulde not God be founde alongſtye, ſynce he wolde have every man ſaved, and yet they be damned, as apereth by Chriſtes wordes, where he ſayeth. The wave that leadeth to lyfe is narrowe, and fewe there be that finde it) but his meaninge is, that God refuſeth no nacyon, be it Jewe or Gentyle, farther ether, he excepte no one. Alſo one myght ſpeake, he hath no reſpecte of perſonnes, but wolde that the Goſpell to be preached to all people and ſuffer that ſuche amonge them, as be ordeyned to the lyfe everlastynge, maye be ſaved, and come to the acknowledgynge of the truthe.

God wyll have all men ſaved.

The. iij. Chapter.

A byſhop or ouerſear what he ought to be

THis is a true ſayinge. If a man couete the office of a byſhop, he deſyreth a good worke. Yea and a bishop muſte be faultleſſe the husband of one wyfe, ſober diſcrete, honeſtlye apparelled, harborous, apte to teache, not dronken, no fyghter, not geuen to fylthy lucre: but gentle, abhorringe fyghtyng, abhorringe couetouſnes, and one that ruleth hys owne houſe honeſtlye, hauing chyldren vnder obedience, wyth all honeſtye. For yf a man can not rule hys owne houſe, howe ſhall he care for the congregacion of God. He maye not be a yonge ſcholer, leſt he ſwell and fall into the iudgement of the cruell ſpeaker. He muſte alſo be well reported of amonge the whiche are wythout forth, leſt he fall into rebuke and ſnare of the cruell ſpeaker.

Deacons.

Lykewyſe muſte the Deacons be honeſt, not double tonged, not geuen vnto much dronge, neyther vnto fylthy lucre: but hauing the myſtery of the fayth in a pure conſcience. And let them fyrſte be proued, and then lette them mynyſter, yf they be founde faultleſſe.

The duty of the mynyſters and Deacons.

Euen ſo muſte theyr wyues be honeſte, not cruell ſpeakers, but ſober and faythfull in all thynges. Let the deacons be the husbandes of one wyfe, and ſuche as rule theyr chyldren well, and theyr owne houſholdes. For they that mynyſter wel, get them ſelues good degree and great libertye in the fayth whiche is in Chriſt Jeſu.

These thynges wryte I vnto the, truſting to come ſhortly vnto the: but and yf I tarye longe, that then thou mayeſte yet haue knowledge howe thou oughteſt to behaue the ſelfe in the houſſe of God, whiche is the congregacion of the lyuynge God, the pyllar & grounde of truth. And wythout naye greate is that myſterye of godlynes: God was theriued in y fleſhe, was iuſtified in the ſpirite, was ſene of aungels, was preached vnto the gentils, was beleaued on in earth and receyued vp in glory.

The notes.

Byſhoppe.

a. Biſhop is as muche to ſay, as a watch man, an ouer ſear, a fear ful, or one that taketh herd to. When this man deſireth to feade the flocke of Chriſt, with hys holy worde, then he ſireth he a good worke, & the very office of a Biſhoppe: But he that deſireth honoure, gapeth for lucre, thyrſteth great rentes, ſeketh parhemineres, pōp, dominion: ouer lith aboūdaūce of all thinges without mēte, reule and herte eate, caſtelles, parkes, houſholde, ryotoures, &c deſireth not a worke moch leſſe, a good worke and is nothyng leſſe then a Biſhop, as ſaynct Paule vseth here vnderſtande a Biſhoppe.

The .iij. Chapter.

The qualyfycacyon of the lawfull byſhop, and the ſyngular vertues he muſte be indued wyth. Agaynſte the falſe doctryne.

THe ſpyrite ſpeaketh expreſſelye that in the later tymes ſome ſhall departe from the fayth, & ſhall geue heed vnto ſpyrites of errour, and deuelyſh doctryne of them which ſpeake falſe thorowe hypocriſye, and haue theyr conſciences marked with an a. hote Iron, forbyddyng to marye, and commaundyng to abſtayne from meates which God hath created to be receyued wyth geuyng thankes, of the which beleue and know the truethe. For all the creatures of God are good & nothynge to be refuſed, yf it be receyued with thankes geuynge. For it is ſanctifyed by the worde of God and prayer. Yf thou ſhalt put the brethern in remembraūce of theſe thynges: thou ſhalt be a good mynyſter of Jeſu Chriſte, whiche hall beue nouyſhed vp in the wordes of the fayth and good doctryne, which doctryne thou haſte contynually folowed. But caſt awaye vngoſtly and olde wyues fables.

Exercyſe thy ſelfe vnto Godlynes. For bodely exerciſe profyteth lytell: But godlynes is good vnto all thynges, as a thynge whiche hath promyſes of the lyfe that is now, and of the lyfe to come. This is a ſure ſayinge and of all partyes worthy to be receyued. For therfore we labour and ſuffer rebuke, becauſe we beleue in the lyuyng God, whiche is the ſauyour of all men: but ſpecyally of thoſe that beleue. Suche thynges commaunde and teache. Let no man deſpyſe thy youthe: but be vnto them that beleue, an enſample, in worde in cōuerſacyon, in loue, in ſpyrite, in fayth & in purenes.

Tyll I come, geue attendaunce to reading to exhortacyon and to doctryne. Deſpyſe not the gyfte that is in the, whiche was geuen the thorow Prophecye, and wyth layinge on of the handes of an elder. Theſe thynges exercyſe, and geue thy ſelfe vnto them, that it maye be ſene howe thou profyteſt in all thynges. Take hede vnto thy ſelfe and vnto learnyng, and contynue therein. For yf thou ſhalte ſo do, thou ſhalte ſaue thy ſelfe and them that heare the.

The notes.

a. The conſcience is ſayde to be marked wyth an hote Iron, when the partye knoweth that the doctryne whiche he lyſteth for is not good and yet for lyuynges ſake he wyll not reforme it. This maner of ſpeakynge ſmeth to be taken of the cruell order, which is that ſuche men as be conuicted of extreme crymes, ſhal be burned in the hande (or ſome other place of the body) wyth an hote Iron wherebye it is knowen that he is ſo conuicted, though he hym ſelfe be neyther repentaunt nor amende hys faute. But yf he be taken wyth anye lyke faut agayne and brought to the iuge then ſhall thys marke condemne him. Right ſo ſhall the conſcience condemne them that knowe their errour, and yet wyll not acknowledge it, but for the lewdy ſake mayntayne it ſtyll.

PAule an Apostle of Iesu Christ by the wyll of God to preache ✠ promes of lyfe which lyfe is in Christe Iesu. A

To Timothe his beloued sonne. Grace, mercy and peace from God the father, and from Christe Iesu oure Lorde.

I thanke God, whom I serue from myne eldere with pure conscience, that without ceasynge I make mencyon of the in my prayers nyght and daye, desyrynge to se the, mynded full of the teares: so that ✠ be fylled with ioy, when I call to remembraunce the vnfayned fayth, that is in the, whiche dwelte fyrste in thy graundmother Loys, and in thy mother Eunice: and am assured that it dwelleth in the also.

For God hath not geuen to vs the spirite of feare, but of power and of loue, and of sobrietie of mynde. Be not ashamed to testifye oure Lorde, neyther be ashamed of me, whiche am bounde for hys sake: but suffre aduersitye also with the Gospell thorowe the power of God, whiche saued vs and called vs with an holye callynge, not accordynge to oure owne purpose ✠ grace whiche grace was geuen vs thorowe Christe Iesu before the worlde was, but is nowe declared openlye by the appearynge of oure sauioure Iesu Christ whiche hath put awaye deathe, ✠ hath brought lyfe and immortalitye to lyght thorow the Gospell, whereunto I am appointed a preacher and an Apostle and a teacher of the Gentyles: for the whiche cause I also suffer these thynges. Neuertheles I am not ashamed. For I know whom I haue beleued, and am sure that he is able to kepe that whiche I haue committed to hys kepynge, agaynst that daye.

The Lorde geue mercye vnto the house of Onesiphorus, for he ofte refreshed me, and was not ashamed of my chayne: but when he was at Rome, he sought me oute very diligently, and founde me. The Lorde graunte vnto hym that he maye fynde mercye with the Lorde at that daye. And in howe manye thinges he mynistred vnto me at Ephesus thou knowest very well.

The.ij. Chapter.

A Lyke as in the first Chapter, he exhorteth him to be constaunt in trouble, to suffer manfully, & to vse false myght the good Doctryne of our Lorde Jesu Christe.

THou therfore my sonne, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesu. And what thynges thou hast hearde of me, manye bearyng witnes, the same delyuer to faythfull men, whiche are apte to teache other.

Thou therfore suffer affliccyon as a good soudyer of Jesu Christe. No man that warreth entangleth hym selfe with worldlye busynes, and that because he woulde please hym that hath chosen hym to be a soudyer. And though a man stryue for a masterye, yet is he not crowned, except he stryue lawfully. The husbandman that laboureth must fyrste receyue of the frutes. Consyder what I saye. The Lorde geueth vnderstandynge in all thynges.

B Remember that Jesus Christe bronge of the sede of Dauid, rose agayne from death according to my Gospell, wherein I suffer trouble as an euyll doar, euen vnto bondes. But the worde of God was not bounde. Therfore I suffre all thynges, for the electes sakes, that they myght also obtayne the saluacyon, which is in Christe Jesus, with eternal glory.

Electe.

It is a true saying, yf we be dede vs hym we also shall lyue with hym. Yf we be pacyente, we shal also raygne with hym. Yf we denye hym, he also shall denye vs. Yf we beleue not yet abydeth he faythfull. He can not denye hym selfe. Of these thynges put them in remembraunce, and testifye before the Lorde, that they stryue not about wordes: which is to no profyte, but to peruerte the hearers.

C Studye to shewe thy selfe laudable vnto God a workeman that needeth not to be ashamed, dyuydynge the worde of truthe rightlye. Vngodlye and vayne voices passe ouer. For they shal encrease vnto greater vngodlynes, and their wordes shall fret ouer as doth a canker: of whole number is Hymeneus & Philetus: which as concernyng the truthe haue erred, sayenge that the resurrection is past already, and so destroye the faythe of diuers persons.

Hymineus. Philetos.

But the sure grounde of God remayneth, and hath this seale: the Lorde knoweth them that are his, & let euery man that calleth on the name of Christe departe fro iniquyte. Notwithstandyng in a greate house are not onelye vessels of golde and of syluer: but also of woode and of earthe, some for honoure, and some vnto dishonoure. But yf a man purge hym selfe from suche filthines, he shalbe a vessell sanctyfyed vnto honoure, mete for the Lorde, & prepared vnto all good workes.

Flees of youth, & folow ryghtuousnes, faythe, loue, & peace, with them that D call on the Lorde with pure herte. Foolyshe & vnlearned questions put from the, remembryng that they do, but gender stryfe. But the seruaunt of the Lorde must not stryue, but must be gentle vnto all men, and apte to teache, and one that can suffer the euyll in meakenes, and can enfourme them that resiste: yf that God at any tyme wyll geue them repentaunce for to know the truethe, that they may come to them selues agayne out of the snare of the deuyll, whiche are taken of hym at his wyll.

The.iij. Chapter.

persecucyons, and afflictyons which happened vnto me at Antioche, at Iconium and at Lystra: whiche persecucyons I suffered perpetually. And from them all, the Lorde deliuered me. Yea and all that wyll lyue godlye in Christe Jesu, must suffer persecucyon. But euyll men and deceyuers shal waxe worse & worse, whyle they deceyue, and are deceyued them selues.

The.iii. Chapter.

Paule exhorteth Timothe to be feruent in the worde and to suffer aduersite, vnderto monysshe of hys olde death, and ordereth Timothe to me vnto hym.

I Testifye therfore before God, & before the Lord Jesu Christe, which shall iudge quycke and deade in hys apparyng in his kyngedome, preache the worde, be feruent, be it in season or out of season. The Prologe vpon the Epistle of S. Paul the Apostle vnto Titus.

This is a short Epistle wherin yet is contayned all that is nedefull for a christen to knowe.

In the first Chapter he setteth what maner of men a Bysshoppe or curate ought to be: that is to wyte, learned, and learnen, to preache and defende the Gospell, and to confounde the doctryne of vnthryfte men and euyll teachers which euer fyght against the faythe, and turne almoste the conference cleane from the Lorde that is in Christe into the bondage of their owne ymaginacyons and traditions, as though their thynges shoulde make a man good in the syght of God, where they are to his preiudice.

In the seconde he teacheth all degrees, olde, yonge men, women, maysters, and seruauntes howe they shall lyue as they which Christ hath bought wyth his bloude to be his proper or peculiare people, to glorifye God wyth good workes.

In the thyrde he teacheth to auoyde temporall rulers, and to obeye them and yet disagree to Christe agayne, and of the grace that he hath purchased vs, that no man shoulde thynke that the obedyence to powers lyke is of any other worthe shoulde vnderstode to be done vnto God. I beseche the for my sonne Onesimus, whom I begat in my bondes, whiche in tyme passed was to the vnprofytable both to the, and also to me, whome I have sente home agayne. Thou therfore receyve hym, that is to say, myne owne bowels whome I wolde fayne have receyved with me, that in thy stede he myght have ministred vnto me in the bondes of the Gospell. Neuertheles, wythout thy mynde, wolde I do no thynge, that the good whiche spryngeth of the, shoulde not be as it were of necessytie, but wyllyngly.

Happely he therfore departed for a season that thou shouldest receyve hym for euer, not nowe as a seruaunte, but above a seruaunte I meane a brother beloved, specially to me: but howe muche more vnto the, bothe in the flesshe and also in the Lorde? If thou count me a felowe, receyve hym as my selfe. If he have hurte the, or owyth the oughte that lape to my charge. I Paule have wryten it with myne owne hande, I will recompence it. So that I do not saye, to the, howe that thou owest vnto me euen thyne owne selfe. Euen so brother, let me enioye the in the Lorde. Comforte my bowelles in the Lord. Trusting in thyne obedyence, I wrote vnto the, knowing, that thou wylt do more then I saye for. Moreouer prepare me lodgynge: for I truste thorowe the healpe of your prayers, I shall be geuen vnto you. There salute the Epaphras my felowe prysoner in christ Jesu. Marcus, Aristarchus Demas, Lucas, my helpers. The grace of our Lorde Jesu Christe be with your spyrytes Amen.

A Prologe to the fyrst Epistle of S. Peter.

THys Epystle of Sayncte Peter moveth to the beastes that were converted, and exhorteth them to stande fast in the fayth, to growe therein and to wyrke perfytnesse, thorowe all maner of suffryng, and alle good workes.

In the fyrst he declareth the inheritaunce of fayth thorowe Christes bloude, and comforteth them with the hope of the lyfe to come. & Betwene that they have ben delyvered it hath ben that the Prophetes prophesyed of Christe yet to come, and of Christe himself redemed vs out of bondage, all ministered vs helpe to beleeve, to loove one another, and herewith the he spotte bought and made heyres of a ryche inheritaunce, to take vnto that we lyve not against the ryght vse of our neighbours.

In the seconde Chapter he declareth that Christe is the foundacyon and head corner stone, wherevpon al our buylde shoulde stande, whether it be Jewe or gentile, and howe that in Christe they are made Priestes, to offer them selues to God, as Christe was hym selfe, to slee the lustes of the fleshe that fyghte against the soule. And fyrst he teacheth them in generall to obeye the magistrate rulers, and then in perfyll he teacheth the seruauntes to obeye their maysters be they good or badde, and to suffer wronge of them as Christe suffered wronge for vs.

In the thyrde he teacheth the wyues to obeye their husbandes, ye though they be vnbelieuers, and to apparell them selues gostly as it becommeth holynesse. And likewise that the husbandes suffer and beare the infyrmytye of their wyues, and lyue according to knowledge with them. And then in generall he exhorteth them to be sobre, louynge, gentyll, & louynge one to another, and to suffer for righteousnes sake the exaumple of Christ.

In the fourth he exhorteth to lyue vnto god to cease the fleshe with lyberous wantonnesse and glotony, and to long after other, and to knowe that all good gyftes are of God, and exhorte man to bestow his myght as one hath lusted on he hath receyued of God, and finally not to wonder, but to reioyce though they muste suffer for Christes names sake seynge that as they be here partakers of his afflictyons, so shall they be partakers of his glorye to come.

In the fyfte he teacheth the Presbyters and gyueth them their charge howe and how Christes flocke and warneth vs of the Deuyll, whiche on euery syde seeketh to wayte for vs.

The fyrst Epistle of Sayncte Peter the Apostle.

The fyrst Chapter.

¶ He declareth that thorowe the aboundaunt mercy of God, we are begotten agayne to a lyuelye hope, and to the fayth which he tryed, and howe that saluacyon in Christe is no nouelte, but a thynge promysed of olde. He exhorteth them to a godlye conuersacyon, for as much as they are made borne a newe by the worde of God.

PEter an Apostle of Jesu Christe to them that dwell here & there as straungers thorowout all Ponture, Galacia, Capadocia Asia, and Bithinia, electe by the foreknowledge of God the father, thorowe the sanctifyinge of the spyrite, vnto obedience & sprinklyng of the bloude of Jesus Christe.

Grace be with you & peace be multiplied.

¶ Blessed be God the father of our Lorde Jesus Christe, whiche thorowe his aboundaut mercye begat vs agayne vnto a lyuelye hope by the resurrecyon of Jesus Christe from death, to enioye an enheritaunce immortall & vndefyled, and that purefyeth not, reserued in heauen for you, whiche are kept by the power of God thorowe fayth, vnto saluacyon, whiche saluacyon is prepared all ready to be shewed in the laste tyme, in the whiche tyme ye shall reioyce, though nowe for a season (yf nede requyre) ye are in heauynes, thorowe manyfolde temptacyons, that youre fayth so once tryed beynge muche more precyous, the golde that perysheth (though it be tryed with fyre) myght be founde vnto laude, glory, and honoure, at the appearynge of Jesus Christe whome ye haue not seue, and yet loue hym, in whome nowe, though ye se hym not, yet do you beleue: and reioyce with ioye vnspeakable and glorious: receyuynge the ende of youre fayth, the saluacyon of youre soules.

Of whiche saluacyon haue the Prophetes enquyred and searched, whiche prophesyed of the grace that shoulde come vnto you, searchynge when or at what tyme of the spyrite of Christe whiche was in them, shoulde signifye, whiche spyrite testyfyed before, the sufferynges that shoulde come vnto Christe, and the glorye that shoulde folowe after: vnto which Prophetes it was declared, that not vnto them selues, but vnto vs, they shoulde mynysser the thynges whiche are nowe shewed vnto you of them whiche by the holye ghoste sent doune from heauen, haue preached vnto you the thynges whiche the aungels desyre to beholde.

¶ Wherfore gyrde vp the lowynes of youre myndes, be sober, and trust perfectlye on the grace that is brought vnto you, by the declarynge of Jesus Christe, as obedyent chyldre not fashionynge youre selues vnto your old lustes of ignoraunce: but as he whiche called you is holye, euen so be ye holy in all maner of conuersacyon, because it is wrytten, Be ye holy, for I am holy.

¶ And yf so be that ye call on the father, whiche without respecte of person, iudgeth accordynge to euery mannes workes le that ye passe the tyme of youre pylgrymage in feare. † For as much as ye know howe that ye were not redemed with corruptyble syluer and golde, from youre vayne conuersacyon vnwhiche ye receyued by the tradycyons of your fathers: but with the precyous bloude of Christ as of a lambe vndefyled, and without spotte, whiche was ordeyned before the worlde was made, but was declared in the laste tymes for youre sakes, whiche by hym do beleue in God that raysed hym from death, & glorefyed hym, that youre fayth and hope myght be in God.

¶ And for as much as ye haue purefyed youre soules thorowe the spyrite, in obeyenge the truethe vnto loue brotherlye without fayneynge, se that ye loue one another with a pure herte feruentlye: for ye are borne a newe, not of mortall seede, but of immortall, by the worde of God whiche liueth, and lasteth for euer. For all fleshe is as grasse, and all the glorye of man is as the floure grasse. The grasse wyddereth, and the floure falleth awaye, but the worde of the Lorde endureth euer. † And this is the worde whiche by the gospell was preached amonge you.

Here Peter (as other ten Apostles do) spoke setteth forth the treasure of mercy whiche God hath bounde hym selfe to geue vs for Christes sake and then our dutye what we are bolde to do agayn, yf we wyl be partakers of the mercye.

¶ Our dutye agayne.

¶ Ignorance is the cause of euyll lyuynge.

By our workes shall we be iudged: for as the inuysible fayth is liuely are the workes by which the fayth is seue. 1. Cor. vi. and vii. 1. Johan. ii. Apoca. i. We be purefyed further in beleuynge the truethe of Christe vnto to loue one another. Mat. xxi. b. Marke xiii. c. Jacob. i. b

The.ii. Chapter.

The exhortith men to lape ofde all vice, forasmuch as that Christ is the foundacyon whereupon they buylde, purpose them to abstayne from fleshly lustes, and to obeye worldly rulers. Howe seruauntes shoulde behaue them selues towardes their maysters. He exhortyth to suffre after the exemple of Christe.

WHerfore lape a syde all malyce and all guyle, and dyssymulacyon, and enuye, and all backbytynge: and as newe bourne babes, desyre that reasonable mylke whiche is wythout corrupcyon that ye maye growe therein. If so be that ye haue tasted howe pleasaunt the Lorde is, to whome ye come as vnto a lyuynge stone dysalowed of men, but chosen of God and precyous: and ye as lyuynge stones, are made a spirytuall + housse, and an holye priesthode, for to offer vp spyrytuall sacrifyce, acceptable to God by Jesus Christe.

Wherfore it is contained in the scrypture: beholde, I put in Syon an head corner stone, electe and precyous: and he that beleueth on him, shall not be ashamed. Vnto you therfore whiche beleue, he is precyous, but vnto them whiche beleue not, the stone whiche the buylders refused the same is made the head stone in the corner, and a stone to stomble at, and a rocke to offende them whiche stomble at the worde, and beleue not that wherevnto they were set. But ye are a chosen generacyon, a royall priesthode, an holye nacyon and a peculyar people that ye shoulde shewe the vertues of hym that called you oute of darkenes into his marueylous lyght, whiche in tyme past were not vnder mercye, but nowe haue obtayned mercye. ✠

Dearely beloued, I beseche you as straungers and pylgrymes, obstayne from fleshely lustes, wych fyght agaynste the soule, and se that ye haue honest conuersacyon amonge the Gentyls, that they whiche backbyte you as euyll doars, maye se youre good workes and prayse God in the daye of visitacyon.

Obedyence to rulers.

Submyt youre selues vnto all maner ordinaunce of man for the Lordes sake, whether it be vnto the kynge as vnto the chiefe heade: other vnto rulars, as vnto them that are sent of hym, for the punysshement of euyll doars: but for the laude of them that do wel. For so is the wyll of God, that ye put to sylence the ignoraunce of the folysshe men: as fre, and not as hauynge the libertye for a clake of maliciousnes, but euen as the seruauntes of God. Honoure all men. Loue brotherlye felowshyp. Feare God, and honour the kynge.

Seruauntes obeye youre maysters wyth all feare, not onelye yf they be good, and courteous: but also thoughe they be frowarde. For it is thanke worthy yf a man for conscience towarde God endure greefe, suffering wrongfullye. For what prayse is it, yf when ye be buffeted for your faultes, ye take it pacyentlye? But and yf when ye do well, ye suffre wrong and take it paciently, then is there thanke vnto God.

Seruauntes, Ephe.vi.a. Col.iii.d

For hereunto verelye were ye called: for + Christe also suffered for vs, leauynge vs an ensample that we shoulde folowe his steppes, whiche dyd no synne, neyther was there gyle founde in his mouth: which when he was reuyled, reuyled not agayne: when he suffered, he threatned not: but committed the cause to him that iudgeth ryghtuously, which his owne selfe bare oure synnes in his body on the tree, that we shoulde be delyuered fro synne, and shoulde lyue in ryghteousnes. By whose stryppes ye were healed. For ye were as shepe goynge astraye: but are nowe returned to the shepeherde and bysshop of youre soules. ✠

To dwell vp a wyfe accordinge to knowledge.

a. He dwelleth wyth his wyfe accordinge to knowledge, that taketh her as a neceſſarye healper, and not as a bonde ſeruaunte or a bonde ſlaue. LIke as much as Chriſt hath ſuffered for vs in the fleſhe, arme your ſelues likewiſe with the ſame minde: for he which ſuffereth in the fleſhe ceaſeth from ſynne, that he hence forwarde ſhoulde lyue as muche tyme as remayneth in the fleſhe, not after the luſtes of men, but after the wyll of God. The Prologe upon the seconde Epistle of Saynct Peter.

THis Epistle was written against them, whyche thought that Christen fayth myght be pute and without workes, when yet the promes of Christe is made vp vpon that condycyon, that we henceforth walke the wyl of God and not of the fleshe. Therfore he exhorteth them to exercyse them selues diligentlye in vertue and all good workes, therby to be sure that they haue the true fayth, as a man knoweth the goodnes of a tree by hys fruite. Then he commendeth and magnifyeth the Gospell, and byddeth that men harken to that onelye, and to vnfrutefull doctryne not at all. For as he sayth, there came no prophetycal scripture by the wyl of man, but by the myst of the holye Ghoste, which onelye knoweth the wyll of God, neyther to adde scripture of vnsure interpretacyon, ryght as to say, may be otherwyse expounded then agreynge to the open places, and go myght ye rule, and to the commaundes of God, and al the rule of the scripture.

And ouerlese as the tyrande, he warneth them of false teachers that shoulde come, and thorough pleasaunt doctrine and fayre wordes to subuerte them, condemned vnto all. Shoulde denye Christ. Which he chastyseth with the terrible examples. With the ruine of the aungelles, the floude of Noe, and ouerthrowyng of Sodome and Gomor, and to beleyue both them wyth their vnchaste conuersacion, pryde, stubbornes and byldenesse to all temporal rule and authorite, with their abominable wyll, vnclenes, and hypocrysie that a blynde man may se, that he prophecyed of the Papes holy hypocrysye, whyche destroyeth the whole world with their conuersacion, lyuynge in al lust and pleasure and vnrighteousnes as the pleaseth themselues.

In the third he styrreth vpe in the latter dayes the people that lyue vnholesly, and lacke al feare of the iudgement of the laste daye. And he warneth vs, leaste we growe to the fleshe. Whyche lacke hope that yet surelye and shortly come shall he, for a thousande yeares are one daye to wyth God all one. And he shewyth also howe terrible that daye shall be, and howe shortly it shal come: therfore exhorteth al men to lyue godlye and to prepare them selues against yt wyth holy conuersacion and godly lyuynge.

Finallye, the fyrste Chapter shewyth howe a Christen ought to go in the wayes of the pure and true Gospell. The seconde, howe a Christen ought to go in the wayes of the false and wicked heretikes. The third howe at the last wil skoffers beleue nothyng nor feare God at all.

The.ij. Epistle of Saynete Peter the Apostle.

The first Chapter.

Fayth to vnsolue vs the power of God hath geuen them al thynges pertayning to lyfe, to refourme vs to the contemplacion of heauenly lyfe, to make vs enioyng hys wyth good workes, and fruites of fayth. The maiesty and vnion of the diuine nature, declareth the Lord Jesus to be the true sonne of God, as he him selfe hath lerne vpon the mount.

SImon Peter a seruaunte, and an Apostle of Jesus Christe, to them whyche haue obtayned lyke precyous fayth wyth vs in the righteousnes that commeth of oure God and sauiour Jesu Christ.

Grace wyth you, and peace be multiplied in the knowledge of God and of Jesus Christ oure Lorde. According as hys godlye power hath geuen vnto vs al thynges that pertayne vnto lyfe and godlines, throughe the knowledge of him that hath called vs by vertue & glory, by the meanes, wherof are geuen vnto vs excellent and most great promises, that by the helpe of them ye should be partakers of the godly nature, in that ye flee the corruptio of wouldelye lust.

And herunto geue al diligence, in youre fayth, mynyster vertue, and in vertue knowledge, and in knowledge temperancie, and in temperancie, patience, in patience, Godlynes, in Godlines brotherly kyndnes, in brotherlye kindnes, loue. For yf these thinges be amonge you and are plenteous, they wyll make you, that ye neyther shalbe vnfrutefull in the knowledge of oure Lord Jesu Christ. But he that lacketh these thinges, is blynd and gropeth for the wape wyth his hãd, and hath forgotten that he was purged fro his olde synnes.

Wherfore brethern, geue the more diligence for to make youre callinge and election sure. For if ye do suche thinges, ye shal neuer erre. For so by this meanes an entrynge in, shalbe mynystred vnto you abundantlye into the euerlastinge kingdome of oure Lorde and Sauiour Jesus Christ.

Wherfore I wyll not be negligente to put you alwayes in remembraunce of such thynges, though that ye knowe them, yea & be also stablyshed in the present truth. Moreouer I thinke it meete, (a longe as I am in this tabernacle) to stere you vp by puttynge you in remembraunce: for as muche as I am sure how that the tyme is at hande, that I must put of my tabernacle, euen as our Lord Jesus Christ hath shewed me. This firste vnderstande, that there shall walke after their owne lustes and say: Where is the

of the promes of hys comminge? For frõ the fathers dyed, al thinges continue in the same estate, wherin they were at the beginninge. This they knowe not (and that willingly) howe that the heauens a greate whyle ago were, & the earth that was in the water, appered vp out of the water by the worde of God, by the which thinges, the worlde that then was, perished ouer flowen with the water. But the heauens verely and earth, which are now are kept by the same worde in store, and reserued vnto fyre, against the daye of iudgemente, and perdycyon of vngodlye men.

Dearly beloued, be not ignorant of this one thinge, howe that one daye is with the Lorde, as a thousande yeare, and a thousande yeare as one daye. The Lord is not slacke to fulfyl his promyse, as some men count slacknes, but is patiẽt to vswarde and would haue no man lost, but would receyue al men to repentaunce. Neuertheles the daye of the Lord wyl come as a theefe in the nyght in the which daye, the heauens shal perysshe with terrible noyse, and the elementes shal melte with heate, and the earth with the workes that are therin shal burne.

Neuertheles we loke for a newe heauen and a newe earth, according to his promyse, wherin dwelleth rightousnes.

Ye therfore beloued, seynge ye knowe it before hãd, beware lest ye be also plucked away with the errour of the wycked, and fall from your owne stedfastnes, but grow in grace, and in the knowledge of oure Lorde and Sauiour Jesus Christe. To whom be glorye both nowe and for euer.

Amen.

The Prologe vpon the thre Epystles of Saynct John.

IN this first epistle of S. John he chalengeth the honoure of a true Apostle of Christe, a mayster of vertue to followe hys Gospell. For as he had the Gospell he knewe ouer the true faith, and trouthe of it ouerlye al men to be blynde & vnlerned that the fauoure of God agree, euen to lyue as Christe walked, against them that bosted them selues of faith, and yet couersyse in pryuate good workes, and couertly maynteyned, that where good faith is, there the workes may not be spyed, and contrarye that where the workes folowe not, there is no true faith, but a dede Iewes gaynyng, and vayne bosting.

And he inserteth this agaynst a sorte of heretikes, in whom then beganne to bolne that Gnosti whan cõmen in the flesh, and called them vnto knowledge, whych from gostly eares in hys first Passyon. For though they bosted mysely vpon the name, that Christe is come in the flesh, yet they beleue it in the lyuely stocke, bochyng and bragging. For he that wyl be satisfyed and knowe therin his owne wickednes, and fynde breth as much as he that bosteth Christe to be come in the flesh, seyng that Christ come vnder mankynde in the flesh, that he shoulde satisfye for al synnes, & the synnes of our breuen, bringe vs in the fauoure of God ageyne, & make vs heyres of eternall lyfe, must hys wickednes confesse, and myth hys manner thankynge, louynge and seruynge al our brethren.

So frequenth this Epistle hath agaynst them that wyl be iuged by their owne good workes, and also is agaynst them that bosten them selues to be of such that haue no sin to be washed or clensed by, in the myste bloud that we beleue in Christe to be washed by hys precious bloud, and then to bosten that it is oure duty the that beseemeth vs, to prayse our selues to do the ten commaundements of God, and to lyue euery man vnreprouable vn Christ Iesus sight, seyng euery oure owne workes. Gods honoure & our neyghbours welth ought and truthe for eternal lyfe and for al that God hath promysed vs for Christes sake.

The thre last epistles though they be short, yet are greatly estemed of learned and lerth and so likened vnto the spryng of a true Apostle.

The.ii. Chapter.

¶ Christ is our aduocate. Of true loue, and howe it is to vse it.

MY lytle chyldren, these thinges
wryte I vnto you, that ye sinne
not. yf anye man synne, yet we haue an aduocate with the father, Jesus Christe, whyche is righteouse, and he it is that obtayned grace for our sinnes, not for oure sinnes onelye, but also for the synnes of al the worlde. And ther-by we are sure that we knowe him, yf we kepe his commaundementes. He that saith I knowe him, and kepeth not his commaunde-
He ỹ kepeth Gods worde in him ỹ loue of God perfect is in him, & knowe we that we are in him. He that saith he abydeth in him ought to walke euen as he walked. ỹ mentes, is a liar, and the verite is not in him.
¶ Whosoeuer kepeth his worde, in him is the loue of God perfect in deede. And ther by we knowe we that we are in him. He that saith he abydeth in him ought to walke euen as he walked. ỹ ¶ Brethren I wryte no newe commaundemente vnto you, but that olde commaunde-2 ment, which ye hearde from the beginning.
The olde commandement is the worde, which ye heard from the beginninge. Agayne a newe commaundement I wryte vnto you, a thinge that is true in him, and also in you, for the dar
kenes is past, and the true lyght now shineth.
He that saith how that he is in the lyght, and yet hateth his brother, is in darcknes euen vn till this tyme. He that loueth his brother, abi-deth in the lyghte, and there is none occasion of ruill in him. He that hateth his brother, is in darcknes and walketh in darcknes, and can not tell whether he goeth, because that darcknes hath blinded his eyes.
¶ Babes I wryte vnto you, how that youre sinnes are forgeuen you for his names sake.
I wryte vnto you fathers, how that ye knowe him, that is as from the beginninge. I wryte vnto you yong men, how that ye haue ouer-come the wicked. I wryte to you lytel childre, howe that ye knowe the father. I wryte vnto you fathers, how that ye knowe him, that was from the beginninge. I wryte vnto you yong men, how that ye are stronge and the word of God abyeth in you, & ye haue ouer-come that wycked.

He that loueth ỹ world loueth not God.

Be that ye loue not the world, neyther the thynges that are in the worlde. yf anye man loue the worlde the loue of the father is not in him. for all that is in the world (as the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pryde of goodes) is not of the father, but of ỹ world.
And the world vanyssheth away, and the lust
therof, but he that fulfilleth the will of God, abideth euer.

Antichriste.

Lytel chyldren, it is the last time, and as ye haue heard how that Antichriste shall come, euen nowe are there many Antichristes come alredye. Wherby we knowe that it is the last tyme. They went out from vs, but they were not of vs. For yf they had bene of vs: they woulde no doubte, haue continued wyth vs.
But that fortuned, that it myghte appeare,
that they were not of vs.

D Ointment ỹ is knowledge of trouth & al the giftes of the spirite.

And ye haue an oyntment of the holye ghost and ye knowe all thinges. ✣ I wryte not vn-
to you, as though ye knewe not the trueth, but as though ye knewe it, and knowe also that no lye commeth of trueth. Who is a liar but he that denyeth that Jesus is Christ? The same is the Antichrist that denyeth the father and the sonne. Whosoeuer denyeth the sonne, the same hath not ỹ father. Let therfore abyde in you that same, whyche ye heard from the beginninge. shall remaine in you, ye also shal continue in the sonne, and in the father. And this is the promes, that he hath promysed vs
euen eternal lyfe.
¶ These haue I written vnto you concerning them, that deceyue you. And the anoyntinge, whyche ye haue receiued of him, dwelleth in
you. And ye nede not that anye man teache you, but as th anointing teacheth you al thin ges, and is true, and is no lye, & as it hath taught you, ye shall abyde therin. And now babes abide in him, that when he shal appeare, we maye be bolde, and not be made ashamed of him
at his comming: If ye knowe that he is righteous, knowe also that he whyche followeth righteousnes, is borne of hym.

Clair. lib. 8 Johan. vi. c Here ye se ỹ Christ & sinne can not dwel together.

The.iii. Chapter.

¶ The dyuyne loue of God towardes vs, & howe we ought to loue one another.

BEholde what loue ỹ father hath shewed on vs, that we shoulde be called ỹ sonnes of God. For this cause the worlde knoweth you not, because it knoweth not
him. Derely beloued, now are we the sonnes of God, and yet it do ely not appeare, what we

we shalbe. But we knowe that when it shal appere, we shalbe like him. For we shall se him as he is. And every man that hath this hope in him, pourgeth him selfe, even as he is pure. Wholsoever committeth synne, committeth unrighteousnes also, for synne is unrighteousnes. And ye knowe that he appered to take away our synnes, & in him is no synne. As many as bide in him synne not, wholsoever synneth, hath not sene him, neyther hath knowen him.

He that worketh righteousnes, is borne of god & taughte of his spyryte.

Babes let no man deceive you. He that doth righteousnes is righteous, even as he is righteous. He that committeth synne, is of the devil, for the devil sinneth synce the beginninge. For this purpose appered the sonne of God to lowse the workes of the devil. Wholsoever is borne of God, synneth not, for his seed remaineth in him, and he can not sinne, because he is borne of God. In this are the children of God knowen, and the children of the devil. Wholsoever doth not righteousnes, is not of God, neyther he that loveth not his brother.

1. Johan. iij. d

Seed, that is the holy ghost.

For this is the tidinges, that ye heard from the beginninge, that we should love our brethren not as Cain, which was of the wicked & slewe his brother. And wherfore slewe he him? Because his own workes were evill, and his brothers good. Marvaile not my brethren though the worlde hate you. We know that we are translated from death unto lyfe, because we love the brethren. He that loveth not his brother, abydeth in death. Wholsoever hateth his brother, is a man sleear. And ye know that no man sleear hath eternal life abidinge in him.

Love is the fyrste precept and cause of all other.

He that loveth, is escaped death.

Hereby perceyve we love, that he gave his lyfe for us, & therfore ought we also to geve our lyves for the brethren. Wholsoever hath this worldes good, and seeth his brother have nede, and shutteth up his compassion from him, howe dwelleth the love of God in him? My babes, let us not love in worde neyther in tonge, but with the dede and in verytie. For therby we know that we are of the verytie, and can before him quyete oure hertes. But if our hertes condempne us, God is greater then our hertes, and knoweth all thinges. Beloved, if our hertes condempne us not, then have we trust to God ward, and whatsoever we axe, we shall receive of him, because we kepe his commaundementes, and do suche thinges, which are pleasinge in his sight.

He that loveth not, is in death, and a murtherer, & hath not eternall lyfe.

He that hath no compassion, loveth not God.

And this is his commaundement, that we believe on the name of his sonne Jesus Christ and love one another, as he gave commaundement. And he that kepeth his commaundementes, dwelleth in him and he in him, & therby we know that there abydeth in us of the spyryte, which he gave us.

By love we knowe that we are in the truth, & have quyete consciences to god ward.

The notes.

a. Faith in the fyrst commaundemente and love in the seconde. He that hath them is in God, and hath his spyryte.

The iij. Chapter.

2 The difference of spyrytes, and howe the spyryte of God may be knowen from the spyryte of errour. 3 Of the love of God and of our neyghboure.

BEloved, believe not every spirite, but prove the spirites whether they be of God, or not, for many false prophetes are gone out into the worlde. Hereby shall ye knowe the spyryte of God. Every spyryte that confesseth that Jesus Christe is come in the fleshe, is of God. And every spyryte that confesseth not that Jesu Christ is come in the fleshe, is not of God. And this is that spyryte of Antechryst, of whom ye have heard, how that he shulde come, and even nowe already is he in the worlde.

They that saye workes without fre love, are they that deny Christ to be come in the fleshe. Johan. viij. f

Lytel children, ye are of God, and have overcome them, for greater is he that is in you, then he that is in the worlde. They are of the worlde, & therfore speake they of the worlde, and the worlde heareth them. We are of God. He that knoweth God heareth us, he that is not of God, heareth us not. Here by knowe we the spyryte of verytie, & the spirite of errour. Beloved, let us love one another, for love cometh of god. And every one that loveth is borne of God, & knoweth God. He that loveth not, knoweth not God: for God is love.

God shewe his love towarde us.

In this appered the love of God towarde us, because that God sent his onely begotten sonne into the worlde, that we might live thorow him. Herin is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, & sente his sonne to make agrement for our synnes.

Love is commaunded. Johannes i. 3. i. Timoth. vi.

Beloved yf God so loved us we ought also to love one another. No man hath seen God at anye time. Yf we love one another, god dwelleth in us, and his love is perfect in us. Hereby knowe we that we dwell in him, and he in us, because he hath geven us of his spyryte. And we have seen and do testifye, that the father sent the sonne, whyche is the sauyour of the worlde. Wholsoever confesseth that Jesus is the sonne of God, in him dwelleth God and he in God. And we have knowen & believed the love that God hath to us.

God is love, and he that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God, and god in him. Herin is the love perfect in us, that we shulde have trust in the daye of iudgement: for as he is, even so are we in this worlde. There is no feare in love, but perfecte love casteth out all feare, for feare hath paynefulnes. He that feareth is not perfect in love.

We love him, for he loved us fyrste. Yf a man saye, I love God, and yet hate his brother, he is a lyar. For howe can he that loveth not his brother whom he hath sene, love god, whom he hath not sene? And this commaundemente have we of him that he which loveth God, should love his brother also. &

He & loveth not his brother loveth not God.

The notes.

A. Antechriſte ſignifyeth not anye particuler perſone whych (as the people dreame) ſhould come in the ende of the worlde. For yet ſe that euen in S. Johns tyme there were many Antechriſtes, that is to ſaye enemyes, and men that wrought againſte Chriſte. Yet not withſtandinge thys is infallyblye true. The.v. Chapter.

¶ We muſt loue God, in ye kepe hys commaundementes. Faith ouercommeth the worlde. Chriſtiſyng ſpyrite in ye ſonne of God. Of the ſynne vnto death.

WHoſoeuer beleeueth that Jeſus is Chriſt, is borne of God. And euerye one that loueth hym whiche begat, loueth hym alſo whyche was begotten of hym. Inthys we know that we loue the children of God, when we loue God and kepe his commaundementes. This is the loue of God, that we kepe his commaundementes, and his commaundementes are not greuous.

+ For all that is borne of God, ouercommeth the worlde. And this is the victorye, that ouercommeth the worlde, euen oure faith. Who is it yt ouercommeth the worlde, but he which beleeueth, that Jeſus is the ſonne of God?

¶ This Jeſus Chriſt is he that came by water and blonde, not by water onelye, but by water and blood. And it is the ſpirite that beareth witnes, becauſe the ſpirite is truth. (For there are thre which beare recorde in heauen, the father, the worde, and the holye Ghoſte. And theſe thre are one.) For there are thre, whiche beare recorde in earth, the ſpyrite and water, and blonde, and theſe thre are one. If we receyue the witnes of men, the witnes of God is greater. For thys is the witnes of God, whyche he teſtifyed of his ſonne. He that beleeueth on the ſonne of God, hath the witnes in him ſelfe.

He that beleeued not God, hath made hym a lyer, becauſe he beleeued not the recorde, that God gaue of hys ſonne. And thys is that recorde, how that God hath geuē vnto vs eternal life, and thys lyfe is in his ſonne. He that hath the ſonne, hath lyfe: and he that hath not the ſonne of God, hath not lyfe.

¶ These thinges haue I written vnto you, that beleeue on the name of the ſonne of God, that ye might know, how that ye haue eternal lyfe, and that ye may beleue on the name of the ſonne of God.

Johan. v. b

In Chriſte is God gaue of hys ſonne. the lyfe eternal.

And this is the truſte that we haue in him, that yf we aſke anye thinge, accordinge to hys will he heareth vs. And yf we knowe that he heareth vs whatſoeuer we aſke, we knowe, that we ſhall haue the peticyons that we deſyre of hym.

¶ If anye man ſe his brother ſynne a ſynne that is not vnto death, let hym aſke, and he ſhal geue him lyfe, for them that ſynne not vnto death. There is a ſynne vnto death, for which I ſaye not that a man ſhoulde praye. All vnryghteouſnes is ſynne, and there is ſynne not vnto death.

Synne vnto death.

We knowe that whoſoeuer is borne of God, ſynneth not, but he that is begotten of God kepeth him ſelfe, and that wycked toucheth him not. We knowe that we are of God, and that the worlde is altogether ſet on wyckednes. We know, that the ſonne of God is come, & hath geuen vs a minde to know him which is true, & we are in him, that is true thorowe his ſonne Jeſus Chriſt. This ſame is verye God, and eternal lyfe. The ſeconde Epiſtle of Saynct John.

¶ She writeth vnto a certayne Ladye, exhorteth that ſhe chalenge nothe on the truth, exhorteth them vnto loue, admonyſhed the to beware of ſuche deceyuers as be nye that, and Chriſte came in the fleſhe, geueth rule to examine in the doctryne of Chriſt, and to haue no thynge to do with them that bringe not that doctryne.

THe elder to the electe Ladye, and her children, whyche I loue in the truth: and not I onelye, but alſo all that knowe the truth, for the truthes ſake, whyche dwelleth in vs, and ſhalbe in vs for euer.

A

Myth you be grace, mercye, and peace from God the father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt the ſonne of the father, in truth and loue.

¶ I reioyſed greatly, that I founde of thy children walking in truth, as we haue receiued a commaundemente of the father. And nowe beſeche I the Ladye, not as though I wrote a newe commaundemente vnto the, but that ſame which we had from the beginning, that we ſhould loue one another. And this is the loue, that we ſhoulde walke after his commaundementes.

Johan. xiij. b. Loue is the fyrſt commaundemēt.

¶ Thys commaundemente is (that as ye haue hearde from the begynnynge) ye shoulde walke in it. For many deceyuers are entred into the worlde, whiche confesse not that Jesus Christe is come in the flesshe. Thys is a deceyuer and an Antichriste. Loke on youre selues, that we lose not that we haue wrought but that we maye haue a full rewarde. Whosoeuer transgresseth and bydeth not in the doctryne of Christe, hath not God. He that endureth in the doctryne of Christe, hath both the father and the sonne.

¶ If there come any vnto you, and bringe not this learninge, him receyue not to house, neither bydd hym God spede. For he that bidd deth him God spede, is partaker of his euyll deades. I had many thynges to wryte vnto you, neuertheles I wolde not wryte with paper & ynke: but I trust to come vnto you, & speake with you mouth to mouth, that oure ioye maye be full. The sonnes of thy electe sister grete the. Amen.

The third Epistle of Sayncte John.

¶ He is glad of Gayus, that he walked in the truth, exhorteth them to be louing to the poore Christen in their persecucyon, Warneth the busshop Diotrephes, and the good reporte of Demetrius.

1 THE elder vnto the beloued Gaius, whom I loue in the trueth. Beloued, I wyshe in all thynges, that thou prosperedst, and fayredest well euen as thy soule prospereth.

2 I reioyced greatly, when the brethren came and testifyed of the trueth that is in the, how thou walkest in the trueth. I haue no greater ioye, then to heare howe that my sonnes walke in verite.

3 Beloued, thou doest faythfullye whatsoeuer thou doest to the brethren, and to straungers, whiche beare wytnes of thy loue before all the congregacion. Whiche brethren when thou bringest forwards on their iourney (as it beseemeth God) thou shalt do wel, because that for his names sake they wente forth, and take nothinge of the Gentiles. We therfore ought to receyue suche, that we also mygh be be helpers to the trueth.

4 I wrote vnto the congregacion, but Diotrephes, which loueth to haue the preeminence amonge them, receyueth vs not. Wherfore yf I come, I wyl declare his deades, whiche he doth, wrying on vs with malicious wordes, neyther in these with contente. Not onlye he hym selfe receyueth not the brethren, but also he lettyth them that wolde, and thrusteth them out of the congregacion.

5 Beloued, folowe not that whiche is euyll, but that which is good. He that doth well, is of God, but he that doth euyll, seeth not God.

6 Demetrius hath good report of al men, and of the trueth, yea & we ourselues also beare recorde, and ye knowe that oure recorde is true. I haue many thynges to wryte, but I wyll not wyth ynke and penne wryte vnto the. For I trust I shal shortly se the, and we shall speake mouth to mouth. Peace be wyth the. The louers salute the. The Prologe vpon the Epistle of Sayncte Paule to the Hebrues.

THat this Epistle hath euer bene mouche troubrelgi, and that amonge greate learned men is the doubte hereof, yeares aforetyme that it was not Paules, partelye bycause the Epistle is disagreyth and vnlyke vnto the other Epistles, and partely because it standeth in the Greeke Chapter, they knowynge was vncertayned to bethynke, that so the fayre rayghte be by them that beside or them leaned of the Tasde. Howbe Paule reherseth Galat. that he receyued not the Gospell of man nor by man, but by reuelacyon of Christ and that by reuelacyon. Wherfore take they, seynge this man confesseth that he receyued his doctryne of the Apostles, it can not be Paules, but some disciple of the Apostles. Some whether it were Barnabe or no I dare not, but perauenture it is other mens interpretacion, neyther thynke I it to be an article of anye mans faith, but that a man maye doubte of the autour.

Howsoeuer manye that haue bene wyllyng not vnwyse haue denyed this Epistle to haue bene written by auye of the Apostles, but haue alle refused it altogether as no Canonicke as Godlye Epistle, because of certayne textes written therin. For Christ is saith in the texte, it is impossible that they whiche were ones lyghted, and haue tasted of the heauenlye gyfte and were become partakers of the holy ghoste, And haue tasted of the good worde of God and of the power of the worlde to come, yf they fall, that they be renued agayne to repentaunce in consyderacyon, seynge in the truth is layed, yf we synne wyllyngly after we haue receyued the knowledge of the trueth, there remayneth no more sacrifice for synnes, but a fearful lokynge for iudgement and burnynge fyre whiche shal deuoure the aduersaryes. And in the xij. is sayd that Esau founde no place to repentaunce & consyderacyon, no thoughe he sought it with teares. Which textes for that, seme contrary of a man to saue and many after he is once baptysed, he can be no more forgyuen, and that is contrary to all the Scripture, and therfore to be refused to be scripture and Gospel.

Vnto whyche I answere, yf the Apostle haue thys Epistle for thyng receyued hym, he shoulde not haue bene to blame, whether he had put Christe, yf frowarde that he which hath promised the holye ghoste shall neuther be forgyuen here nor in the tyme to come. And there where he saith in the Chapter ensuynge he that blasphemeth the holye ghoste, that neuer haue forgyuenes, but shall be in daunger of eternall damnacion. And therafter Esau, inhabite sayeth, there shall be no remedye to gyue that blasphemeth the spirite of God, Gretyner Johan in his j. Epistle, sayeth there is a synne vnto death, for whyche a man shulde not praye. And j. Johñ. iij. sayeth, yf a man se him fayle the brethren yf he ceaseth to exercise the kyndnesse of the Lorde Jesu Christe, and then he maye so appose, that ende to breake them the forgyuenesse, and that it hath neuer bene the true mynde of hym touchyng the truth. And Genes. j. Tymothe xij. rehersh Alexander the coppersmyth hath done the Lorde so reuarde hym acc̄ordynge to his workes. Wherby is a figure that we ther the Epistle shoulde not be good, as that Martynus had scrached out Iames, he more to be praysed for. Wherfore leaue we scripture as of vnsure interpretacion, but maye be expounded accordynge to the generall articles of oure faith and agreable to other open and euident textes, and conferred or compared to the sentences. Why should we not vnderstande these places after the reuerence as we do the other, namely when all the remnaunte of the Epistle is so Godly and ofte greete learnynge.

The fyrste place in the.vi. Chapter, willi no more then that they whiche knowe the truthe, and yet wyllyngelye refuse the lyghte, and chose rather to dwell in darkenes and refuse Christe and make a mocke of him, as the Phariseis, whiche when they were euer come with scripture and miracles, that Christe was the verye Messias, yet had suche spite in respecte that they forbade him, persecuted him, betrai him, and put all the blame that coulde be inuented to him: can not be meant (as Oecolampadius) vpon the Gentes, to be conuerted, that is to saye, suche malycyous behauiours, whiche is more ofter then the blaspheminge of the holye ghoste, beleeueth that the spirite shall neuer come more at them to conuerte them, whereas I beleue to be as true as eare other texte in al scripture.

And what is meant by that place in the tenth Chapter where he saieth, if we synne wyllyngelye after we haue receyued the knowledge of the truthe there remayneth no more sacrifice for synne, as declared immediately after, for he maketh a comparyson betweene Moyses and Christe, forsomuche as he whiche despised Moyses lawe died without mercye, howe much more punyshmente is he worthy of that treadeth the sonne of God vnder foote, and counteth the bloude of the couenaunte, by whiche bloude he is sanctified, as an vnholye thynge a blasphemeth the spirite of grace. By whiche wordes it is manifeste that he meaneth none other by the foure sayinges, then the synne of blaspheme of the spirite.

For them that synne of ignorauncc or infyrmytye there is remedye, but for them that knowyng the truthe, and yet wyllyngelye refuseth him (like to Iewes and confesseth him the lyke of Iewes, wyth mouthe and hande, and hathe learne the in Scripture, these haue not onelye natiue malice to the Scripture of the spirite of grace, and blaspheme

¶ He exhorteth vs to be obedient vnto the waye of love, which Christ hath geuen vs, and not to be offended at the infirmitie and low degree of Christ, because it was necessarye, that he ouer comen death, should take such an humble estate vpon hym, that he myght be lyke vnto his brethren.

Wherfor we ought to geue ye more

For yf the word which was spoken by Angels was stedfast, in so that euery transgression and disobedience receyued a iuste recompence to rewarde, howe shal we escape, yf we despise so great saluacyon, whyche at the fyrst began to be preached of the Lorde hym selfe, and afterward was confirmed to vswarde, by them that hearde it, God beareynge wytnesse therto, both with signes and wonders also, and with diuers * miracles, and gyftes of the holy ghoste, accordyng to his own will.

* Miracles are called signes, because they be a signe, token & euidente proofe of thinge that is preached in Goddes worde.

For he hath not vnto the Angelles put in subiection the worlde to come, wherof we speake. But one in a certaine place wytnesseth, sayeng. What is man, that thou arte mindfull of him? After thou haddeste for a season made him lower then the Angelles: thou crownedst him with honoure and glorye, and hast set him aboue the workes of thy handes. The iiii. Chapter.

¶ The Gospel or rule of the Christen, gyueth vs to vnderstande iiiii. thinges, the nature of the worde of God.

A LEt vs feare therfore leste anye of vs forsakinge the promes of entrynge into his reste, shoulde seme to come behynde. For vnto vs was it declared, as well as vnto them. But it profiteth not them that they heard the worde, because they which hearde it, coupled it not with faith. But we whiche haue beleued, do enter into his reste, as contrary wyse he sayde to ỹ other: I haue swoorne in my wrath, they shal not enter into my rest. And that spake he verely longe after that the workes were made, and the foundacion of the worlde layde. For he spake in a certaine place of the seuenth day, on this wyse: And God dyd reste the seuenth daye from all his workes. And in this place agayne: They shall not come into my reste.

For yf Josue had geuen them reste, then would he not afterwarde haue spoken of another day. There remayneth therfore yet a rest to the people of God. ¶ Christe to ouer high preeste and store of grace, and more excellente then the high preestes of the olde lawe.

A SEynge then that we haue a great hye preeste, which is entred into heuen (I meane Jesus the sonne of God) let vs holde our profession. For we haue not an hye preeste, which can not haue compassion on our infirmities, but was in all pointes tempted, lyke as we are, but yet without sinne. Let vs therfore go boldely vnto the seate of grace, that we may receiue mercye, and fynde grace to healpe in time of nede. For euerye hye preeste that is taken from amonge men, is ordeined for men, in thinges pertayninge to God, to offer gyftes & sacrifices for synne: which can haue compassion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the waye, because that he him selfe also is compassed with infirmitie: For the which infirmities sake, he is bounde to offer for synnes, as well for his owne part, as for the peoples. And no man taketh honoure vnto him selfe, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron.

B ¶ Euen so likewyse, Christe glorified not himselfe, to be made the hye preeste, but he ỹ sayde vnto him, thou art my sonne, this daye begat I the, gyuinge him. ¶ The goeth forth with the thinge that he begon to entreate of in the fyfte Chapter, and exhorteth them not to fayne, but to be diligente and persuaded, for to marke as God is sure in his promes.

A WHerfore let vs leue the doctrine pertayninge to the begynninge of a Christen man, & let vs go vnto perfection, & nowe no more lay ỹ foundacion of repentaunce from deade workes, and of fayethe towarde God, of baptyme, of doctrine, and of layinge on of handes, and of resurrection from death, and of eternall iudgemente. And so wil we do, yf God permytte. ed agayne vnto repentaunce: for as muche as they haue (as concernynge them selues) crucifyed the sonne of God a fresshe, and made a mocke of hym.

¶ For that earthe which drinketh in the rayne which commeth ofte vpon it, and bryngeth forth herbes mete for them that dresse it, receyueth blessynge of God. But that ground which beareth thornes and bryars, is reprouued, and is nye vnto cursynge: whose ende is to be burned. Neuertheles deare frinds, we trust to se better of you, and thynges which accompanye saluacion, though we thus speake. For God is not vnrighteous, y he should forget your worke and laboure that proceedeth of loue, which loue ye shewed in his name, whiche haue mynistred vnto the sayntes, & yet mynister. Yea, and we desyre that euery one of you shew the same diligence, to the fulfyllynge of hope euen vnto the ende: that ye faynt not, but folowe them, whiche thorowe faith & pacience inherit the promises.

¶ For when God made promes to Abraham, because he had no greater thynge to sweare by, he sware by hym selfe, saynge: Surely Gene.xxij.c I wyll blesse the, and multiplye the in deede. And so after that he had tarryed a longe tyme, he enioyed the promes. Men verely sweare by hym that is greater then them selues, & an othe to confyrme the thynge, is amonge them an ende of all stryfe. So God willynge more abundauntly to shewe vnto the heyres of promise, the stablenes of his counsayle, he added an othe, that by two immutable thynges (in which it was vnpossible that GOD coulde lye) we myghte haue perfecte consolacion, which haue fled, for to holde fast the hope that is set before vs, which hope we haue as an ancre of the soule both sure and stedfast. Which hope also entreth in, into those thynges that are within the vayle, whether the fore runner is for vs entred in, I meane Iesus, that is made an hye priest for euer, after the order of Melchysedech.

The notes.

Impossible. a. Not because God is not able to shewe suche mercye vnto them that obstynately fal from the truth, and become enemyes to the holy ghost: that they shoulde come to repentaunce: but because their fallynge is a token that they be not of the nombre of them that be called to the knowledge of the truth as Gods elect, but (as Judas was) to declare them selues to be the children of perdicyon. And yf they come to repentaunce as Judas dyd, yet shall that repentaunce be anneyed to desperacion, and be altogether vaper of hope, as Judas was.

The.vij. Chapter.

¶ He commendeth the priesthode of Christ vnto Melchysedech, but to be far more excellent.

THis Melchysedech, kynge of Salem (whiche kynge is a figure of the moost hye God) met Abraham, as he returned agayne from the slaughter of the kynges, & blessed him: to whom also Abraham gaue tythes of all thynges (first is by interpretacion kynge of ryghtwysnes: after that he is kynge of Salē that is to saye, kynge of peace, wythoute father, wythout mother, wythout kynne, & hath neyther begynnynge of his tyme, neyther yet ende of his life: but is ytherned vnto ye sonne of God, and contynueth a preest for euer. A Gene.xiiij.d

Consydre what a man this was, vnto whō the patriarke Abraham gaue tythes of ye spoyles. And verely those children of Leui, which receyue the office of the preestes, haue a commaundemente to take accordynge to ye lawe, tythes of the people, that is to say of their brethren, yea though he they sprange oute of the loynes of Abraham. But he whose kynred is not counted amonge them, receyued tythes of Abraham, and blessed hym that had the promises. And no man denyeth but that whiche is lesse, receyueth blessynge of that which is greater. And here men that dye, receyue tythes. But there he receyueth tythes of whome it is wytnessed, that he lyueth. And to say ye truth. Leui hym selfe also whiche receyueth tythes, payed tythes in Abraham. For he was yet in the loynes of his father Abraham when Melchysedech mete hym. B Deut.xiiij.a Iosue.xxij.g

¶ If verely perfeccion came by the preesthode of the Leuites (for vnder that preesthode the people receyueth the lawe) what nede furthermore that another preest shoulde aryse after the order of Melchisedech, and not after the order of Aaron? Mowe no doubte, yf the preesthode be translated, then of necessite must the lawe be translated also. C

¶ For of whome these thynges are spoken pertayneth vnto another tribe, of whiche neuer man serued at the aulter. For it is euident, that oure Lorde sprong of the tribe of Iuda, of whiche tribe spake Moyses nothyng ouer nyghe preesthode.

And it is yet a more euydent thynge, yf after the similitude of Melchisedech, there arise an other preest: which is not made after the lawe of the carnall commaundement: but after the power of the endeles life. (For he testifyeth thou arte a preest for euer, after the order of Melchysedech). Then the commaundement that went before, is dysanulled, because of her weakenes and vnprofytablenes. For the lawe made nothynge perfecte: but was an introduccion of a better hope, by which hope we drawe nye vnto God. psal.cix.b

¶ And for thys cause it is a better hope, that it was not prouyded without an othe (those preestes were made wythout an othe, but this preest with an othe, by hym that sayed vnto hym. The Lorde sware, and wyll not repente: Thou arte a preest for euer after the D order of Melchisedech) And for ꝑ cause was Jesus a stablisher of a better testament.

¶ And amonge them many were made priestes, because they were not suffered to endure by the reason of death. But thys man, because he endureth ever hath an everlastyng priesthode. Wherfore he is able also ever to save the that come unto God by hym, seyng he ever lyveth, to make intercession for vs.

¶ Suche an hye Priest it became vs to have which is holy, harmelesse, undefyled, separate from synners, and made hyer then heauen. Which needeth not daylye (as ponder hye priestes) to offer vp sacrifice, fyrste for hys own synnes, and then for the peoples synnes. For that dyd he at once for all, when he offered vp hym selfe. For the lawe maketh men priestes, which have infirmyte: but ꝑ worde of the othe that came sence the lawe, maketh the sonne perfecte, whiche is perfecte for evermore.

Christe ones sacrifyced, purged all synnes.

The.viii.Chapter.

¶ The office of Christe is more worthye then the priestes office of the lawe, which was imperfecte, & that lawe abrogate.

Of the thynges which we have spoken this is the ꝑfyte: we have suche an hye priest that is sytten on the ryght hande of the seate of maiestye in heauen, and is a mynister of holye thynges, and of the verye tabernacle whiche God ꝑpared, & not man.

¶ For every hye priest is ordeyned to offer gyftes and sacrifices: wherfore it is of necessyte that this man have some what also to offer, for he were not a priest, yf he were on ꝑ earth, where are priestes that according to the lawe offer gyftes, whiche priestes serve unto the ensample and shadowe of heavenly thynges: even as the answere of God was geven unto Moyses when he was aboute to fynyshe the tabernacle. Take hede (sayde he) that thou make all thynges accordynge to the patrone that was to the in the mounte.

Exod.xxv.d. Act.vii.f

¶ Nowe hath he obtayned a more excellente office, in as muche as he is the mediatour of a better testamente, whiche was made for better promyses. For yf that fyrste testament had ben faultelesse then shoulde no place have ben sought for the seconde. For in rebukyng them he sayth: Beholde the dayes will come (sayeth the Lorde) and I will fynyshe vpon the house of Israel, and vpon the house of Juda a newe testamente: not lyke the testament that I made with their fathers at that tyme when I toke them by the handes, to leade the out of the lande of Egypte, for they continued not in my testamente, and I regarded them not sayth the Lorde.

For this is the testament that I will make with the house of Israel: After those dayes sayth the Lorde: I wyl put my lawes in their myndes, and in their hertes I wyl write the and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. And they shall not teache everye man his neyghboure, and everye man his brother, sayinge: knowe the Lorde: For they shall knowe me, from the leste to the moste of them: For I will be mercyfull over their unrighteousnes, and on their synnes & on their iniquities. In that he sayth a newe testament he hath abrogate the olde. Now that which is disanulled and waxed olde, is redye to vanyshe awaye.

The.ix.Chapter.

¶ The offices and ministeryes of the olde Testament: and how far the newe excelleth it.

That fyrste tabernacle verelye had ordinaunces, and servynges of God, and worldly holynes. For there was a fore tabernacle made, wherein was the candelstycke and the table, & the shewe bread which is called holye. But wythin the seconde vayle was there a tabernacle, whiche is called holyest of all which had the golden censer, and the arche of the testament overlayde roundabout with gold, wherein was the golden pot with manna, and Aarons rodde that spronge, and the tables of the testament. Over the arche were the cherubes of glorye shadowynge the seate of grace. Of whiche thynges we will not nowe speake particularlye.

¶ When these thynges were thus ordeyned the priestes wente alwayes into the tabernacle and accomplished the service of God. But into the seconde wente the hye priest alone, once everye yeare, and not without bloude, whiche he offered for hym selfe, and for the ignorance of the people. Wherewith the holy goost this signifyenge, that the waye of holy thynges was not yet opened, whyle as yet the fyrst tabernacle was standynge. F It is then nede that the symylytudes of heuenly thynges be purysed with such thynges but the heauenly thynges them selues are purysed with better sacrysyces then are those. For Christe is not entred into the holye places that are made with handes, whiche are but symylytudes of true thynges: but is entred into very heauen, for to appere nowe in the syght of God for vs: not to offre hym selfe, often as the hye preest entreth into the holye place euery yeare with straunge bloude for then must he haue often suffred sence the worlde began. ¶ What fayth is, and a commendacion of the same. The faythfull fathers in olde tyme.

A Fayth is a sure a. confydence of thynges which are hoped for, & a certaynte of thynges which are not seene. By it the elders were well reported of. Through fayth we vnderstande that the worlde was ordeyned by the worde of God: and that thinges whyche are seene, were made of thynges whyche are not seene. By fayth Abel offred vnto God a more plenteous sacrifice then Cayn: by whyche he obtayned wytnes that he was righteous, God testifyenge of his giftes: by which also he beynge dead, yet speaketh.

Wherefore their lot is damnacyon. For he that thinketh can not remoue the promyses of God. Therefore that shall remoue the promyses of God make all accompt before that the onely workes of Christ were done on the crosse: hathe purchased the mearthe of the father, and hath fulfyld stedfastly

For yf they escaped not whiche refused hym, that spake on earth: muche more shall we not escape, yf we turne awaye from hym that speaketh from heauen: whose voyce then thoughe the earth, and now declareth sayinge: yet once more will I shake not the earth only, but also heauen.
Aggæ.ii.b F A doubte that same that he sayeth yet ones more, signifyeth the remouyng awaye of those thynges, whiche are shaken as of thynges whiche haue ended their course: that the thynges whiche are not shaken maye remayne.
Deute.iiij.b. Wherfore yf we receyue a kingdom which is not moued, we haue grace, wherby we may serue God, and please hym with reuerence & godly feare. For our God is a consumynge fyre.

Esau. 12. Esau solde hys birthright for one breakfast, and could not haue it agayne afterward when he repented: so they that sell the inheritaunce of heauen for the fleshly luste and pleasures of the worlde can not by repentaunce recouer that inheritaunce. For it is to be presupposed, that he that selleth a thynge, hathe fyrste some state in the thyng that he selleth, & that he doeth wyllyngly fre leaue all hys interest that he hath or can haue therin: to enioye suche thynges as he selleth it for. Wherfore therfore doeth wyllyngly leaue the interest that by the example of God he hath in the heauenly kyngdome, and betaketh hym selfe to the lustes of this worlde to dwell therein: is not lyke to enioye that kyngdome agayne by repentaunce, for he hathe spurned agaynste the holye ghoste, whiche shall not be forgeuen in this worlde nor in the worlde to come.

Ye shuppers ought to haue loue to hospytalyte to thinke vpon suche as be in aduersitye, to mayntayne wedlocke, to absteyne from couetousnes, to make mynde of the that gouerne Gods people, to beware of straunge lerninge, to be content to suffer rebuke with Christe, to be thankefull vnto God & obedient to our gouernours.

The Prologe

vpon the Epistle of Sayncte James.

Though this Epistle were refused in the olde tyme, & not moch of manne to be the Epistle of a true Apostle, and thoughe all it lacke not the foundacyon of the Scripture of Christ, but speaketh of a good faythe in God, neuertheles preacheth hys deade and reuiuyng ageyne, rehersyng the mercy that is layed vp in Christ for vs in hym, as euerlastyng couenaunte made vs in his bloud: yet vnto the olde and auncyent Apostle, as Christe saieth. Joan. xv. ye shall testifye of me: yet because it setteth vp no maner doctryne, but ageyne to kepe the lawe of God, and maketh loue wythe vs worthout partakyng the fulfyllyng of the lawe, as Christe and all the Apostles do, and hath therein many good and godlye sentences in ordre: hath vtte no thynge that is agreeable vnto the rule of the Scripture, yf it be lyked and vnderstande amonge chrystenē it ought of ryght to be take for holye Scripture. For as he that placeth his wyndes vnder the hedde of the beddes, yet yf the circumstaūces be well pondered, it shall appeare that the authours entended more farre other maner thinge then they vnderstode.

For where he saieth in the ii. Chapter, Seyng wythout dedes ye beleue vs a lye, he misseth a verye other thynge, then all the Scripture beareth wytnesse of, that Faythe which hath no good dedes folowyng, is a false faythe, and none of that faythe iustifyeth or receyueth forgeuenesse of synnes. For God promysed vnto hys goodnesse of the Scripture which turne to God, to hope hys lawes. Wherfore that they purpose to condemne Christ in Christes name no parte in that promyse: but declare them blynde, yf they beleue that God hath forgeuen them their offēces for Christes sake. And where he saieth that a man is iustifyed by dedes, & not of faythe onelye, he wyll no more, that that faythe whych was without workes, that working iustifyeth saue faythe. For dedes make vs iustifyed. And as faythe onely iustifyeth before God, so no dedes onely iustifye before the worlde, wherof is enough spoken, partly in the Prologe on Rom. to the Romayns, & also in other places. For as Paul affirmeth, Rom. iv. that Abraham was not iustifyed by workes done to God, but by faythe onelye in Gods promyse receyued, so doth James that dedes onely iustifyed him before the worlde, and faith wrought wyth his dedes that is to saye, faythe wherewith he knew vnfayned loue vnto God, shewed it vnto his neyghbour wyth his dedes: and so was faythe made perfecte. For dedes are the fruytes wherby we knowe that the tree is good. Now is faythe the ryght worke of God in vs, wherby we are iustified, as Paul saieth. Rom. iii. & Peter. i. Pet. i. Wherfore the Scripture of James is not contrary to Paul, but agreeth wyth him, and wyll haue the same thynge that he. For Paul wyll haue a faythe that is not dead, but lyuely, that is to saye, that is not wythout dedes, as James doth. Now is it not lyuely, but dead, yf it be not exercised in dedes. Wherfore the Scripture of James ascribeth that vnto faythe that longeth vnto loue, and that is the office of faythe, to iustifye. Now longeth loue vnto faythe, as vnto the roote of the tree, and faythe is the roote of loue

Erre not my deare brethre. ✣ Every good gyfte, and every perfecte gyfte, is frō above and commeth downe from the father of lyghtes with whome is no varyablenes, neyther is he chaunged into darkenes. Of his owne will begat he vs with the worde of lyfe, that we shoulde be the fyrstlynges of his creatures.

Wherfore deare brethren, let every man be swifte to heare, slowe to speake, and slow to wrath. For the wrath of man worketh not that whiche is righteous before God.

Wherfore laye a parte all filthynes, all superfluyte of malycyousnes, and receyue with mekenes the worde that is graffed in you, whiche is able to save your soules. ✣

✣ And be ye that be doers of the worde & not heaerers only, deceyuyng your owne selues with sophystrye. For yf any heare the worde, and do it not, he is lyke vnto a man that beholdeth his bodely face in a glasse. For assone as he hath loked on hym selfe, he goeth his waye, and forgetteth immediatly what hys fashyon was. But who so loketh in ỹ perfecte lawe of lybertye, and continueth therin (yf he be not a forgetfull heaerer, but a doer of ỹ worke) the same shall be happye in his dede.

Mat.vii.d Rom.ii.b.

Yf any man amonge you seme deuoute, & refrayne not his tunge, but deceyue his owne hert: this mannes deuocyon is in vayne. Pure deuocyon and undefyled before God the father is this: to visite the fatherlesse and widdowes in their aduersitye, and to kepe hym selfe unspotted of the worlde. ✣

Pure deuocyon.

The.ii. Chapter.

✣ Be not forgetters to haue oure respecte of persones, but to regarde the goye as well as the ryche, so be he lynge and mercyfull, and not to be ill of faythe where no dedes are. For it is but a dead faythe where good workes followe not. ✣

Brethren haue not the faythe of oure Lorde Jesus Christe the Lorde of glorye in respecte of persons. If there come into your cōpanye a man with a golden ring and in goodly apparell, and there come in also a poore man in vyle rayment, and ye haue a respecte to him that weareth the gaye clothynge, and saye unto hym. Sitte thou here in a good place: and saye unto the poore, stande thou there, or sitte here under my foteston: are ye not parcyall in your selues, and haue iudged after euyll thoughtes?

Harken my deare beloued brethren. Hath not God chosen the poore of this world, which are ryche in faythe, and heyres of the kyngedome whiche he promysed to them that loue hym? But ye haue despysed the poore. Are not the ryche they whiche oppresse you: and they which drawe you before iudges? Do not they speake euyll of the good name after whiche ye be named?

B

Yf ye fulfyll the royall lawe accordynge to the scripture whiche sayeth. Thou shalte loue thyne neyghboure as thy selfe, ye do wel. But yf ye regarde one persone more then another, ye commytte synne, and are rebuked of the lawe as transgressours. Whosoeuer shall kepe the whole lawe, and yet fayle in one poynt he is guylty in all. For he that sayde: Thou shalte not committe adultery, sayed also, thou shalte not kyll. Though he thou do none adultery: yet yf thou kyll, thou arte a transgresser of the lawe. So speake ye, and so do, as they ỹ shalbe iudged by the lawe of lybertye. For there shalbe iudgemente mercyles to hym, ỹ sheweth no mercy, & mercy reioyseth against iudgemente. ✣

Leuit.xix.a

What auayleth it my brethren, though a man saye he hath faythe, when he hath no dedes? Can faythe saue hym? If a brother or a sister be naked or destytute of dayly foode, and one of you saye unto them: Departe in peace, God sende you warmnes and foode: not wyth standynge ye geue them not those thynges which are needfull to the bodye: what helpeth it the? Even so faythe, yf it haue no dedes is dead in it selfe.

Wylt thou understande (O thou vayne man) that faith without dedes is dead? Was not Abraham oure father. b. iustifyed through workes when he offered Isaac his sonne upon the aultare? Thou seyste howe that faythe wrought wyth his dedes, & through the dedes was faythe made perfecte: and the scripture was fulfylled whiche sayeth: Abraham beleued God, and it was reputed unto hym for ryghtwousnes: and he was called the frende of God.c. ✣ Se se then how ỳ of dedes a man is iustifyed, and not of fayth onely. Lykewyse also was not Raab the harlot iustifyed thorowe workes, when she receyued the messengers, and brute them out another way? ffor as the bodye, without the spyryte is dead euen so fayth wythout dedes is dead. ✣

The notes.

Can fayth saue hym.

a. Iames speaketh not here of the true & spurly fayth whiche by loue is myghtie in operacion. But of the vayne ymagynacion & oppynion, that the vnthankefull people haue of faythe. And because there folowe no good workes of it, he calleth it deade faythe, where contrarywyse the fayth wherebye we be accepted and made iuste in the sight of GOD, bryngeth fouthe good workes plentyously.

Iustifyed

b. To be iustifyed in thys place, and thorow out thys whole Chapter, is to be declared iust in the sight of the worlde, as in Luke.x.c. and xvi.d. not to be made iuste in the sight of god. So that when he sayeth. Was not Abraham our father made iuste thorowe workes. &c. he meaneth thus. Was not oure father Abr. hã, by hys workes declared iuste. That is, dyd not hys workes declare and shew that he was iuste, and were sure tokens of hys ryghtwousnes. It signifyeth not that Abraham was by hys workes made iuste before God, reputed ryghtwous, and obtayned remyssyon of synnes. ffor by fayth he came therby, as witnesseth Paule. Roma. iiii. a.

Se se then &c.

c. That is, by the workes of iustice, the man ỳ doeth them is declared to be iuste, euen as the good tree is knowen by the good frute that it bryngeth forth. Other interpretacyon may we make none on this place. ffor there coulde nothynge be more folysshe then thys sayenge of Iames, yf a man would thus enterprete it. That no man obtayneth remyssyon of sinnes but because hys workes are worthye of great benefyte. What soeuer he be that sticketh by thys interpretacyon vnderstandeth not what remyssyon of sinnes is, or how the conscience ought to be cõforted when it feeleth ỳ it bringeth no good workes, whiche are sufficient to please hym. Yea thys interpretacyon is clene cõtrary to other open sayenges of the scrypture whiche teache that remyssyon of synnes commeth freely. As the Psalmist sayeth. I wil acknowledge myne offence vnto the Lorde, and thou forgauest me the wickednes of my synne. And Roma. iii. a. To hym that worketh not, but beleueth on hym that iustifyeth the vngodlye. &c. What can be more playnlye spoken then that synnes are forgeuen to a wycked and vngodlye man that worketh not, that is, not for anye of hys workes, but freely. To conclude yt the Gospell forgeue not synnes, but for oure good workes sake, and for oure vnthynges & vnworthy nothynge from the law, nor saueth any more then the Lawe. I truste thys wyll suffyce the good and wyse. ffor as touchynge them that bynge not bynge home thys cause, but a wyll to braule and chyde, wyll neuer suffer them selues to be satisfyed. And yet yf we woulde contende by the number of authorities thys one place of Iames, is ouerthrowe by mappe testymonyes of Paule, yf men wil vnderstande by iustifyenge one thynge in them both. When Paule therfore sayeth. ffayth iustifyeth, vnderstande therebye that fayth causeth that we be accompted iuste, reputed ryghtwuse, and that oure synnes be not imputed vnto vs, but forgeuen vs for Christes sake. When Iames sayeth, workes iustifye, he meaneth thus. Workes declare vs iuste, and thorowe experience that we be ryghtwuse. Thus shalt thou make them accorde. Place sayeth me (O reader) as ther then truse or wyll, or elle woulde I yet haue spoken more of thys thynge.

The.iii. Chapter.

¶ What good and euyll commeth thorowe the tonge. The power of lucke on be leerned. The dyfference betwene the wysdome of the Gospell, and the wysdome of the worlde.

MY brethren be not ready many a one maysters, remembryng howe that we shal receyue the more dampnacyon: for in many thynges we synne all. yf a man synne not in worde, the same is a perfect man and able to tame al the bodye. Beholde we put bittes into the horses mouthes that they shoulde obeye vs, and we turne about all the bodye. Behold also the shyppes, which though they be so greate and are driuen of fyerce wyndes, yet are they turned about wyth a verye smale helme, whether soeuer the pleasure of the gouernour wyll turne. So the tonge is a lyttell member, and boasteth greate thynges.

A ✣ He that teacheth authority to rebuke other of that wherein he synneth hym selfe, he same shall haue ỳ greater damnacyon. He must be wyth out synne ỳ wyl cal̃e the fyrst stone.

Beholde howe greate a thynge a lyttell fyre kyndleth, and the tonge is fyre, and a worlde of wickednes. So is the tonge set amõg our members, that it defyleth the whole bodye and setteth a fyre all that we haue of nature, & is it selfe set a fyre euen of hell.

B All the natures of beastes, and of byrdes, and of serpentes, and thynges of the sea, are tamed and tamed of the nature of man. But the tonge can no man tame. It is an vnrulye euyll ful of deadly poyson. Therwith blesse we God the father, and therwyth curse we men which are made after the similitude of God. Out of one mouth proceedeth blessyng and fulthynge. Mye brethren these thynges ought not so to be. Doth a fountayne sende forth at one place swete water & bitter also? Can the hygge tree, my brethren, beare olyue berres: other a vyne beare hygges? So can no fountayne geue both salte water & frethe also. If any man be wyse and endued with learninge amonge you, let hym shewe the workes of hys good conuersacyon in meknes that is coupled with a wysdome.

But, yf ye haue bitter enuyinge and strife in youre hertes, reioyce not: neyther be lyars agaynste the truth. Thys wysedome descendeth not from above: but is earthye, & naturall, and deuelyshe: for where enuynge and strife is there is vnstablenes and all maner of euyll workes. But the wysedome that is from above, is fyrste pure, then peasable, gentle, and easye to be entreated, full of mercye & good frutes, wythoute iudgynge, and wythout symulacyon: yea, & the frute of ryghteous nes is sowē in peace, of them that maintayne peace.

A Wysdem: All meknes and obedience must be accor-dyng to the wysedome & worde of god

Naturall. That is all yt a man doeth wythoute the spirite of god. Worldly wyse dome how it is knowen.

The.iii. Chapter.

¶ Warre and fyghtyng commeth of beluptuousnes. The hye wisedome of the worlde, is enmitie before God. An exhortacyon to flye slaunder and the daunte of thys lyfe.

A Strife whēce it cometh. Who we obtayne not. He that is lyued of ye worlde is hated of God.

FRom whence commeth warre & fyghtynge amonge you? come they not hear hens? euē of youre beluptuousnes, that rayne in youre membres. Ye lust & haue not. Ye enuye and haue dignacyon, and cānot obtayne. Ye fyght and warre and haue not, because ye are not. Ye are and receyue not, because ye are a wycked ientum to consume it vpon youre beluptuousnes. Ye aduouterers, & women that breake matrimonye: knowe ye not, how that the frendershyppe of the worlde is enmitie to God warde? Who so euer wyl be a frende of the worlde, is made the enemy of God. Eyther do ye thynke that the scrypture sayeth in vayne. The spyryte that dwelleth in you lusteth enuy contrarye to enuye: but ge ueth more grace.

B Chuse ye (which is in all that he hys. Rom viii.) resisteth hate enuye and all synne. Whose mercy ought we to lowe graces exalteth who & lifteth vp: neyther is there fore he sayth. Submytte youre selues God. &c. C If ye Submytte youre selues to God, and resiste the deuyll, and he wyll flye from you. Drawe nye to God, and he wyll drawe nye to you. Clense youre handes ye synners, and purge youre hertes ye wauerynge mynded. Suffer affliccyon: sorowe ye and wepe. Let youre laughter be turned to mournynge and youre ioye to heuynes. Cast downe your selues before the Lorde, and he shal lyfte you vp. Back byte not one another, brethren. He that backbyteth hys brother, and iudgeth hys brother, backbyteth the lawe, and iudgeth the lawe. But and yf thou iudge the law, thou art not an obseruer of the law, but a iudge. There is one lawe geuer, which is able to saue & to destroy. What artt thou that iudgest another man?

The notes.

a. Alpha

Alpha. a. Alpha and Omega, are letters of ꝑ Grecke crosselettre. Alpha is the fyrste letter & omega the last. Wherfore in theyr wrytynges, they call the fyrste and the laste by the names of those letters.

Is for Signifyeth. b. No man can denie but that in this place the verbe (Is, or are) is taken for signifye. For ꝑ sentence geueth that the wordes sounde thus muche. The seuen starres signifye the seuen awngelgers of the seuen congregations. And the .bij. candelsticken signifye the seuen churches or congregations. In lyke maner is it to be taken in all other places of the scripture where any thinge is taught by figures or sacramentes. As in the .xli. Chapter of Gene. The seuen fat kyne are .vii. yeares of plentye. And in the .xii. of Exodi. Ye shall eate it in haste, for it is the Lordes passeouer. Many lyke places are there in the scripture. Wherwaple not therfore (Gentyl brethren) though our sauiour Christe in the wordes of his laste supper (wherin he instructed his disciples of the distributynge of his bodye and bloude amonge them) dyd vse breade and wyne as sacramentes or sygnes to declare the same, and dyd in dede call them his body and bloud, saynge: this is my body, meaninge: this sygnifyeth or declareth vnto you my body & bloud: euen as Moyses saied of the Lamb. It is the passeouer of the Lorde.

Of the boke and seales, & the Lambe that opened the.

This boke is the ordinaunce and appoyntement of God. It is written within and without, that is, it contayneth thinges that be knowen to al men, and thinges hidden from all men. The .vii. seales are the sure purpose of God to open these hyd thinges to some chosen men in euery of the .vii. ages of the world. The Lambe that opened it, was Christe. His .vii. hornes betoken his vniuersall power and kyngdom. His .vii. eyen, the seuen principall gyftes of the spirite.

The .vi. Chapter.

☞ The Lambe openeth .vi. seales, and many thynges foloweth vpõ openynge euery.

AND I sawe when the Lambe opened one of the seales, and I herde one of the .iiii. beastes saye, as it were the noyse of thonder, come and se. And I sawe, and beholde there was a whyte horse, and he that sate on him had a bow, & a croune was geuen vnto him, and he went forth conquerynge and for to ouercome. And when he opened the seconde seale, I herde the seconde beaste saye, come and se. And there wente out another horse that was red, and power was geuen to him that sate theron, to take peace from the earth, and that they should kyll one another. And there was geuen vnto hym a greate swerde.

A The Lambe openeth the seales.

The thyrd fygure.

☞ Pale hypocrytes, enemies to Goddes Gospel, bringe death in their doctrine, and hepe vs to hell.

And when he opened the thyrde seale, I herde the thyrde beast saye: come and se. And I beheld, and lo a blacke horse: and he that sate on him, had a paire of balances in hys hande. And I heard a voyce in the myddes of the .iiii. beastes saye: a measure of wheat for a penye, and .iii. measures of barly for a penye, and oyle and wyne se thou hurte not.

☞ And when he opened the fourth seale, I herde the voyce of the fourth beaste saye: come and se. And I loked, and beholde a pale horse, and hys name that sate on him was death, and hell folowed after him, and power was geuen vnto him ouer the fourth parte of the earth, to kyll with swerd and with hunger, and with death, that cometh of vermen of the earth.

The fourth fygure.

☞ The sainctes that we prayed to, lo where they lye, And they that were ouer spoken me, herke how they crye.

☞ And when he opened the fyft seale, I sawe vnder the aulter, the soules of them that were kylled for the worde of God, & for the testymonye, which they had: and they cryed with a loude voyce sayenge: Howe longe tariest thou Lord holy and true, to iudge and to auenge oure bloud on them that dwell on the earth? And longe whyte garmentes were geuen vnto euery of them. And it was sayde vnto the that they should reste for a litle season vntyll the number of their felowes and brethren, & of them that should be kylled as they were, were fulfylled.

And I beheld when he opened the syxte seale, and lo there was a greate earth quake, and the sunne was as blacke as sacke cloth, made of heare. And the mone were euen as bloude, and the starres of heauen fell vnto the earth, euen as a figge tree casteth from her her figges, when she is shaken of a mighty wynde. And heauen vanished awaye, as a scrole, whē it is rolled together. And al mountaines and Iles, were moued out of their places. And the kynges of the earth, & the greate men and the ryche men, and the chiefe captaines, and the mighty men, and euery bonde man, and euery free man, hyd them selues in dennes, and in rockes: and sayde vnto the mountaines and rockes: fal on vs, and hyde vs from the presence of hym that sitteth on the seate, and from the wrath of the Lambe, for the great day of his wrath is come: And who can endure it?

The ſecond was immediatly after the Apoſtles tyme. The redd horſſe were the fleſhely preachers. He that ſate on this horſſe, was the cruel compayne of the wycked popes that then reigned. The thyrde was after the time of ỹ martyrs. The blacke horſſe was the multitude of ambicious prelates and falſe teachers, whiche reigned in thoſe dayes in the blackeneſſe of errours, lyes, pride and hucke-mes. And he that ſate on this horſſe, the wicked and blinde rulers of that tyme. The wheat is the new teſtament, the barle, the old. The dulcete wine and ſwete oyle, the word of God. The pale horſſe was the Hypocrites of thoſe dayes, and death that ſate on him, theyr damnable and deadly doctrine, ſette fourth and defended by the ſeculare powers. The ſyxte ſeale was opened, when in the reigne of theſe Hypocrites, God ſhewed vnto his choſen nombre the eſtate of their brethren departed in the fayth of Chriſt and for the teſtimonie of the ſame, and alſo theyr owne eſtate, to be ſuche that the torment of malice toucheth them not, but that they reſt vnder the aultare (that is Chriſt) and do daylye crye vnto God to reuenge the innocente bloude, whiche he hath promiſed to reuenge, in the daye of Jre. The longe white garmentes that are geuen them, is their innocencye, whiche they haue not of them ſelf: but receyue it from the aultare Chriſte. The openinge of the firſt ſeale, was in our tyme, when ỹ Lorde ſtyred vp his ſpirite in his ſeruauntes to declare, how theſe pale Hypocrites had by the fylthines of riches, obſcured the purenes and ſhynynge power of Chriſte the ſonne of his churche, & how the bruſtfull mone hys church was become fleſhly, and the ſterres (his miniſters) fallen to earthlye doctrine, and heuen (the herpe true doctrine) vaniſhed awaye from them. And then he declared howe the kynges and riche men of the earth who were ful of al abomination, fought to theſe mountaines, high in the eſtimation of the worlde, to fall vpon them and to couer them with their trenchers of maſſes, theyr pereſy obſerues and their continual maſſinges, with other theyr will workes and traditions of men.

The.viii. Chapter.

¶ The viii. seale is opened. There is silence in heauen. The seuen angels blowe their trompettes, and greate plagues folowe vpon the earth.

A AND when he had opened the seuenth seale, there was silence in heauen about the space of halfe an houre. And I sawe angeles standing before God, and to them were geuen vii. trompettes. And another angel came and stode before the aultare hauynge a golden censer, and muche of odoures was geuen vnto hym, that he shoulde offer of the prayers of al sainctes vpon the golden aultare, which was before the seate. And the smoke of the odoures, whiche came of the prayers of al sainctes ascended vp before God out of the angeles hand. And the angell toke the censer, and filled it with fyre of the aultare, and caste it into the earth, and voyces were made, and thonderynges and lightenynges, and earth quakes.

B ☞ And the.vii. angeles, whiche had the. vii. trompettes prepared them selues to blowe. The fyrste angel blewe, and there was made hayle and fyre, whiche were myngled with bloude, and they were cast into the earth, and the thyrde parte of the trees was burnte, and al grene grasse was burnte. And the seconde angel blewe: and as it were a greate mountaine burning with fyre was caste into the sea, and the thyrde parte of the sea turned to bloud, and the thirde parte of the creatures, whiche had lyfe, dyed, and the thyrde parte of shyppes were destroyed.

☞ The seconde angel blewe.

And they that before God be pleasant appetite.

C ☞ And the thyrde angel blewe, and there fell a great starre from heauen burninge, as it were a lampe, and it fell into the thyrde parte of the riuers, and into fountaines of waters, & the name of the starre is called wormwod. And the thyrde parte was turned to wormwode. And manye men dyed of the waters, because they were made bitter. And ỹ fourth angel blew, and the thyrde parte of the sunne was smytten and the thyrd part of the mone, and the thirde parte of the starres, so that the D thirde part of them was darckened. And the daye was smitten, that the thirde parte of it shoulde not shyne, and lykewise the nyghte. And I beheld and hearde an angell flyenge thorowe the middes of heauen, sayinge with a loude voyce: Wo, wo, to the inhabiters of the earth, because of the voyces of the trompe of the.iii. angels, whyche were yet to blowe.

The notes.

☞ This seale is not yet opened, but shalbe when the tyme shal come, that God hath appointed for the silence, that shall folowe the same. Which silence is the greate quietnes of Goddes kyngedome, when all Antechristes soudiours shalbe ouerthrowne and slayne. For then shal go forth.vii. Angelles, that is to say the true preachers of Goddes worde, who shal declare vnto the world the estate of the worlde at the openinge of the. vii. seales. And by these.vii. angelles is opened the same thinge, that was opened by the openynge of the.vii. seales (but after an other sort) the one by the openinge of the seales, and the other by blowynge the trompettes, to make the thynge more certayne. And

A ND the fyfte Angel blewe, and I sawe a starre fall from heaven vnto the earth. And to him was geuen the keye of the bottomlesse pyt. And he opened the bottomlesse pyt, and there arose the smoke of a great fornace. And the sunne, and the ayre were darkened by the reason of the smoke of the pyt. And there came out of the smoke locustes vpon the earth, and vnto them was geuen power as the Scorpions of the earth haue power. And it was commaunded them, that they should not hurt the grasse of the earth, neyther any grene thinge, neither any tree, but onely thole men which haue not the seale in their foreheades, and to them was commaunded that they should not kyll them, but that they should be vexed fyue monethes, and their payne was as the payne that commeth of a scorpion, when he hath stonge a man. And the sounde of their wynges, was as the sounde of charettes, when many horses runne together to battayle. And they had tayles lyke vnto Scorpions, and there were stynges in their tayles. And their power was to hurte men fyue monethes. And out of their mouthes went forth fyre and smoke, and brymstone. And of these .iii. was the third parte of men slayne, that is to saye, of fyre, smoke, and brymstone, whych proceded out of the mouthes of them. For their power was in their mouthes and in their tayles, for their tayles were lyke vnto serpentes, and had heades, and with them they hyd hurt. And the remnaunt of the men which were not slayne by these plagues, repented not of the dedes of their handes, that they should not worshipp deuyls, and Imagges of gold, and syluer, and braſſe, and stone, and of wood, which neyther can se, neyther heare, neyther go. Also they repented not of their murther, and of their sorcery, neyther of their fornicacion, neyther of their theft.

The.x. Chapter.

The angel hath the booke open. The Prophete eates the booke as sweet vpon. He geueth the booke to Johñ, who eateth it vp.

A ND I sawe an other mighty angel come downe from heaven, clothed with a clowde, and the rayne bowe vpon his heade. And his face was as it were the sunne, and his feet as it were pyllers of fyre and he had in his hande a lyttel booke open, & he put his right foote vpon the sea, and his lyfte foote on the earth. And cryed with a lowde voyce, as when a lyon roareth. And when he had cryed, seuen thonders spake their voyces. And when the seuen thonders had spoken their voyces, I was about to write. And I herde a voice from heaven saying vnto me, seale vp those thynges, which the seuen thonders spake, and write them not.

B And the angell whyche I sawe stande vpon the sea, and vpon the earth, lyfte vp his hande to heaven, and sware by him that liueth for euer more, whyche created heaven, and the thynges that therin are, and the earth, and the thynges whyche therin are, and the sea, and the thynges whyche therin are, that there

These haue power to shut heauen, that it rayne not in the dayes of their Prophesying, and haue power ouer waters to turne them to bloud, and to smyte the earth wyth al maner plages, as often as they will.

And when they haue fynished their testymonye, the beast that came out of the bottomlesse pyt, shal make warre agaynst them, and shal ouercome them, and kyl them. And their bodies shal lye in the stretes of the great cyty, whyche spyrytually is called Sodome and Egypte, where oure Lorde was crucyfyed. And they of the people and kynredes, and tonges, and they of the nacyons, shal se their bodyes thre dayes and an halfe, and shall not suffer their bodies to be put in graues. And they that dwell vpon the earth, shall reioyse ouer them and be glad, and shal sende gyftes one to another for these two prophetes vexed them that dwelt on the earth.

The.xii. Chapter.

¶ The fourth angel blasteth his trompe. There appeareth in heauen, a woman clothed with the sunne. Against whom goeth forth the dragon that persecuteth the woman.

A AND there appered a greate wonder in heauen: A woman clothed with the sunne, and the mone vnder her fete, and vpon her heade a croune of. xii. starres. And she was with childe and cryed trauailing in byrth, and payned redy to be deliuered. And there appered another wonder in heauen, for behold a great Dragon, hauinge vii. heades, and ten hornes & crounes vpō his heades, and his tayle drewe the thirde parte of the starres, and cast them to the earth.

B ¶ And the dragon stode before the woman, whyche was redy to be delyuered, for to deuoure her childe assone as it were borne. And she brought forth a man childe, which should rule all nacyons with a rod of Iron. And her sonne was taken vp vnto God, and to his seate. And the woman fled into wyldernes, where she had a place purpared of God, that they should fede her there a thousand, ij. hundred and. lx. dayes.

¶ Goddes chosen churche trusteth in his worde alwayes.

And bringeth forth Christe, both vnder and ouer.

The.xii. figure.

C And there was great battayle in heauen, Michael and his angels fought with the dragon, and the dragon fought and his angells, and preuayled not, neyther was there place founde any more in heauen. And the great dragon, that olde serpente called the deuyll and Sathanas was cast out. Whyche deceyueth all the worlde. And he was cast into the earth, and his angelles were cast out also.

¶ And I hearde a loude voyce sayenge in heauen in no wise make I alluacyon, and strength and the kyngdome of our God, and the power of his Christe. For he is cast downe, whyche accused them before God daye and nyghte. And they ouercame hym by the bloude of the lambe, and by the worde of their testimony, and they loued not their liues vnto the death. Therfore reioyce heauens, and ye that dwell in them. Wo to the inhabiters of the earth, & of the sea, for the deuyll is come downe vnto you, which hath great wrath, because he knoweth that he hath but a shorte tyme.

D And when the dragon sawe, that he was cast vnto the earth, he persecuted the woman, which brought forth the man childe. And to the woman were geuen two wynges of a greate eagle, that she might flye into the wyldernes, into her place, where she is nourished for a tyme, tymes, & halfe a time from the presence of the serpente. And the dragō cast out of his mouth water after the woman as it had bene a ryuer, because he should haue her caught of the flood. And the earth holpe the woman, & the earth opened her mouth, and swalowed vp the ryuer which the dragon cast out of his mouth. And the dragon was wroth with the woman, and went and made warre with the remnaunt of her seede, whyche kepe the commaundementes of God, and haue the testimonye of Jesus Christe. And I stode on the sea sande.

The notes.

The woman is Christe true church, the sunne wherwith is clothed, is the righteousnes of Jesu Christe, the mone vnder her fete, is the world and worldly thinges, the croune of. xii. starres, are the. xii. Apostles. And the woman crye and trauel is their preachinge and persecucion. The dragon is the deuyll, the seuen heades, are all his craftes and subtelties, the ten hornes are all his power to tempte man, the seuen crounes are his worldly rygne amonge the worldelynges, and his tayle, is the entysementes of worldly thinges, wherwith he draweth men to him, and casteth the into the earth making them carnal. The manchylde is Christe, the flyenge into the wyldernes, is the auoydyng of synne, and the nourishinge there so many dayes, is God prouicyon euen to the worldes end. Michael & his angell are the true and constaunte preachers and professours of Goddes doctryne, and the dragons angels are the contrarye. The water that the dragon casteth out of his mouth, is all hypocrisye and superstition, the earth that swalowed it vp, is the multytude of the worldelynges, and the sea sand, is their doctrine, not grounded on the rocke whyche is Christ, but on man.

And all the worlde wondred at the beaste, ¶ they worshipped the dragon, which gaue power vnto the beaste, and they worshipped the beast saiynge: who is lyke vnto the beast: who is able to warre with him?

And he dyd greate wonders, so that he made fyre come downe from heauen in the syght of men. And deceiued them that dwelt on the earth by the meanes of those synges, which he had power to do in the syght of the beaste, saying to them that dwelt on ỹ earth, that they should make an ymage vnto the beaste, whyche had the wounde of a sweard, and dyd lyue.

The other beaste that rose out of the earth, was the false and deuylish preachers, they: 2. hornes lyke vnto the hornes of a Lamb are the.2. testamentes worsted to theyr beastlye purpose, the worshippe that the beast muste haue, is the obseruation of hys rules and ceremonies, the ymage of the beaste, is the lyke tyrannye that reigned before the beade was wounded. This ymage made they speake, by promulgatynge most cruel lawes vnder paine of death. The marke that al me receiued, was the othe to obserue those lawes.

The lyke thing was the marke of the marchaūtes, but theirs was rather inward in the conscience, as is also the name and number of the beaste, though they were also outwarde. Of the number of the beaste what it betokeneth, loke in Bale vpon this place.

And he shalbe punished in fyre & brimstone before the holy angels, and before the lambe.

And the smoke of their tormente ascendeth vp euermore. And they haue no rest daye nor nyght, which worshyp the beaste & his ymage, and whosoeuer receyueth the print of his name. Here is the patience of Sayntes. Here are they that kepe the commaundementes & the fayth of Jesu.

The Lambe in Chyrche, the mounte vpon is the churche, the great rowmbe, that are in hym are the faythfull members of the same churche, the fathers name, in hys worde and the beliefe in the same, the voyce of ceruste sythe vnto mayne harpes, in thys swetenesse fayth of al nacions, that is of as many of all nacyons as are true Christians, and ground theyr fayth onely vpon scripture, whyche is full of thys al swete armonye. The newe songe is the word of God, whyche none can learne but suche as haue the name of the father written in theyr foreheades. The women are vnstedfaste and wauerynge doctryne. Babylon is the churche of Antychryste, and the wyne of her whoredome, is the vnryghtfull doctryne, set forth and taught by that wycked congregacyon. The cloude is the true membres of Gods worde, for ỹ speketh nought, in the name of God, and the sharpe sythe in hys hand, is the figure of the laste daye, which is in Scripture called harueste, and the sythe is called Gods worde, for with that sythe in Gods hande reaped.

The.xvi.Chapter.

The Angels powre out their vyales full of wrath.

AND I hearde a great voice out of the temple sayinge to the.vii. angeles: go powre vapes, powre out your bialles of wrath vpon the earth. And the firste went and powred out his bial vpon the earth, and there fell a noysome and a sore botche vpon the men, which had the marke of the beaste, & vpō them which worshipped his ymage. And the seconde angel shed out his vial vpon the sea, & it became as it were vnto the bloud of a dead man, & euery liuinge thyng dyed in ye sea. And the thirde angel shed out his vial vpon the riuers & fountaines of waters & they turned to bloud. And I heard an angel say: Lord which art & wast, thou art righteous & holy, because thou hast geue such iudgementes, for they shed out the bloud of saīctes & prophetes, & therefore hast thou geuen thē bloud to drinke, for they are worthy. And I heard another out of the aulter saye, euen so Lord God almyghty, true, and ryghteous are thy iudgementes.

C And the fourth angel poured out his vial on the sunne, & power was geue vnto hym to burne men with heate of fire. And they were raged in great heate, & spake euyl of ye name of God which hath power ouer those plagues, & they repented not, to geue him glory. And the fyfte angel poured out his vial vpō the seate of the beast, & his kingdome waxed darcke, & they gnewe their tongues for sorowe, & blasphemed the God of heauen for sorowe and payne of their sores, and repented not of their deedes.

D And the.vi. angel poured out his vyall vpon the great riuer Euphrates, & the water dried vp, that the wayes of the kynges of the este should be prepared. And I sawe thre vncleane spirites, like frogges come out of the mouth of the dragon and out of the mouth of the beast, & out of the mouth of the false prophete. For they are the spirites of deuils working miracles to go out vnto the kinges of ye earth, & to the whole worlde to gather them to ye bataple of ye greate daye of God almyghty.

E Beholde I come as a theefe. Happye is he that watcheth & keepeth his garmentes, least he be founde naked, and men se his filthynes. And he gathered them together into a place, called in the Hebrue tonge Armagedon.

Mat. xxiiii.d Luke. xii.c 1.Thes. v.d

And the.vii. angel poured out his vial into the aire. And there came a voice out of heauen fro the seate, saying: it is done. And there folowed voices thonderinges & lightenings, & there was a greate earthquake such as was not since men were vpon the earth so mighty an earthquake & so great. And the great citye was deuided into three parties, & the cyties of al nations fell. And great Babilon came in remembrance before God, to geue vnto her the cup of ye wine of the fiercenes of his wrath. Euery Ile fled away, & the mountaines were not founde. And there fell a greate hayle, as it had been talentes, out of heauē vpon the men, & the men blasphemed God, because of ye plage of ye haile, for it was great, & ye plage of it sore.

The interpreter the woman sitting vpon the beast vpon ten kinges.

AND there came one of the seuen Angeles, which had ye seuen bialles, and talked with me, sayinge vnto me, come I wil shew the, the iudgement of the great whore that sytteth vpon manye waters, w whom haue committed fornication the kinges of the earth & they that dwell in the earth, are drunke with the wyne of her fornication.

And in her forhead was a name written, a mysterye, great Babylō the mother of whordome and abominacions of the earth. And I sawe the wyfe drunken with the blonde of Sayntes, and with the bloud of the wytnesses of Jesu. And when I saw her, I wondred with great marualle.

And the angel said vnto me, wherfore marualest thou? I will shewe the ỳ mistery of the woman, & of the beast ỳ beareth her, whyche had seue heades & .x. hornes. The beaste that thou sawest, was, & is not, & shal ascende out of the bottomlesse pyt, & shal go into perdition, and they that dwell on the earth, shal wonder (whose names are not written in the boke of lyfe from the beginninge of the worlde) whē they beholde the beaste that was, and is not, And here is a minde that hath wysdome.

☞ The seuen heades are seuen mountaines, on which the woman sytteth, they are also .vij. kynges. ỳ fyue are fallen, and one is, and another is not yet come. When he commeth he muste continue a space.

☞ And the beast that was, and is not, is euē the eyghte, and is one of the seuen, and shall go into destruccion. And ỳ .x. hornes, which thou sawest, are .x. kinges, which haue receiued no kingdom, but shal receiue power as kynges at one houre with ỳ beast. These haue one minde, & shal geue their power & strength vnto ỳ beast. These shal fyght vō the lambe, & the lambe shal ouercome the. ffor he is Lorde of Lordes, & kinge of kinges, & they that are with him are called the chosen and faithful.

And he sayde vnto me, the waters whyche thou sawest, where the whore sitteth are people, and folke, and nacions & tounges. And ỳ ten hornes, which thou sawest vpon the beast, are they that shal hate the whore, & shal make her desolate and naked, and shal eate her flesh and burne her with fyre. ffor God hath put in their hertes to fulfil his wil, & to do with one consent, & to geue her kingdom vnto the beast, vntil the wordes of God be fulfilled. And the woman, which thou sawest is that great cyte, whyche reygneth ouer the kinges of the earth.

Esai. xxi.c

Hierem. li.a

AFter that I saw another angel come from heauen, hauinge great power, & the earth was lightened vō his brightnes. And he cryed mightely with a strong voyce, saying: Great Babylon is fallen, is fallen: and is become the habitacion of deuilles, and the holde of al foule spyrytes, and a cage of al vncleane and hateful birdes. ffor al nacyons haue dronken of the wyne of the wrath of her fornicacion. Rewarde her euē as she rewarded you, & geue her double accordinge to her workes. And powre in double to her in ỳ same cuppe, which she fylled vnto you. And as muche as she glorified her selfe and lyued wantonly, so muche powre you her of punishment, & sorowe, for she sayd in her herte: I sytte beinge a quene and am no widowe, and shall se no sorowe. Therfore shal her plagues come at one houre, death, and sorowe, and hunger, and she shalbe burnte with fyre, for strōge is the Lorde God, which iudgeth her.

Exod. xxij.b

And ỳ kynges of the earth shal bewepe her & wayle ouer her, which haue committed for-wicked with her, & haue lyued wantonly with her, whē they shall se ✠ smoke of her burning, & shal stand a farre of, for feare of her punishmente, saying: Alas, Alas, that great cite Babilon, that mighty cite. For at one houre is her iudgemente come. And the marchauntes of the earth, shal weepe and waple in them selues, for no mā wil bye their ware anye more, the ware of gold, & syluer, & precious stones, neither of pearle, silke, and raynes, & purple, & skarlet, and all thin wode, & all maner vessels of yuory, & all maner vessels of most precious wode, and of brasse, and of Iron, & cinamome, and odoures, and oyntmentes, & frankensence, and wine, and oyle, and fine floure, and wheat, beastes, and shepe, and horses, & charrettes, and bodyes, and soules of men.

And the apples that thy soule lusted after are departed from the. And al thinges which were deynte, & had in price are departed frō the, & thou shalt finde the no more. The marchauntes of these thinges, which were waxed riche shal stand a farre of frō her, for feare of the punishement of her, weping & waylynge, & saying: alas, alas that great cite, that was clothed in raines, & purple, and skarlet, & decked in gold, & precious stones, & pearles, for at one houre so great riches is come to nought.

And euery shyp gouerner, & all they that occupied shippes, & shipmē which worke in the sea, stode a farre of, & cried, when they saw the smoke of her burninge, saying: what cite is like vnto this great cite? And they cast dust on their heades, & cried weping, & wailing, & said: Alas, alas the greate cite wherin were made riche all that had shippes in the sea, by the reason of her costlines, for at one houre is she made desolate.

Reioice ouer her thou heauen, and ye holy Apostles, & prophetes: for God hath geuen your iudgemente on her. And a mighty angel toke vp a stone like a greate mylstone, & cast it into the sea, saying: with such violence shal that greate cite Babilon be caste, and shalbe found no more. And the voice of harpers, & musicions, and of pipers, & trumpeters, shalbe hearde no more in the, and no craftes mā, of whatsoeuer craft he be, shalbe founde any more in the, & the sound of a mylstone shalbe hard no more in the, * and the voice of the bryde grome and of the bryde, shalbe hard no more in the, for thy marchauntes were the greate men of the earth. And by thyne inchauntmēt were deceiued all nacions, & in her was found the blood of the prophetes, and of the saintes and of al that were slayne vpon the earth.

For by thole shyppes are signified the churche of christ, wherin these marines by force do rule.

And he said vnto me: write for these wordes are faythfull and true.

And he said vnto me: it is done. I am Alpha & Omega. ¶ beginning & the ende. I will geue to hym that is a thyrst of the well of the water of lyfe free. He that ouercometh, shal inherete all thynges, & I wilbe his God, & he shall be my sonne. But the fearfull and vnbeleuing, & the abhominable, & murtherers, & whoremon gers, & sorcerers, & idolaters, & all liers shall haue their parte in the lake which burneth with fyre & brymstone, which is the seconde death.

And there came vnto me one of the .vii. an gels which had the .vii. viales full of the .vii. laste plagues, & talked with me saying: come hyther
I wil shewe the the bryde, the lambes wyfe.

And he caryed me away in the spirite to a great & high mountayne, & he shewed me the great cyte, holy Jerusalem, descendyng out of hea
uen from God, hauyng the brightnes of god

And her shinyng was lyke vnto a stone most precyous, euen a Jasper cleare as Christal, & had walles great and hye, and had twelue ga tes, & at the gates .xii. angelles: & names wryt ten, which are the twelue tribes of Israel: on the east parte thre gates, & on the north syde thre gates, & towardes the south .iii. gates, and from the west thre gates, & the wal of the cyte had .xii. foundacyons, & in them the names of the lambes twelue Apostles.

And he ¶ talked with me, had a golde rede 15
to measure the cyte with al & the gates therof
& the wal therof. And the cyte was buylt .iii.
square, & the length was as large as ¶ bredth
of it, & he measured the cyte with the rede .xii.
M. furlonges: & the length and the bredth, &
the hepth of it were equall. And he measured the wal therof .an .xlviii. cubites, the measure that the angel had, was after the measure ¶ man vseth. And the buyldyng of the wall of it was of Jasper. And the cyte was pure golde 17
lyke vnto cleare glasse, and the foundacyons of the wall of the cyte were garnyshed with all maner of precious stones. The first foun dacyon was Jasper, the seconde saphyre, the thyrde a calcedony, the fourth an emerald: the fyfte sardonix: the .vi. sardeos: the .vii. chrysolite
the .viii. beral: the .ix. a topas, the tenth a chrio
prasus: the .xi. a Jacint: and the .xii. an amatist.
¶ The .xii. gates were .xii. pearles, euery gate was of one pearle, & the strete of the cyte was pure golde, as thoughe shynyng glasse. And there was no temple therein. For the Lord God almyghty & the lābe are the temple of it & the cy tye hath no nede of the sunne neyther of the moone to lyghten it. For the brightnes of God 23
dyd lyght it, & the lambe was the lyght of it.
And the people which are saued, shall walke
in the light of it: & the kinges of the earth shal bryng their glory vnto it. And the gates of it are not shut by daye. For there shalbe no nyght there. And there shal enter into it none vncleane thyng, neyther whatsoeuer worketh Esa.lx.c abominacyon: or maketh lyes: but they only which are wrytten in the lambes boke of lyfe.

The notes.

This new Jerusalem, is the faythfull congre gation of Christ. What the partes & maner of the buylding therof do signify, ynough is to be perceyued of the that be diligently marke
al that is spoken in this boke of reuelacyons, wherfore I wyll in this place note nothyng,
but that all the precyous thynges wherof
this cyte was buylded, do signifye the moste full excellencye of this churche and congrega cyon of Christ, and nothyng in comparyson is so precyous in Gods syght, as are the faythfull members of hys churche, of whom (as of most precyous stones) thys churche as cyte is buylded.

The.xxii. Chapter.

¶ The cyte of the water of life, the Tree of life & Figure of the seruy of God. The Lord bryngeth euery good thyng to passe. Worshyppe of creatures for to eschue.
The vnspotted shal not be vnrighteous. The vnrighteous of dede maye nothyng be clensed, nor vnclensed vnrighteous.

And

A And he shewed me a pure ryuer of water of lyfe clere as crystall proceedyng out of the seate of god and of the lambe. In the myddes of the strete of it, and of eyther syde of the ryuer was the wode of lyfe which bare .xii. maner of frutes: & gaue frute euery moneth: and the leaues of the wodde serued to heale the people wythall. And there shall be no more curse, but the seate of God, and the lambe shalbe in it: and hys seruaunte shall serue hym. And shall se his face, & hys name shall be in theyr foreheades. And there shalbe no nyght there, and they nede no candel nether lyght of the sonne: for the Lorde geueth them lyght, & they shall raygne for euermore.

Reuel. xxi. b

B And he sayd vnto me, these sayenges are faythfull, & true. And the Lord God of holy prophetes sente hys angel to shewe vnto hys seruaunte, the thynges whiche muste shortly be fulfylled. Beholde I come shortly. Happy is he that kepeth the sayeng of the prophesy of this boke. I am John which sawe these thynges and harde them. And when I had harde and sene, I fell doune to worshyppe before the fete of the aungell whiche shewed me these thynges. And he sayed vnto me: se thou do it not, for I am thy felowe seruaunte, & the felowe seruaunte of thy brethren the Prophetes, & of them which kepe the sayenges of this boke. But worshyppe God.

C And he sayd vnto me: seale not the sayenges of the prophesye of this boke. For the tyme is at hande. He that doeth euill, let hym do euyll styll: & he whiche is filthy, let hym be fil thy still: & he that is ryghteous, let hym be more ryghteous: & he that is holy, let him be more holy. And beholde I come shortly, & my rewarde with me, to geue euery man accordyng as hys deades shall be. I am Alpha & Omega, the begynnyng and the ende: the fyrst & the laste. Blessed are they that do his commaundementes that they power maye be in the tree of lyfe, & maye entre in through the gates into the cite. For without shall be dogges & inchaunters, & whoremongers, and murtherers & Idolaters and whosoeuer loueth or maketh leasynges.

Reuel. xxii. b and. xiiii.

D I Jesus sent myne angell, to testifye vnto you these thynges in the congregacyons. I am the rote and the generacion of David and the bryghte mornyng starre. And the spirite and the bride saye: come. And let him that heareth, saye also come. And let hym that is a thyrste, come. And let whosoeuer will, take of the water of lyfe, free.

Reuel. xxii. a

I testifye vnto euery man that heareth the wordes of the prophesye of this boke. If any man shall adde vnto these thynges, God shal adde vnto him the plagues that are written in this boke. And yf any man shal mynyshe of the wordes of the boke of this prophesy, God shall take away hys part out of the boke of lyfe, & out of the holye cite and from those thynges which are written in this boke. He which testifyeth these thynges sayeth: Surely I come quickly. Amen. Euen so: come Lord Jesu. The grace of our Lord Jesu Christe be with you all. Amen.

The notes.

The ryuer of the water of lyfe, is the truth of Gods worde, the wode that groweth on eche syde, is Christ, who bryngeth forth frute in the faythfull (hys baunches) euery moneth and that xii. maner, that is the vniuersall gyftes of the holye ghoste. And hys leaues, that is hys moste healthfull wordes and promises are healthy to the people.

Thus haste thou (gentle reader) such thynges as are darcke and hyd from the naturall vnderstandynge, marke yonder, that thou mayest with lesse labour come to the knowledge and vnderstandynge of the whole. Some brent the studye to be darke would not suffre me to be so playne as I wyshe that I myghte be, wherfore I thynke it vnnecessarye to make playne the sloggarde folowing the example of the vnprofytable droue be, who hauyng euery hy hope that the dylygente shal gather, but contrary wyse, be thou a good bee, searche for the swete honye of the moste holesome floures of Gods holye worde. And in all thynges geue ouer thy selfe to the teachynge of Gods holy spirite, who enstructeth none but the humble spirited, and suche as seke reformacion of theyr owne myndes spirytuall, and all suche he enstructeth to the full makynge them hertes a mete temple for hym to dwell in. Put in the meane tyme, refuse not the gyftes of GOD, whiche are offered vnto the by the labours of other men whom God hath endued with the moste excellent gyfte of vnderstandynge, but vse them as meanes. And yet geue not credence lyghtly vnto euery enterpretacyon, but spirit proue the spirites. And yf they counsell not Christe to be comen in the flesh (that is) that there is no maner saluacyon besyde him, beleue them not, for they are the spirite of Antechrist.
